"A good Deal has been ſaid without Doors, of the Power, of the Strength of the Colonies. It is a Topick which ought to be cautiouſly handled. In a good, on a ſound Bottom, the Force of this Country can cruſh America to Atoms. I know the Value of your Troops. I know the Skill of your Officers. There is not a Company of Foot that ſerved in America, out of which you may not pick a Man of ſufficient Knowledge and Experience to make a Governor of a Colony there. But on this Ground, on a Stamp Act, when ſo many will think it a crying Injuſtice, I am one who will lift up my Hand againſt it. In ſuch a Cauſe your Succeſs may be hazardous. America, if ſhe fell, would fall like a ſtrong Man, would embrace the Pillars of State, and pull down the Conſtitution along with her. Is this your boaſted Peace? Not to ſheath the Sword in the Scabbard, but to ſheath it in the Bowels of your Countrymen! Will you quarrel with yourſelves, now the whole Houſe of Bourbon is united againſt you, while France diſturbs your Fiſheries at Newfoundland, embarraſſes your Slave Trade to Africa, and witholds from your Subjects in Canada their Property ſtipulated by Treaty, while the Ranſom for the Manillas is denied from Spain, and its gallant Conqueror baſely traduced as a mean Plunderer; a Gentleman (meaning Col. Draper) whoſe noble and generous Spirit would do Honour to the proudeſt Grandee of her Country. Say the Americans have not acted in all things with Prudence and Temper: They have been wrong'd; they have been driven to Madneſs by Injuſtice. Will you now puniſh them for the Madneſs you have occaſioned? Rather let Prudence and Temper come firſt from this Side, I will undertake for America, that ſhe will follow the Example. There was two Lines in a Ballad of Prior, ſo applicable to you and your Colonies, I cannot help repeating them.

To her Faults a little blind,
To her Virtues very kind.

Upon the Whole, I will beg Leave to tell the Houſe what is really my Opinion; it is, that the Stamp Act be repealed, abſolutely, totally, and immediately; that the Reaſon for the Repeal be aſſigned, becauſe it was founded upon an erroneous Principle. At the ſame Time, let the ſovereign Authority of this Country over the Colonies be aſſerted in as ſtrong Terms as can be deviſed, be made to extend to every Point of Legiſlation whatever, that we may bind their Trade, confine their Manufactures, and exerciſe every Power whatever, except that of taking their Money out of their Pockets without their Conſent."

Mr. Dowdeſwell, the preſent Chancellor of the Exchequer, roſe up after Mr. PITT. He ſaid, 'It could not be expected he ſhould add any thing to the Subject on which Mr. PITT had ſpoken; it could not now admit a Doubt, but that the ſtamp Act muſt be repealed. He went on to ſhew that Mr. Grenville had not hurt the Spaniſh Trade by giving Orders and Inſtructions, but by forbearing to give them particularly, with reſpect to Bullion, which was not prohibited by any Law.

Mr. Beckford was the laſt Speaker of any Weight. He aſſerted to Mr. Grenville, 'That he had denied the Right of Parliament to ſend internal Taxes to America, he had only allowed the Power of Parliament to be Omnipotent. He concluded with expreſſing his perfect Agreement in Sentiments with his Right Honorable Friend (Mr. Pitt) excepting in one Particular, the Reſtraints on the Continent in Favour of the Iſlands, in which he was ſure he could convince him he was miſtaken.

I fear I have tired your Patience, Sir, with this long and circumſtantial Account: I will only add one Obſervation. You have [illegible] when a large company have been made to feel altogether an electrical ſhock; ſuch was the effect on the whole Houſe of commons, and the galleries, when Mr. PITT pronounced, I rejoice that America has reſiſted!

His Excellency, in Terms worthy the great Miniſter who ſeconded the immortal* PITT in his Motion for the Repeal of the Stamp-Act, has expreſſed his juſt Senſe of the inſeparable Connection between the true Intereſts of Great-Britain and her Colonies.—He has alſo been pleaſed to intimate his Intention of favouring the Town with his Picture, to be placed in Faneuil-Hall, as humbly requeſted. Mr. OTIS at the ſame Time communicated a Letter of the like purport from the Honorable Colonel BARRE.

"In the Houſe of Lords, the glorious Chief Juſtice of the common Pleas, now Lord Cambden, diſtinguiſhed himſelf in Defence of American Liberty, and proved from my Lord Chief Juſtice Hale, and other great Writers, that the Stamp-Act was illegal, and an infringement of the Rights of his Majeſty's American Subjects; but the Scots Chief Juſtice of England, the Lord high chancellor, and others oppoſed him; and when the Houſe divided againſt the Rights of the Britiſh Parliament, 114 Lords for the Right, againſt Lord Campden, Lord Shelburne, Lord Torrington, Lord Cornwallis and Lord Paulet, who were left alone—ſo many Things were ſaid on both Sides that it would require a Rheam of Paper to tell you all; in a Word, Mr. Pitt in the Commons, and Lord Cambden in the Houſe of Lords, uſed the whole Force of Eloquence and Law, to convince that the Britiſh Legiſlature had no Right to tax America: but by Numbers they were overpowered; tho' not obliged to quit that Ground that they truſt they will ever defend—The preſent Miniſtry are ſtrenuous in the Repeal of the Act, and will exert their whole Influence to procure it; the late Attorney General, that —— Norton was for ſending Mr. Pitt to the Tower, but he and the whole ------------ are likely to receive their Reward; for never were Characters more ---------------, nor Men more execrated than B--e, G-----le and N----n.

This Day were interred here the Remains of Mr. JONATHAN LYMAN, of Lebanon, late a Tutor of Yale College, who, on his Journey through this Town, was, on Thurſday laſt, violently ſeized with a bilious Diſorder, which increaſing upon him, iſſued at length in the Iliac Paſſion, of which, on Sunday Evening he expired, in the 29th Year of his Age.—He received the Honors of the College near eight Years ſince. After two Years he was choſen Tutor of the ſame; in which Capacity he ſerved with univerſal Approbation for [illegible] Years. For two Years paſt he has preached occaſionally, univerſally admired by the judicious. The many mutual amiable Qualifications he was poſſeſſed of, joined with a ſprightly Genius, and improved by thoſe Acquirements from Study, which juſtly rank him with thoſe of the firſt Character for Learning, rendered him dear to all, peculiarly ſo to his intimate Acquaintance, and gave the higheſt Proſpect of his being extenſively uſeful to Society. He encountered Death with a truly Chriſtian Fortitude, and died with uncommon Peace and Reſignation to the divine Will. His Funeral was attended by a numerous Concourſe of People. Suitable to the ſolemn Occaſion, a Sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. BRECK, from Job vii. 16.—I would not live alway.——

NEW-YORK, May 8.

The Play advertiſed to be acted on laſt Monday Evening, having given Offence to many of the Inhabitants of this City, who thought it highly improper that ſuch Entertainments ſhould be exhibited at this Time of public Diſtreſs, when great Numbers of poor People can ſcarce find Means of Subſiſtence, whereby many Perſons might be tempted to neglect their Buſineſs, and ſquander that Money which is neceſſary to the Payment of this Debt, and Support of their Families, a Rumour was ſpread about Town on Monday, that if the Play went on, the Audience would meet with ſome Diſturbance from the Multitude. This prevented the greateſt Part of them who intended to have been there, from going: However many People came, and the Play was begun; but ſoon interrupted by the Multitude who burſt open the Doors, and entered with Noiſe and Tumult. The Audience eſcaped in the beſt Manner they could; many loſt their Hats and other Parts of Dreſs. A Boy had his Skull fractured, and was yeſterday trepan'd; his Recovery is doubtful, ſeveral others were dangerouſly hurt; but we have heard of no Lives loſt. The Multitude immediately demoliſhed the Houſe, and carried the Pieces to the Common, where they conſumed them in a Bonfire.

The Neighbours coming up, found the unhappy Man, who was Dead, and having ſtopt the Boy, they made him carry the Corpſe to the Work-Houſe, where it was buried. BOSTON.

Extract of a Letter from a Merchant in London dated March 4, 1766.

"INCLOSED is a Piece I cut out from the Public Advertiſer, and I think very well wrote in the droll Way, and very true every tittle of it. The Hint he gives concerning a certain American Governor's Papers not being laid before a certain Aſſembly, are the Letters wrote by G——v——r B——d, ſetting forth the bad Conſequences impoſing the Stamp-Act, and which Papers were ſmuggled by Mr. G——v——lle, and never were intended to be laid before the Parliament; and G——r B——d's Conduct was greatly called in Queſtion for Want of Spirit; but theſe Letters coming to light (and are really well wrote) turn the Tide of Affairs again in his Favour. We have been ſo happy as to carry it in the Houſe of Commons for a Repeal of the Stamp-Act, and the new Regulation with Regard to Extending the Power of the Courts of Vice Admiralty 108 Majority; the Houſe divided upon the Queſtion being put, and were as follows, For the Queſtion 275, againſt 167: And this Week the Report will be made before the Houſe of Lords, and our Fate there determined: Great Oppoſition is making but we flatter ourſelves we ſhall carry it; Lord Cheſterfield has qualified himſelf on Purpoſe to give his Vote for a Repeal; and the Duke of Richmond is come from France for the ſame Purpoſe."

To the Printer of the Public Advertiſer.

SIR,

I CONGRATULATE my Countrymen on the happy Iſſue of Affairs, that is like ſhortly to crown the honeſt Endeavours of a patriotic Adminiſtration; to re-eſtabliſh Confidence, Harmony, and a reciprocal Communication of Benefits between Great-Britain and her Colonies.

Notwithſtanding every Artifice has been tried that could oppoſe, evade, or protract the Repeal of the Stamp Act, Juſtice has at Length prevailed, and the Cries of the injured Americans, the Complaints of our ſtarving Manufacturers, and Groans of expiring Commerce, have been heard above the Roarings of Faction with all her 167 Tongues.

In this Affair the Conduct of both the preſent and late Miniſtry has been ſteady and uniform; the one to the Purpoſes of Truth and Liberty, the other the Ends of Falſhood and Oppreſſion; but Honeſty (a ſilly Quality) going always to work in ſtrait Lines, requires no Cunjurer to trace out her Ways; while Deceit, by her Shifts and Doublings, affords good Sport in the Chace: I ſhall therefore paſs over the Conduct of the preſent Miniſtry, which he that runs may read, and entirely attach myſelf to illuſtrate that of the late, as a Subject more worthy of my Importance.

It is hard to ſay who was the real Father of this Babe of Grace, the Stamp Act; ſome aſcribe it wholly and ſolely to Fair George, while others ſuſpect his deareſt Companions had a Share in the getting on't—the Caſe of many a private Gentleman. I am very loth, for Reaſons beſt known to my Wife, to enter on the Chapter of Cuckoldom, as it is hard to ſay whoſe Horn ought to be exalted, and whoſe not; but I am apt to think, from the Likeneſs of this heavy croſs-grained, ſhort-ſighted, and, I truſt, ſhort-lived Brat, to its nown Dad, the Gentle Shepherd (Gr-nv-l-e) that he had all Juſtice done him by his Spouſe; ſhe brought it forth in little more than Nine Months after he had aſcertained the Right of getting it.

Beſides, from the Character of his Cronies, there is no Room to ſurmiſe the ſmalleſt Breach of Decency or Friendſhip on their Part. Jemmy Twitcher (Lord S--dw--h) is known never to have betrayed his Friend in all his Life; and, indeed, from Jack Bloomſbury's (D. of B--df--d) Poverty and Diſtreſs, there may be ſome Cauſe of Suſpicion, as he might be fain to make another Man father his Child, merely for want of Ability to maintain it himſelf. On this I decide nothing; but ſhall reſume my Story without Allegory, and treat the Gentle Shepherd as the real Projector of the Stamp-Act.

Without enquiring into the State of our Colonies; without hearing their Petitions, or even conſulting the Intereſts of the Mother Country, was this arbitrary, grievous, and unequal Taxation impoſed. I will do Juſtice to the Ignorance of the Gentle Shepherd, and allow, that this more than a Deſire of Oppreſſion might lead him into the Meaſure: He viewed all Government through the Medium of Finances, and counted nothing of Uſe to the State but what brought in ſomething to the Exchequer. In this Light the immenſe Advantage of the Colonies to this Country was overlooked: They had no Credit in his Books for the Number of our induſtrious Poor they maintain; the Quantity of Shipping they employ; and even the great Proportion of our Taxes, which they actually pay in the Price of every Commodity which they conſume. All this was Greek to him; he only tho't of ſqueezing 70,000l. out of their Pockets; never dreaming that he was by this Means keeping two Millions out of our own.

Thus Ignorance firſt conceived this Tax, but Obſtinacy, and, I am afraid, ſomething worſe, carried it through. This I think I may venture to ſay, ſince the Diſcovery of a timely and exact Intelligence, tranſmitted by an American Governor, which was unjuſtifiably kept up from the Knowledge of a certain Aſſembly, even after poſitive Orders were given from the higheſt Authority to lay it before them; and ſmuggling of Papers was adopted without Remorſe by the very Miniſters who were then lancing their deſpotic Arrets againſt the Smugglers of Caſh. This is a Charge too ſerious to inſiſt on here, but what would make them tremble, if ſtuck to in a proper Place.

Let us now view their Condition with the Turnſtile of good Fortune, that wheeled them out of Place, brought the preſent Miniſtry in. Their firſt Study was to hamper and perlex their Succeſſors, and for that End held all Play fair Play, as at Horn-Fair. Like true Sampſons, they did not Scruple ſhaking the Pillars of the State, ſo they could bring down the Philiſtines that ſat on the Roof. They blew the Coals of Diſſention between Great-Britain and North-America; they conſtrued the Repreſentations of the Colonies into Treaſon, and branded every Riot with the Name of Rebellion. In this Cauſe the great Financier exhauſted all his Eloquence: It was curious to behold him and his Coajutor, like ———the learned Glyn and Maynard,

To make good Subjects Traitors, ſtrain hard.

The Examination of the Witneſſes was a true Scene, and comic: The Queſtions were put with all the Sagacity and Quietneſs of a pettyfogging Attorney, who, like Hudibras's Council,

———had told the Clock
For many Years at Bridewell Dock,
At Weſtminſter and Hicks' Hall,
And Hiccius Doccius play'd in all.

When, after all theſe honeſt Endeavours, the Jury acquitted the Priſoners, not finding ſalt Pork ſufficient in itſelf either to hang or ſtamp a Man, their next Eſſay was to beg hard for what they called a Modification of the Tax, that was to give up the Advantage of the Revenue, and retain a Pepper-Corn of Oppreſſion, merely to ſhew the Americans what Miſchief we would do them were it not our own Intereſt to let it alone; beſides the laudable Purpoſe of keeping up a faithful Band of Gentlemen Stamp-Maſters, who have already the Merit at leaſt of Confeſſors, if not Martyrs in the Cauſe.

Indeed that precions Crown ſeems to have been modeſtly declined by every Man of them; nor does it appear that the North-Americans ever intended them the Honor but in Effigy; an Idea which they ſeem to have borrowed from the dog-ear'd Reading of the great Financier himſelf, whoſe virtual Repreſentative has occupied a very high Place in every commune conſilium, Wittengemot, or gathering of Mobility from Caſco Bay to Cape Florida.

Before I conclude, let me pray you, Mr. Woodfall, to offer my kind Compliments to your faithful Correſpondent Anti-Sejanus. I wiſh him a ſafe Journey to Bath, and hope his Waters will paſs eaſy. I wiſh he could prevail on ſome of his great Friends to accompany him; they would dance more at their Eaſe in the Long-Room, than on the D—l's Tomb-Stone, Whenever I begin to turn dull, languid and croſs; when I find my Conjectures laughed at, my Aſſertions contradicted, and my Opinions deſpiſed, I'll go to Bat', too.

I am, SIR,
New Bond-Street, Your humble Servant,
Feb. 26. THERSITES.

CORK, (in Ireland) January 30.

We have the pleaſure to acquaint our readers, that a marble ſtatue of the Right Hon. WILLIAM PITT, Eſq; is juſt finiſhed by the celebrated Mr. Wilton, and is very ſoon expected over to be erected on our Exchange, in grateful Teſtimony of his glorious and patriotic adminiſtration. The ſtatue coſt Three Hundred and Ten pounds, One Hundred of which was generouſly given by the Corporation, and the remainder is raſing by private ſubſcription. The ingenious artiſt, we are told, has acquired great Honour by this Performance, as it is eſteemed a moſt excellent piece; and extremely like the great Original. It is to be hoped that other cities in his Majeſty's dominions, will follow the example of Cork, and hand down to poſterity the likeneſs of him, whoſe ſervices to his country can never be forgotten.

NEW-YORK, May 15.

Extract of a Letter from Charles-Town, South-Carolina, dated April 16.

Our aſſiſtant judges, the firſt inſtant, gave it as their unanimous opinion, that our courts ought to be opened and buſineſs proceeded on as uſual without Stamps, (in this they over-ruled our chief juſtice) the clerk of the common pleas refuſed to do his part, and ſtill continues obſtinate, which has occaſioned ſome demur, and a fruitleſs application to the governor to ſuſpend him; however I hope all will be ſet to rights, next week, or at fartheſt the middle of next month, when the judges reſolve to commit him for cantempt, which indeed they ought to have done at firſt, and would, had they been aware of his intentions.

We are very hearty here eſpecially in the country, in town indeed we have a parcel of jacobites, that give us as much trouble as they can, and leave no ſtone unturn'd to effect what their brethren at Georgia have already done there, a circulation of the Stamps, however I am not in the leaſt apprehenſive they will ſucceed; tho' to give you an example, how hearty they are in the cauſe, I cannot help acquainting you with the following occurrence that happened not many nights ſince.—As a gentlemen in this town was going to a tavern in a dark night, he overheard a very extraordinary expreſſion, that induced him to ſtop and attend unperceived to a couple of men, who were in cloſe converſation in the ſtreet; one of whom appeared to him to be an old, the other a young man---one ſaid to the other, he wiſhed the Stamp-Act might not be repealed, for it was a fine opportunity for Charley, and that he would go any lengths; the other replied, that he wiſhed ſo too, but that as he was very eaſy in his circumſtances, he ſhould be afraid to venture without great probability.—The Lord deliver us from ſuch raſcals. We are determined to bear every thing with pleaſure, till we hear the expected deciſion of Parliament, and then ſhould it be againſt us, there are numbers here determined to go to any extremities rather than be frighted or choated out of their liberties.

By Letters from Jamaica, we learn, that in about 4 Months, the Duties ariſing from the Stamps in that Iſlands, amounted to more than £. 10,000 Sterling.

The general Aſſembly of this Province, is prorougued to the 20th of May Inſtant.

A letter from Antigua of March 4, ſays, "Since the Stamp-Act took place, an epidemical diſorder followed it, which has carried off one half of the white inhabitants of this iſland: it is not in my power to deſcribe the devaſtation it has made, inſomuch that the bells are forbid to ring, as is cuſtomery when a perſon dies. The regiment quartered here, which not long ſince conſiſted of 750 men, is how reduced to leſs than half that number."

ANTIGUA, March 12. On Sunday laſt at quarter paſt 4 in the afternoon, we had a ſevere ſhock of an earthquake, which was of a longer duration and violence than any felt here for ſeveral years, but we hear of no damage ſuſtained by it.

ANNAPOLIS, (in Maryland) April 2.

Laſt Monday a very melancholy Accident happen'd in Baltimore County: a Negro Quater of Mrs. Orrick's took Fire about Sunſet, on a very calm and ſerene Evening, and tho' the Family were not far from it, no Body diſcovered it till it got to too great a Head to be extinguiſhed. There was an old Negro Woman and three Negro Children in it, who all periſhed in the Fire: the diſtreſſed Mothers of the Children, would have ruſhed into the Fire to take out their Children, yet muſt have periſhed with them, if they had not been held.

Manufactures only excepted under very light Duties—Part of the preſent Duty on Tea to be taken off. "The Bill for the Repeal of the Stamp-Act has paſſed the Houſe of Commons; and we expect it will paſs the Houſe of Lords this Week, and receive the Royal Aſſent."

By a Letter from London, dated March 1, 1766, we are informed, that on the 20th of February laſt John Winthrop, Eſq; Holliſian Profeſſor of the Mathematicks and Philoſophy at Cambridge, New-England, was unanimouſly elected a Fellow of the Royal Society.

NEW-YORK, May 15.

Extract of a Letter from Charleſtown, South-Carolina, dated the 26th of April.

"Our Aſſiſtant Judges were of Opinion, the firſt of this Month, that our Courts ought to be opened, and then gave an Order to enter up a Judgment mov'd for; which Mr. Dougal Campbell, the Clerk of the Common Pleas refuſed to do, and they, too indulgently, imagining he would conſider better of it and do it, or if he did not, that the Lieutenant Governor would ſuſpend him upon their Application, did not commit him immediately for his Contempt of the Court. This has occaſioned us ſome Trouble, as the Governor, by Advice of his Council chiefly Place, or rather Multi-Place Men, has refuſed to comply with the Application of the Judges to ſuſpend him: However, our Aſſembly have taken up the Matter, and addreſſed the Governor Yeſterday to do it; he has taken till Monday to give his Anſwer, when, 'tis generally imagined (indeed I can't ſee how he can do otherwiſe) that he will remove this Obſtruction.——Then Buſineſs in the Court of Common Pleas will immediately go on as uſual;—and as our Harbour begins to be thin'd of Shipping, whether the Stamp Act is repealed or not, 'tis my real Opinion we ſhall do as well with it as any of you to the Northward. We grow more and more hearty and unanimous againſt it. The Parliament, by what I can learn, will repeal every Part excepting the aſſerting their Authority, by continuing a ſmall Tax, which, if complied with, tho' the Tax be ever ſo ſmall, all will be loſt; no Artifice will be untried, depend upon it, not only by taking off all Reſtrictions upon Trade, but by giving ſome real Advantages unenjoyed hitherto, in order to carry ſo material a Point, and douceur us into a Compliance; and 'tis to be hoped we ſhall continue firm and be upon our Guard."

Some Directions for chooſing a Phyſician.

THE beſt Time to chooſe a Phyſician, is, while you enjoy Health, and have the full Exerciſe of your Reaſoning Faculties; for if you have not determin'd in a State of Health, who you would chooſe ſhould adminiſter Medicine to you, ſhould you have the Miſfortune to be ſick, 'tis Ten to One, but ſome Deſigning Fellow ſhall throw himſelf in your Way, pretending to great Knowledge, and extraordinary Succeſs, work himſelf into your Eſteem, ſo as to get you to ſwallow large Quantities of Druggs, to the Deſtruction of Body and Eſtate. To prevent which, chooſe as follows, in a State of Health, when the Mind is unruffled and unclouded, by any bodily Diſorders, chooſe One of a good natural Genius, let him be by Nature turn'd for medical Studies, let him have applied himſelf cloſely to his Studies, under the Inſpection of a Phyſician, of great Learning and known Abilities. He muſt when he enters on his Profeſſion, adminiſter but few Medicines, and them not raſhly; but after he has critically examined his Patients Symptoms, or whatever differs in the Patient's Body, from what us'd to happen in his healthy State. To form a Judgment of a Patient's Diſorder, his Eyes, Tongue, Pulſe, Urine, Stool, Perſpiration, Sweat, &c. ſhould be examined into. N. B. A Phyſician's cramming a Vomit down a Patient's Throat immediately, and proceeding to Bleed, Purge, Clyſter, and Bliſter, likewiſe repeating Scraps of Latin to illiterate Men, and Women, is no Evidence of a Man's being learned, but the contrary. Neither is a diſtemper'd Boy's living three Months with, and being poultiſed and nurſed by an old Squaw, ſufficient to make a Doctor of him, nay, even ſuppoſing he lodged with her all the while.———

" The regular Method of ſtudying Medicine, according " to Boerhaave, ſhould be, by laying the Foundation of " the Art, in the Contemplation of geomatrical Figures, Bo" dies, Weights, Meaſures, Velocity, the Fabric of Machines, " and the Power of acting upon other Bodies thence ari" ſing.——While he employs his Thoughts about theſe " Matters, he is likewiſe taught a juſt Method of reaſon" ing; after which he may proceed to inform himſelf of " the Properties of Fluidity, Elaſticity, Tenuity, Weight " and Tenacity of Liquids, from Hydroſtaties. His Rea" ſon being by this Time much improved, he next applies " to ſtudy the Force of Fluids upon Machines, & of theſe upon " Fluids; and to demonſtrate them by Mathematics, con" firm them by Hydroſtaties, and illuſtrate them by che" mimical Experiments; at the ſame Time entertaining " himſelf with Speculations on the Nature of Fire, Water, " Air, Salts, and other homogeneous Bodies.———

" Having laid this Foundation, his next Buſineſs is to " apply himſelf to the Study of Anatomy, in order to ob" tain a clear Idea of the human Fabric. To this he " joins the Knowledge of the vital Fluids, and examines " them with the Aſſiſtance of Anatomy, Chemiſtry, Hy" droſtaties, and even of the Microſcope: And ſo now you " ſee him qualified for writing a Theory of Health, and " inveſtigating the Cauſes of Diſeaſes. Now behold him " buſied in furniſhing himſelf with medicinal Obſervations " from all Quarters; ſometimes he diſſects the dead Bo" dies of Perſons, whoſe Diſeaſes he had obſerved; at o" ther Times he marks the Symptoms of Sickneſs procur" ed by Art in Brutes; and at Length collecting together " all the Effects of Diſeaſes, with their Remedies, whether " learned from his own Experience, or found in the beſt " Authors, he digeſts, conſiders, and compares them with " thoſe which are demonſtrated by Theory. This he tells " us is the Method which he took himſelf, and which he " recommended to his Pupils, in order to gain a thorough " Knowledge of Medicine. If then he would advance the " healing Art, he ought to collect a ſelect Treaſure of " practical Obſervations, reſt ſatisfied with a few, but well " choſen Medecines, be thoroughly acquainted with their " Virtues and Efficacy in different Conſtitutions and Di" ſeaſes, deſpiſe the cumberſom Load of Recepies with " which practical Writers, of an inferior Rank, abound, " reject the ſo much extolled Medicines of the Chemiſts, " and attempt the Relief of Patients by a proper Diet and " Exerciſe, and ſuch Medicines, as Obſervation and ſound " Philoſophy recommend: For to the Improvement of Ana" tomy and natural Philoſophy is much of the Succeſs of " Phyſic to be attributed."

If Boerhaave was a competent Judge of the Knowledge neceſſary to qualify a Man for practiſing Phyſic ſucceſsfully, and I am well informed he was; how many in this Government are tolerably qualified? is a Queſtion I am not able to determine; but by the beſt Information I can get, near ſeven Eighths that adminiſter Medicines to the Sick, practice by Wrote, and preſcribe at a Venture.

If this be the Caſe, as undoubtedly it is, the Caſe of the Sick is very deplorable. 'Tis certain that the generality of Mankind are not Judges whether a Phyſician is ſkillful or not; and it is great Pity that thoſe Gentlemen whom we have made Choice of to be Guardians of our Lives and Eſtates, ſhould not look into this Affair, and put it under better Regulations. It has been thought by ſome, that if two or three Phyſicians of Note were empowered to examine thoſe Gentlemen that enter from Time to Time on the Practice of Medicine, and to give ſuch as they ſhould think duly Qualified, a recommendatory Writing, ſigned and ſealed; and if thoſe only which ſhould obtain the above Recommendation were empowered to obtain any Charges made again the Sick, it might be of public Benefit.———I do not mean to preſcribe a Remedy, but only to point out the Diſorder.

RIDAY laſt to the inexpreſſible Joy of all we received by Capt. Coffin the important News of the Repeal of Stamp-Act, which [illegible] by his Majeſty the 18th arch laſt; upon which [illegible] the Town were ſet a ging, the Ships in the [illegible] diſplay'd their Colours, ns were diſcharged in different Parts of the Town, and the Evening were ſeveral Bonfires. According to a pre- us Vote of the Town the Select Men met in the After- on at Faneuil Hall, and appointed Monday laſt for a Day General Rejoicings on that happy Occaſion. The rning was uſhered in with Muſick, Ringing of Bells, the Diſcharge of Cannon, the Ships in the Harbour, many of the Houſes in Town being adorned with Co- rs—Joy ſmiled in every Countenance, Benevolence, atitude, and Content ſeemed the Companions of all. the Generoſity of ſome Gentlemen remarkable for their manity and Patriotiſm, our Goal was freed of Debtors. At One o'Clock the Caſtle and Batteries, and Train of illery fired a Royal Salute; and the Afternoon was ſpent Mirth and Jollity.—In the Evening the whole Town beautifully illuminated:—On the Common the Sons Liberty erected a magnificent Pyramid, illuminated with Lamps: The four upper Stories of which were orna- nted with the Figures of their Majeſties, and fourteen the worthy Patriots who have diſtinguiſhed themſelves heir Love of Liberty.

n the Top of the Pyramid was fixed a round Box of works horizontally. About one hundred Yards from Pyramid the Sons of Liberty erected a Stage for the Ex- tion of their Fireworks, near the Work-Houſe, in the er Room of which they entertained the Gentlemen of Town. John Hancock, Eſq; who gave a grand and ant Entertainment to the genteel Part of the Town, and ted the Populace with a Pipe of Madeira Wine, erect- t the Front of his Houſe, which was magnificently il- [illegible] which was to anſwer thoſe of the Sons of Liberty: At Duſk the Scene opened by the Diſcharge of twelve Rockets from each Stage; after which the Figures on the Pyramid were uncovered, making a beautiful Appearance.—To give a Deſcription of the great Variety of Fireworks exhibited from this Time till Eleven o'Clock would be endleſs—the Air was fill'd with Rockets——the Ground with Bee-hives and Serpents—and the two Stages with Wheels of Fireworks of various Sorts. Mr. Otis, and ſome other Gentlemen who lived near the Common kept open Houſe, the whole Evening, which was very pleaſant; the Multitudes of Gentlemen and Ladies, who were continually paſſing from one Place to another, added much to the Brilliancy of the Night: At Eleven o'Clock the Signal being given by a Diſcharge of 21 Rockets, the horizontal Wheel on the Top of the Pyramid or Obeliſk was played off ending in the Diſcharge of ſixteen Dozen of Serpents in the Air which concluded the Shew. To the Honor of the Sons of Liberty we can with Pleaſure inform the World, that every Thing was conducted with the utmoſt Decency and good Order, not a Reflection caſt upon any Character, nor the leaſt Diſorder during the whole Scene.——The Pyramid, which was deſigned to be placed under the Tree of Liberty, as a ſtanding Monument of this glorious Æra, by accident took Fire about one o'Clock, and was conſumed:—The Lamps by which it was illuminated not being extinguiſhed at the Cloſe of the Scene it is ſuppoſed to have taken Fire by ſome of them.

On Tueſday Evening ſome of the Sons of Liberty apprehending the Lanthorns hung on the Tree of Liberty, which the Night before amounted only to the ever memorable No. 45, would have made a more loyal and ſtriking Appearance if increaſed to the glorious Majority of 108, met and procuring that Number, diſpoſed them on the Tree in a very agreeable pictureſque Manner. The Houſes next adjoining and oppoſite were decorated with Figures, characteriſtic of thoſe to whom we bear the deepeſt Loyalty and Gratitude: Here, an imperfect Portrait of their Majeſties, our moſt gracious King and Queen—there the Royal Arms;—here, the illuſtrious Campden, Pitt, Conway, Barre, and others of late ſo conſpicuous, in the Cauſe of Liberty and their Country: In ſhort, Imagination muſt ſupply the Variety exhibited on this Occaſion, which Words are wanting to expreſs.

Mr. GREEN,

SIR,

IT is well known that a Conſociation has lately met at this Place, to hear and determine a Complaint exhibited by my People, againſt me, wherein I am charged with ſcandalous Immorality, in a Variety of Particulars. Since the Letters which called the Conſociation, have been publicly read in every Church in the Northern Diviſion of the County: Now, Sir, I think it is no more than a Piece of Juſtice due to my own Character, to make public (in ſome Way) not only the Reſult and Determination of the Conſociation, wherein I was acquitted of every Thing laid to my Charge; and the Names of the Gentlemen that were preſent, and acted in that Council; ſince the known Character of my Judges, muſt, in this Caſe, be an Advantage to my own; but alſo, the particular Allegations produced againſt me: That ſo Perſons that have been hitherto unacquainted therewith, may entertain no Surmiſes, that I have ever been charged with, or ſuſpected of, ſuch groſs Acts of Immorality, as every one's Mind, upon hearing the Letters to the Churches, may juſtly have imagined.——Therefore hope the Public will excuſe your inſerting the following Copy of Record of the Conſociation's Proceedings, atteſted by the Scribe.

The Peruſal of it will, indeed, revive in the Minds of many, ſome Scenes of my paſt Life, diſagreeable to recollect, that have paſs'd under public Speculation; but, in Faithfulneſs to my moral Character, I omit Nothing.

I am, SIR,

Your very humble Servant,

The Rev'd Mr. William Ruſſel was choſen Moderator, and Mr. Nathanael Hooker Scribe of this Conſociation.

The Meeting was opened, according to Cuſtom, with humble and united Prayer to GOD for Grace, Wiſdom, and Aſſiſtance in all Matters lying before the Conſociation.

A Complaint was exhibited to this Conſociation, by Martin Wynchel, Aſhbel Holcomb, Zacheus Gillet, Joſeph Corniſh, Joſeph Forward, jun. and Abel Forward, in the Name and Behalf of the ſaid Society of Turkey-Hills, charging the Rev'd Mr. Nehemiah Strong, Paſtor of the Church in ſaid Society, with Immorality and ill Conduct, in the following Articles.

I. That he was guilty of fraudulent and deceitful Dealing with ſaid Society, in that, unbeknown to the People of ſaid Society, and a little before his Ordination, being ſoon after the Society had voted his Salary and Settlement, He eſpouſed, and was actually married to a Woman at New-Haven, ſuppoſed to be a divorced Woman, who appeared afterwards to be the Wife of one Capt. Burr of New-Haven, which Divorce was obtained by Fraud and Deceit, which ſoon afterwards appeared, by the Judgment of the Hon. the General Aſſembly of this Colony: Which Marriage of the ſaid Mr. Strong, ſoon cauſed great Uneaſineſs and Diſſatisfaction among many of the People of ſaid Society, declaring, that they ſuppoſed the ſaid Mr. Strong to be guilty of a Breach of the Seventh Commandment of the Moral Law, and lived in the Sin of Adultery, in which Opinion they were confirmed by the Act of the ſaid General Aſſembly. By which Conduct of the ſaid Mr. Strong, the ſaid Society apprehend that he is guilty of Breach of Covenant made with ſaid Society, at the Time of his Ordination: And the Minds of the People of ſaid Society are greatly alienated from him, and, rather than be confined to his Miniſtry, withdrew, and joined themſelves to the Church of England.

II. That the ſaid Mr. Strong, for, and by Reaſon of ſaid Marriage, became immediately involved in Law-Suits with the ſaid Burr, the Huſband of the Woman Mr. Strong had married; that he is ſtill in the Law with Mr. Burr, and has been entangled in other unneceſſary Law Suits, to the Hindrance and Prevention of a due and faithful Diſcharge of his miniſterial Work.

III. That he has utterly and wholly neglected to uſe Endeavours to reclaim or ſtop any Perſon from going off to the Church of England, and is thereby chargeable with Unfaithfulneſs in, or Non-performance of, the Work of the Miniſtry.

IV. That he has been guilty of Equivocation and falſe Repreſentation of a certain Fact, wherein he ſaid, he did not go nor ſtay out of this Colony, becauſe or to put by an Action of Darius Pinney, he apprehended would be commenced againſt him, at a County Court, when he had, before he went out of the Colony, employed a certain Perſon to appear for him at Court, to put by ſaid Action, and have it continued.

V. That he is guilty of Breach of Covenant, for that at the Time of his Settlement he agreed to take ſome Part of his annual Salary in Wheat, Rye, and other Country Produce, and now holds the ſaid Society to pay him all in Money, to their great Uneaſineſs and Diſappointment.

VI. That he is guilty of Imprudence & ill Conduct in refuſing to take Advice of his People, in purchaſing a Living in the ſaid Society; but by buying a Place for a Living, he has ſo much involved himſelf in Debt, that he has been preſſing ſo hard upon the People, for Money, as to increaſe a great Uneaſineſs among them.

VII. That he is guilty of publickly delivering or preaching unſound and unorthodox Doctrine, viz. "That GOD "has made Promiſes in his Word, to the unregenerate, to "beſtow ſaving and ſanctifying Grace, by, or for, their Endeavours or Performances."

Concluding their Complaint with a Deſire that he may be diſcharged and diſmiſſed from his miniſterial Office in ſaid Society, as by the Complaint on File, may more fully appear.

The ſaid Mr. Strong appeared and plead to the ſeveral Articles and Allegations exhibited in the above-mentioned Complaint in Manner following,

I. That as to what is contained in the firſt Article, true it is, that, before his Settlement in ſaid Society, and for ought he knows, unknown to the People, he was actually married to one Lydia Burr, who was ſuppoſed to be a divorced Woman, and had actually obtained a Divorce from her late Huſband, by the Act and Order of the Hon. Judges of the Superior Court of this Colony, as appears of Record—Which Act and Order was indeed afterwards reverſed by the Hon. General Aſſembly of this Colony, and the Woman adjudged to be the Wife of one Andrew Burr.—And now the ſaid Strong prays this Rev'd Council to give their Judgment, and declare, whether his Marriage with ſaid Woman, or his neglecting to make Proclamation thereof among the People of the Society, or his not previouſly advertiſing them that he was about to marry, was FRAUDULENT and DECEITFUL DEALING with ſaid Society? as in ſaid Complaint is alledged—and whether his ſaid Marriage gave any juſt Occaſion for GREAT UNEASINESS AND DISSATISFACTION among many of the People?—was a Breach of the SEVENTH COMMANDMENT?—gave ſaid People any juſt Occaſion to ſuppoſe that he was guilty of a Breach of the SEVENTH COMMANDMENT, and lived in the Sin of ADULTERY?—was therein guilty of a Breach of Covenant with ſaid People?—thereby gave juſt Occaſion for the Minds of many of ſaid People to be alienated from him, & thereby warranted to leave his Miniſtry, and join themſelves to the Church of England?

II. That as to the 2d Article; the ſaid Strong ſays, "True it is, that ſince his Settlement with ſaid Society, he has commenced & proſecuted an Action againſt the aforeſaid Andrew Burr, for a large Sum of Money, due to him from ſaid Burr, and which was awarded to him by the Judgment of the Hon. Superior Court of this Colony thereon, as alſo appeared of Record, which Judgment never has been reverſed.—And alſo another Action againſt one Darius Pinney, for Damages unjuſtly done him, which Damages ſaid Strong alſo recovered by the Judgment of the Hon. Superior Court of this Colony, as alſo appears of Record.——And alſo that he himſelf has been proſecuted at Law by ſaid Pinney, for a large Sum of Money, which he juſtly owed to ſaid Pinney, till after Proſecution, Judgment, Execution, Arreſt, and Impriſonment of his Body thereon, by Reaſon that he could not ſeaſonably collect & recover ſuch Debts and Sums of Money as were then, and for ſome Time had been juſtly due to him, unleſs he had attempted to recover the ſame by a Proceſs of Law, which he was loth to do:——And that he has alſo been ſued in another ſmall Action, triable before a ſingle Juſtice, which he ſettled before Trial. And now ſaid Strong prays this Rev'd Council to reſolve and declare, whether his having been concerned in the fore-mentioned Law-Suits, or any of his Conduct therein, may be called a BREACH OF COVENANT made with ſaid Society?—or, whether, by Means thereof he has been UNFAITHFUL in his miniſterial Function?—or, whether ſaid Suits were ſuch unneceſſary Lawſuits as to be inconſiſtent with the Work of the Goſpel Miniſtry?

III. As to the 3d Article, he ſays he has never been guilty of any Neglect, or Unfaithfulneſs in his Miniſtry, in Reſpect of the Matters therein alledged, and thereof puts himſelf upon the Judgment of this Rev'd Council.

IV. As to the 4th Article in ſaid Complaint, Mr. Strong ſays, that he is not guilty of any Equivocation, or falſe Repreſentation of the Fact therein mentioned, according to what is therein alledged, and thereof puts himſelf upon the Judgement of this Rev'd Council.

V. As to the 5th Article, the ſaid Nehemiah Strong ſays, that he is not guilty of any Immorality or ill Conduct, touching the Matters in ſaid Article, againſt him alledged, and thereof puts himſelf upon the Judgment of this Rev'd Council.

VI. As to the 6th Article, ſaid Strong ſays, "True it is, that he never adviſed with, or conſulted the Society of Turkey-Hills, reſpecting his purchaſing the Farm he bo't of Darius Pinney, and that in Conſequence of ſaid Purchaſe, he was under a Neceſſity of requeſting of the People of ſaid Society, the Money they were bound to pay him by their Promiſe and Engagement, in Order to ſatisfy the Debt which he juſtly owed to Pinney for ſaid Purchaſe.—Whereupon the ſaid Strong now prays the Judgment of the Rev'd Council, whether his omitting to adviſe with, and conſult ſaid Society about ſaid Purchaſe, was IMMORALITY or ILL CONDUCT, or whether his requeſting his juſt Dues from ſaid Society as aforeſaid, was preſſing ſo hard upon the People for Money, that it afforded a juſt Occaſion for increaſing a great Uneaſineſs among the People?

VII. As to the Seventh Article, the ſaid Strong ſays, That he is not guilty of having wittingly or knowingly preached any unſound, or unorthodox Doctrine, as in ſaid Article is alledged, and thereof puts himſelf on the Judgment of this Rev'd Council.

This Conſociation, upon hearing the Pleas, and examining the Evidences produced by each Party, and after maturely weighing and conſidering the ſame, are of Opinion that the ſaid Mr. Strong is not guilty of any ſcandalous or cenſurable Miſconduct, in any of the Articles before-mentioned; and do therefore adviſe ſuch of the People as have withdrawn from the Miniſtry of the ſaid Mr. Strong, to return unto the ſame, and all of them highly to eſteem him in Love for his Work's Sake; and to ſtudy the Things that make for Peace, wherewith they may edify one another.

Minutes of Votes paſſed in the Conſociation.

I. As to the 1ſt Article, Voted (Nemine Contradicente) That Mr. Strong is not guilty of fraudulent and deceitful Dealing with the Society, or of Breach of the 7th Commandment, or of giving juſt Occaſion to ſuppoſe, that he was guilty of a Breach of the 7th Commandment, or juſt Occaſion to leave his Miniſtry.

A Defence of the Epiſcopal

By JEREMIAH LEAMING, A. M.
Miſſionary at Norwalk, from the venerable Society for the Propagation of the Goſpel in foreign Parts.

REV. Chap. ii. 2. Thou haſt tried them which ſay they are Apoſtles, and are not.

1 COR. xii. 28 and 29. GOD hath ſet ſome in his Church, firſt Apoſtles, ſecondly Prophets, thirdly Teachers. Are all Apoſtles? Are all Prophets? Are all Teachers?

Invitation of the Governor, met at the Province Houſe on Monday Afternoon, where His Majeſty's, Health, and many other Loyal Toaſts were drank; and in the Evening his Excellency with the Council, walked in the Common, to ſee the Fireworks, Exhibitions, &c. who were well pleaſed with the Regularity the Inhabitants carried on their Demonſtrations of Loyalty and Joy on this happy Occaſion.

A Correſpodent informs us, that the well-conducted Rejoicings on Monday laſt were uſhered in very early in the Morning with a Subſcription for liberating all the poor Priſoners in Goal for Debt, the Motion was readily agreed to by all the Humane, on that joyful Day, the Money raiſed, and the Priſon cleared. The charitable Deed originated in a fair Boſton Nymph.

When the KING went to the Houſe of Peers to give the Royal Aſſent, there was ſuch a vaſt Concourſe of People, huzzaing, clapping Hands, &c. that it was ſeveral Hours before his His Majeſty reached the Houſe.

Immediately on his Majeſty's ſigning the Royal Aſſent to the Repeal of the Stamp Act the Merchants trading to America, diſpatched a Veſſel which had been in waiting, to put into the firſt Port on the Continent with the Account.

There were the greateſt Rejoicings poſſible in the City of London, by all Ranks of People, on the total Repeal of the Stamp Act,—the Ships in the River diſplayed all their Colours, Illuminations and Bonfires in many Parts.——In ſhort, the Rejoicings were as great as was ever known on any Occaſion.

Extract of a Letter from London, March 28.

"I ſhould very well like to be with you in Boſton when you have certain advice of the Repeal of the Stamp Act, and doubt not you will be very merry, not without reaſon; tho' I fear there will be ſome heavy Hearts amongſt you, who will be obliged on this occaſion to grin horribly, a ghaſtly ſmile, and will be heartily ſorry they are miſtaken in their fixed opinion that the ſtamp act would not be repealed, but that will be no allay to your joy: Tell them they are known; tell them the Lord reigns, and you that are glad the act is repeled WILL rejoice, in ſure and certain hopes that it will never be paſſed again.

"We were very merry here on the bleſſed 18th inſtant. At 10 o'clock in the morning 100 American Merchants met at the King's Head tavern and breakfaſted; from thence we went to the Parliament houſe in proceſſion, about ſixty coaches and chariots when we got there, we were conducted to the robe chamber, where waiting till about one o'clock the King came amidſt the acclamations of thouſands when he was immediately robed and crowned: after which the ſeveral acts lately paſſed in Parliament were read; amongſt the reſt, the TOTAL REPEAL of the STAMP ACT: Immediately on hearing which his Majeſty ſmil'd and ſeem'd very much pleaſed, as were all thoſe preſent; (none were admitted but American Merchants) after which the King went to the Houſe of Lords and ſigned the Repeal, and then returned to the Robe Chamber and was uncrown'd and unrob'd; after which he return'd to his Palace amidſt the ſhouts and huzzas of a crouded multitude: We then went to the Queen's Head, near St. Paul's, and din'd very elegantly; in the Evening a number of houſes were illuminated, one in particular had 108 candles, it being the firſt Majority in the Houſe of Commons for the Repeal of the Stamp-Act. Mr. —— and —— went to Bow Church and ſet men to ring Bow Bells, and after ſtaying with them about an hour and a half join'd the Merchants, about 100 of whom were at ſupper at the Half Moon in Cheap-Side, where the Committee of Merchants had a very grand Entertainment prepar'd; many loyal Toaſts were drank, and the evening concluded with the greateſt pleaſure and ſatisfaction."

HARTFORD, May 26.

Laſt Monday Evening the long expected joyful News of the total Repeal of the Stamp-Act, arrived in Town: Upon which happy Event, the General Aſſembly of this Colony, now ſetting here, appointed the Friday following, as a Day of general Rejoicing.—The Morning was uſher'd in by the ringing of Bells—the Shipping in the River diſplay'd their Colours—at 12 o'Clock 21 Cannon were diſcharg'd, and the greateſt Preparations making for a general Illumination. Joy ſmil'd in every Face; and univerſal Gladneſs diffus'd itſelf thro' all Ranks and Degrees.——But ſudden was the Tranſition from the Height of Joy, to extreme Sorrow! A Number of young Gentlemen were preparing Fire-works for the Evening, in the Chamber of the large Brick-School Houſe; under which a Quantity of Powder granted by the Aſſembly for the Purpoſes of the Day, was depoſited.--Two Companies of Militia had juſt received a Pound a Man, by the Delivery of which a Train was ſcatter'd from the Powder-Caſk to the Diſtance of three Rods from the Houſe, where a Number of Boys were collected, who undeſignedly and unnotic'd ſet Fire to the ſcatter'd Powder, which was ſoon communicated to that within Doors, and in an Inſtant reduc'd the Building to a Heap of Rubbiſh, and buried the following Perſons in its Ruins, viz.

LONDON, April 3.

Some Laws reſpecting the Britiſh Colonies in America, it is ſaid, will be enacted before the breaking up of the preſent Seſſion of Parliament.

It is ſaid that the Parliament will not riſe till the latter end of June.

It is affirmed that the Courts of Verſailles and Madrid have refuſed to acknowledge the eldeſt Son of the late Chevalier de St. George, as heir or ſucceſſor to the pretenſions of his father.

Yeſterday his Excellency the Spaniſh Ambaſſador had a conference with Mr. Secretary Conway, on affairs of importance; ſince which, it is reported, that a late memorial from the Court of Madrid is not ſo ſatisfactory as could be wiſhed.

April 5. Recent advices from Spain mention, that the court of Madrid have laid aſide, for the preſent, all tho'ts of occupying the iſland of New-Orleans, in the Gulph of Mexico, lately ceded to them by the French.

Orders are given for the men of war that are deſtined to ſail for Newfoundland, to carry over an additional complement of men.

April 7. We are aſſured Mr. P--t lately made a noble ſpeech in behalf of the ſea-officers out of commiſſion, recommending to the members an increaſe of their half-pay which for the honour and ſafety of our country, ought to be augmented, to keep the moſt uſeful body of men from wretchedneſs, foreign ſervice, and goals.

By the laſt diſpatches from Lord Rochfort, we learn, that procraſtination on the part of Spain is ſtill to be expected, concerning the adjuſtment of the Manilla ranſom.

PARIS, April 6. Several Engliſh Lords, we hear, have taken Hotels in this city, to paſs a few days with an exciled countryman of theirs.

The reports relative to a change in the Britiſh Miniſtry, we unhappily find to be entirely without foundation: ſo that the Canada Bills muſt be ſpeedily diſcharged.

'Tis this moment whiſpered, that our Ambaſſador at Vienna has received directions to quit that city in three days.

WHITEHALL, March 25. The King has been pleaſed to conſtitute and appoint the Right Hon. John Earl Delewarr, Major-General of his Majeſty's forces, to be Captain and Colonel of the firſt troop of Horſeguards, in the room of John Earl Delawarr, deceaſed.

Jont Bidwell

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.

On Monday morning laſt, arrived here the brig Minerva, Capt. Wiſe, from Pool, in eight weeks, and bro't with her what we have been long impatiently waiting for, an act of parliament, repealing the STAMP-ACT, &c.

We had before, an account, that this bill had been ſupported by a majority in the houſe of commons and was ſent up to the houſe of lords, where, it ſeems long and warm debates aroſe, but on the 11th March laſt, upon the queſtion being put, it was carried in favour of the bill by a majority of 34 lords, and on the 18th this law received the royal aſſent; an event that has cauſed almoſt univerſal joy in England, eſpecially amongſt thoſe people who value their liberty, and have ſenſe enough to know the bleſſings it annexes to their exiſtence; no wonder then, if the tranſports of our joy on this ſide the Atlantic ſhould lead us into modes of expreſſion not quite conſiſtent with the moderation our friends in England adviſed. However, notwithſtanding the great and glorious cauſe of our preſent rejoicings, not one ſingle inſtance of that kind of triumph ſo much dreaded by our friends in England, has eſcaped the warmeſt ſon of liberty in this city, as will appear by the following account of our proceedings. The Minerva came to an anchor oppoſite the town, before it was known from whence ſhe came, or the news ſhe brought; but being ſoon boarded by an active ſon of liberty, he received the glorious tidings and inſtantly proclaimed the news; brought the LAW aſhore, as publiſhed by BASKET the king's printer, read it aloud at the London Coffee Houſe, and a multitude being by this time collected, three loud huzzas teſtifyed their approbation. A deputation from their number was directly ſent down to wait on Capt. Wiſe, and having firſt made the ſhip's company a preſent, they conducted him to the Coffee Houſe with Colours flying, &c. large bowl of punch was ready, in which he drank, proſperity to America, and was complimented with a gold laced hat, for having brought the firſt certain account of the ſtamp-act being totally repealed. The inhabitants then appointed the next evening to illuminate the city, which was done to the univerſal ſatisfaction of all ſpectators, the houſes made a moſt beautiful appearance, to which the regularity of our ſtreets contributed not a little, the ſcene was however variegated by the different manner of placing the lights, devices, &c. for which the public is indebted to the Ladies who exerciſed their fancies on the occaſion. It was very remarkable that the city was not diſturbed by any riot or Mob, as is common on ſuch occaſions, but the whole was begun, continued and ended to the univerſal ſatisfaction of the inhabitants. A large Quantity of wood was given for a Bonfire, and many barrells of beer to the populace; and yeſterday the principal inhabitants gave an elegant entertainment at the ſtate-houſe, at which his honor the Governor, the officers of this government, the military gentlemen, capt. Hawker of his Majeſty's ſloop Sardoine, and the other gentlemen of the navy, and the ſtrangers in the city, were preſent. The honors of the table were performed by the worſhipful Mayor of the city, aſſiſted by ſome of the Aldermen, and conſidering, that not leſs than 300 plates were laid, the whole was conducted with the greateſt elegance and decorum, ſo that detraction itſelf muſt be ſilent on the occaſion. After dinner the following toaſts were drank in flowing glaſſes.

1. The KING.——2. The QUEEN.——3. Prince of Wales and Royal Family.——4. May the illuſtrious Houſe of Hanover preſide over the uited Britiſh Empire to the End of Time.——5. The Houſe of Lords.——6. The Houſe of Commons.——7. The preſent worthy Miniſtry. 8. The glorious and immortal Mr. Pitt.——9. That lover and ſupporter of Juſtice Lord Cambden.——10. The London Committee of Merchants.——11. America's Friends in Great Britain.——12. The Virginia Aſſembly.——13. The other Aſſemblies on the Continent actuated by the like Zeal for the Liberty of their Country.——14 Proſperity to the ſpirited Inhabitants of St. Chriſtophers——15 The Army and Navy.——16 Daniel Delany, Eſq.——17 May the Intereſt of Great Britain and her Colonies be always united.——18 Trade and Navigation.——19 America's Friends in Ireland.——20 Proſperity to the Province of Pennſylvania.——21 The Liberty of the PRESS in AMERICA.

With many others of the ſame public nature.

The cannon belonging to the province being placed in the State-houſe yard, the royal ſalute was fired on drinking the KING, and ſeven guns after every ſucceeding Toaſt.

" That to demonſtrate our affection to Great-Britain, " and our Gratitude for the Repeal of the Stamp-Act, each " of us will on the 4th of June next, being the Birth-Day " of our moſt gracious Sovereign GEORGE the III. dreſs " ourſelves in a new Suit of the Manufactures of England, " and give what Home-ſpun we have to the Poor."

On this occaſion the public were much obliged to Capt. Hawker, of his Majeſty's ſhip Sardoine, as he brought her up before the town, and dreſſed her off with a variety of colours.

NEW-YORK, May 26.

Long live the King, whoſe ſacred Majeſty ſo graciouſly aſſented to the wiſe Meaſures of his Miniſtry, who (undeniably) were actuated by virtuous and noble Principles for the Good of the common Cauſe of Liberty; the Well-being of all his Loyal Subjects, and Benefit of the Community, in repealing an Act called The STAMP-ACT; which, had it taken Place in theſe extenſive Colonies of America, would have been attended with moſt direful Conſequences to the Inhabitants thereof.

On Thurſday laſt we were favoured with the authenticated, glorious and intereſting News of the Repeal, from different Quarters, which was inſtantly ſpread throughout the City, diffuſing Joy and Gladneſs in every Face; whereupon all the Bells in the different Churches were rung, and the Day there was a Manifeſtation of the greateſt Greateſt ſhewn by the True Sons of Liberty, who could not withhold any longer their Open and their Liberal Rejoicings, on a Matter which ſo nearly concerned them; and in order thereto, the following Notice was printed, and diſtributed in Hand-Bills:

THIS DAY,

ON the glorious Occaſion of a total Repeal of the Stamp Act, there will be a general Meeting, and Rejoicings at the Houſe of Mr. R. Howard. The Lovers of their Country, loyal Subjects to his Majeſty GEORGE the Third, King of Great-Britain, and real Sons of Liberty, of all Denominations, are hereby cordially invited to partake of the eſſential and long look'd for CELEBRATION.

The City will be illuminated, and every decent Meaſure will be obſerved, in demonſtrating a ſenſible Acknowledgment of Gratitude to our illuſtrious Sovereign, and never to be forgotten Friends at Home and Abroad, particularly the Guardian of AMERICA,

PITT.

Accordingly Preparations being made without a Moment's Loſs of Time, and Meaſures adopted for carrying on the Feſtival, a Number of the Sons of Liberty repaired to Trinity Church, having been very politely acquainted by the Rector, of his Intentions to ſubjoin to a Sermon he was that Day to preach on another Subject, a congratulatory Diſcourſe on the joyful Occaſion.——After which repairing to the Field of Liberty, a Royal Salute of 21 Cannon was fired, and that ſucceeded by a conſiderable Body of the Sons of Liberty, collecting at their uſual Houſe of public Reſort, where an elegant Entertainment was prepared, attended with a Band of Muſick, and when they had dined in the moſt ſocial Manner, the following loyal and conſtitutional Toaſts were cheerfully drank:

1. THE KING.——A Royal Salute repeated, and each of the ſucceeding with 7 Guns.——2. Prince of Wales and Royal Family.——3. The glorious Memory of William Duke of Cumberland.——4. Sir Henry Moore, and the Land we live.——5. The Navy and Army.—6. The Mayor and Corporation of this City.——7. Mr. PITT, the Guardian of America.——8. General Conway——9. Lord Cambden.——10. The SONS OF LIBERTY OF NEW-YORK, take this early Opportunity of moſt cordially ſaluting and congratulating all their American Brethren on this glorious and happy Event.

His Majeſty's Snow of War the Hind, arrived at Sandy-Hook from Plymouth Yeſterday Afternoon, with Diſpatches from the Miniſtry for the different Governors on the Continent, acquainting them of the total Repeal of the Stamp-Act; which agreeable Intelligence his Excellency our Governor immediately made public at the Coffee-Houſe; and added, That the Acts of Trade were taken into Conſideration, and 'twas hoped would terminate in Favour of the Colonies. The Hind left Plymouth the 7th of April, in which Veſſel came Paſſenger Major James, of the Artillery, who ſailed from hence for England laſt November.

BOSTON, May 29.

Sunday laſt arrived here the Ship Boſton-Packet, Capt. Marſhal from London, in a ſhort Paſſage.

By a Gentleman from London we learn, That a Motion had been made in the Houſe of Commons, among other Regulations, to open a free Port, and Dominico was propoſed, but the great Commoner oppoſing it, it was imagined it would not be got through.—The Duty on Molaſſes it was confidently ſaid would be reduced to one Penny per Gallon.—That the Difficulties attending the Spaniſh and Portugal Trade were like to be removed; and that Liberty would be given to import Corn, (duty free) from the Colonies.

We hear that the Duties, &c. on Sugar and Molaſſes will be ſettled by the Parliament this Seſſion; but that the Trade to Portugal, &c. and the opening of Free Ports, will be poſtponed until next Seſſion.

The Publick may be aſſured from good Authority, that the Deputy-Regiſter of the Court of Vice-Admiralty has ſatisfied the Province Treaſurer for a Decree of ſaid Court in Favor of the Province, for the Sum of Eight Hundred and Eighty eight Pounds eight Shillings and Ninepence Lawful Money.

The following Accident happened laſt Monday at Newmarket, to Lieut. Jonathan Falſom of that Town——he having loaded a Swivel that had lain buried near 25 Years, it burſt in Pieces, one of which ſtruck him in the Breaſt and ſeveral others in one of his Legs which ſplit the Boan thereof to Pieces, on which the Surgeons thought proper to cut it off above the Knee.

HARTFORD, June 2.

Yeſterday Morning, died of the Wounds which he received at the blowing up of the School-Houſe, Doct. NATHANIEL LEDYARD, Son to John Ledyard, Eſq; of this Town.

Laſt Friday ſe'nnight, at the public Rejoicings at Say-Brook, one Tucker of that Town, was inſtantly killed by the burſting of a Cannon.

Laſt Friday Morning, the General Aſſembly of this Colony, then ſitting in this Town, having finiſhed their Buſineſs, his Honor the Governor put an End to the Seſſions.

On Monday the 12th ult. the Hon. THOMAS FITCH, Eſq; our late worthy Governor, left this Town, and ſet out for his Seat at Norwalk. He was accompanied by a Number of Gentlemen, of this and the neighbouring Towns (among whom were ſeveral Members of the Lower Houſe of Aſſembly) who eſcorted his Honor Ten Miles on his Way.

As their Convening on this Occaſion was voluntary, ſo they meant thereby to expreſs their juſt Eſteem of his Honor, and unfeigned Gratitude, for the many great, eſſential and important Services he rendered the Colony, during the Period of his Government. And all appeared deeply ſenſible of the inexpreſſible Loſs the Colony hath ſuſtained, in the Removal of ſo wiſe and able a Pilot from the Helm, in ſo dark and difficult a Day, and at ſuch a critical Conjuncture.

At parting, the whole were drawn up in two Files, through which his Honor and his Attendants paſſed. After taking his Leave of the Company, which he did in the moſt polite Manner—proceeded on his Journey—and the Company returned to Town the ſame Evening.—The Whole was conducted with the utmoſt Decency and good Order.

Killingſly, May 21, 1766.

This Day as Ephraim Cutler, a young Man about 21 was Riding a Horſe-back, a Hog, by ſtarting ſuddenly from the Fence, threw the Horſe, and ſo much bruiſed the young Man by the fall, that it ſtruck him ſenſeleſs, and he expired in a few Hours after.

LONDON, March 19.

A repreſentation of the State of the Trade and Manufactures, ſet up, and carried on, in the ſeveral American Colonies, we are aſſured, is preparing to be laid before the Parliament.

Canada Bills were up at fifty-four and a half per cent. when the laſt advices were received from Paris.

March 21. A certain Northern Peer lately declared upon his honour, that he never would be Miniſter again in this country; that he lamented the preſent diviſions, ſo unhappy both to Prince and People; that this was a period which required an union and exertion of all the great talents of England, to guard againſt many threatening dangers; and concluded with a ſtrong invitation to thoſe who were men of known utillity and unſulled honour, to ſtep forward and once more take the direction of the affairs of this diſtracted and almoſt ruined country.

It is ſaid that Otho Hamilton, Eſq; Governor of Placentia, has requeſted a body of troops from New-York, to reinforce that infant garriſon, being apprehenſive of a ſurprize from the Labrador indians in the French intereſt.

March 22. Yeſterday there was a Cabinet Council at St. James's on affairs of Importance relating to the Plantations, at which the Earl of Dartmouth, Firſt Lord of Trade, and ſeveral other Lords of the Privy Council aſſiſted.

March 24. It is ſaid that two eminent houſes in this City have laſt week ſhipped off goods and merchandize to the Weſt-Indies, and other parts of America, to the amount of 90,000l. ſterling.

Letters from Briſtol by Friday's poſt ſay, that when the news of the repeal of the American Stamp-act arrived there by expreſs on Wedneſday afternoon, the bells were immediately ſet a ringing; the ſhips in the King's road diſplayed their colours, and fired their guns; and in the evening there were ſive illuminations, and bonſires in moſt parts of the city.

An account of the quantity of pot-aſh, imported into this kingdom, from the Britiſh Colonies in America, from the year 1759, to the year 1764 incluſive, is laid, by order, before an auguſt aſſembly.

We hear a ſcheme is under Conſideration for introducing a paper currency in North-America, upon a new plan, for which a Bill is intended to be laid before an auguſt aſſembly.

Boſton, May 22.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London to his Friend here, dated March 20, 1766.

I Have received ſeveral of your favours, which ſhould have anſwered ſooner but there is hardly, till very lately been a ſhip from this place to Boſton, on account of the orders given from America not to ſhip any thing unleſs the ſtamp act be repealed; and indeed the uncertainty that affair has been in was another reaſon I did not write till I could give my countrymen joy of the repeal, which I now do both to them and you, as it has paſſed both houſes of parliament, and this week had the royal aſſent: —I hope my countrymen will receive this news with a decent & becoming joy, and not with triumphant exultations, that ſo by that means they may put a ſtop to the notions which many people here have entertained of them, in caſe the ſtamp act ſhould be repealed; which are, that inſtead of thinking themſelves obliged to the legiſlature for eaſing them of a burden, which was too heavy for them to bear, they ſhould think they had got the better of the people here, exult upon it, and grow into a lawleſs diſobedience; which aſſertions I have every where contradicted, and make no doubt but the actions of the Americans, when they receive this news, will verify what I have ſaid; and as I hear it is expected by the government here, that the legiſlature of the different colonies abroad where any miſchief has been done by the people to the goods or poſſeſſions of any individuals, ſhould have it made good to them again; and as it is but juſt it ſhould be ſo, I hope whatever damages have been done, either in Boſton or elſe where, will be properly repared or made good to the ſufferers as ſoon as may be; and alſo wiſh that the houſe of repreſentatives of Boſton would draw up proper addreſſes of thanks to his Majeſty & both houſes of Parliament, for their condeſcention in the repeal of the ſtamp act; and I am ſure from the papers I have ſeen, which have been ſent from the legiſlature of Boſton upon this affair, there are no people capable of penning an addreſs in a better manner than they are; and theſe addreſſes I hope will be accompanied or followed by others from every colony in America; and I ſincerely wiſh and make no doubt but the affection of the colonies to their mother country, which was always great will now be eſtabliſhed upon a ſolid and laſting foundation; for as their intereſts are mutual, ſo their deſire to ſerve each other will alſo be ſo. As you are a well wiſher to the peace and happineſs of Great Britain and America, I make no doubt but you will uſe your endeavours to promote what I have ſaid above, as for myſelf I aſſure you I have been in as great anxiety about the envent of this affair as any one and have every where undertaken to ſay that if the act was repealed I was ſure the Americans in general the people of New England in particular, would behave themſelves in every reſpect in a manner ſuitable to the favour granted them, and with a juſt ſenſe of his Majeſty's goodneſs."

Extract of a letter from London, March 26.

" The regulation of the North American trade is now under conſideration of parliament. It is ſaid the duty propoſed on foreign ſugar and molaſſes, was 5s a hundred on ſugar and 1d per gallon on molaſſes. But as the Miniſtry have been made ſenſible of the prejudice ſo high a duty would be on ſugar, to the trade of the northern colonies, and that it would be a tax on them paid to the planters; I think you may depend the duty will be 2s. 6d. a hundred and 1d. a gallon, on all ſugars and molaſſes Engliſh, and foreign, imported into the North American colonies; and 2s. 6d. paid there will be deducted on importation here, and other regulations will be made in your favour.

" There was a majority of 34 in the houſe of Lords for repealing the ſtamp act."

Extract of a letter from London,
March 1.

"The regulations for trade, at preſent in agitation, as far as I can recollect, are the following, viz. A ſterling paper currency over the whole continent---The duty of molaſſes lowered to one penny per gallon---Free trade with the French and Spaniards in the Weſt-Indies---Free import of Weſt-India commodities, duty free, into provincial warehouſes, under the King's lock, the duty to be paid when taken out for home conſumption, to be exported on bond, duty free---Drawbacks upon wines, &c. upon exportation---Import of Portugal, Spaniſh, and Italian Wines, Fruit &c. manufactures only excepted under very light duties---Part of the preſent duty on tea to be taken off, A bounty upon pig, and perhaps bar iron---There may be ſome others but theſe are the principal regulations; I hope they will all paſs, but the ſpirit of oppoſition muſt certainly overſet ſome of them."

NEW-LONDON, May 23.

On Saturday laſt a ſpecial Poſt from Boſton, brought to this Town the great and glorious NEWS of the Repeal of the STAMP ACT; he arrived about 10 o'Clock in the Evening, and immediately the joyfull Eccho rouſed the Sons of Liberty, who, from the Cannons Mouths ſoon delivered to diſtant Brethren the happy Tidings, which concluded about Twelve, and Monday was the Day appointed to celebrate the honourable Cauſe of Liberty freed, Property preſerved, and a World made glad and confirmed in their Loyalty to their Sovereign; and to the lateſt Ages to eſteem and revere the happy Conſtitution, which is ever ready to redreſs the Injured, and cheer the Doubting; that when they ſee themſelves to be led by ungenerous and deſigning Men, into wrong Principles they can when they diſcover their Error, recal Edicts that ever could make a World tremble. The dawn of that Monday was uſher'd in by the Ringing of Bells and all Nature ſeemed to contribute its greateſt Aid in loving Spring, to join the joyfull Chorus.

Not a Face to be ſeen but the pleaſing ſmile before the quivering Lip could pronounce, conveyed the exalted Idea, " God bleſs our King, The Stamp Act is repealed, Let Mirth and Ravel without Controul make GEORGE's Name reſound and PITT's forever be remembered.

About 11 o'Clock the Honourable Independant Company marched thro' the Town to the Red Lyon, where every Man of Conſequence was, & under Arms eſcorted them to our Battery where a Royal Salute was given by both Battery and Buffs: After three Cheers in the ſame Order they returned to partake of an elegant Dinner there prepared. A ſmaller Battery before the Houſe told the World that Our King, Queen, and Royal Family, Pitt, Cambden, Houſe of Lords, Houſe of Commons, &c. &c &c. &c. &c. in briming Toaſts were drank—Juſt before Sun ſet the whole Company was again eſcorted by the Independants to the Battery, where there was another general Diſcharge of Cannon, and ſeveral Vollies from the Independants. In the Evening not a pane of Glaſs but with Ambition ſtrove to out ſhine the Reſt in a ſplended Illumination. A crackling Bonfire, that emulated the Moon, about 12 o'Clock, drew up the Scene. May a Day leſs Happy, Loyal and Joyous never ſtain the Annals of America.

BOSTON, June 12.

WE hear the Honorable Houſe of Repreſentatives have Voted that Galleries be fixed, to accommodate any Gentlemen that may be deſirous of hearing the Debates in the Aſſembly.

Laſt Saturday morning Capt. Somes arrived here from Halifax, by whom we have advice of the death of his excellency Montague Willmott, Eſq; governor and commander in chief of that Place.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5.

From Barbados, we have Advice of the Repeal of the Stamp-Act at Barbados, but the Inhabitants did not ſhew the leaſt Sign of rejoicing on that glorious Occaſion.

NEW-YORK, June 12.

Saturday Night laſt arrived here the Lord Hyde Packet, Capt. Goddard, in ſix Weeks and two Days from Falmouth and by Letters from London we learn, that the Duty on Molaſſes was actually fixed at 1d. ſter. per Gallon; and 'twas thought Sugar would be reduced to 2/6d. per Cent.

Captain Seymour, in 4 Weeks from Antigua, informs us, That Capt. Cummings, in the Tamer Frigate, was arrived at that Iſland, having been 22 Months on a Diſcovery round the World, in Company with the Hon. ——— Byram in another of his Majeſty's Ships; they went thro' the Streights of Magellan, and took Poſſeſſion of ſeveral good Harbours there, where they alſo found ſome French Veſſels on the ſame Errand:—Mr. Byram, 'tis ſaid, has made ſeveral uſeful Diſcoveries, which will vaſtly benefit the Mother Country: In their Return they took their Departure from Batavia, in the Eaſt-Indies, but Captain Cummings having the Misfortune of ſpringing his Maſt 900 Leagues to the Eaſtward of Antigua, was obliged to bear away for that Iſland.

We have the Pleaſure to aſſure the Public, that Mr. Nicholas Ray of London, has given One Hundred Pounds to the Society for Encouragement of Arts, Agriculture, &c. of this City and Province.—Such Benefactions promiſe Stability to our Infant Undertaking.

Private Letters, ſo late as the 12th of April, by the laſt Veſſels from London, inform us, That ſeveral Merchants acquainted with the Weſt-India and North-American Trade, had been a long Time under Examination before the Houſe of Commons, relative to the opening a free Port in one of our Weſt-India Iſlands, and the final Regulations of our American Trade.—That it was tho't probable a free Port would be eſtabliſhed at Dominica, tho' it was ſaid by others that Mr. Pitt oppoſed it, and therefore that would not be likely to take Place; however this laſt is not certain.—It was likewiſe ſaid that the Plan of Trade agreed upon by the Committe of Merchants, as publiſhed in all our Papers, would be laid aſide, and a more extenſive and unlimited one, from the Information of Merchants better acquainted with that Trade, be adoped in its Room—But this alſo wants Conformation. The North-American and Weſt-India Merchants ſeemed to go Hand in Hand in all the Meaſures propoſed, which was thought to be very extraodinary.

Capt. Benjamin Davis, of the Hope, from this Place for London, having put into Portſmouth, there landed his Letters, which very opportunely were received in London, at a Time when the moſt invidious Advance by the weaking Party ſeemed to gain Ground: 'Twas nothing more than the New-Yorkers real Acceptance of the Stamp-Act.—Diſpatches were ſent to ſome of the principal Merchants in London to produce their Letters, which were read in the Houſe, and, correſponding, ſoon knock'd down Mr. STAMP's Friends; and many who had juſt before voted againſt a Repeal, were then as ſtrenuouſly for it.

NEWPORT, June 9.

Laſt Saturday the following moſt unfortunate Accident happened; between One and Two o'Clock in the Afternoon, a Chimney in the very coſtly and beautiful Houſe of Col. Godfrey Malbone took Fire; from whence the Sparks fell upon the Roof and ſet Fire to it in ſo many Places that the whole Roof was preſently in a Flame, and it being a [illegible]derable Diſtance from the compact Part of the Town, [illegible]n became impoſſible to extinguiſh it, and in a ſhort [illegible]e the whole Building (except the Walls) was reduced to Aſhes. We hear the greateſt Part of the Furniture was ſaved.

NEW-LONDON, June 13.

Laſt Monday Evening, in Conſequence of an Invitation, [illegible]m Capt. Durell, and the other Officers of the Cygnet [illegible] of War, moſt of the principal Gentlemen and Others ([illegible] excepted) attended an elegant Ball; in a large Building furniſhed for that Purpoſe; where they were very po[illegible]ely entertained, to the univerſal Satisfaction of the Par[illegible] preſent.

Laſt Tueſday in the Afternoon the following Accident happened in this Town at raiſing a Frame of a Houſe belonging to Capt. John Crocker, viz. at the Time when the Raiſing was juſt completed, and when near 30 Perſons were [illegible] the Garret Floor, (the middle Poſt being ſupported on [illegible] inſtead of a [illegible]) the [illegible] broke, and the ranging Timber, the whole of the [illegible] the Frame, with a Parcel of Plank, and Boards which were on the Garret Floor, together with all the People except Two, who held by the Rafters, inſtantly fell in one Heap to the lower Floor, being [illegible] Feet.——The Spectators of this Scene concluded the greateſt Part of the People were killed on the Spot conſidering the eminent Danger to which they were expoſed; but [illegible] is extremely remarkable, not a Perſon was killed or a [illegible]one broken, and only two or three Joints diſlocated, tho' ſeveral of the People were conſiderably bruiſed and wounded.——The inſide of the Frame is hereby almoſt ruined.

NEW-HAVEN, June 14.

DEAR SIR,

Received your Letter, and take the earlieſt Opportunity to do you the Juſtice of declaring I never did perceive [illegible]y Diſpoſition in you to encourage the paſſing the Stamp-[illegible]t; and that every Thing I ever heard from you, tended [illegible] diſſuade the paſſing it, particularly at the laſt Interview [illegible] up any Animoſities on that Subject; for I ſincerely believe that ſober, moderate Men in America, who deny the Right of Parliament, muſt mean the ſame that I underſtand Mr. Pitt to mean, and that I mean myſelf; for I conceive they admit what we call the Right, by ſaying Parliament has the Power to make the Law. I conjecture that when we deny the Expediency and admit the Right, in England we admit only that imperial Right that is inſeparable from a ſupreme Legiſlature, who have it as a Part of their Eſſence to make that legal that was illegal before; but which it is not to be preſumed they will do, in Caſes that muſt be eternally improper; nor even in thoſe that may, by Poſſibility, become proper, unleſs they ſhould become ſo."

Mr. Ingerſoll lately received a Letter from the Stamp-Office in London, dated the 12th of April, giving him Reaſon to expect Directions in what Manner the Stamped Paper conſigned to him, is to be diſpoſed of.

To the Printer of the New-York Mercury.

SIR,

THE following was communicated to the Society for promoting Arts, &c. and is gratefully acknowledged: It was intended to be publiſhed, with ſome other Pieces, which prevented its ſooner appearing, but the Subject is too intereſting to be longer delayed.

The Method of making POTASHES, as practiſed in Hungary, Poland, and Germany,

IN Hungary and Poland, the Manufacture of Potaſhes is carried on in the Woods. The Buildings neceſſary, are only wooden Sheds, ſlightly built up, and contrived ſo as to be taken to Pieces, and carried from one Foreſt to another.

The propereſt Wood is the Acorn bearing Oak, of which they prefer the oldeſt Trees; one of which will produce five Kibbles or about 12 and a half Buſhels of Pot-aſhes, the quantity requiſite for making 100 Wt. of Pot-aſhes. They find a very great Difference in the nature of the Wood in different Foreſts, that of Tjadadorn, and Caniſſa yielding double the Quantity of lixivious Salt that can be had out of the Wood of the Foreſt near Eperies, under the Carpathian Mountains. Too much Attention cannot be had to the Choice of proper Wood, tho' to ſome People its Importance may not appear at firſt view.

When the wood is felled, and cut into Billets, it is burnt in a large Hearth, under ſhade, to prevent the rain from ſpoiling the aſhes, which muſt be kept DRY 3, 4 or 6 months before they are lixiviated, for experience ſhews that they produce more ſalts when kept a certain time, than when immediately uſed; care muſt be taken to keep them free from dirt.

To lixiviate, or draw the ſalts out of the aſhes, they uſe a number of caſks, not unlike French hogſheads, according to the extent and largeneſs of their works. The caſks are about 2 feet 10 inches high they have a double bottom, the uppermoſt of which is placed 10 inches above the lowermoſt; it is perforated with holes and the lowermoſt has one hole for the lee to drop gently through into a trough: The ſpace between the two bottoms is filled with ſtraw twelve or ſixteen of theſe caſks being ranged in a row upon a trough, are filled with aſhes, and by means of a canal or gutter lain upon the caſks, with a hole correſponding to each of them, water is conveyed into them from a pump: This water paſſing thro' the aſhes, carries their ſalts along with it; as long as it is of a browniſh or reddiſh colour they let it run through, but when no longer diſcoloured they ſtop. The lee thus procured not being ſtrong enough by paſſing thro' the aſhes once, muſt be poured upon a ſecond or third caſk till it is ſo ſtrong that an egg will ſwim in it; however, it muſt be obſerved, that there is a danger in making it too ſtrong

When the lee is thus procured, they proceed to evaporate the watery particles from it by ebullition; this they call making black potaſhes. For this purpoſe they uſe iron pans, much like thoſe uſed in making ſalt; they are about 4 feet diameter above and near three feet deep; between a pair of them they have a braſs boiler, ſomewhat ſmaller than the iron pots; they are fixed in maſonry, like a ſugar baker's row of pans, with a fire place below them, and an open chimney to carry of the ſteam. They uſe, according to the largeneſs of the works, 3, 6, 9 or 12 pans and boilers, in a work. Suppoſe they work only two iron pots and the braſs boiler, they begin filling one pan and the boiler with lee, and then making fire in proportion as the lee evaporates and diminiſhes in the iron pan, it is ſupplied from the braſs boiler, which is ſupplied with cold lee; when the firſt pot has boiled ten or eleven hours, they fill the ſecond, and ſupply it continually from the boiler in the ſame manner as the firſt was: The firſt pan is ſtill ſupplied with boiling lee from the boiler till the phlem is entirely evaporated; they then ſtop putting lee to it, but continuing the fire, the maſs becomes thick and hard, and is what is called black pot-aſhes. When it is cold it is cut into pieces, and taken out, and freſh lee is put into the pan, and the operation continued as above. When the firſt pan is evaporated, the ſecond is only half evaporated; ſo the work is never diſcontinued during a week, in which time two men, relieving one another make about 17 Ct. Wt.

The proceſs of calcining the black pot aſhes, rendering them of a fine whitiſh blue colour, and able to ſtand the weather without running into a liquid, is performed in an oblong kind of a furnace, in the midſt of which there is a hearth ſome what raiſed with a border of bricks to prevent the potaſhes from falling into the fire during calcination. The fire is made on each ſide of the hearth, there is a door to the hearth through which the black pataſhes are put into the furnace, and a door on each ſide of it to put in wood to the fire; the furnace is arched over and there are three holes in the front part of it, above the doors, to give vent to the ſmoke and vapours. The proportion is as follows; * The length of the furnace 15 feet, the breadth 12 and an half feet including the hearth and fire places, viz. The hearth 8 and an half feet, the two fire places 4 feet; the heighth of the arch from the hearth 3 feet, all within the walls. When a ſufficient quantity of black potaſhes are ready, they begin to calcine, and make it a rule never to let the furnace cool till they have finiſhed the whole. The black potaſhes are broke into lumps the bigneſs of a man's fiſt, and ſpread upon the hearth, after which the iron hearth door is ſhut, and a gentle fire is made, and care taken to hinder the aſhes from running or vitrifying, which a ſtrong heat would occaſion. When they grow red hot, they are ſtirred with an iron rake that they may calcine equally: When they begin to whiten, the flames become bright, and the fire is increaſed to the greateſt degree. When they want to know if they are enough calcined, they take a lump out, and if it is white in the inſide, they are done. The iron door of the hearth is always kept ſhut, except when they are ſtirring the potaſhes, and in order to obſerve the progreſs of the calcination, they have a ſmall hole in the iron door of the hearth to look in at. When the calcination is finiſhed, they rake out the potaſhes upon a pavement before the furnace: They are packed up in caſks of 15 or 17 Ct. Wt. When the furnace is cooled a little, they put in more potaſhes to calcine, and by relieving the workmen, continue calcining, till all the black potaſhes are done. Four men and a boy, conſtantly employed, make about 40 or 42 tons of calcinated potaſhes in a year, all the operations included, if the work is properly carried on, and rightly underſtood.

So much for the proceſs:—The common method in Hungary is to agree with a maſter (they are generally Poliſh Jews) to calcine a forreſt, after agreeing with the proprietor of the forreſt: The account will ſtand as follows for the coſt of a ton, viz.

	Sterling.
1. To the proprietor of the foreſt for the wood	£. 5 10 00
2. To the maſter for cutting, burning and calcining	4 15 00
	£. 10 03 6
3. But as aſhes muſt be carried near 300 miles by land carriage, tranſporting of them from Hungary to Trieſte or Fiume, coſts per ton	7 14 00
4. Freight and inſurance to England	3 10 00
5. Duty in England	7 02 00
	£. 28 10 00

This ſhews that aſhes cannot be imported into England from Hungary, under 28l. 10s. a ton, firſt coſt. The American manufacturer labours under the diſadvantage of high wages to his workmen; but then it is plain he has a manifeſt advantage in the 3d and 4th article, viz. land carriage, and the duty in England, as the potaſhes made in America are exempted from duty. This ſketch may poſſibly throw a proper light upon the affair.

In the year 1753, upwards of 7000 tons of potaſhes were made in Hungary, a very great part of wihch were conſumed in Great Britain, and Ireland. The price varies, and has been 30l. to 60l. ſterling a ton; at preſent it is high.

The mother country pays yearly 300,000l. ſterling for this article to foreigners. Could this country fall into the method of manufacturing it properly, what a fund of wealth!

People have a ſtrange notion, that burning the wood of forreſt in America will not anſwer, on account of the price of labour. But if they will ſtifle prejudice and opinions taken upon truſt, they will be convinced of the contrary. I can aver, from my own experience, by the trials I have made, that there is wood in this country which will produce more lixivial ſalt than the common aſhes bought up in the towns do. The proper method to carry on this manufacture with ſpirit is therefore to chooſe ſome proper forreſt, near a navigable river on the ſea coaſt

What a vaſt benefit this country would reap, if this manufactory were carried on in the different villages as in New England, where every townſhip have the neceſſary veſſels and boilers, which upon the whole, yield a vaſt profit: I am well informed that laſt year, from the port of Boſton, they ſhipped 1000 tons; which at 35l. ſterling per ton, the preſent price current, would make in London a very large remittance. It is therefore hoped that we will no longer be blind to our intereſt: The proceſs is eaſy; the expence ſmall; the profit certain: Several boilers were lately brought from England and to be ſold here at Capt Peter Berton's, in New Duth Church ſtreet at 42s. per C. one or two of 70 or 80 gallons, is ſufficient to begin with: And if any perſon wants further inſtructions, if he has opportunity to be in New York, he may call at Meſſieurs Livingſton and Ramſen's works on golden hill,—who laſt year made above 26 tons and obtained the Sotiety's bounty of thirty pounds for the greateſt quantity made in the province; which they generouſly returned. But this buſineſs would be ſtill a greater advantage to this country if by it the farmers are enabled to clear their timber ſwamps. Let us ſuppoſe that two acres will produce 125 cord, that each cord will give four buſhels of aſhes, then will two acres produce 500 buſhels of aſhes, which of town aſhes is the allowance for one ton, of potaſhes; preſent value of which at New York is 45l. per ton, which ſum, it is affirmed, is more than ſufficient to pay all charges, in cutting, gathering filtering calcining, barrelling, and carrying the potaſhes to market, and the ſwamp made meadow fit for the ſcythe into the bargain. It is needleſs to waſte time in enumerating the advantages of meadow ground, the late and increaſing dry ſummers, with the high price of hay are convincing arguments; nor need I eſtimate the value of it in proportion to upland; this is ſufficiently known to the intereſted: But I can't conclude without obſerving, that the cheif error in American huſbandry, is their neglect of graſs land and meadow, conſequently of ſtock in proportion to their tillage; this would in itſelf be more profitable increaſing their manure, and greatly improve their whole farms.

If any perſons in the country, that have experience of the expence of the above eſtimated articles, would communicate them, with their obſervations on this or any other ſubject, to the Society they will be thankfully received; for this is publiſhed with a deſire to inſtruct and inform, not to miſlead our fellow countrymen.

Letters in Town, from Spain, bring accounts of great Commotions at Madrid, which are ſaid to have taken their riſe from an order iſſued by his Catholic Majeſty, enjoining the Spaniards to throw off their cloaks, and dreſs in the manner they do at Paris. This had ſo exaſperated them, that great numbers aſſembled at the palace, and deſired an Audience; but his Majeſty ſent them word, that if they did not immediately diſperſe, he would order his guards to fire upon them. This, however, the latter refuſed to do; upon which his Majeſty ſent for his Walloon guards, who fired and killed 76. But before they could charge the ſecond time, the mob ruſhed in with their ſpadoes, killed 26 of the guards, and diſarmed the reſt, crying out in the Spaniſh language, "The Engliſh forever, and down with the French."

Other accounts ſay, that this commotion was owing to the extreme odium in which the People held the Marquis of Squilace, the King's Italian Miniſter. And that his Catholic Majeſty being determined to ſupport his foreign favourite by force of arms againſt his native ſubjects; their deſparate reſolution forced him to the deſired conceſſions; and the favourite compelled to quit the kingdom for ſafety, with the utmoſt expedition. During the commotion, it is reported Lord Rochford chancing to paſs by in his coach, he was ſaluted with the following general acclamation of Viva la Libertad.

More recent advices juſt received, ſay that the riot in Spain took its riſe as above, from ſeveral oppreſſive and diſagreeable acts of the King's Italian Miniſters, in particular that for prohibiting the uſe of cloak and broad beaver; That a young gentleman being ſtopped near the palace by a centinel for not complying with this order, he attempted to ſtab the centinel for intercepting him, who immediately preſented his muſket, but did not fire. The Gentleman thereupon gave a whiſtle, the ſignal agreed on, and in a few minutes ſome hundreds aſſembled, who were fired upon by the guards, and after ſeveral were killed the reſt were diſperſed. They ſoon aſſembled, however, again, in prodigious bodies, and overpowered the guards, after an obſtinate engagement, in which it is ſaid, 70 or 80 of the Soldiers were killed. They then proceeded to the houſe of the Marquis de Squilace, who eſcaped out of it by a back way, having ſent his carriage, with the blinds up, a contrary road, in order to deceive the populace; which ſtratagem taking, they followed the carriage, thinking to have met the miniſter, and coming up with it tore it to pieces. They then pulled down the Marquis's houſe, and afterwards purſued him to the Dutch Ambaſſador's, where he had taken refuge, but eſcaped alſo from thence on the appearance of the rioters. The populace being then aſſured by the Dutch Ambaſſador, that the Miniſter was not at his houſe, they went to the royal palace, and inſiſted on ſpeaking with his Majeſty, which being granted, they ſaid they had three things to propoſe, which if his Majeſty would agree to, they would diſperſe and continue good ſubjects: The firſt was, that his Majeſty would diſcharge his Italian Miniſters, as they were determined to be governed only by their own countrymen; that the ſeveral offenſive edicts paſſed ſhould be repealed; and, thirdly, that his Majeſty ſhould give his royal word never after to call any perſon to account for what had that day paſſed. Theſe articles being all complied with, the rioters immediately diſperſed; and in a few hours the city was as calm as if nothing had happened. On their return from the royal palace, they met the Engliſh Ambaſſador, Lord Rochfort whom they obliged to put on his cloak and beaver, which he readily complying with, then they ſuffered his Lordſhip to paſs, crying out, No French Faſhions; Peace with England, and War with all the World beſide.

Extract of a Letter from Duxbury, May 28.

"At length the affair, the great, the important affair, big with the fate of Britain and her Colonies is decided, the deteſtable Stamp-act is repealed! Hail glorious tidings, welcome, thrice welcome to our ſhores.———The day ſubſequent to the reception of this intereſting news, every poſſible demonſtration of joy was exhibited; the morning was uſhered in with the beating of drums, diſcharging of guns, &c. the veſſels in the harbour diſplayed their colours, all buſineſs was poſtponed, and joy ſat ſmiling on every countenance.———Towards the cloſe of the day, the inhabitants of the town, to the number of about 500, aſſembled on a lofty hill, on the very ſpot where the gallant Standiſh routed the ſavage foe, and ſaved from impending ruin our pious anceſtors.—Here a large bonfire was enkindled, and the execrable object of our juſt reſentment made its exit in the curling flames. The air reſounded with an inceſſant roar from the cannon of the town, from the vollies of ſmall arms, and the repeated huzzas of the raptured multitude.———The houſes in the vicinity of the hill were very elegantly illuminated. As ſoon as the fire was extinguiſhed, and the aſhes of the Stamp-Act hurl'd into the infernal regions, from whence it received its origin, the aſſembly repaired to a wide ſpreading Apple Tree (the firſt tree of that kind which was planted in New-England, and which has been remarkably preſerved in a flouriſhing ſtate to this time) where a handſome entertainment was provided, and many loyal healths drank, viz. Long life to his Majeſty——A good underſtanding to the Britiſh parliament———Health and proſperity to the immortal PITT———Succeſs to trade———Increaſe of American manufactures———and the gallant Sons of Liberty at Boſton.———The fair ſex participated in the general joy, an agreeable ſmile illucidated every countenance; Venus with all her graces ſeemed to bid adieu to her ſeat at Idolia, and taken up her reſidence on the Duxborean ſhore. The principal ladies of the town convened at the foot of the hill, moſtly attired in the manufactures of America,—Here a collation of tea was ſerved up,—ſcandal concealed its head—liberty was the ſole topic of converſation—here they paſſed the following patriotic reſolves, viz.

I. That the moſt efficatious method for gentlemen to make impreſſions upon their hearts—to procure their favour, would be to be zealous in the cauſe of liberty, to be aſſiduous in their oppoſition tyranny.

II. That they would ſooner bid adieu to the regions of light—would ſooner ſpend their days in a ſtate of virginity, than tye the connubial knot with the man whoſe daſtard ſoul rendered him unworthy the glorious title of a true Son of Liberty.

This being done, both ſexes repaired to their reſpective places of abode.—The whole was conducted with the greateſt decency and decorum.

TAKEN up by David Phelps of Symſbury, a brown Mare, 3 or 4 Years old, near 14 Hands high, no Brand, a white Streak down her Face, one wall Eye, four white Feet, not dock'd, both paces and trots. The Owner on proving his Property, and paying Charges, may have again, by applying to

CONNECTICUT COURANT.
MONDAY, JUNE 23, 1766.

Boſton, May 29.

Governor BERNARD's SPEECH,
To the General Court at BOSTON, May 29, 1766.

Gentlemen of the Council, and
Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives.

I HAVE great pleaſure in being able to open this General Court with congratulating you upon the repeal of the ſtamp act. When I conſider the difficulties with which this buſineſs has laboured, and the cauſes from whence they aroſe; when I look back upon the dangers which this people have ſo narrowly eſcaped, I cannot but earneſtly wiſh that a proper improvement may be made of this happy event, ſo as to reſtore this province to the public reputation, and the domeſtic peace which it happily enjoyed before the late diſtractions.

In times of public calamity, it is not unuſual for private intereſts and reſentments to intermix themſelves with popular diſcontent, and execute their purpoſes under the borrowed maſk of patriotic zeal: This has been the primary cauſe of that unlimited abuſe which has been caſt upon the moſt reſpectable characters in this province; at a time when integrity and ability ſhould rather have been ſolicited to the aid of the people than deterred from ſerving them. Of this I have had no little experience my ſelf; but it has not abated my concern for the welfare of the country, nor prevented my endeavours to promote it.

To ſuch a degree of injuſtice has the late infatuation been carried, that the principle object of the fury of the people, was a gentleman to whom they were moſt highly indebted for his ſervices in the very cauſe for which they roſe againſt him. And it is remarkable that thoſe perſons, who framed & conducted the only American petition, which was read and well received in parliament, and was of real uſe in procuring the repeal, have been proſcribed by the invidious name of Friends to the Stamp Act. When in truth ſuch a character did not exiſt in the province unleſs it was in the perſons of the accuſers themſelves, whoſe violent and precipitate meaſures created all thoſe difficulties, which the united efforts of every friend of America, in every [illegible] and ſtation were but juſt able to ſurmount.

It were to be wiſhed that a veil could be drawn over the late diſgraceful ſcenes. But that cannot be done till a better temper and underſtanding ſhall prevail in general than ſeems to be at preſent; if we can judge from ſome proceedings which I fear when known at home, will afford matter of triumph to thoſe who were for maintaining the ſtamp act, & ſorrow & concern to thoſe who procured its repeal. But the inflammation of this country has been a grand object with ſome perſons; and neither the indulgence of parliament, nor the moderation of goverment, nor the exigency of the times, have as yet been able to put a ſtop to that purſuit.

However, I have given my teſtimony againſt theſe proceedings, in a manner very diſagreeable to me, and very contrary to my diſpoſition. Whilſt the Buſineſs of the general Court was carried on in good humour, and with good underſtanding, I have been unwilling to interrupt the general harmony, by too great an attention to my own ſentiments, and have frequently given up my opinion to what has in any degree appeared to be the voice of the people. Every perſon who hears me can more or leſs give teſtimony of the mildneſs and moderation of my adminiſtration; how much I have endeavoured to remove and prevent diſtinctions of men and diviſions of parties; and how little I have interpoſed my judgment againſt the ſenſe of the councils over which I have preſided.

But when the government is attacked in form; when there is a profeſt intention to deprive it of its beſt and moſt able ſervants, whoſe only crime is their fidelity to the crown, I cannot be indifferent, but find myſelf obliged to exerciſe every legal and conſtitutional power to maintain the King's authority againſt all this ill-judged and ill-timed oppugnation of it. At the ſame time I publickly declare that whenever an opportunity ſhall offer to reſtore to the provincial council that harmony and union which not long ago it was my pride to cultivate, I will embrace it moſt cordially, and will uſe my utmoſt endeavours to heal the diviſions and bury the animoſities which the late diſtractions have created. In the mean time, as I have appeared before the Britiſh parliament a true friend to the province as well as a faithful ſervant to the crown, I ſhall leave it to this good people to recognize me in that united character at their own time, and in their own manner.

Gentlemen,

I am in continual Expectation to receive his Majeſty's Commands to lay before You, Matters of great importance; and whenever they ſhall arrive I ſhall be obliged to call You together again: I therefore think it adviſeable to make this Seſſion as ſhort as well may be, & recommend it to you not to engage in any Buſineſs that does not require preſent Diſpatch. The Conſideration of the Terms upon which the ſtamp act has been Repealed; of the expectations of the parliament that the Americans will not abuſe the indulgences granted them; and of the Aſſurances which the promoters of the Repeal, have publicly given that it will be moſt gratefully and humbly received, is a Subject which I could well enlarge upon; but I ſhall reſerve it to another Opportunity, when I ſhall probably be aſſiſted by ſpecial Inſtruction for that purpoſe and I hope ſhall be able to ſpeak to you with greater Authority than my own.

NEW-YORK, June 12.

On Friday Night laſt one Mary Wells, who nurſed a Child of about 4 Months old, went to Bed much intoxicated with Liquor, leaving the Candle in ſuch a Manner that it fell down and ſet Fire to the Child's Cap, by which its Head was burnt to the Brain; but it does not appear that the Fire kindled into a Blaze. The Child was heard by the Neigbours to cry violently a long Time, and its Cries, at length, about 2 o'Clock in the Morning, waked the Woman's Huſband, who went to a Neighbour's to light a Candle. The Mother of the Child was called, who carried it home, where it expired ſoon after, and was privately buried on Sunday--A Report being ſpread that the Child had been wilfully murder'd, the Nurſe and her Huſband abſconded, but were ſoon taken and committed to Gaol, where they now remain.—The Coroner having ſummon'd a Jury, cauſed the Body of the Child to be taken up, and a Surgeon being called to examine it, declared the Burning to be the immediate Cauſe of its Death.—But as no De[illegible]d againſt the Child, it is not doubted but the [illegible] diſcharged.

EAST-HARTFORD, 12th June, 1766.

To the PRINTER.

SIR,

UNDERSTANDING that a falſe Report has of late been ſpread through this Town, and much beyond it, injurious to my Reputation, and tending to prejudice my Uſefulneſs; I think it a neceſſary Piece of Juſtice to my Character, to ſet the Matter before the Public, in a proper Light. The Report is, that on the 23d of May, the Day appointed for public Rejoicings in Hartford, on Account of the Repeal of the Stamp-Act, I attended the Occaſion and took Part in ſaid Rejoicings, till the fatal Accident that put a ſudden End to them; upon which I precipitately went off, without tarrying to ſympathize with the diſtreſſed; and even (tho' deſired) refuſed to tarry and pray with the wounded and dying; and this when I knew both the Miniſters of the Town were ſick and confined

The Truth is, That as I had no Share in the public Rejoicings of that Day, my only Buſineſs on the Weſt Side of the River being to viſit Mr. Dorr, (who I heard the preceeding Evening was ſick) and to ſpeak with one or two Gentlemen at the Aſſembly; ſo having accompliſhed it, I inſtantly returned, (without tarrying for the leaſt Refreſhment) had croſs'd the River, and was on my Way home when the Exploſion was, and never heard one Syllable of the ſad Diſaſter till 9 o'Clock in the Evening.

It has been further ſtoried, That ſome Time after, being at Mr. Dorr's (who was ſtill confined) and deſired by him to viſit the wounded in his Pariſh, I refuſed, ſaying I did not chooſe it: As to which, I would inform, that I have been on the other Side of the River but once, ſince the above Affair, when I was called to pray with the Honorable General Aſſembly, at their Cloſe; and calling on Mr. Dorr, was aſked by him to viſit a particular Family under Diſtreſs; whereon I ſignified, that I would do it with all my Heart, if I could; but my Engagements at that Time were ſuch as rendered it impracticable for me to comply with his Requeſt, and my own Inclination. This is the Truth, and nothing but the Truth.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.

Yeſterday Afternoon, arrived here the Ship Hope, Capt. Roſs, by whom we have the following melancholy Account.

Extract of a Letter from Bridgetown in Barbados, dated May 21, 1766.

" A Houſe accidentally (or rather through Careleſſneſs) took Fire in High-Street, laſt Wedneſday Night about 11 o'clock, and burnt with ſuch Rapidity, that it conſumed all Broad-Street, one Part of Jew-Street; and a great Part of the lower End of the Town; the Number of Houſes conſumed are computed at 418, beſide Stores, &c. a great Quantity of Flour, and other Proviſions, was conſumed, and we were apprehenſive of being in Want, but ſince the Miſfortune, two Ships from Philadelphia, and ſome from Virginia, have providentially arrived here to our Relief, and afforded us Plenty. Some Lives were loſt in the Confuſion, in getting out of the Houſes; the remainder of the Town was afterwards three Times attempted to be ſet on Fire by the Negroes.'

NEW-PORT, June 16.

Copy of a Letter from Col. BARRE, to Governor WARD, dated London, March 8, 1766.

" SIR, I acknowledge the honor of receiving from Mr. Sherwood, your letter, dated Newport, Nov. 19th, with the reſolution of the general aſſembly of the colony of Rhode-Iſland incloſed.

It is exceedingly flattering to me, to find that my conduct has been agreeable to that reſpectable body, and I muſt beg of you, ſir, to aſſure them that I am highly ſenſible of the honor they have done me by this public mark of their approbation.

The extending of our commerce upon broad and ſound principles, the binding the hearts of our American coloniſts to the mother country by the generoſity and juſtice of our government, have been and ſhall continue to be the motives of my conduct.

I am extremely obliged to you, Sir, for the polite manner in which you have communicated to me the ſentiments of your loyal, ancient, and induſtrious colony; and am with great eſteem, Sir, your moſt obedient and moſt humble ſervant,

ISAAC BARRE."

This morning Capt. John Allen arrived here from Martinica in 18 days paſſage, and informs us that about a week before he ſailed, a fire broke out at Port-Royal, in that iſland, which conſumed near 70 houſes.

Laſt Thurſday Capt. Brenton Wanton arrived here from Barbados, by whom we have advice, that a terrible fire broke out at Bridgetown in that Iſland, on the 14th of May laſt, at ten o'clock in the evening; which conſumed between 5 and 600 dwelling-houſes, with a vaſt number of other buildings, a great part of the furniture and effects contained in them; that more than 100 lives were loſt in aſſiſting at the fire. This melancholy accident happened by leaving a candle burning on a bag of cotton.——The inhabitants of the iſland are in great confuſion and fear that the ſlaves may riſe. All buſineſs is at a ſtand.

NEW-YORK, June 19.

Wedneſday 11th Inſt. Capt. Aſhfield arrived here from Liſbon, but laſt from Madeira, in 40 days: He ſays an Engliſh packet from Bengal for England, being leaky, put into Liſbon while he lay there, the maſter of which reported, that Lord Clieve had ſettled all affairs in the Indies to his ſatiſfaction, and was left in good health.

Letters from Detroit, of the 30th of April, adviſe, that the Indians about that Garriſon begin to grow inſolent and miſchievous again, and that in the Month of February laſt two Soldiers were killed and ſcalped by them about a League from the Fort.

On Sunday laſt arrived a Tranſport from Penſacola, with Troops.—They bring Advice, that the Spaniſh Governor (accompanied with a Prieſt) was arrived at New-Orleans, in order to take Poſſeſſion of that Place—The Spaniſh Soldiers were not arrived, but ſoon expected, till when, the French Garriſon were to remain and do Duty.——It was propoſed to ſeveral of them to inliſt in the Spaniſh Service, but they generally refuſed with Diſdain. Veſſels were provided for ſuch of the Inhabitants as choſe to embark for France, which when they were preparing to do, the Prieſt urged their complying with the Spaniſh Cuſtom, of confeſſing before their Departure: The French inſiſted on their Right of Choice, either to confeſs or not, according to the Cuſtom of France; on which an Uproar and great Confuſion enſued.—But as they were not ſuffered to depart without Confeſſion, at length the greateſt Part complied rather than be detained; but were highly exaſperated at the Compulſion, declaring they had rather live under the Turkiſh than Spaniſh Government.

We are ſorry to give the following doleful Account to our Readers.——About 3 Weeks ago, as Mr. William Gilliland, late of this City, Merchant, with his Family, were going to his Settlement at Williſborough, in ſtruggling againſt a very great Rapidity in one of the Lakes above, to catch all Advantages in order to ſave their Ground, one of the Battoes ſeized the Limb of a large Tree that had given Way from the Bank of the River, and which partly hanged over the Water with little Rooting, it unfortunately gave Way, fell on the Battoe, inſtantly ſunk it, and Mr. Gilliland's extremely promiſing Daughter, together with the Son of another Gentleman, were, in the Sight of their Parents then in another Battoe, drowned, they not being able to give them the leaſt Aſſiſtance ——The other Paſſengers ſaved themſelves, tho' it is ſaid they could have relieved the two (undoubtedly now happy) Infants, as it was within their Depths.

Meſſieurs PRINTERS,

OBſerving ſome notable ſtrictures in a late extraordinary ſpeech, relative to an honorable aſſembly's not re-electing certain honorable gentlemen councellors for the preſent year, has induced me to ſend you the following remarks, viz. That there is nothing ſo univerſally allowed in politicks, as that liberty cannot ſubſiſt where the executive and legiſlative part of the government are not kept aſſunder. That if we ſhould run into a contrary practice, and ſee our lawgivers made up of placemen, civil and military, they will have nothing to do, but every man to be as great a knave in his poſt as he thinks fit; and when general diſſatiſfaction is ſpread amongſt the people from ſuch a melancholly ſcene, they may enact penal laws to quell the ſpirits of the people and to make them ſubmit to the yoke. And leſt theſe ſhould not be ſufficient, in order to make themſelves more ſafe, they would procure a ſtanding army (as was attempted in a certain province not many months ago) then will you ſee a poor rogue hanged for a trifle, while a thief that robs the public of thouſands ſhall be honored and preferred; and no knave of any rank will ſuffer, unleſs one of the principal of them ſhould be kind enough to take it in his head, out of love to his country, to hang himſelf.

Voted, That the following Addreſs be preſented to His Excellency, in Anſwer to his Speech to both Houſes at the Opening of this Seſſion.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

THE Houſe of Repreſentatives of this Province beg Leave to return your Excellency our Congratulations upon the Repeal of the Stamp-Act;—a moſt intereſting and happy Event, which has diffuſed a general Joy among all his Majeſty's loyal and faithful Subjects throughout this extenſive Continent.

This is a repeated and ſtriking Inſtance of our moſt gracious Sovereign's paternal Regard for the Happineſs and Welfare of all his Subjects.—We feel upon this Occaſion the deepeſt Senſe of Loyalty and Gratitude.—We are abundantly convinced that our legal and conſtitutional Rights and Liberties will always be ſafe under his propitious Government.—We eſteem the Relation we have ever ſtood in with Great-Britain, the Mother-Country, our Happineſs and Security.—We have Reaſon to confide in the Britiſh Parliament, from this happy Inſtance, that all his Majeſty's faithful Subjects, however remote, are the Objects of their Patronage and Juſtice.

When we reflect on the Difficulties under which this important Buſineſs labored, and the Cauſes from whence they aroſe, we are truely aſtoniſhed that they have been ſurmounted; and we gratefully reſent the noble and generous Efforts of thoſe illuſtrious Patriots who have diſtinguiſhed themſelves in our Cauſe; Indeed when we look back upon the many Dangers from which our Country hath even from its firſt Settlement been delivered, and the Policy and Power of thoſe who have to this Day ſought its Ruin, we are ſenſibly ſtruck with an Admiration of Divine Goodneſs, and would religiouſly regard the Arm which has ſo often ſhielded us.

Upon ſo joyful an Occaſion, we were in Hopes your Excellency would ſpread a Veil over every diſagreeable Scene in the late Times of public Calamities; but to our Surprize and Aſtoniſhment, we find your Excellency declaring in your Speech at the opening of the General Court, that this cannot be done till a better Temper and Underſtanding ſhall prevail in general, than there ſeems to be at preſent: Though your Excellency has ſeen Reaſon to form ſo unfavourable an Opinion of the preſent Times, we beg Leave, with all Humility to aſk, whether ſo great a Liberality as you have ſhown in your Strictures upon them has a Tendency to make them better?

" Private Intereſts and Reſentments," " Popular Diſcontent," " unlimited Abuſe caſt on the moſt reſpectable Characters."—Theſe and ſuch like Expreſſions run through a conſiderable Part of your Speech. We ſhould have been glad if your Excellency had given ſome Intimation at leaſt that you did not mean to caſt Reflections on either of the two Houſes, to whom your Speech was immediately addreſſed: We have Reaſon to fear, that whatever were your Intentions, this Conſtruction will be put upon it by thoſe who would be glad to improve the Authority of your Excellency to our Diſadvantage.—Upon this Account we find ourſelves under a Neceſſity, explicitly to declare to your Excellency, that no private Reſentments of ours have intermixed with popular Diſcontent.——We have no Intereſt detached from, or inconſiſtent with the common good; we are far from having any " ill Purpoſes" to execute, much leſs under the " borrowed Maſk of patriotic Zeal," or any other hypocritical Diſguiſe.—It has ever been our Pride to cultivate Harmony and Union, upon the Principles of Liberty and Virtue, among the ſeveral Branches of the Legiſlature, and a due Reſpect and Reverence for his Majeſty's Repreſentative in the Province:—We have endeavoured to ſolicit Integrity and Ability to the Aid of the People, and are very ſorry if Gentlemen of Character have by any Means been deterred from ſerving their Country, eſpecially in a Time of Danger, when the Eyes of all might have been upon them for Deliverance. At ſuch a Time, for true Patriots to be ſilent is dangerous.—Your Excellency tells us of an unlimited Abuſe which has been caſt upon the moſt reſpectable Characters, of which you have had no little Experience yourſelf: But you aſſure us that it has not abated your Concern for the Welfare of the Country, nor prevented your Endeavours to promote it. We thank your Excellency: And upon this Aſſurance we have Reaſon to hope you have employed your Influence, in Behalf of this People, at a Time when they ſo much ſtood in Need of it, in repreſenting their Behaviour in general in the moſt candid and favourable View. In this Light his Majeſty, his Miniſtry and Parliament, have been deſirous of viewing it, and when this good People ſhall find that your Excellency has ſerved them in ſo eſſential a Point, they will we are very ſure, be ready “to recognize you in the united Character of a true Friend to the Province, and a faithful Servant of the Crown.”

But may it pleaſe your Excellency, We cannot forbear obſerving, that when you are ſpeaking, as we conceive, of the Injuſtice done his Honor the Lieut. Governor the laſt Year, your Manner of Expreſſion would lead a Stranger to think that ſo horrid an Act of Villainy was perpetrated by the Body of this People. The infatuation you tell us “has been carried to ſuch a Degree of Injuſtice that the Principal Object of the Fury of the People, was a Gentleman to whom they were highly indebted for his Services in the very Cauſe for which they roſe againſt him.”—Your Excellency no doubt means that the whole People, and not a Part only, were moſt highly indebted to this Gentleman for his Services, and that the particular Cauſe in which he had been engaged concerned them all: and yet ſo infatuated have the Body of the People been, that they even roſe againſt this very Gentleman, and made him the Object of their Fury! Is not this the natural Meaning of your Words? and will it not, Sir, afford Matter of Triumph to the unrelenting Enemies of this Province, to hear the Governor himſelf declaring that this was the “prevailing Temper of the People!” that ſuch was their “violent and precipitate Meaſures,” and that a Veil cannot even now, be drawn over ſo “diſgraceful a Scene,” becauſe the ſame Temper among the People in general ſtill prevails.—There may, Sir, be a general popular Diſcontent upon good Grounds; The People may ſometimes have juſt Reaſon to complain; your Excellency muſt be ſenſible, that in ſuch a Circumſtance, evil minded Perſons may take the Advantage and riſe in Tumult: This has been too common in the beſt regulated and beſt diſpoſed Cities in Europe: Under Cover of the Night a few Villains may do much Miſchief: And ſuch, Sir, was the Caſe here: But the Virtue of the People themſelves finally ſuppreſſed the Mob: and we have Reaſon to believe, that the unaffected Concern which they diſcovered at ſo tragical a Scene, their united Deteſtation of it, their ſpirited Meaſures to prevent further Diſorders, and other Circumſtances well known to the honorable Gentleman himſelf have fully ſatiſfied him, that ſuch an Imputation was without Reaſon—But for many Months paſt there has been an undiſturbed Tranquility in general, in this Province, and for the greater Part of the Time, merely from a Senſe of good Order in the People, while they have been in a great Meaſure deprived of the public Tribunals, and the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, and ſo far thrown into a State of Nature.

We are at a Loſs to conceive your Excellency's Meaning when you allude to ſome Proceedings which “when known at Home you fear will afford Matter of Triumph to thoſe who were for maintaining the Stamp-Act, and Sorrow and Concern to thoſe who procured its Repeal;” and when you tell us that “the Inflamation of the Country has been a grand Object with ſome Perſons.” We cannot ſuppoſe your Excellency would make a public Declaration of a Matter of ſuch Importance without good Grounds; an Attempt to inflame a Country is a Crime of very dark Complexion: You tell us that a Stop has not yet been put to that Purſuit: We hope you have taken every prudent and legal Step in your own Department to prevent it—Permit us however to ſay, that it is poſſible you may have been miſinformed, by Perſons not well affected to this People, and who would be glad to have it tho't that we were turbulent and factious, and perpetually murmuring, even after every Cauſe of Complaint is removed:—Such Characters may ſtill exiſt in the Perſons of ſome who have taken Occaſions from the juſt Reſentment of the People, to repreſent them as inflammatory, diſaffected and diſloyal. Should there be any Perſons ſo abandoned, as to make it the Object of their Policy, to inflame the Minds of the People againſt a wiſe, a good, a “mild and moderate Adminiſtration,” they may be aſſured of the ſevereſt Cenſures of this Houſe as ſoon as they are known.

But——The Manner in which you are pleaſed to explain the Grounds of your Teſtimony againſt the Elections of the preſent Year, ſeems to imply that it is your Opinion that the two Houſes have been ſo far influenced by an inflammatory Spirit in particular Perſons, as even to make an Attack upon the Government in Form! The two Houſes proceeded in theſe Elections with perfect good Humour and good Underſtanding: and as no other Buſineſs had been tranſacted when we were favoured with your Speech, it is aſtoniſhing to us that you ſhould think this a Time to “interrupt the general Harmony.” We are wholly at a Loſs to conceive how a full, free and fair Election can be called “an Attack upon the Government in Form,” “a profeſſed Intention to deprive it of its beſt and moſt able Servants,” “an ill-judged and ill-timed Oppugnation of the King's Authority.”——Theſe, may it pleaſe your Excellency, are high and grievous Charges againſt the two Houſes, and ſuch as we humbly conceive, no crowned Head ſince the Revolution has thought fit to bring againſt two Houſes of Parliament: it ſeems to us to be little ſhort, if any Thing of a direct Impeachment of the two Houſes of high Treaſon: Oppugnation of the King's Authority is but a learned Mode of Expreſſion which reduced to plain Engliſh is fighting againſt the King's moſt excellent Majeſty. But what, Sir, is the Oppugnation which we have been guilty of? We were ſummoned and convened here to give our free Suffrages at the General Election, directed to be annually made by the Royal Charter: We have given our Suffrages according to the Dictates of our Conſciences, and the beſt Light of our Underſtanding: It was certainly our Right to chuſe, and as clearly a conſtitutional Power in your Excellency to diſapprove, without aſſigning a Reaſon either before or after your Diſſent. Your Excellency has thought proper to diſapprove of ſome: We are far even from ſuggeſting that the Country has by this Means been deprived of its beſt and ableſt Servants: We have releaſed thoſe of the Judges of the Superior Court who had the Honor of a Seat at the Board, from the Cares and Perplexities of Politicks, and given them Opportunity to make ſtill farther Advances in the Knowledge of the Law, and to adminiſter Right and Juſtice within this Juriſdiction: We have alſo left other Gentlemen more at Leiſure to diſcharge the Duties & Functions of their important Offices. This ſurely is not to deprive the Government of its beſt and ableſt Servants, nor can it be called an Oppugnation of any Thing, but a dangerous Union of Legiſlative and Executive Power in the ſame Perſons; a Grievance long complained of by our Conſtituents, and the Redreſs of which ſome of us had ſpecial Inſtruction, to endeavour at this very Election to obtain.

Your Excellency is pleaſed to ſay, that only one of all the American Petitions: “was well received and of real Uſe in producing the Repeal:” That Petition was forwarded from this Province in Seaſon, to be preſented to the Parliament, before the Stamp Act was paſſed: By whoſe Influence the Preſentation of it was ſo long delayed by Mr. Agent Jackſon, and omitted through that whole Seſſion of Parliament, it is needleſs for us at preſent to enquire. If it was ſo well received, as your Excellency tells us it was, and of real Uſe in procuring the Repeal, there is Reaſon to think it might have had its deſigned Effect to prevent the paſſing that Act, and ſaved this Continent from that Diſtreſs and Confuſion in which it has been involved. But your Excellency is under a Miſtake in ſuppoſing that this Petition alone, was well received and of real Uſe: Thoſe from the late General Congreſs, we are informed by our Agent Mr. Debrdt, were early laid before the Miniſtry, and were well received by them. He tells us that Mr. Secretary Conway kindly undertook to preſent that, which was prepared for his Majeſty; and as the Royal Ear is always open to the Diſtreſſes of his People, we have not the leaſt Reaſon to doubt but that ſo united a Supplication of his American Subjects was graciouſly conſidered by him: And with Regard to thoſe to the two Houſes of Parliament, one of them at leaſt we know was highly approved of by the Chairman of the Committee for American Affairs, was read in the Houſe of Commons and ſupported by Mr. Pitt; it was never rejected, and we cannot ſuppoſe it failed of due Attention merely for Want of Form.—In Truth, Sir, we look back with the utmoſt Pleaſure upon the Wiſdom of the laſt Houſe of Repreſentatives, in propoſing ſuch a Union of the Colonies: And although ſome have taken great Pains to leſſen the Weight and Importance of the late Congreſs in the Minds of the People, we have the ſtrongeſt Reaſon to believe that their firm and prudent Meaſures had a very great Influence in procuring this happy Repeal.

You are pleaſed to make a Declaration that “whenever an Opportunity ſhall offer to reſtore Harmony and Union to the Provincial Councils, you will moſt cordially embrace it.” The Time, Sir, is already come: Never was there ſo happy a Juncture, in which to accompliſh ſo deſireable an End; and it will be the Pride of this Houſe to improve it: With this Diſpoſition we came together.—If any Expreſſion or Sentiment in your Speech ſhould have a contrary Effect, as it will ſo far defeat our honeſt Intention, it will fill us with real Concern. Permit us alſo to ſay, that it will diſappoint the Expectations of his Majeſty and the Parliament in repealing the Stamp-Act; for it is moſt reaſonable in them to expect that the Reſtoration of the Colonies to domeſtic Peace and Tranquility will be the happy Effect of the Eſtabliſhment of their juſt Rights and Liberties.

When your Excellency ſhall “be aſſiſted by ſpecial Inſtruction, and ſpeak to us with greater Authority than your own,” we ſhall be all Attention; being aſſured from Experience that every Thing coming from his Majeſty will be full of Grace and Truth.

THE
CONNECTICUT COURANT.

MONDA UNE 30, 1766.

BOSTON.

Governor BERNARD's SPEEC
To the General Court at Boſton, June 3, 1766.

Gentlemen of the Council, and

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives,

I Have received a Letter from the Right Honorable Mr. Secretary CONWAY, incloſing two Acts of Parliament; the one, for ſecuring the Dependency of the Colonies on the Mother Country, and the other for the Repeal of the Stamp Act. At the ſame Time He is pleaſed to ſignify what His Majeſty and His Parliament expect from the Colonies in return for the Indulgences ſhown to them. I am alſo ordered to recommend to you, that full and ample Compenſation be made to the late Sufferers by the Madneſs of the People: and for that Purpoſe I am directed to lay before you the Votes of the Houſe of Commons expreſſing their Senſe upon that Subject; whoſe Humanity and Juſtice it is hoped it will be your Glory to imitate. The whole of this Letter is conceived in ſuch ſtrong, patrotic and concluſive Terms, that I ſhall not weaken it by a Repreſentation of my own, other than this ſhort Capitulation neceſſary to introduce what I have to ſay on the Subject

I cannot but lament that this Letter did not arrive before the Meeting of the General Court: if it had, I flatter myſelf it would have prevented a Tranſaction which muſt now be more regretted than ever: I mean your excluding from the King's Council the principal Crown Officers,—Men not only reſpectable in themſelves for their Integrety, their Abilities and their Fidility to their Country as well as to their King, but alſo quite neceſſary to the Adminſtration of Government in the very Station from whence you have diſplaſed them. By this you have anticipated the Expectations of the King and Parliament and diſappointed them, before they have been communicated to you. It is not now in your Power in ſo full a Manner as will be expected, to ſhow your reſpectful Gratitude to the Mother Country, or to make a dutiful and affectionate Return to the Indulgence of the King and Parliament. It muſt and will be underſtood that theſe Gentlemen are turned out for their Deference to Acts of the Britiſh Legiſlature. Whilſt this Proceeding has its full Effect you will not you cannot avoid being chargeable with Unthankfulneſs and Diſſatisfaction on ground of former Heat and prevailing Prejudice.

It is impoſſible to give any tolerable Colouring to this Proceeding: If it ſhould be juſtified by aſſerting a Right, that it is a legal Power to chooſe whom you pleaſe without regard to any Conſiderations whatſoever; the Juſtification itſelf will tend to impeach the Right. But if your Right is ever ſo abſolute, the Diſtinction between a Right and the Propriety of exerciſing it, is very obvious; as this Diſtinction has ſo lately been uſed with great Effect to your own Intereſt. Next to wiſhing that this had never happened, it is to be wiſhed that ſome Meaſures might be found to draw a Veil over it, or at leaſt to palliate it, and prevent its bad Effects; which ſurely muſt be very hurtful to this Province, if it ſhould be maintained and vindicated. If any Expedience can be found out for this purpoſe, I will heartily concur in them; and in general I will make the beſt Uſe of all Means which you ſhall put into my Hands to ſave the Credit of the Province upon this unhappy Emergency: and I will ſet off to the beſt Advantage I can, all other Methods which you ſhall take to demonſtrate thoſe Sentiments which are expected from you in the moſt effectual Manner.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives,

The Requiſition contained in this Letter is of a moſt ſingular Nature, and the only one of the Kind that I have known ſince I have ſerved his Majeſty in America. It is founded upon a Reſolution of the Houſe of Commons, formed after a full conſideration of the Matter, and repreſented to His Majeſty by the addreſs of that Houſe. The Juſtice and Humanity of this Requiſition is ſo forcible that it cannot be controverted; the Authority with which it is introduced ſhould proclude all Diſputation about complying with it I hope therefore you will add to the Merit of your Compliance by the Readineſs of it, and aſſume to yourſelves the Honour which now offers itſelf, of ſetting the firſt Example of Gratitude and dutiful Affection to the King and Parliament, by giving thoſe Proofs of it, which are now pointed out to you. I muſt obſerve that it is from the Provincial Aſſembly that the King and parliament expect this Compenſation ſhould be made to the ſufferers, without refering them to any other Perſons whatſoever. Who ought finally to be charged with this Expence, may be a proper Conſideration for you; and I ſhall readily concur with you in your Reſolutions thereon, after the Sufferers have been fully ſatiſfied.

Gentlemen,

Both the Buſineſs and the Time are moſt critical: and let me intreat you to recollect yourſelves, and conſider well what you are about. When the Fate of the Province is put in a Scale, which is to riſe or fall according to your preſent Conduct will you ſuffer yourſelves to be influenced by Party-Animoſities or domeſtic Feuds? Shall this fine Country be ruined becauſe every Perſon in the Goverment has not been gratified with Honours or Offices according to the full of his Pretenſions? Shall the private Intereſts, Paſſions or Reſentments of few Men deprive this whole People of the great and manifold Advantages which the Favor and Indulgence of their Sovereign, and his Parliament, are even now providing for them? There never was at any Time whatever ſo fair a proſpect of the Imprvement of the Peace and Welfare of this Province as is now opening to you. Will you ſuffer this pleaſent View to be intercepted or over clouded by the ill Humours of Particulars? When Wealth and Happineſs are held out to you, will you refuſe to accept of them? Surely after his Majeſty's Commands are known and the Terms, in which they are ſignified, well conſidered, the very Perſons which have created the Prejudices and Prepoſſeſſions, which I now endeavour to combat, will be the firſt to remove them and prevent their ill Effects.

It is now declared, That ſuch is the Magnanimity of the King and his Parliament, that they ſeem diſpoſed not only to forgive but to forget thoſe unjuſtifiable Marks of an undutiful Diſpoſition too frequent in the late Tranſactions of the Colonies. It is my Deſire to render this Grace as beneficial and extenſive within this Province as it can well be made. But it muſt be expected that whoever intends to take the Benefit of it ſhould intitle themſelves to it by a Departure from that offenſive Conduct which is the Object of it. Here then will it be neceſſary to draw a Line to diſtinguiſh who are and who are not the proper Objects of the gracious Intention of the King and Parliament. And if after this proffer'd Grace, any Perſon ſhould go beyond this Line, and ſtill endeavour directly or indirectly to foment a Diviſion between Great-Britain and her Colonies, and prevent that Connection of Policy and Union of Intereſts which are now in ſo fair a way of being eſtabliſhed to Perpetuity, ſurely that Man will have much to anſwer for to both Countries, and will probably be called to anſwer.

But I hope it will not be ſo, not in a ſingle Inſtance: but that every Perſon, even they who have given the greateſt Offence, will embrace this Opportunity to reſtore Peace to their Country, and obtain Indemnity for themſelves. And all ſuch who ſhall really deſire to reconcile themſelves to the King's Government either at home or here may aſſure themſelves that, without a future Delinquency, every Thing paſt, will, as far as can be, be buried in total Oblivion. No one can ſuſpect me of want of Sincerity in making this Declaration; as too ready a Forgetfulneſs of Injuries has been ſaid to be my Weakneſs: However it is a Failing I had rather ſuffer by, than be without.

I have ſpoke to you with Sincerity, Openneſs, and Earneſtneſs, ſuch as the Importance of the Subject deſerves. When the Fate of the Province ſeems to hang upon the Reſult of your preſent Deliberations, my Anxiety for the Event, I hope will make my Warmth excuſeable. If I have let drop any Word, which may ſeem ſevere or unkind, let the Cauſe I am engaged in apologize for it; and where the Intention is upright, judge of what I ſay, not by detached Words or Syllables, but by its general Purport and Meaning. I have always been deſirous of cultivating a good Underſtanding with you—And when I recollect the former happy Times, when I ſcarce ever met the General Court without giving and receiving Teſtimonies of mutual Approbation, I cannot but regret the Interruption of that pleaſant Intercourſe by the ſucceſsful Artifices of deſigning Men, Enemies to the Country as well as to me. But now that my Character for Affection to the Province and Attention to its Intereſts, is confirmed by the moſt authentic Teſtimonials, I hope that at the ſame Time you renew your Duty to the King you will reſume a Confidence in his Repreſentative.

NEWPORT, June 23.

By the Maſter of a Veſſel lately arrived from Cadiz, we are informed that the uneaſineſs among the People of the Kingdom of Spain, ſtill continues, the King has retired from the Capital and the Marquis of Squilace for Italy.—The Tumults aroſe partly from the new Regulation propoſed in Dreſs, partly from the very high Price of Bread which has been kept up by the State Offices notwithſtanding Wheat hath fallen conſiderably.

BOSTON, June 26.

We hear that Capt. Dobel in a large ſchooner bound from Liſbon for this place foundered at ſea a few days after he ſailed; the people took to their boat, and being luckily met with the next day, were carried back to Liſbon.

Laſt Saturday afternoon Capt. Dunn came to town from Cape Ann, where he arrived in a fiſhing ſchooner from the Iſle of Sables, and informs, that he was paſſenger on board Captain Gwin, in a large ſhip between 4 and 500 tons burthen, richly laden, bound from Briſtol for this place, but that on the 24th of May, at 9 at night, in thick weather, they unfortunately ran aſhore on the S. E. part of that Iſland, about a mile from the bar, where they remained till the next morning, when the veſſel went to pieces, and 14 of the people unhappily periſhed; the others, 12 in number, with great difficulty got ſafe aſhore upon the maſts and other parts of the wreck.——Capt. Dunn remained on the iſland 11 days after this diſaſter, during which time but very little of the cargo came aſhore; he thinks ſome of the letters were taken up, which, with what other things might be ſaved, Capt. Gwin intended to bring with him in Capt. Beal, who was there in a ſchooner belonging to this place.——Among thoſe unhappy perſons who were drowned by this melancholly accident, was the mate, mr. Benjamin Blackman of this town, capt. Cahoon, a paſſenger, a boy of Capt. Dunn's, and a nephew of capt. Gwin's, alſo a woman, wiſe to one of the ſeamen. The ſhip was about 60 yards from the ſhore when ſhe went to pieces.

Capt. Dunn further informs, that a ſchooner had been caſt away on that iſland ſome time before and that the bodies of two men, ſuppoſed to have belonged to her, were found dead on the beach, which by their dreſs appeared to be fiſhermen.

We hear that ſeveral merchants in this town will be great ſufferers by the Loſs of the above Ship, their intereſt on board not being inſured.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.

Since our laſt ſundry letters, containing ſome particulars of the late dreadful fire at Barbados, have come to hand, from which we have extracted as follows, viz.

Bridgetown, May 16, 1766.

"By the time this comes to hand, I make no doubt you will hear of the melancholly deſtruction of this town, therefore will firſt acquaint you that our houſe is ſafe, and all to the windward of the ſtepping ſtones. After having the pleaſure of acquainting you with this, I will (as well as the preſent confuſion will allow me) give you a narration of the particulars. The fire broke out at the houſe above the attorney general's, in high ſtreet, about 11 o'clock at night of the 14th of May, and in two hours all Broad ſtreet was in flames, and all is conſumed between Jew ſtreet, and right weſtward down to the wharf, two houſes excepted: It is impoſſible to give you any account, at preſent, of the dreadful conſequences of this mournful event. The fire ſpread itſelf with ſuch rapidity, that few had time to ſave their wearing apparel. Had I not made a ſtrong puſh at the cage, with the crews of ſome of the veſſels we have in the bay, and blown up our ſtore, next the attorney general's, our end of the town muſt inevitably have gone. We have received a large ſum for the poor diſtreſſed people, who are now ſtarving in the fields for want of ſupport; and I have been all this day buſied in diſtributing proviſions to them for their immediate relief. We are forming an aſſociation for the general credit of the iſland, in order to purchaſe up all the proviſions for the people, that they may not be impoſed upon. We mean to give a profitable price for every thing that arrives, but at the ſame time, would put it out of the power of unthinking and unreaſonable people, to exact on the poor unhappy ſufferers."

"By an eſtimate juſt made, there appears to be 440 houſes burnt, the annual rents of which amounted to 16,422l."

There are many other letters relating to the above fire; but as the contents of them are pretty much the ſame with thoſe inſerted, it is thought needleſs to repeat them.——One letter ſays the ground the buildings ſtood on that were burnt, by a ſurvey that had been taken of it, is 23 acres, 3 rods, and 16 perches. In other letters it is ſaid, that above 1030 buildings of one ſort or other, were deſtroyed—That the diſtreſs of the inhabitants could be better imagined than expreſſed, they, in the heighth of their calamity being robbed and plundered by negroes and others, and were obliged to keep watch after the fire was got under, for fear of the negroes riſing upon them, and deſtroying what remained of the town, ſome of which were taken up; one negro in particular, having been diſcovered putting an old ſhoe, ſtuffed with rags, &c. under the eves of a houſe, in order to ſet it on fire.—The aſſembly, we hear, had paſſed a law, regulating the price of proviſions for two months."

Extract of a Letter from London, March 26, 1766.

"The repeal of the ſtamp-act ſtrongly evidences the moderation, unexampled lenity and tenderneſs of parliament, and will naturally impreſs your minds with ſentiments of the moſt reſpectful gratitude to the mother country, and which I have no doubt will be productive of, and ſhew itſelf in, a chearful obedience to the laws and legiſlative authority of Great-Britain.

"In the courſe of the enquiry, Meſſieurs Howard, Mauſſat, and Major James, were called to the bar of the houſe, and muſt do them the juſtice to ſay, did great honor to their characters. No expreſſion like prejudice or reſentment for the treatment they had received, dropped from them in the courſe of their teſtimony; particularly the Major, who anſwered to the queſtions aſked him with boldneſs, knowledge, and without paſſion or prejudice; and when the enquiry lead to the unwarrantable and tumultuous proceedings that he was witneſs to in New-York, he ſeemed to wiſh to draw a veil over them, and, unprovoked at, or forgetful of, the injuries he had perſonally ſuffered by the outrage of the populace, ſpoke with tenderneſs of thoſe miſguided people, and far from ſhewing any accrimony againſt particulars, I cannot hear that, either in public or private, he has pointed out any perſons as leaders or inſtigators of the outrages that were committed.—And let me add, that many here are of Opinion, that the teſtimonies of thoſe gentlemen, particularly his, had great weight in perſuading the repeal of the act."

Portſmouth, New-Hampſhire, June 23.

We hear from Georgia, that about three Weeks ago, as three Men were coming down the River in a Canoe, from Hunting, with about 300 Wt. of Beaver, by ſome Accident the Canoe overſet, when one Hezekiah Cloutman was unfortunately drowned. They loſt above half the Beaver.

WALLINGFORD, in Connecticut, June 14th, 1766.

To the Honorable County Court, ſitting at New-Haven, on the third Tueſday of Inſtant June.

The PETITION of us whoſe Names are under-written;

Humbly Sheweth;

THAT whereas it has not been the Practice of the Judges of the County Court in this County to adjourn over into June, nor to hold their Courts in the Summer Seaſon, when every Huſbandman that is obliged to attend it, muſt be a very great Sufferer; your Honours muſt moſt certainly know, that if the Inhabitants are called off from their Buſineſs in ſuch a critical Time, when their All is, as it were at Stake, there is not, nor can be any Poſſibility of the People ever paying their Debts. And furthermore we conceive, that if it was not a Seaſon when the People were engaged in the Buſineſs of the Summer, under the preſent Circumſtances, it would not be juſt and equitable, at this Time; for the News, from Time to Time, from the General Aſſembly, was, that there was not to be any ſuing to any of the adjourn'd Courts; and it was ſaid that it had paſſed both Houſes; and the People that are ſued now, at the laſt Hour, could not poſſibly collect their Debts; and ſo their Eſtates muſt be ſacrificed, if Courts give Judgment at this Time: nor do we think it juſt for the Judges to proceed to give Judgment in any one Action: Nor do we think it ſafe to your Honors; for you, as well as the Judges of other Courts, carry your Breath in the Noſtrils of the People. And we don't intend to have Courts in the Summer Seaſon; and we are determined we will not; for it is not right to make and to keep the People in a continual Ferment; but are determined to mind our Buſineſs, get Money and pay our Debts as ſoon as we can.

No more at preſent; but beg Leave to ſubſcribe ourſelves your moſt humble Servants, hoping and truſting you will not proceed to Buſineſs.

[Signed by Street Hall, and 67 other Inhabitants of the Town of Wallingford.]

BOSTON, June 9.

VOTED, That the following ADDRESS be preſented to His Excellency, in Anſwer to his Speech to both Houſes the 3d Inſtant.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

THE houſe have fully conſidered your Excellency's Speech of the third inſtant, and beg leave to obſerve, that as on the one hand no conſideration ſhall ever induce us to remit in the leaſt of our loyalty and gratitude to the beſt of Kings, ſo on the other, no unprovoked aſperity of expreſſion on the part of your Excellency can deter us from aſſerting our undoubted charter rights and privileges. One of the principal of thoſe is that of annually chuſing his Majeſty's Council for this province.

Had the moſt excellent letter from one of his Majeſty's principal ſecretaries of ſtate, which has been communicated to the houſe, arrived ſooner, it could not have prevented the freedom of Elections ; nor can we on the ſtricteſt examination of the tranſactions of the day of our general election, ſo far as the houſe was concerned, diſcover the leaſt reaſon for regret.——So long as we ſhall have our charter privileges continued, we muſt think ourſelves inexcuſeable, if we ſhould ſuffer ourſelves to be intimidated in the free exerciſe of them. This Exerciſe of our rights can never with any colour of reaſon be adjudged an abuſe of our liberty.

Leaſt we ſhould be at a loſs for the proceedings and tranſactions which have given your Excellency ſo much uneaſineſs, you have been pleaſed to inform us in plain terms that you " mean the excluding from the King's council the principal crown officers—men not only reſpectable in themſelves for their integrity, their abilities and their fidelity to their country as well as to their king, but alſo quite neceſſary to the adminiſtration of government in the very ſtation from whence we have diſplaced them." Had your excellency thought fit to have favoured us with your ſentiments and opinion of the candidates previouſly to the election, it could not have more arreſted our attention as a breach of our privileges ; and it would ſurely be as proper to give intimations of this kind before as now the buſineſs is paſt a remedy, for this year at leaſt. The aſſembly of another year will act for themſelves, or under ſuch influence and direction as they may think fit. The two crown officers who were of the honorable board the laſt year, and not choſen this, are the lieutenant governor and ſecretary. The other gentlemen of the board laſt year who are not choſen this, hold only provincial commiſſions. This province has ſubſiſted and flouriſhed, and the adminiſtration of government has been carried on here intirely to the royal approbation, when no crown officers had a ſeat at the board, and we truſt this may be the caſe again. We find not in the Secretary of State's letter, the leaſt intimation that it was expected by his Majeſty or his miniſtry, that we ſhould elect into his Majeſty's council the principal, or indeed any other crown officers. For any thing that appears in the letter, we are left entirely to the exerciſe of our own judgment, and beſt diſcretion in making our elections, agreeably to the royal charter.

" If it is not now in our power in ſo full a manner, as will be expected to ſhow our reſpectful gratitude to the mother country, or to make a dutiful, affectionate return to the indulgence of the king and parliament," it ſhall be no fault of ours, for this we intend, & hope ſhall be able fully to effect.

We cannot perſuade ourſelves that " it muſt and will be underſtood that thoſe gentlemen were turned out," as your excellency is pleaſed to expreſs it, " for their defference to acts of the Britiſh legiſlature." We have given the true reaſon of this proceeding in our anſwer to your excellency's firſt ſpeech of this ſeſſion. We are under no apprehenſion that when the true grounds and reaſons of our proceedings are known, and candidly conſidered, we ſhall be in the leaſt degree " chargeable with unthankfulneſs and diſſatisfaction on ground of former heat and prevailing prejudice," or on any other ground.

Your excellency ſays, " it is impoſſible to give any tolerable colouring to this proceeding." The integrity and uprightneſs of our intentions and conduct is ſuch that no colouring is requiſite, and therefore we ſhall excuſe ourſelves from attempting any. We hold ourſelves to be quite free in our ſuffrages ; and provided we obſerve the directions of our charter, and the laws of the land, both which we have ſtrictly adhered to, we are by no means accountable but to God and our own conſciences for the manner in which we give them. We believe your excellency is the firſt governor of this province that ever formally called the two houſes of aſſembly to account for their ſuffrages, & accuſed them of ingratitude and diſaffection to the crown, becauſe they had not beſtowed them on ſuch perſons as in the opinion of the governor were quite neceſſary to the adminiſtration of government. Had your excellency been pleaſed in ſeaſon to have favoured us with a liſt and poſitive orders whom to chuſe, we ſhould on your principles have been without excuſe. But even the moſt abject ſlaves are not to be blamed for diſobeying their maſters will and pleaſure when it is wholly unknown to them.

Your excellency ſays, " If it ſhould be juſtified by aſſerting a right, that is, a legal power to chuſe whom we pleaſe without regard to any conſiderations whatever, the juſtification itſelf will tend to impeach the right." We clearly aſſert our charter rights of a free election. But for your excellency's definition of this right, viz. " a legal power to chuſe whom we pleaſe without regard to any conſiderations whatever" we contend not. We made our elections after the moſt mature and deliberate conſideration, and had ſpecial regard to the Qualifications of the candidates, and all circumſtances conſidered, choſe thoſe we judged moſt likely to ſerve his Majeſty, and promote the welfare and proſperity of his people. We cannot conceive how the aſſertion of our clear charter right of free election can tend to impeach that right or charter. We would hope that your excellency does not mean openly and publickly to threaten us with a deprivation of our charter privileges merely for exerciſing them according to our beſt judgment and diſcretion. As dear to us as our charter is we ſhould think it of very little value, if it ſhould be adjudged that the ſenſe and ſpirit of it require the electors ſhould be under the abſolute direction & controul of the chair even in giving them ſuffrages. For whatever may be our ideas of the wiſdom, prudence, mildneſs and moderation of your adminiſtration, and of your forgiving ſpirit, yet we are not ſure your ſucceſſor will poſſes thoſe ſhining virtueſs.

We are very ſenſible that be our right of election ever ſo clear and abſolute, there is a " diſtinction between a right and the propriety of exerciſing it." This diſtinction we hope, will apply itſelf with full force, and all its advantage to your excellency's reluctant exertion of the prerogative in diſapproving ſix of the gentlemen choſen by the two houſes of aſſembly :—But this being a matter of diſcretion, is ſolely within your excellency's breaſt, and we are taught by your juſt diſtinction, that ſuch is the gift of our ſuffrages. It therefore gives us great pain, to have our diſcretion queſtioned, and our public conduct thus repeatedly arraigned.

Your excellency has intimated your readineſs to concur with us in any palliative or expedient " to prevent the bad effects of our elections, which you think muſt ſurely be very hurtful to the province, if it ſhould be maintained and vindicated." But as we are under no apprehenſions of any ſuch effects, eſpecially when we reflect on the ability and integrity of the council your excellency has approved of, we beg leave to excuſe ourſelves from any unneceſſary ſearch after palliatives or expedients.

We thank your Excellency for your kind aſſurances of " uſing all means to ſave the credit of this province" : but we concieve that when the true ſtate of the province is repreſented and known, its credit can be in no kind of danger. The recommendation enjoined by Mr. Secretary CONWAY's letter, and in conſequence thereof made to us, we ſhall embrace the firſt convenient Opportunity to conſider and act upon. In the mean time cannot but obſerve, that it is conceived in much higher and ſtronger terms in the ſpeech than in the letter. Whether in thus exceeding your excellency ſpeaks by your own authority, or a higher is not with us to determine.

However, if this recommendation which your excellency terms a requiſitation, be founded on " ſo much juſtice and humanity that it cannot be controverted" : If " the authority with which it is introduced ſhould proclude all diſputation about complying with it", we ſhould be glad to know what freedom we have in the caſe.

In anſwer to the queſtions which your exelency has propoſed with ſo much ſeeming emotion ; we beg leave to declare "that we will not ſuffer our ſelves to be in the leaſt influenced by party animoſities or domeſtic feuds, let them exiſt where they may : that if we can poſſibly prevent it, this fine country ſhall never be ruined by any perſon : that it ſhall be through no default of ours ſhould this people be deprived of the great and manifeſt advantages which the favour and indulgence of our moſt gracious ſovereign and his parliament are even now providing for them." On the contrary that it ſhall ever be our higheſt ambition, as it is our duty ſo to demean ourſelves in publick and in private life, as ſhall moſt clearly demoſtrate our loyalty and gratitude to the beſt of kings, and thereby recommend this people to further gracious marks of the royal clemency and favour.

With regard to the reſt of your excellency's ſpeech, we are ſorry we are conſtrained to obſerve, that the general air and ſtyle of it ſavours much more of an act of free grace and pardon, than of a parliamentary addreſs to the two houſes of aſſembly ; and we moſt ſincerely wiſh your excellency had been pleaſed to reſerve it (if needful) for a proclamation.

Still opening on his joyful View,
Make glad his Heart, complete the Bliſs,
That Man on Earth can know.

He, he's the only happy Man,
And Heaven and Earth around him ſmile ;
He, with Religions, endleſs Gain,
Takes the full Good this Life beſtows,
And bearing well his Share of Woes,
Eludes the Force of threatning Ill,
And diſappoints the Pain.
For Croſſes paſt he does not grieve,
Nor fears what Dangers may ariſe,
Not Death itſelf, for when he dies,
'Tis then he will begin to live.

New-London, July 4.

We hear that at a Meeting of the Board of Correſpondents in the Colony of Connecticut, at Lebanon Crank, the 16th of laſt Month, the Rev. Mr. SAMUEL KIRTLAND was Ordained a Miſſionary among the Indians ; and the following Gentlemen performed the Solemnity.

The Rev. Mr. Joſeph Fiſh of Stonington, made the introductory Prayer : the Rev. Mr. Nathaniel Elles of Stenington, delivered an excellent Sermon adapted to the Occaſion : the Rev. Mr. Solomon Williams of Lebanon, gave the Charge, and made the Prayer previous to it : the Rev. Mr. Eleazar Whelock made the Prayer after the Charge : and the Rev. Mr. Charles-Jeffery Smith, Miſſionary, gave the Right Hand of Fellowſhip.

Mr. Kirtland is one of the firſt Fruits of the Rev. Mr. Whelock's Indian Charity School, being the firſt Engliſh Miſſionary educated there : and in order to be qualified for his Miſſion, he hath already ſpent a Year and a Half among the Senecas, the remoteſt and much the largeſt Tribe of the Six Nations ; cheerfully undergoing almoſt unparallelled Scenes of Danger and Hardſhip ; having travelled a Thouſand Miles on Foot : whereby he has required ſuch Knowledge of the Indian Language, as to be able to preach to them without an Interpreter, which is a Circumſtance of the higheſt Importance ; and gives him a fine Opportunity of attaching the Indians to the Britiſh Intereſt, at the ſame Time that he publiſhes the glad Tidings of Salvation to thoſe periſhing Immortals who dwell in the Wilderneſs. Mr. Kirtland diſcovers ſuch diſintereſted Benevolence, ſuch uncommon Chriſtian Philanthropy, as renders him an Honour to the noble Inſtitution from which he originates and muſt greatly endear him to all the Friends of Zion : while it alſo ſhows the Propriety of the Plan Mr. Whelock is purſuing, and demonſtrates it to be as politick as chriſtian ; for were there Miſſionaries diſperſed among the various Tribes of Indians, in the Manner Mr. Kirtland has been, nothing could more effectually attach them to the Britiſh Empire!

This Week we hear Mr. Kirtland ſets off for his Miſſion, accompanied with an Indian, who is one of the Head Warriors among the Senecas, and a faſt Friend to the Engliſh, who waited upon Mr. Kirtland down, and attended the Solemnity of his Ordination, being much pleaſed therewith, and with the Reception he has had from the Engliſh ; the General Aſſembly of this Colony having made Mr. Kirtland and Him a generous Preſent, which was ſeaſonable and well placed : and the Warrior's Viſit may have a happy Tendency to eſtabliſh Harmony between the Engliſh and his Nation : the former being much more numerous and vaſtly ſtronger than he ever before ſuſpected ; and his coming at this Juncture is very Fortunate, and may Scatter the gathering Storm, occaſioned by the Engliſh killing ſeveral Inidans lately at Detroit and Niagara.

LONDON, May 9.

They write from Minorca, that their Breed of ſheep has, within theſe laſt Years, been greatly improved, and a conſiderable Trade in Wool is now carried on to Marſeilles, and other Sea Ports of France.

They adviſe from Frankfort on the Mayn, that on Eaſter Sunday a Fire broke out at Cechlam, (a Village in that Neighbourhood) which reduced two Churches and all the Houſes and Buildings in that Place to Aſhes.

They writh from Brandenburg, that an Officer belonging to the Bank at Berlin had been ſent Priſoner to the Fort of Spandau, but his Crime was not publickly known.

Thurſday and Yeſterday the great Queſtion between the Importers of foreign Gunpowder and the Gunwder-makers, was debated before the Court of King's Bench when it was determined that no Gunpowder could be lawfully imported into the Kingdom for Sale or Merchandize, and that no Licence could be granted for any ſuch Purpoſe ; and the Rule of Court made for the Gunpowder-makers, to ſhew Cauſe why Information ſhould not be granted againſt them for Miſdemeanors, in joining together to proſecute Importers of foreign Gunpowder, was diſmiſſed with Coſts.

Extract of a Letter from Graveſend, April 21.

" We have had a great Noiſe at this Place lately, on Account of ſome fine Rams and Ewes that had been attempted to be run on board a Ship bound to New-York, but which were prevented by the Vigilance of the Searchers. They were kept here at an Inn for more than a Week, to try if they could be got on board ſome other Ship for the ſame Place, but to no Purpoſe. At laſt they were taken away by a Perſon who ſaid he had Orders to drive them to New-Romney. It is ſtrongly believed they are intended to be run from thence. People who are Judges ſuppoſe them to be as fine Sheep for Wool as any in England; the Rams coſt twenty Guineas each, the Ewes three Guineas a piece.—As it may be of the utmoſt Conſequence to theſe Kingdoms, if they are ſuffered to be expotted, I have taken the Liberty of ſending you this Advice. Your publiſhing it may probably cauſe a good Look out to be kept in the other Ports, ſo as to prevent this prejudicial Scheme from taking Effect."

Liverpool March 14. We hear that on Thurſday Evening, the 6th Inſtant, a moſt ſhocking and barbarous Murder was committed by William Whittle, on the Bodies of his Wife and two ſmall Children, at Farrington, near Preſton. The Circumſtances related at preſent of the Affair, are, that the Deceaſed having lain in about nine Days, the Huſband came Home, near Ten at Night, and obſerving the Nurſe in the Houſe carding of Cotton, aſked her whether ſhe would not go Home (as ſhe did not lie in the Houſe) he being deſirous of going to-bed, to which ſhe replied in the Affirmative; as ſoon as the Nurſe was gone he went up Stairs to his Wife, and deſired to lie down by her which ſhe refuſed, fearing he had ſome evil Deſign, and immediately jumped out of Bed and ran down Stairs in her Shift into the Lane, where he purſued her, and intreated her to return back promiſing he would do her no Harm, to which ſhe ſoon agreed; but ſhe had no ſooner entered the Houſe than he knock'd her down with an Ax, cut off her Head and right Arm, and ripped up her Belly ſo that her Bowels lay on the Ground; he afterwards went up Stairs and cut off the Heads of the two Infants, and left them on the Bed, with the youngeſt Child's Heart by its Side. When he had perpetuated this horrid Deed, he immediately went to the Conſtable (who lived near) and informed him that ſome Perſon had been at his Houſe, and murdered his Wife and Children, to which the Conſtable replied, I doubt you are the Murderer. And aſked him how his Hands and Stockings came to be bloody: Struck with Remorſe at the Queſtion, he immediately confeſſed the Fact, and was committed to Lancaſter Goal on Saturday laſt, to take his Trial at the enſuing Aſſize.

ANNAPOLIS, (in Maryland) June 19.

Yeſterday arrived in Severn River, the Albion, Captain Spencer, in 7 Weeks from Briſtol, with upwards of a Hundred of his Majeſty's ſeven Year Paſſengers; who had the Small-Pox among them; but by the diſcrete Management of the City Magiſtrates, there is very little Danger of that Diſtemper ſpreading among us.

It was ſaid and rumour'd about, on Capt. Spencer's Arrival, that he had the Jail Diſtemper on board; but the Report proves groundleſs; for after the moſt diligent and ſtrict Enquiry, we cannot find that he has imported any Contagion whatever, except the Small-Pox and Roguery, as above related.

NEW-YORK, July 10.

We have authentic Intelligence, that on the 8th of May it was reſolved in the Houſe of Commons, without a Diviſion, that the Iſlands of Jamaica and Dominica are to be free Ports:——That the Duty upon the Importation of foreign Molaſſes was fixed at one Penny per Gallon, and it was ſuppoſed the Duty upon other Articles would be eſtabliſhed agreeable to the Plan propoſed by the Committee of Merchants, already publiſhed.——

It was reported that one or more of the preſent Adminiſtration, who were Friends to N. America, would reſign ſoon after the breaking up of Parliament;—of theſe, the Duke of Grafton was ſaid to be one.

The Harriot Packet, Capt. Robinſon, we hear, is to ſail on Wedneſday next.

We have many melancholly Accounts from different Parts of the Continent of the fatal Effects of Lightning.——Several People have loſt their Lives by it, ſome Houſes and Veſſels have been damaged, Barns burnt, and Cattle killed.

We hear from New-Jerſey, that Abundance of Damage has been done there by the great Rains which fell on Thurſday Night, Friday and Saturday laſt. It is ſaid the Cloud from whence the heavy Rain fell, did not extend further to the North than B und Brook.—But in other Parts, about Spotſwood, Second River, &c. the Floods there have been very great, and ſwept away all before them, not a Bridge nor Mill for many Miles was left ſtanding.——We have already heard of the Loſs of between twenty and thirty Mills.——

In Addition to what was publiſhed in our laſt of the Rioters at Claverack, it appears by Proof on Oath, that Hermanus Schuyler, Eſq; High Sheriff of the City and County of Albany, did on the 26th Day of June, now laſt paſt, proceed with the Poſſe of the ſaid County, towards a Houſe at Claverack in the County aforeſaid, then in Poſſeſſion of Robert Noble, Yeoman, in Order to apprehend and take the ſaid Robert and divers other riotous and diſorderly Perſons: That on the Approach of the Sheriff and the Poſſe, they found the ſaid Robert, with a Party of about 30 Men, all armed with Clubs within a Fence acroſs the Lane leading to, and a ſmall Diſtance from the Houſe of the ſaid Robert:—That the ſaid Robert refuſed, on the Demand of the Sheriff either to take down the Fence, or ſurrender himſelf;—and that on the Sheriff's removing one of the Rails, and getting over, he was immediately aſſaulted by ſome of the Party with Clubs;—that while defending himſelf, he heard the Report of a Small-Arm or Piſtol, but knew not on which Side it was fired;—that thereupon a firing by both Parties inſtantly enſued, and Cornelius Ten Broock, one of the Poſſe, and Tom Whitney, one of the Rioters, were both ſhot, and died on the Spot: And that the Rioters then took Shelter in the ſaid Noble's Houſe, and by firing from thence, wounded ſeven other Perſons of the Sheriff's Party.

BOSTON, July 10.

Extract of a Letter from London, dated May 16.

"ON the preſent happy Proſpect of Affairs, permit me with a Heart full of Joy moſt ſincerely to congratulate you; for in addition to the Repeal of the Stamp Act, the Ports of Kingſton and St. Lucea in the Iſland of Jamaica, and two Ports on the Iſland of Dominica are made Free Ports. The Duty on Molaſſes reduced to One Penny per Gallon; (and ſeveral other Hardſhips will be removed we hope this Seſſion) tho' theſe laſt have not paſſed the Royal Aſſent, they have paſſed the Commons, and may be fully expected.——I hope the Merchants trading to N. America will now be looked upon as the true Friends to that vaſt Country, as certain it is, that nothing in their Power has been wanting in ſupporting their juſt Rights; notwithſtanding—it is an evident Truth, that the Welfare of both this Kingdom and her Colonies depend on their intire Union; which muſt ſurely be the Caſe, as every Thing that can be wiſhed, is now, or will be, done for you, before the breaking up of the Parliament."

Extract of a Letter from London, dated May 7.

"Mr. Pitt is gone to Bath. He declared before he ſet off, he had done with buſineſs; and would upon no account come into office; but expreſſed himſelf very happy upon the reconciliation which had lately taken place between him and his relations. Thoſe people who were connected in with Mr. P-- and had formed ſanguine expectations of filling the firſt places in the A————n, if their leader had engaged, are now convinced they have nothing left to hope for, but to be contented in their preſent ſtations."

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London, to his Friend in Boſton, dated May 16.

"As ſoon as the Act relative to the new regulations on American Affairs is publiſhed, I ſhall take the Liberty of ſending it to you.——

An attempt has been actually made to aſſaſſinate that brave champion for liberty General Paoli ; but the aſſaſſin (a Genoeſe officer) was diſcovered and cut in pieces.

One Brandon, formerly a ſhipwright at [illegible], in N. England, has lately been engaged in the ſervice of general Paoli, who has appointed him a maſter-builder and ſurveyor of the dock-yards in the iſland of Corſica.

May 9. It is confidently reported that his grace the Duke of Grafton, has reſigned his place of ſecretary of State.

Under the article London, in yeſterday's Bruſſels Gazette, is the following paragraph : "The new deciſion of Parliament, on the important affair of the order of writs iſſued by ſecretaries of ſtate is a great advantage, particularly for Mr. Wilkes, who will not fail to avail himſelf of it, and to demand a revocation of the ſentence which proſcribed him ; and it is apparent that all the proceedings carried on againſt him will be declared null, as not being founded on the laws and conſtitutions of the kingdom."

Lately died, the Rev. Dr. John Leland, ſo well known and greatly eſteemed for his learned writings in defence of the chriſtian religion, aged 75.

May 15. On ſunday laſt the American preacher preached in the morning, and the Indian in the afternoon, at Mr. Brewer's meeting houſe at Stephney, to a very crowded congregation.

—Mr. P— is gone to Bath.—He declared before he ſet off that he had done with buſineſs, and would upon no account come into office ; but expreſſed himſelf very happy upon the reconciliation which has lately taken place between him and his relations.—Thoſe people who were connected with Mr. P—, who had formed ſanguine expectations of filling the firſt places in the ad——n, if their leader had engaged, are now convinced they have nothing left to hope for, but to be content in their preſent ſtations.

NAPLES, April 5.

The eruption of Veſuvius has not ceaſed ſince the 27th ult. The Lava at preſent extends itſelf to about two miles in length, being about thirty feet in its greateſt breadth, and nine at its utmoſt depth. It runs from the ſummit of the mountain, and maintains its courſe towards Portici. The volcano emits flames from time to time, and throws up burning ſtones, among which are ſome of an enormous ſize, which were launched forth more than 200 feet high. These exploſions are always accompanied with violent convulſions, and a noiſe reſembling that of cannon, but are not continual, having had ſeveral intermiſſions ſince the firſt commencement of this horrible ſpectacle.

From a late Magazine.

The true State of Matrimony in South Britain

IF you ſee a man or woman, with little or no occaſion, often finding fault and correcting one another in company you may be ſure they are man and wife.

If you ſee a gentleman and a lady in the ſame coach, in profound ſilence, the one looking out at one ſide, the other at the other ſide, never imagine they mean any harm to one another; they are already Honeſtly Married.

If you ſee a lady accidentally let fall a glove or a handkerchief, and a gentleman that is next to her, kindly telling her of it, that ſhe might take it up, they are Man and Wife.

If you ſee a lady preſenting a gentleman with ſomething ſideways, at arm's length, with her head turned another way, ſpeaking to him with a look and accent different from that ſhe uſes to others, it is to her Huſband.

If you ſee a man and woman walking in the fields, in a direct line, twenty yards diſtant from one another, the man ſtrides over a ſtile, and goes on without ceremony, you may ſwear they are Man and Wife, without fear of perjury.

If you ſee a lady whoſe beauty and carriage attract the eyes and engages the reſpect of all the company, except one certain gentleman, who ſpeaks to her in a rough accent, not at all affected with her charms, you may be ſure it is her huſband, who married her for love, and now ſlights her.

If you ſee a gentleman that is courteous, obliging and good natured to every body, except a certain female, who lives under the ſame roof with him, to whom he is unreaſonable croſs and ill natured, it is Wife.

If you ſee a male and female continually jarring, cackling and thwarting each other, yet under the kindeſt terms and appellations imaginable, as My Dear, &c. they are Man and Wife.

At a Meeting of the Preſident and Fellows of Yale-College, in New-Haven, the firſt Inſtant, the following Addreſs was preſented and read.

"Reverend Brethren,

SINCE I have had the Honor of preſiding over this College, I have had the Pleaſure to ſee it greatly increaſed in the Number of Students, Inſtructors, convenient Edifices, and in almoſt every Kind of uſeful Literature. But the State and Circumſtances of this College, have always been ſuch, as neceſſarily to involve me in more Care, Buſineſs and Labour, than has been uſual with other Preſidents; which I have gone through with the greateſt Freedom and Pleaſure almoſt twenty ſeven Years. And now, at length, finding myſelf ſomewhat tired and fatigued; and my State of Health not ſo firm as formerly, am very deſirous to enjoy the Sweets of Retirement and private Life. And being now in the ſixty-fourth Year of my Age, and entering upon, or approaching towards, the Decays of Nature; ſo that I ſhall not be able to go through ſuch inceſſant Labours, to ſo good Advantage, as I have heretofore; I think it beſt to reſign my Office as Preſident of this College; and do accordingly now reſign it; earneſtly praying that this College may yet flouriſh; eſpecially that the original religious Foundation of it may be preſerved pure, to the lateſt Generations.

THOMAS CLAP."

The Fellows did not accept of this Reſignation, but voted "that it was their earneſt Deſire that the Reverend Preſident would be pleaſed to continue in his Office as long as divine Providence would permit; at leaſt, till the next Commencement." [10th September next] to which laſt the Preſident conſented.

BOSTON, July 14.

Laſt Wedneſday morning died univerſally lamented, that great friend to LIBERTY, LEARNING, and to MANKIND, that faithful ſervant of GOD, and diſciple of Jeſus Chriſt, the Rev. JONATHAN MAYHEW, D. D. Æt. 46. He was matriculated at Cambridge, A. D. 1740; and his genius being truly original, he with great facility ſoon diſtinguiſhed himſelf in the various branches of polite and uſeful literature. Having finiſhed his accademical ſtudies, and a courſe of divinity, he was in the year 1747 called to, and accepted the paſtoral care of the weſt church in Boſton, in which to the inexpreſſible comfort and ſatisfaction of the people providence had committed to his charge, he continued till his laſt illneſs.

He was a great divine, an excellent preacher, and one of the greateſt polemical writers this or any other country has ſeen. He was a ſingular and rare inſtance of a ready, keen and piercing wit, united with a ſound judgment, deep underſtanding and profound erudition. His works have been publiſhed, read and admired both in Europe and America, and have already furniſhed out a monument for their author, much more durable than marble or braſs. Some of the wiſeſt and beſt men in Britain early ſought a literary correſpondence with the Doctor, which was kept up till his death. This he was very ſolicitous of turning as far as poſſible to the advantage of his country. Alma mater has often taſted of the bounties of his particular friends, among whom the name of HOLLIS ſhall be had in grateful remembrance ſo long as there is a citizen of the world who can ſtile himſelf her ſon and his brother.

By the death of Dr. MAYHEW, his diſconſolate widow has loſt an affectionate huſband, his tender infants will never know what they have loſt—his ſervants are deprived of a humane and indulgent maſter—the poor a charitable and conſtant friend—his church are bereaved of a worthy, able, virtuous and pious paſtor; this continent of a reſolute and ſtrong defender of its religious independency; and mankind of a judicious and ſtrenuous aſſertor of thoſe original, inherent and indefeazable rights, with which the GOD of nature hath inveſted us, and of that glorious Liberty wherewith Chriſt has made us free.

Ah Mayhew! art thou then forever gone?
No, I've oft ſeen the gently falling ſun
Leave the blue arch, and threaten endleſs night;
Yet riſe again, and bleſs a world with light.
Thus in thy works ſhalt thou revolving ſhine,
And prove the Hand that form'd them was divine.
'Till that great day, when night ſhall be no more,
And tyrants ceaſe to perſecute the poor:
When none ſhall dread the bigots ſcouring rod,
But ev'ry upright heart rejoice in GOD.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.

Extract of a Letter from London, May 10.

"On Monday it is expected a Motion will be made to bring in a bill for a Paper Currency, which, when printed, it is propoſed to be ſent to your reſpective governors, for the opinion of you aſſemblies, againſt next ſeſſion of Parliament."

By late Letters from Fort Pitt, we have the very agreeable Intelligence, that Col. Croghan laſt Month, held a Treaty there with the Shawaneſe, Delawares, &c. and happily renewed and confirmed the Chain of Friendſhip.

Since our laſt we have had very great Falls of Rain, by which we hear, great Quantities of Hay are deſtroyed; and that all the Bridges and Mill-Dams, on the Amboy Road, and all the Mill Dams on Reckleſs's Stream, and many others in different Parts are carried away.

Extract of a Letter from London, May 10.

"As for our affairs abroad, they are on a pretty good footing; for though it is natural to expect that our antient enemies, the French, will always endeavour to avail themſelves of our diviſions, when opportunity offers, they are by no means in a condition to break with us at preſent; great talents both civil and military, are ſcarce with them, and their public revenue is much embaraſſed. Add to this, that there is much internal diſturbance among them, and a ſpirit of Liberty burſting out in ſeveral of the provinces, to the great annoyance of the crown, as you may ſee by what little intelligence of this kind reaches you; but by far the greateſt part of it is ſuppreſſed by the authority of their government over the preſs. BOSTON, July 17.

We hear that Orders have been received to ſhip Home the ſtamped Paper and Parchment which have been depoſited in Caſtle-William, and that Capt. [illegible] is to take them on board the Fortune Sloop of War, which ſails the Beginning of next Week.

Yeſterday Morning died Mr. Thomas Lee, in the 94th Year of his Age, who in the early and active Part of his Life carried on a conſiderable Trade in this Town,—tho' he deſerves to be recorded, rather for the unblemiſhed Integrity of his Dealings, and the exact Punctuallity of his Payments, than for the Extent of his Trade or Length of his Life.

Extract of a Letter from Capt. Marſhall, of this Town, dated London, May 10, 1766.

"Yeſterday came two of Capt. Lindſey's People here, the ſecond Mate, and Thomas Banſon: eight Days after they ſailed from [illegible] in a Gale of Wind [illegible] Leak, and foundred; the Chief Mate and 5 of the People froze to Death the firſt Day; Capt. Lindſey and the other two having more Cloaths than the reſt, got in the Tops, which kept them from periſhing; after that they found one of the People jam'd up ſomewhere below, whom they made faſt, and lived upon, until they were taken up by Capt. Dean from South-Carolina, bound to Holland, and in getting Capt. Linſey off the Wreck, he was drowned; ſo there is but theſe two ſaved out of the Ship's Company, who are much froze, and gone to the Hoſpital."

NEW-YORK, July 17.

We hear, that between Kenderhood and Albany, there has lately been diſcovered, a moſt valuable ſpring of water iſſuing out of a rock, of the hot kind, the bathing with which, and drinking the ſame has already cured many diſorders, and that great numbers of people afflicted with different calamities reſort their daily.

Laſt Week one John Harlow, belonging to Captain Cuyler's Company of Grenadiers of the 46th Regiment, being convicted at a Court-Martial of a Crime for which he was to receive ſome Hundred Laſhes; when it was going to be executed, he ſtabbed himſelf in the Right Side, of which Wound he lingered a few Hours and died.

On Friday Night laſt four Officers of the Regulars, poſted here, ſallied from a Tavern where they had drank too freely, and near the College began to break the City Lamps—A Man who keeps a public Houſe there happen'd to be up and leaning over his Door when they broke a Lamp juſt before him; upon his aſking the Reaſon of it, and reproving them, they gave him abuſive Language, ruſhed into the Houſe, attacked him with their Swords, and while he was ſtruggling with them, they wounded him in the Arm, and it was with Difficulty he eſcaped with Life.—They then behaved in a very outrageous Manner, alarmed and terrified the Family and Lodgers, ſome of whom they pulled from their Beds: After this they proceeded down the Broad Way, attended by two armed Soldiers, breaking all the Lamps as they went, till they had deſtroyed 34, when they were met by four of the Watch, and a Fray enſued; ſeveral of the Watchmen were wounded, (one or two of them badly) and two of the Officers knocked down, but one only was taken and ſecured in the Watch-Houſe. The other three who eſcaped, having taken the Centinels from the General's Door, and about a Dozen Soldiers from the Fort, armed with Muſkets and fixed Bayonets, proceeded towards the City-Hall: In the Way they again met, attacked and wounded ſeveral of the Watch, and then went on to the City-Hall, where the Civil Watch is kept, and reſcued and releaſed the Priſoner. Next Day the Officer who had been in the Watch-Houſe being ſeen and known, was taken up, and another ſoon after, and brought before the Mayor and Aldermen then ſitting, where they gave Bail in a large Sum for their Appearance to anſwer at the Supreme Court.——The Penalty is Twenty Pounds for every Lamp wilfully broken.

The genteel behaviour of the [redacted] the Occaſion, gave general Satisfaction; [illegible] ing to ſcreen or countenance the Offenders, he appeared rather a Friend and Supporter of the Civil Authority.

SILAS DEANE,

THE Spring iſſues out from the Root of a large Maple Tree, which ſtands at the Bottom of a large Mountain, on the Margin of the Rivulet Whilemantick, facing the North-Weſt; the circumjacent Land being alſo Mountaneous. The Water hath been known as a common Spring many Years, both to the Engliſh and Indians, but was not medicinally reſorted to till about a Year ago.

The Water is very clear and exceeding cold: Some ſay it taſtes like Ink, others like Epſom Salt, but moſt think it taſtes like the Ruſt of Iron. It operates moſtly by Urine, and generally upon the firſt drinking makes Perſons feel ſomewhat ſick, and ſome few it vomits. Was the Spring under proper Regulations, and attended with ſome ſkilful Phyſician to give proper Directions about uſing the Water, it might be a public Bleſſing; but in its preſent Situation it helps one and hurts two, but that is owing to an Abuſe of the Water, which is moſt imprudently uſed by great Numbers who flock there by Hundreds in a Day, with all Diſorders, and ſome are injudicious enough to drink two Gallons a Day, and when they bathe to ſtay a long Time in the Water, which is prejudicial. In hectical and conſumptive Caſes, and contracted Limbs it has done ſome great Cures, of which the following Inſtance may ſafely be depended upon.

Thomas Symmons, Mariner, aged 34, had a Fever ſettled in his right Arm, which contracted his Fingers ſo that he could not ſeparate them: his Hand was ſtiff as a Bone, and ſo uſeleſs that he could not move a Straw, or take up a Feather. He could feel no Pulſe, and his Arm periſhed up to his Elbow. In this Condition he continued ſeventeen Months, being pronounced Incureable by ſome of the moſt eminent Phyſicians in New-York, Connecticut and Boſton; but drinking about three Points of this Water per Day, and frequently bathing his Arm in the Water, warmed, his Pulſe returned, his Fingures became flexible, and he ſo far recovered the Uſe and Strength of his Hand, that on the Ninth Day after his uſing the Water, he carried with his lame Hand a Skillet of Five Pounds Weight, 60 Rods; and on the 10th Day he wrote his Name in a fair good Hand.

Were proper Experiments made on this Water its Virtue might be ſoon known, and the particular Diſorders it will help, diſcovered, the publiſhing of which would be an extenſive Charity. But as it is at preſent managed its in great Danger of falling into Diſ-repute, and not doing that Good which it might, under proper Regulations, really do.

It is thought beſt to drink the Water moderately, and not exceed a Pint a Day at firſt, and that at different Times; and in bathing, never to ſtay in long, and to keep wrapt up warm afterwards to prevent taking Cold.

The Remarks and Obſervations of Phyſicians and other ingenious Gentlemen, upon this Spring will be chearfully communicated to the Public through the Channel of this Paper.

CONNECTICUT COURANT.
NUMBER 83.
MONDAY, JULY 28. 1766.

Dr Bidwell

PORTSMOUTH, (New-Hampſhire) July 11.

The following Petition was lately preſented to the General Aſſembly now ſitting here, viz.

THAT the laſt year, when the act of parliament for granting and applying certain ſtamp duties, &c. was paſſed, your petitioner being in London, was honoured with the appointment of diſtributing the ſtamped parchment, vellum and paper, for this province; and in order to execute the duty of his office, was under a neceſſity of returning to New-England much ſooner than he otherwiſe ſhould have done.—That he arrived here early in September laſt, when he found the whole continent in a ſtate of the utmoſt confuſion and diſorder, on account of the ſaid act of parliment.—That by reaſon of his appointment to that Office, he has been moſt ſhamefully and ſcandalouſly inſulted and abuſed; and from the repeated threats daily uttered againſt him, he has been kept in conſtant fear of his life and property.—That every means that envy and malice could deviſe, has been taken by ſome people in the province to render him odious and contemptible, and to make him the object of inveterate malice and hatred; inſomuch that until the account arrived of the repeal of ſaid act, he was afraid to engage in any buſineſs, or take any meaſures for the ſupport of himſelf and family. That by reaſon of the aforementioned abuſes, his character has been greatly injured, and his character greatly ſuffered.—That your petitioner, encouraged by the Right Hon. Mr. Secretary Conway's letter to the ſeveral Governors on this continent.—And from the fourth reſolve of the parliament of Great-Britain in their preſent ſeſſion, makes this application to your Excellency and Honors; and to pray that your Excellency and Honors would be pleaſed to take the premiſes under conſideration, and grant him a compenſation from the government for the injuries he has ſuffered, as aforementioned, and your petitioner will ever pray, &c.

GEORGE MESERVE.

Portſmouth, New-Hampſhire, June 22, 1766.

[A committee of the Council and Houſe of Repreſentatives having been appointed to hear the petitioner, and make ſtrict enquiry into the matters alledged by him, made report as follows, viz.]

THE committee have heard what Mr. Meſerve had to offer in ſupport of his Petition, which conſiſting only of general aſſertions, without any proof of particulars; and it appearing by his own confeſſion, that tho' often threatened, as he ſaid, he had not ſuffered any real damage from any open act of violence, either in perſon or ſubſtance; and that when inſurrections were ſuſpected at different times, guards were appointed to protect him, and to prevent any injury to him. It is the opinion of the committee that Mr. Meſerve's caſe does not come within the true intent and meaning of the recommendation of the honorable houſe of commons, and Mr. ſecretary Conway's letter, as we conceive the ſaid recommendation has reference not to thoſe who have been abuſed and threatned on account of their unpopular office, but to thoſe only who have ſuffered evident damage, either in perſon or ſubſtance, from ſome overt act of violence of the people, which Mr. Meſerve confeſſes was not his caſe: and it is our opinion, that conſidering the late dangerous times of calamity and licence, the government did what was in their power to prevent any violence; and that the happy ſucceſs of the meaſures for this end was very much owing to the general good diſpoſition of his majeſty's faithful ſubjects in this province.—And further, we think that if Mr. Meſerve had otherwiſe the cleareſt title to the reſpectable recommendation he aſſumes, and to which we deſire to pay the higheſt regard, yet he would have render'd himſelf unworthy that recommendation by the illiberal, uncivil and rude manner he has made return to the condeſcention of the general court, in appointing a ſpecial committee to hear him. Upon the whole, having carefully read and conſidered the reſolves of the honorable houſe of commons and Mr. ſecretary Conway's letter, we are of opinion, that Mr. Meſerve has not proved that he has ſuffered any thing within the purport and meaning of the ſaid reſolves; and from the tenor of his petition and his manner of ſupporting it, we beg leave to recommend the diſmiſſing it.

[Which report was accepted by both houſes, and the petition ordered to be diſmiſſed.]

Laſt Monday Afternoon we had a moſt violent Storm of Wind at N. W. attended with Thunder, Lightning and Hail; the Guſt was as ſevere as was almoſt ever known, blowing down ſeveral Barns, Trees and great Quantities of Corn and other Grain.—Alſo Mr. Hart's Rope Walks of this Town are blown down.

The ſame Day the Daughter of Mr. Graham of Londonderry, about eleven Years of Age, was killed by Lightning.

Laſt Tueſday Richard Greely of this Town, fell over the Side of a Veſſel at Exeter, and was drowned.

A Brigantine the ſame Day coming down this River, loaded with Lumber, and bound to the Weſt Indies, was caſt away on Longſtaff's Rocks.

QUEBEC, May 29.

On Friday towards evening arrived off Couder, little below the Traverſe, the London, Capt. Moore, from London. The wind was fair, but blew rather too hard for a canoe to venture off with ſafety, with a pilot from the iſland, eſpecially as the ſhip lay at a conſiderable diſtance, having bro't too cloſe under the ſhore of the oppoſite Cape. The ſhip therefore was obliged to continue at anchor, waiting for a pilot. She had on board paſſengers, Meſſrs. William Mackenzie, George Fulton, Stephen Abbot and Samuel Duncan merchants, and Mr. William Conyngham, attorney at law. Theſe gentlemen, impatient to get to Quebec, to their buſineſs and friends, with two ſeamen, left the ſhip, and took to the yawl, a ſtrong and large boat, about 6 o'clock: but the wind encreaſing, and the waves running very high, and Mr. Conyngham, who was at the helm, not keeping up the head of the boat to the waves, ſhe was ſeen at half an hour after 7 to broach to, and overſet, oppoſite the pariſh of Sainte Famille, about a mile above Cape Torment, and all that were in her periſhed. None of their bodies have been yet found, but a box of papers, with ſome other things, belonging to Mr. Conyngham, was taken up by an inhabitant on the north ſhore, and brought on Monday to the Governor's.——This is one of the moſt affecting calamities that has befallen us ſince the conqueſt of the province. The four merchants were men of excellent and amiable characters, have been here from the taking of the country, were univerſally known among the natives, and equally eſteemed and beloved, and therefore are equally regretted by them and his Majeſty's old ſubjects. Mr. Conyngham, tho' he had reſided here but about a year, had gained many friends, was looked upon as an able and diligent man in his profeſſion, had important affairs of ſeveral principal perſons here in his hands, who muſt be great ſufferers by his untimely death, and leaves beſides a poor helpleſs orphan, of about 8 or 9 years old, at Hogſden ſchool, a boy of promiſing expectations, deprived now of both his parents, his mother having died here about 7 or 8 months paſt. As Mr. Conyngham had carried letters to England from many perſons here, it was expected that he had returns to them in this box of papers, but it ſeems none were found there but one for his Excellency, and another for Mrs. Harriſon, of this place, from a relation at London.

NEWPORT, July 14.

We hear the Lords of the Treaſury have tranſmitted Orders for the Stamped Papers, which were ſent for the Uſe of this Government, to be returned Home.

PARIS, April 15.

We hear that madam Ogilvie, who lately eſcaped from priſon in Edinburg, for the murder of her huſband, has been lately ſeen in this capital.

The Queen's indiſpoſition we are informed is every day gaining ground, and 'tis thought her majeſty cannot long ſurvive the loſs of a ſon and a father whom ſhe loved with the moſt unparallelled affection.

A report is this moment whiſpered, that a Jeſuite was juſt detected in an attempt to poiſon ———, but that to avoid a ſeverer fate, he had ſtabbed himſelf mortally the inſtant he was diſcovered.

LONDO, April 29.

The governor of Rome, has given expreſs orders, that no perſon ſhould preſume to give the title of King to the Chevaliar Charles, or ſhew him any other reſpects than thoſe of a private gentleman.—But he inſiſts on thoſe due to a Monarch.—The ſuperiors of ſeveral coleges and convents have received him with the ſame kind of ceremony uſed towards the Pope and other crowned heads.—This procedure has greatly exaſperated his Holineſs, who has exiled thoſe ſuperiors, and it is hinted by ſome that that Gentleman and his adherents will be deſired to change air.

Proviſions and the neceſſaries of life have been ſo dear for ſome time paſt, that the poor are reduced to great diſtreſs.

The ſtating of a ſingle queſtion, has put an end to diſputing on a certain point, in moſt parts of the town, which is the following one——What makes the diſtinction between Freemen and Slaves, but that the former give what is needful for common ſupport, and the latter have nothing but what can be taken away from them without their conſent or againſt their own will.

May 16. By an exact computation, lately made by a Gentleman, well verſed in our American trade, it appears that the profit accruing to Great-Britain from the trade of the Britiſh Colonies, ſince the concluſion of the late [illegible], have been upwards of 2,000,000l. annually.

It is ſaid, that a third Secretary's Office is ſoon to be eſtabliſhed, the department of which will be for the management of all affairs relating to the Plantations.

It is ſaid, that a propoſal has been made to obtain a pardon for Mr. Wilkes, with a view of his pleading it, the firſt day of next Term.

A remarkable RECEIPT, lately given by a Captain of a Veſſel trading to Ireland.

"Received of Mr. James Benſon, on board the ſhip St. James, whereof I am Commander, one large and one ſmall caſe, containing a Statue, and an Inſcription for the ſame, of the Right Hon. William Pitt, Eſq; which I promiſe to deliver (the danger of the ſeas and accidents excepted) unto Meſſrs Lane, Benſon, and Vaughans, freight free, as I eſteem the honour of carrying the Statue of ſo great a man, and ſo real a friend to the liberties, manufactures, and commerce of Great-Britain, Ireland, and her Colonies, together with the ſatisfaction that I feel in having this opportunity of contributing my mite to promote the laudable and patriotic ſpirit of the worthy Corporation and Merchants of the city of Cork, infinitely greater than any pecuniary reward I could recieve on this occaſion! having ſigned two recipts of the ſame tenor and date. PAUL SURMAN."

An experiment in electricity was repeated before a number of gentlemen, on a woman belonging to St. Andrews workhouſe, above the bars, who had for above ſix weeks loſt her ſpeech by convulſion fits; when after applying the electrical ſtrokes to ſeveral parts of her body, and at length to her mouth, ſhe ſoon recovered her ſpeech, the convulſion fits having firſt left her. Mr. Franklin of Philadelphia, was preſent at this opperation, and expreſſed his aſtoniſhment.

They write from Poland, that it was expected that a fortunate turn would ſoon take place there in favour of the proteſtants.

Letters from Warſaw ſay, that the prince Poniatowſki, brother to this Poliſh majeſty, will certainly be included in the firſt promotion of cardinals. Acording to theſe letters, there are two circumſtances which do not a little ſupprize the Poles; the one is, that the Count Branicki, great general of the crown, ſo long delays to come and pay homage to the King; the other, that his majeſty has not yet made choice of a princeſs for a partner in his throne.

It is thought Lord Egmont will ſucceed his grace the duke of Grafton, as ſecretary of ſtate, who is ſaid to have reſigned this week.

Oxford, May, 7. There is now living in a village in this county, a moſt extraordinary clergyman, who hath ſo inured himſelf to a ſedentary way of life, that for three months paſt he has been riveted to his elbow chair: In this ſituation he hath conſtantly ſlept, and ſtill continues to ſleep, except on Sunday, when it is remarked he always wakes, goes to church, performs the duty of his function, eats a hearty dinner, drinks moderately, ſmoakes his pipe, and when Monday returns, falls into his uſual lethargy until the next Sunday. Upon this computation he only lives about fifty-two days in the year, and is perhaps the only man upon the face of the earth, who enjoys an intermited exiſtance.

May 7. We hear, that a Meeting appointed at York-Houſe by Command of his Royal Highneſs the Duke, on Wedneſday laſt, a Scheme for the Preſervation, Maintainance and Education of the Infants and Orphans of Soldiers, was read and approved of to the Charity: His Majeſty has declared himſelf Patron; and that Orders will be ſpeedily given for the Publication thereof. WILLIAMSBOURG, June 16.

We hear from Richmond County, that on the 22d of laſt Month, near Tappahanock River, there happened the moſt violent Storm that has been known in the Memory of Man. Many Houſes and Trees were blown down, and Numbers of the Cattle periſhed, by being blown off the Banks into the River. His funeral was yeſterday attended by a great number of the inhabitants of the town.

Extract of a letter from Bridgetown, in Barbados, May 31:

"The diſtreſs of the inhabitants of this Place, by the late fire is not to be deſcribed. We have loſt near 500 of our beſt houſes, in the principal parts of the town, and almoſt all that they contained, the fire being the moſt furious I ever ſaw or heard of. I am told that at one and the ſame time, there were upwards of two hundred houſes all in flames in different places, ſo that it ſeemed impoſſible to ſtop its rage. I have loſt houſes, the rents of which amounted to above four hundred pounds a year; beſides two ſtores, full of merchandize, and a ſhop of ironmongery, to a very conſiderable value; and moſt of our trading people are ruined by it."

From the London Chronicle, of April 26, 1766.

The GENTLE SHEPHERD.

A PARODY of the Second Paſtoral of Mr. POPE.

A Gentle Shepherd (that's his proper Name)
Retir'd to Stow, far diſtant from the Thame;
Where dancing fiſhes in the baſon play'd,
And crowded columns form'd a marble Shade:
There, while he mourn'd, by ſtreams that never flow,
The ſtatues round a dumb compaſſion ſhow;
The worthies liſten'd in each ſculptur'd hall;
My Lord, conſenting, ſat and heard it all.
Ye ſtubborn York, ye fierce New-England crew,
Free from Exciſe, but not from Cuſtoms too,
To you I mourn, nor to the deaf I ſing,
Your woods ſhall anſwer, and your cities ring.
Quebec and Georgia, my Stamp-duties pay;
Why are you prouder, and more hard than they?
The gay Creoles with my new tax agree,
They parch'd by heat, and I inflam'd by thee
The ſultry Syrius burns their ſugar-canes,
While in thy heart a wholſome winter reigns.
Where ſtray ye, members, in what lane or grove,
While to enforce the act I hopeleſs move?
In thoſe fair rooms where royal G—— reſides,
Or where the Cockpit's ample hall divides,
As in the gilded ſconce I view my face,
No riſing bluſhes ſtain the faithful glaſs;
But ſince my figure pleaſes there no more,
I ſhun the levee which I ſought before.
Once I was ſkill'd in ev'ry fund that went
From India Bonds to humble Cent. per Cent.
Ah, Gentle Shepherd, what avails thy ſkill
To frame a tax for D—w—ll to repeal?
Let ——— proud, preſide at C——l B——d,
Or wily H—l—d ſtill deſire to hoard;
But in the Treaſury let me ſpend my days,
And load the ſinking fund a thouſand ways.
That wand was mine, which B——, with parting breath,
Into my hands reſigning, did bequeath:
He ſaid, G—— G——v——le, take this rod, the ſame
That to the cider counties taught by name;
But R—k——ham may ſway the wand for me,
Since I'm deſpiſed and diſgrac'd by thee.
Oh! were I made by ſome transforming pow'r
The ſmooth-tongued P— that ſpeaks in yonder bow'r
Then might my voice the liſt'ning ears employ,
And I the penſion he receives enjoy.
And yet my ſpeeches pleas'd the Tory throng,
Rough R-gby grinn'd, and N—t—n prais'd my ſong;
The Cits, while Bow Church bells forget to ring,
In milk-white wigs, their kind addreſſes bring,
But their addreſſes are preferr'd in vain,
On P—t their thanks are now beſtow'd again;
For him the richeſt boxes are deſign'd
And in one parchment all their freedoms join'd,
Accept their wreaths, allow your partners none,
Claim all their praiſe, as due to you alone.
See what ſtrange things in the repeal appear;
Diſcordant Earls have form'd an union here:
In oppoſition B—— and T—p—e join,
And wicked Twitcher with good ———.
Come, matchleſs Jemmy! bleſs the cool retreats,
When Peers, from voting quit their ſcarlet ſeates;
When weary Commons leave the ſultry town,
And, drown'd with debts, to finger rents go down.
This harmleſs grove no lurking bailiff hides,
But in my breaſt the ſerpent rage abides.
Oh, how I long with you to paſs my days,
Drink our own healths, and ſound each other's praiſe;
Your praiſe the preſs ſhall bear thro' all the town,
And evening-poſts from London waft it down.
But would you write, and rival Anti's ſtrain,
The wond'ring mob his lies would read again;
The moving carman hear the pow'rful call,
And pots of beer hang liſt'ning in their fall.
But ſee the ladies ſhun the noon-tide air,
And hungry lords to dinner faſt repair:
At table all to places fix'd reſort——
Ye Gods, and is there then no place at court?
But ſoon the ſun with milder rays deſcends
To weſtern climes, where my ſtamp duty ends:
On my poor effigy their furies prey,
By night they burn me, as they hang by day.

By Mr. John Coddington, who came Paſſenger in Capt. We hear from Port Royal, that the Shock was ſo very violent there, that the Inhabitants were up the whole Night; and under the utmoſt Dread of a like Cataſtrophe to that which beſel their unhappy Town on the ſeventh of June, 1692, when two Thirds of it were ſwallowed up, and a great Number of Lives loſt. We have much the ſame Accounts from Spaniſh-Town, and Liguinea.

To the PRINTER.

SIR,

I AM ſorry to find my Countrymen ſo much in Extremes; lately they would have nothing from England, and ſeemed reſolved to be contented with what was produced or manufactured among ourſelves, rather than run in Debt; but all of a ſudden, without any viſible Alteration in our Circumſtances, we talk in quite another Language, and to teſtify our Gratitude, nothing but European Finery muſt be wore; miſtaken Zeal!——Where is the Favour to England, to be Bankrupts to them, and ruin ourſelves? Becauſe the Parliament has been very gracious to us, ſhould we ſuffer our own Poor to ſtarve!—The People of England are too generous and humane to deſire or expect it.—Our Duty, our Humanity, our Regard for Britain, all ſtrongly argue that we ſhould continue to promote Induſtry and Frugality; this will employ our Poor, enable them to promote the Conſumption of European Goods, and increaſe the Number of the People.—I beg Leave to add the following Extract of a Letter from a Merchant in London, communicated to me by his Correſpondent here.

"I have often ſeen and lamented the Folly of the Colonies in drawing from hence, Earthern-Ware, Mops, Brooms, Bruſhes, Shovels, &c. and other Articles of more Conſequence. What amazing Abſurdity, that New-York, one of the moſt fertile Countries on Earth, which abounds in Flax, and may infinitely more ſo, that ſuch a Country ſhould have Recourſe to the moſt interiorParts of Sileſia and Auſtria for Linens! This is not only aſtoniſhing, but I hope in Ten Year, will appear incredible.

"I am ſorry that the Inhabitants of a Country ſo bleſſed by God, with every Kind of natural Plenty, ſhould ſeek the Conveniencies of Life from every Country which is its inferior; but their Eyes begin to open, and why may not I hope to ſee the Importation of American Linen here, and a Prohibition laid on German Linen?

"I hope you will find yourſelf miſtaken, that if the Acts you complain of be repealed, your Zeal will abate, and gradually drop many of the Articles you promiſe to promote: Surely you ought to make the beſt Cloth you are capable of for your own uſe, even Ireland does that; for whilſt you continue to have every Thing from Europe, you reap your Harveſt, to pay for Trifles. In ſhort, your Imports from Europe ſo infinitely ſurpaſs your Productions, that you muſt ever remain poor; perſevere therefore in your laudable Reſolution of making your own Goods, and to which you are ſo greatly encouraged by the Demand.

"May your Succeſs be equal in Agriculture, for that is the Baſis on which every other Improvement depends."

The intereſting Matters contained in the above Extract, highly deſerve our ſerious Conſideration. I am, yours, &c.

N. B. Several Articles of our Manufacture are expoſed to Sale in the Market, particularly Linen of different Fineneſs, which, no doubt, will be ſold more reaſonably as the Manufacture is more encouraged. This Market continues every firſt and third Wedneſday of the Month, to the great and increaſing Benefit of the induſtrious Poor.

From the LONDON CHRONICLE, of April 29.

To the PRINTER.

AS the Spaniards were ever a proud people, ſo to their pride may be attributed abundance of their ancient good qualities, and among the reſt a high ſenſe of honour for which they were for many ages remarkable. But it has been their misfortune to have a long ſucceſſion of Kings, of the Auſtrian and French lines, who have been little diſtinguiſhed by the wiſdom of their councils, the virtue of their government, or a true regard for their ſubjects. Hence, with the gradual loſs of the Spaniſh liberties, have the Spaniſh virtues become debaſed; and that pride which once ſerved to make them enthuſiaſts in honour, now only operates in attaching them to inſignificant cuſtoms, and the moſt puerile vanities.

No people can, or ever will, like to be ruled by Foreigners, and leaſt of all a proud and vain people; foreign Miniſters to Spaniſh Kings could not, therefore, fail of being greatly odious; and of courſe it muſt always have been ill policy to employ them. This then was one natural ſource of their late diſcontent; another is ſaid to have lain in oppreſſive abuſes in the ſupply of proviſions; a third, (which both the French & Spaniſh courts will be ſhy of mentioning) lies in a rooted national hatred of France, with what is naturally conſequent, an utter abhorrence of her faſhions, practices and cuſtoms; nay it even extends to religious faith and diſcipline; for the Spaniards ſay openly, that the French are worſe Chriſtians than the Heretics of other countries. They therefore abhor a French prevalence in their councils, deteſt the family compact, and become more attached to the dreſs of their own country in oppoſition to that of France.

Thus, while the Spaniards were ſorely galled with internal oppreſſions, they are alſo ſtrongly irritated by foreign connections and influence; which evils operating together were the ſources of their diſcontents; & we ought not to wonder at it in them, becauſe they have produced the ſame effects among ourſelves. The immediate cauſe of the inſurrection was indeed an indiſcreet act of violence in a ſoldier on palace duty, in pretending to execute a ſilly law, to which mode of doing it the Spaniards as yet are not quite ſlaves enough to ſubmit; and indeed bad and improper executors of laws they muſt ever be thought in all countries.

The French dreſs has long been the court dreſs in Spain, as well as in all other countries, and the Spaniſh undreſs of the long cloak, (made warm for winter and cool for ſummer) the white night cap and flapped hat, had its conveniences for that climate, and is therefore uſed by the Grandee almoſt as much as by the Peaſant. The reſignation of a convenience, therefore, as well as of a national cuſtom, of which all people are tenacious, in favour of the faſhion of a people whom they hate, will ever be unwillingly complied with in any country, eſpecially if compulſatory methods are uſed for that purpoſe. But abſolute Princes, or rather abſolute Miniſters, are apt to forget, that it is wiſer & ſafer to influence than controul; and therefore from being intoxicated with their own power, they awaken in the people a ſenſe of natural right, and ſo unhinge their own authority, by puſhing it to an extreme. But where wanton violence is uſed, the inherent right of Nature will be apt to animate even the brute creation to ſome kind of reſiſtance, and urge rational Beings to the free canvaſſing of rights.

From what has come to our knowledge of the Madrid inſurrection, theſe elucidations may be thought not impertinent by the intelligent; and it is not impoſſible, that the event may produce farther effects, both in Spain & its neighbourhood, on either ſide of that kingdom, where ſtrange ſtretches of deſpotiſm have been made, and are now making. The fire of enthuſiaſm, when once it is kindled, may produce a ſtrong and fixed ſpirit of liberty, which has of late begun to ariſe in ſome countries, and may, by wanton oppreſſions, be made to ariſe in all; for wild reſentment may begin what reaſon and reſolute perſeverance, will in the end effectually complete, of which there is like to be a ſtriking inſtance in Corſica; and every honeſt man, who knows the bleſſings of legal liberty will, on a principle of philanthropy, wiſh them to become enjoyed by the whole of the human race.

LIBERTAS.

BOSTON, July 21.

LAST Wedneſday being the Anniverſary Commencement at Cambridge, the following Gentlemen were admitted to their reſpective Degrees, viz.

BATCHELORS OF ARTS.

William Pepperrell, Nathaniel Saltonſtall, William Pickman, Rufus Chandler, Henry Gibbs, John Hunt, John Watſon, Epes Serjeant, Joſeph Dowſe, Jonathan-Loring Auſtin, David Cobb, Oliver Whipple, Ebenezer Potter, Nicholas Pike, Thomas Barnard, Samuel Morrill, Thomas Prentice, Samuel Curtis, Samuel Savage, Charles Jarvis, Benjamin Goodhue, Ebenezer Barnard, Samuel Barnard, Benjamin Hammett, Elias Whitney, John Hill, Peter Green, Jacob Aſhton, John Stevens, Ebenezer Manning, Jacob Biglow, William Hall, Nathaniel Lovejoy, Joſhua Fiſher, Samuel Hale, Elijah Putnam, Joſhua Bowman, Nathaniel Bond, John Prentice, John Barrows.

THe academic Exhibitions at the anniverſary Commencement at Cambridge laſt Wedneday were truly claſſical and ſpirited; and tho' an oſtentatious Parade is ever diſguſting in Relations of this Kind, yet where ſo much can be ſaid conſiſtant with the ſevereſt Truth, it is preſumed a bare Account of that ſcientific Feſtivity, will not be wholly unentertaining.

In the Morning, the Exerciſes of the Day were introduced by an elegant ſalutary Oration in Latin; after this followed the Latin Syllogiſtic Diſputations, upon ſeveral curious and learned Queſtions, affording a pleaſurable Repaſt, to thoſe whom either Genious or Profeſſion had conducted to the abſtruſer Parts of Philoſophy and Science. When theſe Diſquiſitions were finiſhed, the whole Audience were entertained with a moſt agreable Engliſh Dialogue between two of the commencing Bachellors, on the Pleaſure of Scholaſtic Life, and the Advantages reſulting from liberal Education. In this was beautifully interwove a complimentary Epiſode in honor of thoſe, who have ſo largely contributed towards repairing the late Loſs by Fire, and enriched the new and elegantly conſtructed Edifice with a moſt magnificent Library, and a very curious and coſtly Philoſophical Aparatus: The Exerciſes of the Morning were then cloſed with a lively and pathetic Engliſh Oration on the Subject of religious and civil LIBERTY.

In the afternoon, the Maſter Claſs began as uſual, with exhibiting a Specimen of their Acquirements and Learning, in a judicious and well managed Latin Diſputation, on ſeveral Points of Controverſy in the Schools. To this ſucceeded, a truly animated Engliſh Oration on PATRIOTISM; conceived in the noble Spirit of LIBERTY, and ſpoken with great Propriety of Voice and Action. The ſeveral Degrees being then conferred on the reſpective Candidates, the whole was concluded with a Latin Valedictory Oration, taking an affectionate Leave of their late Fellow Students and Labourers in the Field of Science, and pathetically expreſſive of Gratitude and Thanks to the Parent of their Literary Attainments.

The young Gentlemen who were immediately concerned in the Duties of the Day, performed them with ſo much Propriety and Grace, and ſuch apparent Ability, as to reflect Honor on themſelves, the Society in which they were educated, and their Country in general.

The Number, Figure, and Brilliancy of the Attendants of both Sexes on this Occaſion, the Splendor and Magnificence of the Entertainment, together with the Serenity and Moderateneſs of the Weather conſpired to render the whole Scene univerſally joyous and ſatisfactory.

Laſt Week, as ſome Boys were ſporting in the Water, a Lad who was on Shore took a Stone and jirking it among them, ſtruck a Boy about 8 Years old, which cut a Vein, whereby he bled in ſuch a Manner that he died ſoon after.——

QUEBEC, June 19

Laſt week Mr. Manvide, merchant, was attacked about two o'clock in the morning, on the high road between St. Valier and this city, by two men ſtript to their ſhirts, who ſeiz'd him by the arms from behind his calaſh, ſtab'd him in the arm with a knife, then tied him with the chaiſe reins which they cut for that purpoſe, and rob'd him of 5800 livres in caſh, afterwards they led him tied in the bottom of his calaſh into a wood, where he remained in this diſmal ſituation, untill ſome people paſſing that way early in the ſame day, attracted by his cries came to his relief.

And be it further enacted, THAT in Caſes where a ſtrong Suſpicion of Adulteration ariſes in either Pot-Aſh or Pearl-Aſh, if any credible Perſon ſhall make Complaint to a Juſtice of the Peace in the County where ſuch Pot-Aſh or Pearl-Aſh ſhall be offered to Sale, it ſhall be in the Power of ſuch Juſtice, firſt taking ſufficient Security of the Perſon ſo complaining to reſpond and pay the Perſon or Perſons whoſe Pot-Aſh or Pearl-Aſh ſhall be ſo ſuſpected and complained of, all his, or their reaſonable Charge and Expences, and the Damage that ſhall ariſe by Reaſon of ſaid Complaint, or for not proſecuting the ſame (provided the Pot-Aſh or Pearl-Aſh ſuppoſed to be adulterated appear upon Trial to be good) and he is hereby enjoined to make out a Warrant directed to the Sheriff, his under Sheriff or Deputy, or either of the Conſtables of the Town, requiring them, or either of them to ſeize and take into their Cuſtody ſo much of the Contents of any and every Caſk of Pot-Aſh or Pearl-Aſh (not exceeping the Quantity of Two Pounds) out of each ſuſpected Caſk as may be neceſſary in order to the Conviction of any Offender againſt this Act.

And be it further enacted, THAT the Maſter or Owner of any Ship or Veſſel who ſhall receive on board the ſame, any Pot-Aſh or Pearl-Aſh, the Caſk containing the ſame not being branded as aforeſaid, ſhall forfeit and pay the Sum of Five Pounds for each Caſk, excepting ſuch Pot-Aſh or Pearl-Aſh, as is now in the Hands of any Perſon who has already purchaſed the ſame; in which Caſe the Shipper ſhall bona Fide make Oath before any one of His Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace, who is empowered hereby to adminiſter ſaid Oath that the ſaid Pot-Aſh or Pearl-Aſh was purchaſed before the Twentieth Day of July, One Thouſand, Seven Hundred and Sixty-Six.

And be it further enacted, THAT all Fines and Forfeitures ariſing by the Breach of this Act, ſhall be applied, one Moiety thereof to and for the Uſe of the Government, and the other Moiety to and for the Uſe of the Proſecutor to be recovered by Action, Bill, Plaint or Information, in any of his Majeſty's Courts of Record.

THIS Act to be in Force from the Twentieth Day of July next, until the Twentieth Day of July, Anno Domini, One Thouſand Seven Hundred and Sixty-Seven.

Williamſburg, (in Virginia,) June 20.

On Thurſday laſt Week, the following melancholly Affair happened in Cheſterfield County: A Negro Girl carried Mrs Epp's Son to the River Side with a Pretence to divert him, but when ſhe got there, ſhe ſtruck him ſeveral Times on the Head with a Stave, untill he was ſtunn'd and then flung him into the Water; but recovering a little, he made ſhift to get out; upon which, with the Help of a Negro Boy, ſhe again beat him untill he appeared to be dead and then made off; but a Boat coming by immediately after, diſcover'd him, and carried him home, where he had not been long before he recovered ſo far as to give the above Account, but died ſoon after.

Charleſtown, (in South-Carolina) June 20.

A Sachem of the Tuſkaroras is arrived at Brunſwick, in North-Carolina, with Credentials from the Hon. Sir William Johnſon, Bar. Superintendant of the Norhern Diſtrict of America. His Errand is to ſolicit his Countrymen, ſettled in North-Carolina, to go and join the Reſt of their Tribe incorporated with the Six Nations.

The Cherokee Indians, who expreſſed great Satisfaction on having the Boundary fixed between them and this Province, and being very impatient to have the Limits between them and the Provinces of N. Carolina and Virginia likewiſe aſcertained, applied, on that Head, to the Honourable John Stuart, Eſq; Superintendant of the Southern Diſtrict of North-America, on whoſe Repreſentations, we are informed, the Goverment of North-Carolina appears very willing and deſirous to have a Line run, to divide the Settlements of that Province from the Country reſerved by his Majeſty for the Hunting Ground of thoſe Indians.

June 27. From Penſacola in Weſt-Florida we learn, that the Differences which, for ſome Years paſt ſubſiſted between the neighbouring Indian Nations of Creeks and Choctaws, have at laſt brought on an open Rupture; and Hoſtilities in their Manner are carried on with much Animoſity. And, at the ſame Time, they both court Britiſh Friendſhip.

From all the Weſt India Iſlands there is Advice, that the Crops of Sugar this Year will far exceed any that have been made for many paſt.

His great Abilities and ſteady Conduct his Zeal for the Honour of his Royal Maſter, & tender Concern for promoting the Welfare and Happineſs of thoſe he governed, during 13 Years he preſided over us, has juſtly claimed our moſt earneſt Supplications for his proſperous Voyage, a Re-eſtabliſhment of his Health, and a ſafe and ſpeedy Return to this Government.

LEEDES, March 25.

By a letter from Whitehaven, dated the 20th inſtant, we have received the following account of a barbarous murder committed on the firſt inſtant, on the bodies of the wife and two children of one John M'Lain, an honeſt and induſtrious farmer in that neighbourhood; who having ſaved the ſum of 200l. applied to an innkeeper there to lend him about another 100l. in order to purchaſe a ſmall eſtate that was upon ſale. The innkeeper told him he could not let him have the money that night; but if he would ſtay at his houſe till next morning, he would then ſerve him. The innocent farmer, little ſuſpecting his hoſt's intentions, was eaſily perſuaded to ſtay, and accordingly went to bed, with a ſoldier that was quartered in the houſe; but about midnight, jumping out of bed again in a fright, he told his bedfellow he could not reſt, for he was ſure all was not right at home, and perſuaded the ſoldier to get up, take his gun, and accompany him thither. They ſet forward accordingly, and on their arrival at the farmer's houſe, perceiving a great light, and finding the door lock'd, they forced it open, and ſeeing two men, concluded they were come with ſome villianous intent; the ſoldier therefore, without aſking queſtions, complimented one with the contents of his muſket which he had loaded on the way, and the other with the point of his bayonet, which laid them both dead at his feet; but it is no leſs difficult to expreſs the ſurprize of the ſoldier, than the agony of the unhappy farmer, when, upon going up ſtairs, they found the very landlord of the houſe they came from, who (with the aforementioned aſſiſtants who proved to be his own ſons) had barbarouſly murdered the farmer's wife and two children, and was buſy in ranſacking the houſe. He was however immediately ſecured, and is committed to Appleby goal.

Liverpool, April 11. On Saturday laſt William Whittle, Weaver, condemned at Lancaſter Aſſizes, for the Murder of his Wife and two Children, was executed on the gallows at Lancaſter Moore, and on Monday his Body was hung on a Gibbet in Irons at the Four Lane Ends. He confeſſed the Fact; but appeared to be a ſtupid, bigoted, ignorant Fellow, and a Roman Catholic: Juſt before the Cart drove away from under him, he called out, wiſhing that his Prieſt would come, for then he had ſomething more to ſay, if the Parſon would go his Way.—At his Condemnation, the Judge aſked him how he could commit ſuch a Crime; he ſaid the Prieſt told him he ſhou'd be damn'd for marrying a Heretick; the Judge then enquired why he had murdered two innocent Children? He ſaid their Mother had carried them to Church, ſo they would have been damned if he had not killed them, but that now they were in Purgatory, and wou'd go to Heaven.

By the Arrivals of Capt. Boone, at Philadelphia, and Capt Fellows at Boſton, both from Europe, there is the following Intelligence, viz.

CIVITA VECHIA, April 30. According to ſeveral letters from Corſica, the priſoners of war have been exchanged, but Paoli and his ſenate are ſo much exaſperated not only againſt the Genoeſe but the French alſo, who have lately cauſed two men of Paoli's party, a taylor and a ſhoe maker, to be hanged at Ajaccio, for having ſaid in preſence of the French garriſon, Long live our country! Long live Paoli its defender; that peace ſeems to be at an end, and perhaps by this time the French and Paolis are come to open hoſtilities.

MADRID, in Spain, May 13. We hear of nothing but tumults from every ſide. Libels are diſperſed and fixed up caly. The populace have carried their inſolence ſo far as to attempt to ſet fire to the caſtle of the Duke of Ancos, ſituated near Alicant, and did not even heſitate to excite commotions at the palace of St. Ildefonſo. The two officers returned from Carthagena, where they have been to eſcort the Marquis de Squilace, have found every where on the road, the people all in a ferment, crying out, 'Long live the King, let Squilace periſh.'

According to private letters from Madrid, divers perſons of the firſt rank were ſtrongly ſuſpected by the court of ſecretly ſpiriting up the late inſurrections for the removal of the Marquis of Squilace; but that the perplexed ſituation of the times did not permit any public enquiries to be made into the affair.

LONDON, May 22.

They write from Paris that very great diſſatisfaction prevails there among the people, on account of the execution of General Lally, who was univerſally eſteemed to be a brave ſoldier, and an honeſt man, and is ſuppoſed to have fallen a victim to court intrigues, to ſcreen the faults of others.

We hear that the Right Hon. the Earl of Northumberland will ſucceed his Grace the Duke of Richmond as ambaſſador to the court of France.

Monday ſailed from Plymouth the Pearl frigate, Capt. Drummond, for Newfoundland; and the Prince Edward, with troops on board for Gibraltar.

May 25. They write from Leghorn, that in a late aſſembly of the Corſicans in Paoli's intereſt, it was unanimouſly agreed to muſter every third male from 16 years upwards, in caſe neceſſity ſhould require their being ſummoned into the field for the ſervice of their country.

It is ſaid Admiral Palliſer has received orders to direct the ſeveral captains under his command to ſuffer no French veſſels on any account to fiſh on the coaſt of the Iſle of Cape Breton.

It is now confidently reported, that Mr. Wilkes has got a pardon and [illegible], and that he will plead his pardon on Saturday next, the 30th current being the firſt day of Term.

London, May 25, 29 and 30.

Saturday diſpatches were received from his Excellency Sir Henry Moore, Governor of New-York, and it is reported that univerſal joy prevailed in the colonies where the news of the repeal of the ſtamp act had reached.

Friday in the afternoon his Grace the Duke of Richmond took poſſeſſion of his officce of Secretary of State for the ſouthern department; the Right Hon. Mr. Conway being to act in the northern.

Orders are given for the northern department of the Secretary of State's office to be transferred to the ſouthern in Cleveland row, and the ſouthern to the northern at Whitehall.

It is ſaid both houſes of parliament will be prorogued on Tueſday next.

His Majeſty has been pleaſed to grant unto Dr. John Pringle, phyſician unto her Majeſty, and his heirs male, the dignity of a baronet of Great Britain.

General Lally who ſuffered lately, was born in France, his father was an Iriſh gentleman, commander of the Iriſh brigades in the French ſervice, and was very much reſpected by that court. The unfortunate Count had a captain's commiſſion made out for him as ſoon as he was born.

From the London Magazine, for April 1766.

On the Sandimanian Kiſs.

THE new mode of religious profeſſion commonly called Sandimanian, is obſerved to lay ſtreſs upon the holy kiſs, with which they ſalute one another. I ſhould charitably ſuppoſe, they look on it as an apoſtolical injunction, becauſe St. Paul bids the Corinthians ſo to greet one another, 2 ep. xiii. 12. And in the ſame manner he exhorts the Rom. xvi. 16. It appears to me very aſtoniſhing that the figurative, or metaphorical injunction ſhould have ſo literal and groſs an interpretation; for it is obvious, to any common reader, that St. Paul could have no ſuch meaning; foraſmuch as in both thoſe places, he immediately adds, a ſalutation or greeting, which could not poſſibly be external, carnal, or bodily. This will be evident, ſince in one place it is ſaid, the Churches of Chriſt ſalute, or kiſs you, in the other, it is, all the ſaints ſalute, greet, or kiſs you. Now let me aſk, whether any man, in his ſenſes, would imagine that all the churches at and about Corinth, literally or in a bodily ſenſe, ſalute or kiſs either the faces, the hands, the ſhoulders, the feet, or the beards, of the chriſtians at Rome? Or whether all the ſaints at Phillippi did literally, or corporally ſalute or kiſs the chriſtians at Corinth? But if the ſalutation of the churches, and of all the ſaints which St. Paul preſents to thoſe chriſtians to whom he writes, muſt neceſſarily be underſtood in a ſpiritual and moral ſenſe, and as intending their pious affections, and ardent wiſhes of their proſperity and peace; then, the holy kiſs, with which he exhorts them to ſalute one another, muſt alſo have the ſame ſignification. And it can only be an arbitrary interpretation, that will make the one ſalutation corporal, and the other mental and ſpiritual.

Among the eaſterns, the civil ſalutation did differ conſiderably according to the difference of rank of the perſons they did ſalute; the common ſalutation, Sandys ſays, is laying the right hand on the boſom, and a little declining their bodies; but when they ſalute a perſon of great rank, they bow almoſt to the ground, and kiſs the hem of his garment, and SHAW mentions their kiſſing the feet and knees as well as the garments of ſuperiors. But then kiſſing the feet was not only an expreſſion of reverence, but of ſubjection: Nay, falling down at the feet of a perſon was what ſignified the kiſſing his feet. And Dr. POCOCK ſays they were wont to kiſs what comes from the hand of a ſuperiour.

Thoſe of equal age and dignity, kiſs the hand, the head, or the ſhoulder of one another. The women kiſſed the beards of their huſbands, and the children the beards of their fathers.

The kiſſing of the cheek or lips, does not ſeem to have been a civil ſalutation among the eaſterns. They had very different Modes of greeting one another. Men to kiſs the cheeks or lips of men, does not appear to have been an eaſtern cuſtom, either between equals, or thoſe of different age and rank. It is not in the leaſt probable, that the firſt chriſtians ſhould introduce a cuſtom; that would expoſe them to ſuſpicions among their infidel neighbours.—The promiſcuous corporal kiſs, if rendered a religious obſervance, would have greatly injured the chriſtian profeſſion, and occaſioned much infamy and reproach. There is an indelicy that could not have the countenance of this apoſtle, who is conſtantly urging the chriſtians to abſtain from all the appearances of evil.

It is therefore an interpretation of the holy kiſs, that has nothing at all in the text nor any thing in the eaſtern civil cuſtoms of ſaluting one another, to countenance.—We then may, with the utmoſt certainty, conclude, that the ſalutation uſed in the Sandimanian church are not apoſtolical.——St. Paul, by the holy kiſs, manifeſtly recommends brotherly love, the warmeſt affection and good will towards one another; as he knew, that this was the end of the commandment, and was what would give them the high ſocial reliſhes of their religious profeſſion. By this criterion of brotherly love, they were to be diſtinguiſhed from the reſt of mankind; and known by all men that they were the diſciples of that Jeſus, who came to diſſeminate among the children of men, the ſpirit of benevolence towards one another. Since the Sandimanian ſect have ſo manifeſtly and offenſively miſtaken the apoſtolic ſenſe of the holy kiſs, it will ſuggeſt a ſeaſonable caution to all chriſtians, how they introduce any kind of ritual into the worſhip of religious ſocieties. The hay and the ſtubble will not bear the fire of a ſtrict examination: and they who are fond of ſuch combuſtibles, muſt ſuffer loſs.——

From the above account of the holy kiſs, theſe very ſingular profeſſors may, perhaps, find ſome reaſon for renouncing a cuſtom which cannot be very honorable to their profeſſion if it be not effectual, in convincing them of their error; I deſire that any of their moſt learned elders would ſhew the public, how the Philipians could poſſibly comply with that apoſtolic injunction, Philip. iv. 21. "Salute every Saint in Chriſt Jeſus." What? Were they at Phillippi, to give the ſalutation or corporal kiſs to all perſons every where who had embraced chriſtianity? How did the brethren which were with him ſalute or kiſs them? Or how did all the ſaints give them the holy kiſs? and eſpecially they of Cæſar's houſhold—but the abſurdity is glaring!

A LOVER OF DECENCY.

LONDON, April 29.

Friday a humourous fellow agreed with a Jew in Covent Garden for ſome ſtockings at 1s per leg, which the Jew underſtood he was to pay for at the rate of 2s per pair, and accordingly gave him three pair of ſtockings, which the man put on one leg, and gave the Jew 1s. who, enraged at his outwitting him had the man ſecured and carried before a magiſtrate, who, on hearing the merits of the cauſe, determined the affair in favour of the Chriſtian.

April. 22. Laſt week as the convicts were paſſing along to the water ſide, in order to be ſhipped for America, with fiſes playing before them, Thro' the Wood Laddie, &c. a Gentleman looking obſerved to another, that they were very joyous, which a droll fellow, a convict, replied, "Joyous! aye ſo we are, maſter; and if you will but go along with us, you will be quite tranſported."

Sunday morning early a young woman, running, rather too faſt to St. Pancras church (attended by her bride maids) in order to be firſt married (which is always done gratis on Eaſter Sunday) ſhe had the misfortune to fall down and break her leg, in a field near that place.

Newcaſtle, March 31. The following droll affair happened here lately; one Row, a cinder burner, at Heworth Shore went to ſee an old female acquaintance, at Birtley, who had been lately married to one Hog, an old man there, and having drank pretty freely, Row agreed to buy Hog's wife, who willingly ſold her for ſix ſhillings and ſixpence, and on parting, the old man generouſly gave him back one ſhilling, to buy her a pair of ſhoes; that night the new couple went to bed in preſence of the old man, and on Saturday morning, Row brought her home, when he made a ſupper for his friends; but the old man came for his wiſe on Tueſday, and ſhe being threatned by the pariſh officers, was obliged to return, though much againſt her will. She had a boy about four years old which Row took with her.

April. 19. We hear that a boy, bred up in the Foundling Hoſpital, has lately been left the ſum of 8000l. and a girl 1000l. by their ſuppoſed father, of which the directors are appointed the truſtees.

Glouceſter, March 17. We have an account of a very extraordinary inſtance of divine vengeance that happened about a week ago at Chalford, in this county. One Richard Parſons, a young man of that place, was playing at cards, and he moſt profanely wiſhed his fleſh might rot, and his eyes never ſhut, if he did not win the next game. When he was going to bed he obſerved a black ſpot upon his leg, from which a mortification began immediately to ſpread all over his body, ſo that he died in a day or two, his fleſh being quite rotten; nor could his eyes be ſhut, notwithſtanding all the efforts of his friends to cloſe them. The truth of this fact is atteſted by many neighbours who were with him.

QUEBEC, July 3.

On the 28th ult. at 11 o'Clock at Night, arrived in this City from London, on board the Commerce, Capt. Johnſon, Mr. BRIAND, Biſhop of Quebec, for the Roman Catholicks, who manifeſted on this Occaſion all their Affection for what concerns their Religion. On the Day following at 5 o'Clock in the Morning, the Bells of all their Churches announced his Arrival to the whole City, which gave ſuch general Satisfaction to the Canadians, that many of them were ſeen to ſhed Tears thro' Joy. It was really affecting to ſee them congratulate each other wherever they met, and to here them inceſſantly ſay one to another, "It is then true that we have a Biſhop; God hath taken pity of us:" And to ſee them afterwards run in Crouds to the Pariſh Church to ſee this Biſhop, whom they look upon as the Support of their Religion, and as a Pledge of the King's paternal Goodneſs to them. In Fact, at the ſame Time that they publickly bleſs the Lord for having given them a Biſhop, they loudly proclaim their Gratitude to his Majeſty for having attended to their Requeſts: It is likely that this Favour confer'd on the Canadians by the King, will effectually attach them to the Britiſh Government. It is alſo very pleaſing to them, to have received on this Occaſion the Congratulation of ſeveral Perſons of Note, of our Nation, who indeed ſeem to partake of their Joy. And we doubt not, but that the Canadians, who appear to be very ſuſceptible of Gratitude, will by thoſe Means become more firmly united to us.

The great Fame of the Mineral Spring in Stafford, has diſpoſed a Number of Perſons to ſearch for ſome of the ſame Qualities in other Parts of this Colony; and after many Experiments one Spring has been diſcovered at Mansfield, by Doct. Ebenezer Gray, of Windham, which is ſaid to be ſuperior in ſtrength to that of Stafford.

This has all the characteriſtic ſigns of the waters of the ſame nature in England, viz. thoſe of Tunbridge, Scarborough, Hampſtead and Iſlington, viz. the gentle aſtringent ſtyptic taſte it impreſſeth upon the tongue, and the great quantity of a yellow kind of oker or ruſt of iron, which is brought out with the water and gathers about the ſpring; the Stones covered with an iron ruſt; the water tho' ever ſo pure and clear, taken out of the ſpring and put into a clean vial, drops, by ſtanding, a ſmall fine yellow ſediment; by trying it with the ſame things which are uſed in England to put into the water to diſcover the nature and quality, the water immediately changes to a dark, purple, inky colour: The black mud round the ſpring has a very ſtrong ſulphurous ſmell.—A perſon rubbed a doller with ſome of the mud, and wrapped it up covered well with the ſame, and being carried in his Pocket a few hours, it changed it to a fine bright gold colour: He took ſome of the ruſt that was about the ſpring and dried it and rubbed it to powder, among which he could diſcern ſome ſmall, bright, ſhining particles like the new filings of iron; he tried it with a loadſtone, which ſtrongly attracted the ſhining particles at ſome diſtance, but had no effect upon the ruſt; and from the foregoing ſigns and experiments it is moſt evident that the minerals through which the Mansfield and Safford waters paſs and are impregnated, are iron and ſulpher, and he thinks the Mansfield ſpring abounds more with the ſulphur than the Stafford ſpring.

Theſe mineral waters, if properly and prudently uſed, are uſeful and ſerviceable in the following caſes viz. To ſuch as by long illneſs or any other cauſe have their blood rendered poor, thin, cold and watery, they give wonderful aſſiſtance. They ſtrengthen the ſtomach, and procure a good appetite and digeſtion; and in a relaxed tone of the ſtomach from wind or any other cauſe, greatly aſtringe the fibres, and bring them to a due tenſity; they are very cleanſing and diluting, and moſt effectually bracing to the ſolids of the body; they are proper in obſtructions in the kidneys, eſpecially from gravel, unleſs there is a ſtone formed too big to paſs; as alſo in conſtruction of the liver, ſpleen and uterus, in lowneſs of ſpirits, hypocondria diſorders, oppreſſion and vapours, and jaundice: they are proper in rickets & rupture in children; they are proper to be uſed inwardly and outwardly in all pained, contracted, relaxed, withered and uſeleſs limbs; alſo in all ſcorbutic ulcers, ſores, eruptions, ſalt rheum, ſchrophulas, or king's evil, ſcorbutic and rumatic pains, and have done much good in a cancerous caſe, as the perſon was informed.

Theſe waters are very improper for young people of a full habit of body, their appetite and diſgeſtion good, of a ſanguine complexion, with a ſett of ſtrong tenſe fibres and nerves, for theſe waters are not be uſed wantonly and in ſport; whoever takes a courſe of them will commonly be the better or the worſe for them; alſo for ſuch as have an old chronicle cough, their lungs weak; for ſuch are hectical, aſtmatical, or phitiſical; alſo for ſuch as have inflammatory fevers, ſuch as quinſies, pleuriſies, or any inward inflammatory diſorders.

The moſt proper ſeaſons of the year to uſe theſe waters are the months of June, July and Auguſt; but they may be drank with proper care in May and September, or at any ſeaſon of the year. They may be drank two or three times a day, begining moderately at firſt, and increaſing the doſe as you find you can bear it; a jill for a doſe is full enough to begin with, and a pint for a doſe is the largeſt doſe, and they ſhall never exceed that.

It ſhould always be taken at a ſutiable diſtance from meals. It is not neceſſary for perſons to recede very much from their ordinary way of living, but uſe great temperence in eating or drinking, and as little ſalten meat as poſſible and drink but little ſpirituous liquor; avoid all immoderate exerciſe ſoon after drinking the water, and after bathing; and it is beſt in general to avoid it during the whole courſe.

In bathing ſores, ulcers, pained or relaxed limbs, &c. and in general in all bathings whatſoever, the water ſhould be about blood warm. All that uſe theſe waters for any diſorders whatſoever, if there is any thing of a fullneſs of blood or humours, eſpecially young people, ſhould bleed and purge gently before they begin; and in ſome caſes where there is an habitual inclination to vomit, a gentle vomit is proper.

The Mansfield waters when drank, have generally ſome ſenſible operation, either by vomiting, purging, urine or ſweat.

CHARLOTTE-TOWN, June 25.

We hear that Admiral Pye, in his Majeſty's Ship Lark, arrived at Antigua, on Sunday the 8th Inſt. and that he intends very ſoon to make a Tour round the Leeward and Southern Caribee Iſlands.

On Thurſday Evening paſſed by here, four French Ships of War, viz. two of the Line and two Frigates, ſuppoſed to be the ſame which were equipped at Breſt in March laſt, and deſtined to carry Proviſions and warlike Stores to America. On board one of theſe Ships, it is ſaid, is Prince Maubazon, who is going to St. Domingo, in order to take Poſſeſſion of that Part of the Iſland now inhabited by the Spaniards, and which his Catholic Majeſty has ceded to the Crown of France in lieu of the Province of Louiſiana: So that now the whole Continent of America is under the Subjection of the Engliſh, Dutch, Spaniards and Portugueſe.

A Gentleman lately arrived from Martinico has informed us of the following Changes in the French Miniſtry, viz. the Duke de Praſlin, Miniſter of the Marine; the Duke de Choiſeuil, Miniſter at War and Foreign Affairs; and Mr. Dubuq du Ferret, Deputy of the Colony of Martinico.

Capt. Fellows informs us that a principal Merchant in Glaſgow informed him juſt before he ſailed, that the Bill had paſſed the Houſe of Commons, reducing the Duty on Molaſſes to One Penny per Gallon; and that there was no Doubt but it would paſs the Houſe of Lords.

We hear from Andover, that on Thankſgiving-Day laſt, ſome imprudent Perſons firing Cannon, in ramming down the Charge before one of the Guns was well ſpunged, the Cartridge took fire, and drove the Rammer againſt one of them, tore his Arm, and ripp'd open his Belly, and hurt another that ſtood nigh; both are likely to do well.

ALL the articles of News lately publiſhed, that ſeem improbable, are not mere inventions. Some of them I can aſſure you, on the faith of a traveller, are ſerious truths. And here give me leave to inſtance the various numberleſs accounts the news-writers have given us (with ſo much honeſt zeal for the welfare of poor Old-England!) of the eſtabliſhing manufactures in the colonies to the prejudice of thoſe of this kingdom. It is objected by ſuperficial readers, who yet pretend to ſome knowledge of thoſe countries, that ſuch eſtabliſhments are not only improbable but impoſſible; for that their ſheep have but little wool, not in the whole ſufficient for a pair of ſtockings a year to each inhabitant; and that from the univerſal dearneſs of labour among them, the working of iron and other materials, except in ſome few coarſe inſtances, is impracticable to any advantage. Dear Sir, do not let us ſuffer ourſelves to be amuſed with ſuch groundleſs objections. The very tails of the American ſheep are ſo laden with wool, that each has a cart or waggon on four little wheels to ſupport and keep it from trailing on the ground. Would they caulk their their ſhips? would they fill their beds? would they even litter their horſes with wool, if it was not both plenty and cheap? And what ſignifies dearneſs of labour, where an Engliſh ſhilling paſſes for five-and-twenty? Their engaging three hundred ſilk throwſters here in one week for New-York was treated as a fable, becauſe, forſooth, they have "no ſilk to throw." Thoſe who made this objection perhaps did not know, that at the ſame time the agents from the king of Spain were at Quebec contracting for 1000 pieces of cannon to be made there for the fortifications of Mexico, with 25,000 axes for their induſtrious logwood-cutters; and at New-York engaging an annual ſupply of warm floor carpets for their Weſt-India houſes; other agents from the Emperor of China were at Boſton in New-England treating about the exchange of raw ſilk for wool, to be carried on in Chineſe Jonks through the ſtraits of Magellan. And yet all this is certainly true as the account, ſaid to be from Quebec, in the papers of laſt week, that the inhabitants of Canada are making preparations for a cod and whale fiſhery this ſummer in the Upper Lakes. Ignorant people may object that the Upper Lakes are freſh, and that whale and cod are ſalt water fiſh: But then let them know, Sir, that cod, like other fiſh, when attacked by their enemies, fly into any water they think they can be ſafeſt; that whales, when they have a mind to eat cod, purſue them wherever they fly; and that the grand leap of the whale in that chace up the fall Niagara is eſteemed by all who have ſeen it, as one of the fineſt ſpectacles in nature!—Really, Sir, the world is grown too incredulous: Pendulum-like, it is ever ſwiming from one extreme to another. Formerly every thing printed was believed, becauſe it was in print: Now things ſeem to be diſbelieved for juſt the very ſame reaſon. Wiſe men wonder at the preſent growth of infidelity! They ſhould have conſider'd, when they taught people to doubt the authority of news-papers, and the truth of predictions in Almanacks, that the next ſtep might be a diſbelief in the well-vouch'd accounts of ghoſts and witches, and doubts even of the truth of the A——n Creed.

THE NUMBER 86.
CONNECTICUT COURANT.
MONDAY, AUGUST 18, 1766.

Mr. GREEN,

I HAVE lately made a Viſit to the famous Mineral Spring at Stafford: And though my Reſidence there was ſo ſhort, that I cannot, from my own Knowledge and Experience make much of a Judgment of the medicinal Nature and Qualities of the Water; yet upon Converſation with ſome Phyſicians and Others there, who have had better Opportunity to be acquainted with it, I am well ſatisfied, that it has many of the ſame excellent Properties and Virtues, which are found in ſome of the beſt medicinal Waters in Europe, as they are deſcribed in Authors; and has really effected many great and ſurpriſing Cures. And therefore I apprehend it juſtly merits the Attention and Care of the Public. It alſo appears, that the indiſcreet Uſe and Application of theſe Waters, by many injudicious Perſons, for every Kind of Diſtempers, and that in very improper Ways and Manners, has been very detrimental to ſome; and may upon the whole, produce as many hurtful as ſalutary Effects, at leaſt may be the Occaſion of much Miſpence of Time and Money.

For the good of the Public, I would therefore take Leave to propoſe, that the Phyſicians, and perhaps ſome other Gentlemen of Note, living within 10 or 20 Miles of the Spring, would meet together there, and conſult upon it, and nominate and deſire ſome ſkillful Phyſician to attend at the Spring, the greateſt Part of the Time, to make proper Experiments on the Nature and Virtues of the Water, to obſerve its Effect and Operations on various Diſeaſes and Diſtempers, and to give ſuitable Advice and Direction in the Uſe and Application of it, to all who may come to be healed. From the Converſation I have had with many Perſons, at the Spring, I am well ſatisfied that they would generally rejoice in ſuch an Opportunity of Advice and Direction, and would readily contribute a ſufficient Reward. For, as the Caſe now is, the unſkillful Multitude there, have no Opportunity of taking any Direction, but of thoſe who are as unexperienced as themſelves; & from an eager Deſire of being ſuddenly cured of every Diſtemper, many of them over act, by going too often into the cold Bath, and drinking too great a Quantity of cold Water, which in ſome Caſes is very hurtful, eſpecially in Hectics, Conſumptions and other inward Weakneſſes. In many external Applications it is requiſite that the Water ſhould be a little warmed; and that in a covered Veſſel, or be ſpeedily uſed; or elſe the ſubtile Mineral, and ſulphureous Spirit, in which the principal Virtue of this Water conſiſts, will be evaporated. And indeed, if it is not warmed, but only kept two Hours in a tight Bottle, and carried two Miles, it ſeems to looſe a great Part of its Spirit and Taſte. And am fully ſatisfied, from ſeveral Experiments that to attempt to carry it to any greater Diſtance will be to very little Purpoſe.

THOMAS CLAP.

MOUNT Veſuvius broke out on Thurſday laſt, with great violence, on the oppoſite ſide to its firſt eruption; and a new lava took its courſe towards the Torre del Anunciate, between Portici and Pompeia. This lava is really tremendous, the river of the fire being now at leaſt four miles in length, and in ſome places near two miles in breadth. It has already deſtroyed three vineyards, and is continuing its courſe ſlowly, over cultivated lands, towards the village of Anunciate. The lava, at its ſource, and for the firſt mile, is as rapid as the river Severn at the paſſage near Briſtol; but by extending itſelf, cools and loſes its velocity, ſo as not to advance more than thirty feet in an hour.

Naples, April 22. The eruption of Veſuvius is more violent than ever. Several Engliſhmen are come hither poſt from Rome, to ſee this dreadful ſpectacle, and to make their obſervations thereon.

Madrid, April 22. 'Tis aſſured that Orders have been diſpatched to the Governor of Mexico, to publiſh a general Pardon to all ſuch as were engaged in the late Revolt, on Condition that they immediately ſubmit in Peace, and pay all lawful Obedience to the King.

PARIS, May 15. The Marquis de Buſſy being jealous of preſerving the ſituation which he gained by his conduct in the Eaſt-Indies, has thought proper to publiſh in anſwer to ſome inſinuations thrown out againſt him in the defence made by the Count de Lally; by which he has intirely exculpated himſelf from the facts which that officer laid to his charge.

It is ſaid, that Lord George Lenox is coming home from Paris having been ſent for and that the management of affairs in the abſence of an ambaſſador, will devolve on Mr. Hume.

It is now ſaid that the marriage portion of a great perſonage will be one hundred thouſand pounds ſterling, on account of her being eſpouſed to a crowned head.

May 25. The day after the execution of General Lally, the Parliament of Paris proceeded to decide on the charges brought againſt Mr. Fertard de Ganeville, late Quarter-Maſter to the army in the Indies; Mr. Chapony, Capt. in Lally's regiment, and Mr. de Pouly, ſome time provoſt, in the ſame army. when the two firſt were ſentenced to be reprimanded on their knees, and pay a fine of 100 livres each to the king; the laſt received a ſharp rebuke from behind the bar, with an injunction to pay the ſum of three livres in bread to the priſoners of the Conciergere. John Migny, otherwiſe Choiſy, was condemned to be broke alive upon the wheel, in the place of the Creva, for the murder of a perſon named Pajol, and robbing him of his effects.

The Admiral Stevens packet, lately arrived from the Eaſt-Indies, has brought over a little horſe and mare for his Royal Highneſs the Prince of Wales; the former of which is no more than 30 inches high. The little mare is the greater curioſity, as ſhe is now big with foal. Both the mare and horſe are at preſent in a park belonging to Lady Clive near Blackheath.

Some accounts, received in Holland from the Eaſt-Indies, inform, that Summor, with all his artillery, and great part of his treaſure, had fallen into the hands of Lord Clive, tho' by what means is not mentioned.

They write from Gibralter that freſh diſputes have lately broke out between the Dutch and Algerines on account of the former having been detected in fraudulently diſpoſing of their Mediterranean paſſes to foreigners.

A number of Indians, men, women and children, to the amount of 500 at leaſt, were ſeen by the company of the Dolphin man of war from the Eaſt Indies; they were at leaſt eight feet and an half high, rode on horſe not more than 14 or 15 hands high, and were clad in the ſkins of a beaſt unknown to this country. Theſe people were ſeen on the Eaſt ſide of the Terra Patagonia, in South America, at the entrance of the Streights of Magellan: and till our ſeeing them, the accounts given by voyagers were not believed by us. They were converſed with by ſigns, and given many preſents by the Hon. Commodore who commanded on this voyage.

It is ſaid the French have begun their old practice at Newfoundland of runing down ſuch Engliſh veſſels in the night as are too weak to reſiſt their violence. Some ſloops belonging to Marblehead and Boſton have been lately ſerved in this manner.

Letters from Rome adviſe, that the Chevalier Charles Edward was preparing to leave that city; but it was not known where he propoſed to fix his retreat.

Monday they had violent gales at Harwich, three ſhips were loſt, and every perſon periſhed.

A report prevails that the Earl of Marchmont will go Ambaſſador to the Court of France, in the room of the Duke of Richmond.

It is ſaid his Majeſty's ſhips Dolphin and Tamar have performed a voyage round the globe in a much ſhorter time than it was done before. They have undergone great hardſhips in this voyage; yet it is remarkable that the Dolphin buried but ſix men.—The Tamar loſt her rudder and put into Antigua.

They write from Herefordſhire, Worceſterſhire, Glouceſterſhire, and other adjacent counties, that there is a proſpect of the greateſt crops of all kinds of grain that have been known for many years paſt.

The Rt. Hon. the Earl of Breadalbane has taken the oaths to qualify him for the place of Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal in Scotland, in the room of Lord Frederick Campbell, who reſigned.

They write from Paris, that a parallel is drawn there between the fate of Admiral Byng and Lieut. General Lally; and in all converſation where thoſe two unhappy perſons are mentioned, the uſual obſervation is, that the reſpective Miniſters can tell beſt why they ſuffered.

It is confidently ſaid the late famous and unfortunate Count Lally died worth near two millions ſterl. which has been ſeiſed for the uſe of the government.

Ferrais, May 10. The letters received at Venice from the Levant, continue to aſſure, that Prince Heraclius made himſelf maſter of the City of Trebiſonde, on the 9th of March laſt, after a ſiege of 7 days; that his army, which increaſed daily, and was abundantly provided with every thing, had ſet itſelf afterwards in march for Amaſia; that it was actually arrived in the province of that name, which borders to the north on the black ſea; that the Porte having either been able to foreſee or prevent this blow, had ſent the moſt ſpeedy orders to Smyrna, to diſpatch from thence without delay, ſome galleys with troops and ammunition for ſecuring the places on the coaſt of Natolia, whether a numerous body of Janiſſaries had been marched, together with a large train of heavy artillery; that on the other side, the Beglier-Bey, of Natolia, had alſo ſet himſelf in march with a conſiderable corps for Nicomedia, in order to endeavour, as much as poſſible, to ſhut up the Georgians, or at leaſt to check their progreſs.

Paris, May 9. On the Deciſion of the Affair of Canada Bills, the Sieur Cadet had been commanded to the Reſtitution of a conſiderable Sum, of which he paid a very great Part, but found Means to perſuade the Government, that he was unable to diſcharge the reſt. However, he has juſt been arreſted at Belleville, near Paris, whither he had retired, and conducted to the Baſtile, on a Diſcovery that he had very lately negotiated Effects for a large Sum of Money.

Limerick, May 12. Upon ſtrict enquiry made by the Miniſters and Churchwardens of the United Pariſhes of St. John & St. Laurance, the Number of Proteſtants 1941, Papiſts 5159.

Dublin, May 19. On Thurſday laſt a Trial by Niſi Prius came on the Court of King's Bench, between Mr Thomas Bennet, Merchant, Plantiff, and the Captain of a Cheſter Trader, Defendant, for a Bale of Merchandize being waſhed over the Defendant's Ship in a Storm, in the Beginning of October 1763. The Jury brought in a Verdict for the Plantiff, with Coſts. The Deciſion of this Affair is highly intereſting to Merchants and Captains of Ships.

LONDON, May 5.

According to our laſt Advices from Spain, the Spirit of Mutiny circulates yet in the ſeveral Towns of that Kingdom; and it was believed that this was the Reaſon that the Queen's Regiment which was to embark at Cadiz for America, had received counter-orders.

May 13. Yeſterday a gentleman came to the New-Goal in the Borough, and paid the fines and fees of twelve priſoners, ſome of whom had been confined for three years. The ſame gentleman alſo diſcharged upwards of forty poor debtors from the King's Bench and Marſhalſea priſons.

They write from Madrid, that the embarkation of the Spaniſh troops for Mexico has been ſet aſide, at leaſt for the preſent, on account of the diſturbances which have broke out in the different parts of the kingdom.

May 20. The Hague Gazette of the 14th inſt. informs us, that it was thought the parliament of England would not break up till advices ſhould be received from America, of the effects which the repeal of the ſtamp act had wrought in that part of the world.

A letter from Calais, dated May 14, ſays, "Monſieur Lally, who commanded at Pondicherry in the late war, was beheaded laſt Friday at Paris. The Parliament had ordered the execution between eight and nine at night; but having ſome reaſon to think he would deſtroy himſelf, the execution was performed at five; he was drawn in a cart to the place of Execution, where a gag was put into his mouth to prevent his choaking himſelf with his tongue, which he attempted. His friends had obtained leave to bury him according to his rank; but the parliament was ſo incenſed, that he was obſcurely buried in a little church in Paris. He was in the 66th year of his age.

MAY 29.

This morning a quantity of ammunition, and part of the troops deſtined for North-America, were embarked in the tranſports lying at Deptford, and fell down the river for Graveſend.

On the 28th the Houſe of Lords took into conſideration the General Warrants Bill: proceed on Thurſday. Same day was read a ſecond time the bill for laying an additional duty on windows, which after a debate, was committed on a diviſion 57 againſt 15.

On Thurſday laſt M. Chancellor of the Exchequer (by his Majeſty's command) acquainted the H. of C. that, tho' his Majeſty's 4 ½ per cent. duty on cotton, appears to be an increaſing revenue, yet his Majeſty deſirous of contributing to the improvement of the manufactures of this Kingdom, is very willing to give up that revenue, and gives his conſent that the H. may do therein as they ſhall think fit. The H. then ordered, that it be an inſtruction to a committee of the whole H. that they have power to make proviſions in the ſaid bill for permitting the importation of Cotton wool from the Britiſh colonies in America duty free. And reſolved, nem. con. that an humble addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, to return the moſt humble and grateful thanks of the Houſe for the freſh inſtance, which his Majeſty has been pleaſed to give of his great attention for the improvement of the trade and manufactures of this kingdom by his moſt gracious conſent to give up his increaſing revenue of 4 1 half per cent. upon cotton, and that the Houſe might do therein as they ſhould think fit.

The Commons have paſſed the bill for opening a free port in the iſlands of Jamaica and Dominica, alſo the bill for laying an additional duty on ſpirits imported.

On the 29th the Canada Bills regiſtered, and allowed by the French, were ſold in Exchange Alley, London, from 73 to 74 per cent.

June 3. They write from Rochfort, that the Belliquex, a new 74 Gun ſhip, was launched there the 24th ult. and her Place immediately ſupplied with the Keel of another of the ſame Rate.

In the thirty-ſeventh Year of the Reign of King Edward 3d. an Act was made, that no common Whore ſhould wear any Hood, except ſtriped with divers Colours, nor Furs but Garments with the wrong Side outwards.—If they were obliged to be as much deſtinguiſhed in their dreſſes in theſe Days, they would make a fine Shew all along the principal Sreets of London and Weſtminſter.

It is reported, that the famous Monſier Lally was ſix Months in England, after the Surrender of Pondicherry to the Engliſh. He had ſeveral Times an Opportunity of making his Eſcape, which as he was conſcious of having diſcharged his Duty, he refuſed to attempt it.

The wiſdom in repealing the Stamp-Act is as evident to the meaneſt capacity, if properly conſidered, as that two and two are equal to four; the conſequences whereof are, commerce revives, the manufactures and mechanics in their numberleſs braches are again following their honeſt occupations; and numbers of others, who were languiſhing for the common neceſſaries of life thro' want of employment, are thereby made uſeful to ſociety. The ſtagnation it would have cauſed in commerce and trade, and the train of evils that would have been conſequent on it, cannot be fully deſcribed, as no perſon could have known where, when and how it would have ended. Imagination cannot conceive the horrors of ſuch a ſcene! Happy for this nation and her colonies, this ſcene of miſery has not been ſuffered to make its appearnce.

They write from Amſterdam, that ſeveral hundred Debtors have lately returned home in order to take the Benefit of the general Amneſty, on Account of the Prince Stadtholder coming of Age.

The King of Spain has granted a penſion of eight thouſand piſtoles to the Marquis de Squilace and another of a thouſand to his Lady.

BOSTON, Auguſt 7.

Laſt Week was erected in King's Chapple in this Town a Monument, "Sacred to the Memory of SAMUEL VASSAL, Eſq; of London, Merchant, one of the Original Proprietors of the Lands of this Country; a ſteady and undaunted Aſſerter of the Liberties of England: In 1628 he was the firſt who boldly refuſed to ſubmit to the Tax of Tunnage and Poundage, and unconſtitutional Claim of the Crown arbitrarily impoſed; for which (to the Ruin of his Family) his Goods were ſeized and his Perſon impriſoned by the Star Chamber Court: He was choſen to repreſent the City of London in two ſucceſſive Parliaments, which met April 13 Nov. 3d. 1640. the parliament in 1641, voted him £. 10445 12s 2d. for his Damages, and reſolved, he ſhould be further conſider'd for his Perſonal Sufferings; but the Rage of the Times, and Neglect of proper Application ſince, have left to his Family only the Honor of that Vote and Reſolution: He was one of the largeſt Subſcribers to raiſe Money againſt the Rebels in Ireland: All theſe Facts may be ſeen in the Journals of the Houſe of Commons. He was Son of the gallant JOHN VASSAL, who in 1588, at his own Expence, fitted out and commanded two Ships of War, with which he joined the Royal Navy to oppoſe the Spaniſh Armada.

This monument was erected by his great grand Son FLORENTIUS VASSAL, Eſq; of the Iſland of Jamaica, now reſiding in England.

The following ſtory has been related to us, viz. A number of infirm perſons in a large town in one of the neighbouring colonies, not being able to travel to Safford, hired a perſon to go thither and procure ſome of the mineral water:—The man obtained about 30 gallons in a barrel: on his return he informed the people at the ſeveral ſtages where he ſtopped what he had got, who were very earneſt with him to ſpare ſome, this Opportunity he embraced to make Money, and accordingly ſold it at a Dollar per Gallon, and by ſmaller Quantities in Proportion; but he took Care when he came to a Brook to fill up his Caſk. When the Man returned to his Employers he delivered them the Barrel full of Water, who eagerly received and drank of it, without applying to any of our modern Chymiſts to aſcertain how many Carats it wanted of coming up to the Standard; however the People beleiving it genuine, ſoon found the ſalutray Effects thereof. The Man ſold, as he computed, 160 Gallons. The Brooks he ſtopped at by the way, were in this Province,

LONDON, May 25.

They write from Breſt, that the Prince de Rohan was arrived there, in order to embark on board a man of war of the line for Martinico. His Highneſs, after examining the ſtate of all the French iſlands, was to proceed to Cayenne and Guienne ſettlements.

Letters from Paris inform us, that the count de Lally was removed in the night between the 4th and 5th of this month from the Baſtile to the priſon of the Conciergere (communicating with the palace) where he refuſed to go to bed, and about ſeven in the morning was conducted to the Grand Chamber, which was ſurrounded on all ſides by the guards of the Parliament. As ſoon as he appeared before his Judges they ordered him to diliver his red ribband, &c. which he took off, ſeemingly in great diſcompoſure and confuſion; and being placed on the ſtool to be interrogated, he claſped his hands, and raiſed his eyes towards heaven, ſaying, Is this the reward of forty years ſervice! He underwent an interrogation of near twelve hours, during which he was ſucceſſively confronted by the Marquis de Buſſy, and the Count d'Ache; and at nine the ſame evening was remanded to the Baſtile under the eſcorte of ſeveral companies of the Guet, and the guards of the Parliament.

The ſame arret which condemned the Coun de Lally, cleared the Count d'Ache, and ſuppreſſed the memorials of the former, as falſe and defamatory.

The Dolphin Man of War, lately arrived from the Eaſt-Indies, where ſhe has been upon Diſcoveries, it is ſaid, has found out a new Country in the Eaſt, the inhabitants of which are eight Feet and a Half high. Query, whether the ſame with the Giants ſaid to have been diſcovered about ſix or ſeven years ago by Spaniards, near the Terra Patagonia, towards the Southern Coaſts of America?

According to Letters from Toulon, the Iſland of Corſica was whiſpered to be the Object of the New Expedition fitting out there, but whether to act for or againſt the Malecontents was uncertain.

NEW-YORK, AUGUST 14.

On Sunday Night laſt, the Maſt or Flag Staff, erected on the Common, at the Time of public Rejoicing on his Majeſty's Birth Day, for the Repeal of the Stamp-Act, left ſtanding inſcribed with the Names of his Majeſty, Mr. Pitt, and Liberty, as a Monument of that happy Event, and Gratitude to thoſe by whom it was accompliſhed was cut down, by ſome of the Soldiers belonging to the 28th Regiment, quartered in the Barracks; and as it appeared by ſeveral Depoſitions, to have been done by Way of Inſult to the Town, it gave great Uneaſineſs, and next Day occaſion'd two Frays between the Town People and the Soldiers, a ſmall Numberr of each in which two or three were wounded, and ſeveral hurt, by the Soldiers. It appears by many Affidavits, that the Soldiers were intirely the Aggreſſors: And the People are in general very uneaſy that ſuch a Number of armed Men, without any viſible Occaſion for them, are ſtationed among us, and ſuffer'd to patrol the Streets, as in a Military or conquer'd Town. The Examinations relating to theſe Diſorders, not being finiſh'd, we muſt refer our Readers to our next, for further Particulars.

Letters from Dutcheſs County, dated one Day laſt Week, adviſe, that at the ſpecial Court then ſitting there, William Pendergħaſt was found guilty of High Treaſon, after a Trial of 24 Hours, and received Sentence accordingly.

LONDON, May. 20.

It is ſaid an extraordinary council will be held next week, in conſequence of ſome recent advices received from America.

Yeſterday the Right Hon. Lord How reſigned his place of one of the Lords Commiſſioners of the Admiralty.

It is ſuppoſed that the above reſignation will be attended with many more changes, not only in that, but likewiſe in other departments of ſtate, but it is not yet known who are to ſucceed.

It is reported, that his Royal Highneſs the Duke of York will accompany the intended Queen of Denmak to Copenhagen, as Lord High Admiral of England, and hoiſt his ſtandard on board the new Victory, firſt rate man of war.

We are pretty ſtrongly aſſured that Mr. Wilkes, ſince his arrival in England, paid ſeveral viſits to a great man, before he went out of offices, and that no ſmall diſpleaſure was taking thereat.

His Excellency the Earl of Hertford is talked of as ambaſſador to France, in the Duke of Richmond's room ; and that his ſon in law, the Earl of Crogheda is to be appointed one of the Lord's Juſtices of Ireland.

It is ſaid that the Right Hon. the Earl of Dartmouth will ſhortly be appointed Secretary of State for his Majeſty's colonies and plantations in America.

The execution of Count Lally has occaſioned a great diſcontent among the people in France, a great number of their nobility have retired from court ſince his unfortunate exit.

Amongſt other complaints ſent over againſt a certain Britiſh governor abroad, he has been accuſed of having diſſolved more General Aſſemblies in 3 years, than had ever been done by any of his Predeceſſors in ten.—We are credibly informed, that upwards of 230 veſſels are now building in the different colonies in America, intended chiefly for European freight and ſale.

From Major Rogers's Account of North-America.

THE Indians on the Lakes are generally at peace with one another, having a wide, extended and fruitful country in their poſſeſſion. They are formed into a ſort of empire, and their Emperor is elected from the eldeſt tribe, which is the Ottawas, ſome of them inhabit at our fort at Detroit but are moſtly further weſtward towards the Miſſiſipi. Ponteack is their preſent King or Emperor, who has certainly the largeſt empire and greateſt authority of any Indian chief that has appeared on the continent ſince our acquaintance with it. He puts on an air of majeſty and princely grandeur, and is greatly honoured and revered by his ſubjects. He not long ſince formed a deſign of uniting all the Indian nations together under his authority, but miſcarried in the attempt.

In the Year 1760, when I commanded and marched the firſt detachment into this country that was ever ſent there by the Engliſh, I was met in my way by an embaſſy from him, of ſome of his warriors, and ſome of the chiefs, of the tribes that are under him; the purport of which was, to let me know, that Ponteack was at a ſmall diſtance, coming peaceably, and that he deſired me to halt my detachment till ſuch time as he could ſee me with his own eyes. His ambaſſadors had alſo orders to inform me, that he was Ponteack, the King and Lord of the country I was in.

At firſt ſalutation when he met me he demanded my buſineſs into his country, and how I dared to enter it without his leave? when I informed him that it was not with any deſign againſt the Indians that I came, but to remove the French out of his country, who had been an obſtacle in our way to mutual peace and commerce, and acquainted him with my inſtruction for that purpoſe. I at the ſame time delivered him ſeveral friendly meſſages, or belts of wampum, which he received, but gave me no other anſwer than that he ſtood in the path I travelled in till next morning, giving me a ſmall ſtring of wampum, as much as to ſay I muſt not march further without his leave.

When he departed for the night he enquired whether I wanted any thing his country afforded, and he would ſend his warriors to fetch it? I aſſured him that any proviſions they brought ſhould be paid for; and the next day we were ſupplied by them with ſeveral bags of parched corn, and ſome other neceſſaries. At our ſecond meeting he gave me the pipe of peace, and both of us by turns ſmoaked with it; and he aſſured me he had made peace with me and my detachment; that I might paſs through his country unmoleſted, and relieve the French garriſon: and that he would protect me, and my party from any inſults that might be offered or intended by the Indians; and as an earneſt of his friendſhip he ſent two hundred of his warriors to aſſiſt and protect us in driving one hundred fat cattle, which we had brought from Pittſburg for the uſe of the detachment by the way of Preſque Iſle. He likewiſe ſent to the ſeveral Indian towns on the weſt ſide of Lake Erie, to inform them that I had his conſent to come into the country. He attended me conſtantly after this interview, till I arrived at Detroit; and while I remained in the country and was the means of preſerving the detachment from the fury of the Indians, who had aſſembled at the mouth of the Strait with Intent to cut us off.

I had ſeveral conferences with him, in which he diſcovered great Strength of judgement, and a thirſt after knowledge. He endeavoured to inform himſelf of our military order and diſcipline. He often intimated to me that he could be content to reign in his own country in ſubordination to the King of Great-Britain and was willing to pay him ſuch annual acknowledgments as he was able, in furs, and to call him Uncle. He was curious to know our methods of manufacturing cloth, iron, &c. and expreſſed a great deſire to ſee England, and offered me a part of his country if I would conduct him there. He aſſured me he was inclined to live peaceably with the Engliſh while they uſed him as he deſerved, and to encourage their ſettling in his country; but intimated if they treated him with neglect, he ſhould ſhut up the way, and exclude them from it; in ſhort, his whole converſation ſufficiently indicated that he was far from thinking himſelf a conquered prince, and that he expected to be treated with the reſpect and honour due to a prince or emperor, by all that came into his country, or treated with him.

In 1763, this Indian had the art and addreſs to draw a number of tribes into a confederacy, with a deſign firſt to reduce the Engliſh forts upon the lakes, and then to make a peace to his mind, by which he intended to eſtabliſh himſelf in his imperial authority; and ſo wiſely were his meaſures taken, that, in fifteen days time, he reduced or took ten of our garriſons, which were all we had in this country, except Detroit; and had he carried this alſo, nothing was in the way to complete his ſcheme. Some of the Indians left him, and by his conſent made a ſeperate peace; but he would not be active or perſonally concerned in it, ſaying, that when he made a peace, it ſhould be ſuch an one as would be ſerviceable and honourable to himſelf, and to the King of Great-Britain: but he has not as yet, propoſed his terms.

In the Year 1763. I went to throw Proviſions into the garriſon at Detroit, I ſent this Indian a bottle of brandy by a Frenchman, his counſellers adviſed him not to taſte it, inſinuating that it was poiſoned, and ſent with a deſign to kill him; but Ponteack with a nobleneſs of mind, laughed at their ſuſpicions, ſaying it was not in my power to kill him, who had lately ſaved my life.

In the late war of his, he appointed a commiſſary, and began to make money, or bills of credit, which he hath ſince punctually redeemed. His money was the figure of what he wanted in exchange for it, drawn upon bark, and the ſhape of an Otter (his arms) drawn under it.

Were proper methods taken, this Indian might be rendered very ſerviceable to the Britiſh trade and ſettlements in this country, more extenſively ſo than any one that hath ever been in alliance with us on the continent.

From the GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE, for April laſt.

SIR,

April 24, 1766.

IN your laſt Magazine, among the articles of news, you inſerted the memorable caſe of Richard Parſons, as it was found in the Glouceſter Journal; ſince which at the requeſt of a friend in London, William Dallaway, Eſq; the high ſheriff, who lives within two miles of Chalford, has examined into the affair, and has tranſmitted a particular account of it in a letter, from which the following extract is taken, which you are deſired to preſerve in your uſeful intelligencer, as it tends to confirm that natural and revealed truth, That there is a GOD who judges in the earth.

I am, Sir, &c.

R. WINTER.

On February 20 laſt, Richard Parſons and three more met at a private houſe in Chalford, in order to play at cards, about 6 o'clock in the evening. They played at Loo till about 11 or 12 that night, when they changed their game for Whiſt: After a few deals, a diſpute aroſe about the ſtate of the game, Parſons aſſerted, with oaths, that they were ſix, which the others denied; upon which he wiſhed, That he might never enter into the kingdom of Heaven, and that his fleſh might rot upon his bones if they were not ſix in the game. Theſe wiſhes were ſeveral times repeated, both then and afterwards. Upon this the candle was put out by one James Young, a ſtander-by, who ſays, he was ſhocked with the oaths and expreſſions he heard and that he put out the candle with a deſign to put an end to the game.

Preſently, upon this, they adjourned to another houſe, and there began a freſh game when Parſons and his partner had great ſucceſs. Then they played at Loo again till four in the morning. During this ſecond playing, Parſons complained to one Rolles his partner, of a bad pain in his leg, which from that time increaſed.—There was an appearance of a ſwelling, and afterwards the colour changed to that of a mortified ſtate.—On the following Sunday he rode to Minchin Hampton, to get the advice of Mr. Pegler the ſurgeon in that town, who attended him from the Thurſday after February 27. Notwithſtanding all the applications that were made, the mortification increaſed, and ſhewed itſelf in different parts of his body. On Monday March 3, at the requeſt of ſome of his female relations, the clergyman of Biſley attended him, and adminiſtered the ſacrament, without any knowledge of what had happened before, and which he continued a ſtranger to till he ſaw the account in the Glouceſter Journal. Parſons appeared to be extremely ignorant of religion, having been accuſtomed to ſwear, drink, (though he was not in liquor when he uttered the above execrable wiſh) to game, and profane the ſabbath, tho' he was only in his 19th year; yet after he had received the ſacrament, he appeared to have ſome ſenſe of the ordinance; for he ſaid

Now I muſt never ſin again; he hoped that GOD would forgive him having been wicked not above ſix years, and that whatever ſhould happen, he would not play at cards again.

After this he was in great agony, chiefly delirous, ſpoke of his companions by name, and ſeemed as if his imagination was engaged at cards, He ſtarted, had diſtracted looks and geſtures, and in a dreadful fit of ſhaking and trembling, died on Tueſday morning, the 4th of March laſt, and was buried the next day at the pariſh church of Biſley. His eyes were open when he died and could not be cloſed by the common methods; ſo that they remained open when he was put into the coffin: From this circumſtance aroſe a report, that he wiſhed his eyes might never cloſe; but this was a miſtake; for, from the moſt creditable witneſſes, I am fully convinced no ſuch wiſh was uttered; and the fact is, that he did cloſe his eyes after he was taken with the mortification, and either doſed or ſlept ſeveral times.

When the body came to be laid out, it appeared all over diſcoloured or ſpotted; and it might, in the moſt literal ſenſe, be ſaid, that his fleſh rotted on his bones before he died.

Mr. Dallaway, having deſired Mr. Pegler, the ſurgeon, to ſend him his thoughts of Parſon's caſe, received from him the following account,

"Sir, You deſire me to acquaint you, in writing with what I know relating to the melancholly caſe of the late Richard Parſons; a requeſt I readily comply with, hoping that his cataſtrophe will ſerve to admoniſh all thoſe who profane the ſacred name of God.

"February 27 laſt, I viſited Richard Parſons, who I found had an inflamed leg, ſtretching from the knee, tending to a gangrene. The tenſeneſs and redneſs of the ſkin was almoſt gone off, and become of a duſkiſh and livid colour, and felt very lax and flabby: Symptoms being ſo dangerous, ſome inciſions were made down to the quick, ſome ſpirituous fomentations made uſe of, and the whole limb dreſſed up with ſuch applications as are moſt approved in ſuch deſperate circumſtances, joined with proper internal medicines. The next day he ſeemed much the ſame; but on March 1 he was worſe, the inciſions diſcharaing a ſharp fœto ichor, (which is generally of the worſt conſequence.) On the next day, which was Sunday, the ſymptoms ſeemed to be a little more favourable; but, to my great ſurprize, the very next day, I found his leg not only mortified up to the knee, but the ſame began anew in four different parts, viz. under each eye, on the top of the ſhoulder, and one hand; and in about 12 hours after he died. I ſhall not preſume to ſay there was any thing ſupernatural in the caſe; but, however, it muſt be confeſſed that ſuch caſes are rather uncommon in ſubjects ſo young, and of ſo good an habit as he had always been, previous to this illneſs.

I am, Sir, &c. J. A. P.

NEW-YORK, August 21.

We hear that after the Examination of a great Number of Witneſſes, reſpecting the late Diſturbances betwen ſome of the Citizens, and a Party of Soldiers, the Corporal and Drum-Major of the Regiment, who appeared to be the chief Authors of the Diſturbrances, were bound over to the Quarter Seſſion, as alſo a Lieutenant. We here theſe Differences are likely to have an amicable Concluſion; for that at a Meeting between the Magiſtrates of the City, and the Officers of the Regiment, in the Preſence of the Governor, they declared their Deſire of living in Harmony with the Citizens, and ſaid that upon any Miſbehavior of the Soldiers, under their Command, they ſhould either be tried by a Court-Martial, or deliver'd up to the civil Authority, as the Magiſtrates ſhould require—They only deſired the Soldiers ſhould not be ill treated or moleſted, which was promiſed on the Part of the Magiſtrates.

We hear that on Saturday next his Excellency Governor Moore, with his Lady and Daughter, &c. are to embark for Albany, in order to proceed on his intended Excurſion to the Frontier Parts of his Government, and to run the Boundary Line between this Province and Canada.

We hear from Dutcheſs County, that Penderghaſt, has been condemn'd for High-Treaſon, and was to ſuffer Death in ſix Weeks—The uſual ſevere Sentance for Treaſon was pronounced on him.

We hear a Veſſel is arrived at Philadelphia, which left England in Company of the Hope, Capt. Davis, of this Port, which may be hourly expected, as alſo the Packet.—The Packet, which ſailed from hence in May, was not arrived the 26th June laſt.—The Parliament was broke up—Two Free Pots were eſtabliſh'd, the Duties on Molaſſes reduced, and ſome other Regulations in Trade.

BOSTON, Auguſt 11, 1766.

Since our laſt, another Expreſs has come to Town from the Weſtward, with a Petition to his Excellency the Governor, and Council, from a number of the Inhabitants of Nobletown, who have been drove from their Settlement there; complaining of the cruel Treatment they have again lately met with from the Sheriff of Albany and others, and begging the Interpoſition of this Province under whoſe Encouragement they firſt ſettled there.—The Subſtance of there Complaint, we have in the following Letter from Egremont, to which place many of the Inhabitants were obliged to flee for Protection, &c.

Extract of a Letter from Egremont, in this Province, dated July the 30, 1766.

"On Saturday the 26th of July Inſt. Hermanus Schuyler, Sheriff of the County of Albany, and Robert Van Ranſlear, of Cleverack, attended with about 250 of General Gage's Light Infantry, arm'd with Guns, Swords, Piſtols, one Field Piece, and three Swivels, came in a hoſtile Manner to Nobletown, to the Houſe of Andrew Stalker, which they broke down: from thence they proceeded to the Houſe of William Bever, broke down his Houſe, and rob'd him of three Guns and ſundry other Goods and Tools; from thence they came to the Houſe of Evert Connickabacker, where they pitched their Camp; from thence ſaid Schuyler and others on Sabbath Day the 27th, travelled 3 Miles to the Houſe of Joſeph Clark, and broke it open and robb'd him of all his Books, Arms, Cloaths, Proviſions, and every Thing they could lay their Hands on; from thence they went to the Houſe of Robert Mecker, and broke down the Houſe, flung out and deſtroyed and carried away every Thing that was therein; from thence they returned to their Camp; from whence, in the Afternoon the ſaid Schuyler and others came to the Houſe of Robert Noble, which Houſe and Furniture they entirely deſtroyed, and ſet Fire to the Barns, &c. which were conſumed; from thence they proceeded to the Houſes of ſaid Clark and Mecker, and carried off all they left in the Morning, then returning to their Camp, they took a Priſoner Thomas Millard, killing and deſtroying Swine, Fowls, &c. as they returned: On Monday the 28th the ſaid Schyler and others came to the Houſe of Robert Warran, which they broke open and plundered and rifled of every Thing therein, killed 4 Sheep, 3 Hogs, 1 Calf, and abuſed the Children, &c. thence they proceeded to the Houſe of William Kellog, and a Man who was in the Houſe upon their Approach fled, but was purſued and had 2 Guns fired at him, but he eſcaped; they then returned to the Houſe, which they robb'd of every Thing, and much abuſed a Child there, killed two Hogs, ten Geeſe, &c. thence ſaid Schyler and others came to the Houſe of Eb. Smith of Egremont, and rifled it of every Thing valuable and light to carry away, and then returned to their Camp, and on Tueſday they drew off, threatning they would come again in a few Days and lay the whole Town in Rubbiſh, plant 3 Forts there, and tarry to keep off the Inhabitants.——Thus are the Inhabtants of Nobletown drove away to the neighbouring Towns, as Sheep by Wolves, to Egremont, Sheffield and Barrington, with their Wives and Families, and are in the moſt diſtreſſed Circumſtances, having nothing to ſupport them but the Charity of the People."——

BOSTON, Auguſt 21.

By an Expreſs from Pittsfield Yeſterday, we have further Accounts of the Diſtreſſes of the Inhabitants of the Weſtern Parts of the Province, who are at their Wit's End, they are afraid to work in their Fields in the Day, and of having their Houſes burnt or robbed in the Night;—a Number of armed Men, who call themſelves the King's Troops, but ſeem to conduct themſelves like a Number of Banditti or Collection of Robbers, not content with their daily Ravages in Nobletown, have extended themſelves into Egremont in this Province, broke into and robbed the Houſe of one Bunts, in the Night of the 13th Inſtant, bound the old Man, &c. then went to another Houſe and took off a Man and carried him with them: The night following they were again in Egremont: It is ſaid thoſe armed Men give out they will clear all the Inhabitants off from the River: they are in Fears of a viſit from them at Great-Barrington, as they had wrote to them they ſhould come. Maj. Williams and Capt. Dwight went to Nobletown to ſolicit the Officers of the Party for Liberty that Sheffield and Barrington People might come and reap and ſecure the Grain that was not already deſtroyed, and afterwards Col. Aſhley want upon the ſame errand, and were refuſed.

It is ſaid that the Baſis of Livingſton's and Ranſlear's invenomed Treatment of theſe People is,—Conſcious of the Weakneſs of their Titles to theſe Lands, and that they never obtained the Indian Title in a juſt and equitable Manner, and that Jacob, Solomon, and John, who were the proper Owners of the Land, are gone Home with Mr. Griggs, Nephew to General Conway, they imagine they ſhall not hold any of theſe Lands unleſs they ſo diſtreſs the preſent occupiers, who have bought the Indian Title, to come in and take Leaſes under them.—This the Stimulus that actuates them at the preſent Day.

Letter from Govornor FITCH, to ——

Sir,

As you have been pleaſed to acquaint me a Report is circulated abroad, and hath even found its Way into the public Prints, both in Boſton and Connecticut, that I never forwarded the Memorial from this Colony, againſt the Stamp-Act; ſo as to be received till after ſaid Act was repealed in the Houſe of Commons, and to deſire an Account from me, how that Matter really was, &c. I ſhall give you an Account of the Affair, and my Conduct therein, as near as I can remember, for I have not the Letter by me, which I ſent with thoſe Petitions, having delivered that, with my other Letters, to Governor Pitkin in May, to be publiſhed in the Aſſembly.

The Caſe is thus: The Aſſembly in October, paſſed a Reſolve, approving the Petitions, and deſired the Committee to ſign them, and deſired me to tranſmit a Copy of that Reſolve, and of the Appointment of the Commiſſioners; and alſo of a ſet of Inſtructions to the Agent, with the Petitions or Memorials, and that I would make ſome further Obſervations with the Agent for enforcing the Repeal of the Stamp Act. Theſe things were not finiſhed as I remember till on the laſt Day of the Seſſion, which being ended on Fryday, I applyed to the Secretary for the Copies of theſe three Acts; he informed me he muſt move Homeward, and could not get them ready then, but would ſend them ſoon; I obſerved the Matter required Diſpatch, and therefore deſired they might be ſent for as ſoon as poſſible: As ſoon as I received them, which I think was about the 12th or 13th of November; I immediately engaged in writing my Letter to Mr. Agent Jackſon, which I think bares Date the 13th of November; but as I took ſome Pains to make Remarks againſt the Stamp Act, or for enforcing the Motion for a Repeal of it, ſome Time was neceſſarily taken up, more than uſual for common Letters, though I was not long about it; and as ſoon as I could get it fairly tranſcribed and incloſed with the three Petitions, to the King, Lords, and Commons, and the Acts of Aſſembly, I went myſelf, and carried that Packet, with one to Mr. Secretary Conway, incloſing a Plan of the Colony, to the Poſt-Office, better than two Miles Diſtance, and delivered them to the Deputy-Poſtmaſter, paid the inland Poſtage of that to the Agent, and gave ſpecial Directions to have it ſent by the next Poſt, in order to be forwarded by the next Packet for Falmouth. In the Whole of this Proceeding, I really aimed to act with Care and Diſpatch. And although I took what I eſteemed the ſafeſt Method for Conveyance, and the ſame as uſual in ſuch Caſes, and the propereſt Method for a certain and ſpeedy Conveyance, yet I am not able to give an Account what Progreſs was afterwards made therein, nor do I now remember how ſoon after this the next Packet ſailed from New-York; though I am apt to think, it unhappily fell out, that it was not very ſoon. Now, Sir, whether a Suggeſtion that I, from an evil Deſign, delayed a Performance of the Truſt repoſed in me, can flow from any Thing better than a wicked, if not a malicious Intention to injure my Character, which has heretofore been ſufficiently attacked, without juſt Cauſe, let any One judge?

Having given this ſhort and actual account of the Matter aforeſaid, you are at Liberty, if you judge it may be of public Service, to make ſuch Uſe of it as you may think proper, for the Satisfaction of your Friends.

I am, &c. THO'. FITCH.

LONDON.

Extract of a Letter from Banda, the Capital of the Molaco Iſlands, June 10, 1765, being a further Account of the Eruption of the Volcanos in the Iſland.

"The Quantity of Cinders caſt up from the Mountain, with the burning Lava, which ran down its Sides to the Diſtance of upwards of two-thirds of it, deſtroying all the Houſes and Trees in its Paſſage, which fell with a horrible Noiſe, filled every Soul with Terror on the 29th. To theſe were added, the perpetual Rumblings heard in the Body of the Mountain, and the ſulphurous Vapours iſſuing from all Parts, which rendered the Air quite inſupportable. Report magnifying theſe Objects, added to our Conſternation. Tho' it had not appeared that any Stones had been found above half Way down the Mountain, yet it was pretended that ſeveral had been picked up in different Parts of the Iſle. Indeed a Dutch Soldier, on the firſt, preſented the Governor with a Peice of very hot Matter, which he had found near the Fort. On examining this Piece, it was found to conſiſt of pure Sulphur. The ſtench of Sulphur had been frequently very ſtrong in the Iſland, but never continued long. The Fire alſo of the lower Volcano laſted only 24 Hours, the Collection of ſtones thrown out, having extinguiſhed it, and converted it into a thick Smoak, till the 3d of this Month. But this Circumſtance occaſioned the greater Alarms, becauſe the Vapours thickened at the two upper Volcanos, and the Exploſion of burning Matter became more frequent and much more terrible then ever. The Ground to the Extent of the Valley was inacceſſible on Account of the Heat. The Trees, late ſo beautiful, were partly burnt and partly overturned, for above Halfway down the Mountain; and the Stones which fell from the Top being ſtopped by the Trees, that had been overturned, ſet them on Fire, which cauſed a very terrible Conflagration. It was in this Situation which threatned further Calamities, that the Government ordered the inhabitants to provide themſelves with Water. The Officers appointed to extinguiſh ſuch fires as might happen, received in particular, the moſt preciſe Orders on that Head. Theſe made the deeper Impreſſions on People's Minds, as a Quantity of burning Matter had fallen in the Negory, and ſeveral Pieces of Sulphur, yet quite hot, had been picked up, on the 3d, near the Clove Magazine.

"The 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th, no favourable Changes were ſeen. On the contrary, every Body thought they perceived the Volcanoes grow wider, the Flames thicken, and the Eruption of burning Matter increaſe.

"On the 15th, nothing yet to quiet us; the ſubterraneous Noiſe with the Quantity of burning Matter, thickneſs of the Flames, Violence of the Reports, &c. all increaſed.

"On the 4th of the preſent Month, every Thing in the ſame melancholly Situation, the ſubteraneous Noiſe ſtill equally terrible, and the fiery Matter iſſuing from the Mouth of the Volcanos in the ſame Quantity and with the ſame Velocity.

"This ſorrowful Event depreſſes us the more, as we were ſcarce recovered from the Conſternation, which the Shock of an Earthquake on the 12th of September, 1764, had ſpread over the Iſle."

SINCE our laſt ſeveral Veſſels have returned from the Whaling Buſineſs, who have not only had bad Succeſs, but alſo been ill treated by ſome of the Cruiſers on the Labradore Coaſt.

On Monday laſt arrived here Capt. Coles in a Brig from Newfoundland, in whom came Paſſenger Capt. Penn, who informs us that he left London in April laſt as Pilot of the Ships Paliſſer and Labradore, which were fitted out by a company of Merchants Adventurers in London, for carrying on a Trade with the Æſquemaux Indians, fiſhing for Whales, Seils, Cod and Salmon in the Streights of Belleiſle and Coaſt of Labradore; That he was employed in that Service until the beginning of July; That he left the Streights of Belleiſle the 9th of July and on his Way to Newfoundland, he went on board a Number of Whaling Veſſels, who had met with no Succeſs, not more than twenty Whale, having been caught among the whole Fleet: He further informs us, that many of the Veſſels which were diſappointed of Whales, went upon the Cod fiſhery on the Labradore Coaſt, but that on the Arrival of the Company's Ship and his Majeſty's Sloop Merlin, they were ordered off, and what Fiſh they had caught were taken from them, excepting a ſmall Quantity for the Veſſel's Uſe: This was done under Pretence that the whole of that Coaſt was patenteed to the above mentioned Company, and by Virtue of the Orders iſſued by Governor Palliſer.—A Copy of which Capt. Penn has favoured us with, and are as Follows.

RULES, ORDERS and REGULATIONS to be obſerved on the Coaſt of Labradore, Streights of Belleiſle, and in the Iſlands of Anticoſta and the Magdelines.

WHEREAS the Property of all the Land on the ſaid Coaſt of Labradore, and the Iſlands of Anticoſta and Magdelines is centered in the Crown; And ſince the Conqueſt thereof no part of it has lawfully been given or granted away, and no power being veſted in me to give or grant any excluſive Poſſeſſions or Privileges to any Perſon whatſoever; And whereas it has ever been the Policy of the Nation to give his Majeſty's Subjects from Britain, in preference to all others, every Encouragement to carry on the Fiſheries.

In order to invite Adventurers into that extenſive Field of Trade and Fiſhing, I hereby order and direct that the Whole ſhall be public and free to all the King's Subjects, in Preference to all others, till his Majeſty's further Pleaſure be known, under the following Regulations, ſubject to ſuch Alterations and additions as may hereafter be found neceſſary for extending and improving that valuable Branch of Trade.

I. All the Rules and Regulations ordained by that excellent Act of the 10th and 11th of William the Third, intitled, An Act for the Encouragement of the Trade and Fiſheries to Newfoundland, ſhall be ſtrictly obſerved on the Coaſt and Iſlands abovementioned (except that Proviſo in which the ſaid Act ſays, "Provided always that all ſuch Perſons as "ſince the 25th of March, 1685, have built, &c. &c.") is not to be in force on the Coaſt and Iſlands abovementioned.

II. All Britiſh Subjects, Whale-Fiſhers, are to chuſe Places on the Shore for Landing to cut up the Whales and other Oil-Fiſh, and to make their Oil as they reſpectively arrive with Fiſh to land, obſerving, that they are never to occupy or uſe any Place that ever has or hereafter may be uſed by any Britiſh Cod Fiſher.——The Whale-Fiſhers from the Plantations may fiſh for Whales, and other Oil Fiſh of that Kind, and may land on the ſaid Coaſt and Iſland, within the Gulph only, but no where elſe, to cut up their Whales and to make their Oil; And for that Purpoſe may uſe any Place that they find unoccupied, and that never has been uſed by any Britiſh Fiſhing Ships for either Whales, Cod or Seils; taking eſpecial care that they do not fiſh for either Cod or Seils &c. nor annoy or hinder any Britiſh Fiſher whatſoever.

III. Whereas complaint has been made to me that the Whale-Fiſhers from the Plantations have a Practice of turning adrift the uſeleſs Part of the Carcaſes of Whales, to the Annoyance and Damage of neighbouring Fiſhers for Cod and Seils, or elſe leave them on Shore, which is a great Nuiſance; I hereby order and direct, that all the ſaid Whale-Fiſhers ſhall carry the Carcaſes to at leaſt three Leagues from the Shore.

IV. No Veſſel ſhall be conſidered as a Britiſh Fiſhing Ship, nor be entituled to the Privileges thereof, or of being Admirals of Harbours on the Coaſt and Iſlands abovementioned, except ſuch as clear out from Britain the ſame Seaſon, and carry out Men to be actually employed in the Fiſhery, and to return to Britain with the Ships when the Fiſhing Seaſon is over.

If any Perſon commits Murther, whether of any of his Majeſty's Chriſtian or Indian Subjects, on the Coaſt and Iſlands abovementioned, or any other Capital Crime, all his Majeſty's Subjects are hereby authorized and required to apprehend ſuch Offenders, and carry them before any Commanders of his Majeſty's Ships, or before the Admiral of any Harbour, and Oath being made before them of the Fact, the Captains of any of his Majeſty's Ships, &c. are hereby ordered and directed to ſecure them; And when they join me to bring ſuch Offenders with them in order to their being tried at the General Aſſizes.

Given under my Hand this 3d Day of April 1766.

HUGH PALLISER.

To all to whom this may concern, Captain John Hamilton, Commander of his Majeſty's Sloop Merlin, and one of the Lieutenant Governors of Labradore and its Dependencies, hereby certifies that the above is a genuine Copy.

Dated on board the ſaid Sloop.
Labradore Harbour, 16th June, 1766.

Capt. Penn farther informs us, that Meſſrs Lymburner and Robinſon, of Quebec, having made a Settlement at a Place called St. Modeſte, in the Streights of Belleiſle, it was entirely deſtroyed, and 200 Barrels of Oil taken off, as it was an infringement of the Patent. Said Capt. Penn was informed when in the Streights, that a Poſt in Charles River, near Cape Charles, belonging to Mr. Brymer of Quebec was alſo deſtroyed, and 30 Ton of Seil-Oil in Iron-bound Caſks, taken off.

In Conſequence of which Proceedings moſt of the Veſſels [illegible] and went to fiſh on the Banks.

By the Captains Sparks and Ritchie, who are arrived at Philadelphia, from London, and the Earl of Halifax Packet-Boat, arrived at New-York, there is the following Advices, viz.

His Majeſty's moſt gracious SPEECH to both Houſes of Parliament on Friday the 6th Day of June, 1766.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"IT is with the utmoſt ſatisfaction, that I have obſerved the wiſdom and moderation which have uniformly guided you through the many important deliberations, in which you have been engaged during the courſe of this long and intereſting ſeſſion of parliament. I perſuade myſelf, that the moſt ſalutary effects muſt be the natural Reſult of deliberations conducted upon ſuch principles."

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

"I thank you for the ſupplies which you have ſo chearfully given for the ſeveral eſtabliſhments, and for the ſupport of public credit, and you may reſt aſſured, that no œconomy will be wanting to render them effectual for the purpoſes for which they were granted."

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"The preſent general diſpoſition of all the Powers of Europe ſeems to indicate a continuance of peace: and it is my earneſt deſire to preſerve the general tranquility, by fulfilling, on my part, all the engagements I am under by treaties. And on this foundation I may reaſonably hope and expect the ſame ſtrict performance of thoſe engagements, which other powers are under to my crown."

"The many regulations which you have made for extending and promoting the trade and manufactures of G. Britain, and for ſettling the mutual intercourſe of my kingdoms and plantations, in ſuch a manner as to provide for the improvement of the colonies, on a plan of due ſubordination to the commercial intereſts of the Mother country, are the ſtrongeſt proofs of your equitable and comprehenſive regard to the welfare of all my dominions, an object truly worthy of a Britiſh parliament.

It ſhall be my endeavour, that ſuch care be taken, as may tend to ſecure and improve the advantages which may be expected from ſuch wiſe and ſalutary proviſions.

I have nothing further to recommend to you, than that you will exert your beſt endeavours in your reſpective counties, to enforce the execution of the laws, and to promote good manners and good order among my people; whoſe true and laſting happineſs ſhall be my conſtant care, and upon whoſe affections I ſhall always firmly rely.

Before a great man lately reſigned, it is ſaid he acknowledged his readineſs on all occaſions to ſerve the public, and the beſt of Princes; but greatly lamented the want of the aſſiſtance in the adminiſtration of that only man, who was capable of bringing the nation into its former vigour and ſtrength; and concluded, that if he came in, he himſelf would chearfully ſerve under him.

It is ſaid that the Right Hon. the Earl of Dartmouth will ſhortly be appointed Secretary of State for his Majeſty's colonies and plantations in America.

June 7. His Majeſty was attended Yeſterday to the houſe of Peers by the Duke of Rutland, and the Earl of Coventry: when he gave the royal aſſent to 37 public and private bills, among which were the following.

The bill for eſtabliſhing free ports in the iſlands of Dominica and Jamaica, and for laying certain duties on goods to defray the expences thereof.—The bill for repealing certain duties on goods in the Colonies, and alſo on Eaſt-India goods exported from Great-Britain, and for granting other duties in lieu thereof.

The bill for laying additional duties on ſpirits imported, and to prolong the time allowed for keeping rum in warehouſes under bond.—The bill for indemnifying perſons who have incurred penalties by writing, printing, or ingroſſing on unſtamped paper in the American colonies, contrary to an act of laſt ſeſſions.

The bill to continue an act to allow the exportation of ſalt from Europe to Quebec.

June 21. It is reported that the King of Pruſſia has actually made a formal demand of ſome part of our conqueſts in America.

The new Pruſſian Miniſter, juſt arrived here, is ſaid to be charged with a plan for a formidable alliance between our court and certain northern powers.

June 23. The regiment of foot, under the command of the Hon. General Keppel, marched on Tueſday from Saliſbury to Portſmouth where they are to embark for America.

Arenjuez, May 5. A grand Council of State was held laſt Week, to which all the Councellors were invited, among them Mr. Wall. They did not break up till late laſt Night. Troops are daily arriving in the Neighbourhood of Madrid, where ſevere Libels ſtill appear againſt ſome of the Grandees.

May 26. Freſh Inſurrections continually break out—Bread is ſold at 12 Sols————a Pound; No Man is ſafe. The National Troops will not act againſt the Rebels. Twenty Squadrons of French Troops are ordered to march inſtantly to Madrid. We hear that in May 1765, a great Revolution happened at Quitto, Capital of Peru, (containing above 60,000 Inhabitants.

Paris, May 30. The following are the Circumſtances of the Revolution which happen'd the 22d of May, 1765, at Quito, Capital of the Government of Peru.

A Lady wrote that Day a Billet to Don Juan Diora Honexa, Director of the Cuſtom-Houſe newly eſtabliſhed, adviſing him to run away directly if he would avoid a cruel Death. He took the Advice, and with the Auditor and Preſident of the Royal Court, flew for Refuge into the Convent of St. Dominique; which they had juſt Time to do, for that ſame Night a numerous Body of People aſſembled and ſet fire to the Cuſtom-Houſe, thinking the Director was ſtill there. Three Score Men periſhed in the Tumult, and the Fire deſtroyed among other Things 14,000 Spaniſh Piſtoles, and what is very aſtoniſhing and almoſt incredible, is, that all the Inhabitants of that vaſt Country, compoſed of 2800 Cities, Towns and Villages, hung out the Standard of Rebellion on the ſame Day, and at the ſame Hour.

The Biſhop of Quitto, ſeeing with Horror, a general and premeditated Rebellion, propoſed a Capitulation, which they would not accept, but on the following Conditions:

1. That all the European Foreigners ſhould be obliged to leave the City in 8 Days. 2. That the Artillery, Ammunition, and Arms in the King's Magazines, ſhould be delivered to them without Delay. 3. That an Exemption from all Kinds of Taxes or Tributes ſhould be made the fundamental Law. 4. That all Slaves ſhould be made Free by a general Indulto. And, 5. That the Criminals confined in the Priſons ſhould be ſet at Liberty.

In Conſequence of the firſt Article, all the Foreigners in Quitto quitted the City, diſguiſed like Prieſts and Monks, and left their Effects behind them.

The Conſpirators (which appears to be the whole Nation) entirely to ſhake off the Spaniſh Yoke, inſiſted upon electing a King in the Perſon of the Count d'Herba, Vice-Roy, who, notwithſtanding his Proteſtations of, chooſing rather to die than take a Crown from his lawful Sovereign, was forced, with a Knife at his Throat, to let them proclaim him King of Quito.—The Biſhop of Quitto having attempted to eſcape was cloſely confined.

Several Noblemen have received Orders to retire to their Eſtates, being ſuſpected by the Court of ſpiriting up the late dangerous inſurrections at Madrid.

The Revolt of Quito was occaſioned by a long Series of Oppreſſion and geievous Impoſitions of the Court of Spain which treated the Complaints of thoſe Provinces with the moſt provoking Contempt and Haughtineſs, and had no Regard to Juſtice or Reaſon in laying Burdens upon them. The Day of the Revolt at Quito, 40 Men in Maſks went to the Cuſtom-Houſe belonging to the Indians of Popapian, and plundered the Director's Caſh.——The general Diſcontent which prevailed in that Country was hightened by the Troops of St. Martha, Carthagena, and other Places which had received no Pay for above 6 Months paſt.

No Britiſh Ambaſſador, it is ſaid, will go to the Court of Spain, till the internal Troubles of that Kingdom are entirely appeaſed.

Letters of a late Date from Spain, inform us, that the Troubles which they flattered themſelves were ſuppreſſed by the Flight of the Marquis de Squilace, are now blazing out with additional Violence, and threaten in a very ſerious Manner, the total Deſtruction of the Kingdom.

A Number of the principal Families, talk of retiring till they ſee the iſſue of theſe Affairs, and ſeveral have actually ſet out for England. From America, the Advices are, that every Thing is in the utmoſt Diſorder, ſo that the Affairs of the Spaniſh Monarchy, ſeem in every Quarter to be extremely critical. The thinking Part of the People are of Opinion that the Jeſuits are at the Bottom of all theſe Diſturbances. The Engliſh Ambaſſadors Return to his own Court, in the midſt of all thoſe Confuſions, occaſioned a Variety of Speculations—The Jeſuits were uſing all their Intereſt at Court to exculpate their Society from any Concern in the late Commotions.

The Court of Spain greatly diſapprove of the Conduct of their Subjects in the Weſt-Indies, in the late Captures of Engliſh Veſſels by Spaniſh Garda Coſtas, and have promiſed to make Satisfaction. The moſt conſiderable of theſe Captures were the following, viz.

"On the 24th of February, the Brig Porgy, Capt. Baſſet, the Brig——, Capt. Jennings, the Sloop——, Capt. Stiles, and a northern Sloop, all belonging to Bermuda, were loading with Salt, at Salter[illegible] when they were viſited by ſome Spaniſh Fiſhermen, who after being fully acquainted with their Strength, went off and it is ſuppoſed inform'd the Spaniards on the Main, who imediately diſpatched two Guarda Coaſta Sloops, which ſeiſed and carried off the two Brigs, and Capt. Stiles's Sloop; The other Sloop having cut her Cables got off, and arrived ſafe at St. Kitts."

Six Thouſand Pound Sterling have been ſent to Bermuda to pay the above Damage, and it is laid to the Charge of their Governor, that they have not received a more ample Satisfaction.

LONDON, June 12. Letters from Mobile mention, that the Indian Cheifs in the Neighbourhood of New-Orleans, refuſe to enter into any Treaty with the Spaniards, and that the Garriſon was wholly ſupplied by the Engliſh.—By the laſt Advices from New-Orleans the Spaniards at that Place ſeem'd to believe that that Colony will ſoon be annexed to the Britiſh Dominions.

The Goverment ſeems to be diſeaſed in all its Parts, and to totter to its Foundations————We have heard but very imperfectly of the Diſorders in their American Dominions—They are not confined to the Province of Peru, It is reported they have been no leſs violent in Mexico, and that there has been a moſt terrible Maſſacre of the Spaniards in that Place: In ſhort it ſeems more than probable, that thoſe Rich and extenſive Territories are forever loſt to the Crown of Spain—And if ſo, what terrible Conſequences muſt enſue in that Country!

London, June 24. Orders have been ſent to Madrid to ſtop the French Troops which were coming to the King's Aſſiſtance, from approaching any nearer to that Capital, by which it was believed there was ſome hopes that Tranquility would be once more eſtabliſhed.

Some extraordinary diſpatches were Yeſterday received from the Court of Spain.

Several other very important matters, from the Engliſh papers brought by the packet, want of room obliges us to defer, particularly—The power and rapid progreſs of prince Heraclius of Georgia, againſt the Turks, who had ſo long tyrannized over his country and many other parts of Chriſtendom—So that according to appearances the Empire of the Turks is near its end, and will ſoon fall under a Chriſtian government.—The noble Corſicans, have elected the illuſtrious Paoli, doge for life—But the French with meanneſs unparalleled, have determined to join the Genoeſe with force ſufficient to cruſh them. No doubt, in that caſe the iſland is to be yielded to them,—if the Engliſh will be blind enough to permit it.

The people in Ireland, are highly exaſperated at their diſappointment in not obtaining the royal aſſent to the bill for limitation of their parliaments to 7 years,—and at ſome other meaſures.—We hear that by the late acts, all American produce are to be entered in England, before they can be carried to Ireland—which will probably put an end to the flax-ſeed trade.

BURLINGTON, (N. Jerſy) Auguſt 4.

At a Court of Oyer and Terminer, held at Burlington, on Wedneſday the Thirtieth Day of July laſt, came on the Trial of James Annin, aged fifty four Years, and James M'Kenzie, aged nineteen Years, on an Indictment for the Murder of two Indian Women, named Hannah and Catharine, who had long reſided in the Neighbourhood of the Place where the Murder was committed. It appeared by their own Examinations, and by the Teſtimony of credible Witneſſes, that they had been on the Weſtern Frontiers of Pennſylvania and Virginia, but that their firſt acquaintance began at Philadelphia; that they came to Moore's Town, in the County of Burlington, on Thurſday the 26th of June laſt, about Noon, and begged for Charity and obtained Relief: That while they were eating their Dinners, the two Indians who were murdered, came to the Place where they were, and that the youngeſt of the Men gave them abuſive Language: That the Indians went off, and reſted in a Wood, near the Side of the Road: That the one of them was poſſeſſed of a clean Shift, and the other of a Piece of new Linen, which they had that Day got: That about 4 o'Clock on the ſame Day, James Annin ſold the Shift, and James M'Kinzy the Piece of new Linen and a Blanket, about two Miles from Moore's Town.

That they were parted by Accident, and that many People had ſeen the Indians lying in View of the Road, and ſuppoſed them to be aſleep, till Sunday the 29th of June, when two Perſons perceived a Stench, and on going near the Bodies, found they were dead; whereupon the Coroner was called, whoſe Inqueſt found them to be murdered by Perſons unknown. On this Alarm the two Criminals were ſuſpected, and purſued. James Annin was apprehended, and committed to the Goal at Burlington, and the other advertiſed from the Deſcription given by Annin, was apprehended, and in a few Days taken up by Order of the Mayor of the City of Philadelphia, and ſent to Burlington. The Examinations of the Priſoners, taken before they had an Opportunity of ſeeing each other, were read and by the Examinations it appeared that they went to the Indians with Intent to raviſh them, if they ſhould refuſe their Offers; each acknowledged that he was preſent at the Murder, but charged the giving the Stroke on the other, and acknowledged alſo taking the Goods; in this they perſiſted at the Bar. The Jury ſoon found them guilty, and they received Sentance of Death.

On Friday Noon they were hanged at the Gallows; they continued in denying the Fact, and charging it on each other. The Elder declared, he thought it a Duty to extirpate the Heathen, and juſt before they were turned off, M'Kinzy, the younger of the Men, acknowledged, that one of the Indians, on receiving the Blow from Annin, ſtruggled violently, and that he, to put her out of Pain, ſunk the Hatchet in her Head, but that they were both nocked down by Annin. The youngeſt of the Squaws was near the Time of Delivery, and had marks of ſhocking Treatment, which the moſt ſavage Nations on the Earth could not have ſurpaſſed.

A few of the principal Indians of Jerſy, were deſired to attend the Trial and Execution, which they did, and behaved with remarkable Sobriety.

Since our laſt Accounts have been received of the violent Proceedings of Ranſlear's Party at Nobletown, &c. and of the diſtreſſed Condition the Inhabitants were in. On Sunday the 19th of Auguſt a Party took Poſſeſſion of the Houſe of one Iſaac Spoor, and all that was therein, and informed ſaid Spoor that the Houſe was in New-York Government: This Houſe ſtands on a Grant of Land made by this Province, and has been a licenſed Houſe for a Tavern for many Years by our Court; it ſtands about 4 Miles Weſt of Great Barrington Meeting-Houſe, but within the Diſtrict of Egremont, near the Eaſt Part, and but a ſmall Diſtance from the Weſt Line of Great Barrington, and between two and three Miles Eaſt of the Line that was formerly run for a twenty Mile Line from Hudſon's River.—This Tavern the Party made their Head Quarters; a Deputy-Sheriff with one or two Perſons were admitted to paſs the Guards in the Evening, who, having obtained Leave from the Commanding Officer, levied a Warrant on Robert Ranſlear; upon this there was a terrible Bluſter, the Soldiers under Arms, all their Bayonets fixed, and confined the Sheriff, as alſo the Juſtice who went to endeavour to ſettle Matters, until almoſt Day-break: This alarmed the whole County; and in the Morning a great Number of People, with about 40 Stockbridge Indians, collected together, to give the Party Battle, but meeting with the Gentlemen who had been detained, it was happily prevented. The Regulars withdrew early in the Morning, and the People returned home.

We are alſo further informed, that the Party that had committed Hoſtilities at Egremont, had withdrawn beyond the twenty Mile Line from Hudſon's River, and returned ſome of the Cattle they had taken from the People, and promiſed to make reſtitution for all Damages they had done in Egremont; it is added, they are leaving Nobletown;—As to the Crops of the Poor People which belonged there, they are moſtly deſtroyed already.

THE Grounds and Rules of MUSICK explained: Or, An Introduction to the Art of SINGING by Note.
By THOMAS WALTER, A. M.

NEW-YORK, Sept. 4.

At the Special Court of Oyer and Terminer, which began at Poughkeepſey on the 29th of July, and held till the 14th Auguſt, for the Trial of Perſons concerned in the late Riots in Dutches-County; ſeveral Indictments were found for High-Treaſon; one for Burglary, a large Number for Riots. a few for Aſſaults and Batteries and other trivial Offences.

William Pendergh aſt, after a Trial of 24 Hours, wherein every reaſonable Indulgence was allow'd him, was by a Jury of ſome of the moſt reſpectacle Freeholders, found guilty of High-Treaſon: [it is ſaid in this, they differ'd from the Opinion of the Court, and were ſent back, but perſiſted in their Verdict.] He was ſentenced and order'd to be executed on Friday the 26th of September Inſtant. Several of the Rioters were fined, more or leſs according to the Nature of their Offences, two ſtood in the Pillory, and two were order'd to Impriſonment for a Time. They all expreſſed much Penitence, proteſted againſt ſuch riotous Proceedings for the Future, and exhorted the By-ſtanders to take Warning.

The Sheriff of Dutches County Mr. James Livingſton, has offer'd a good Reward to any Perſon inclined to aſſiſt at the Execution of Pendergaſt, and has promiſed to diſguiſe them ſo that they ſhall not be known, and ſecure them from Inſults.

We hear that on the Trial of Pendergh aſt, the Behaviour of his Wife was very remarkable, and greatly attracted the Notice of the Audience. During the whole long Trial, ſhe was ſolicitouſly attentive to every particular; and without the leaſt Impertinence or Indecorum of Behaviour, ſedately anxious for her Huſband, as the Evidence open'd againſt him ſhe never failed to make every Remark that might tend to extenuate the Offence, and put his Conduct in the moſt favourable Point of View; not ſuffering one circumſtance that could be collected from the Evidence, or tho't of in his Favour, to eſcape the Notice of the Court and Jury. And when he came to make his Defence, ſhe ſtood behind him, reminded him of, and ſuggeſted to him every Thing that could be mention'd to his Advantage. Her affectionate Aſſiduity fill'd every Obſerver with a tender Concern, and occaſioned one of the Council for the King to make a Motion to move her out of Court, leſt ſhe might too much influence the Jury. He was anſwer'd that ſhe neither diſturb'd the Court, nor ſpoke unreaſonably. He replied, that tho' ſhe ſhould not ſpeak at all, her very Locks might too much affect the Jury.—He was anſwer'd, that for the ſame Reaſon he might as well move that the Priſoner ſhould be cover'd with a Veil, leſt the Diſtreſs painted in his Countenance ſhould too powerfully excite Compaſſion. But it ſeems the Motion was needleſs, for tho' ſhe was not moved out of Court, the Jury brought in the Priſoner Guilty—When ſhe could do him no further Service at Court, ſhe immediately ſet out for York to ſolicit a Reprieve, and tho' above 70 Miles, returned in three Days, with Hopes of Succeſs—The Priſoner having been recommended by the Court and Jury to the King's Mercy. In ſhort the whole Behaviour of this unhappy Woman, was ſuch, as did Honor to her Sex and the Conjugal State.

When the terrible Sentence was pronounced on the Priſoner, he utter'd an ejaculatory Prayer to God for Mercy with ſuch Earneſtneſs, and look'd ſo diſtreſſed, that the whole Audience, even thoſe leaſt ſuſceptible of Compaſſion, were melted into Tears.

That the Priſoner ſhall be led back to the Place from whence he came, and from thence ſhall be drawn on a Hurdle to the Place of Execution, and there he ſhall be hanged by the Neck, and then ſhall be cut down alive, and all his Entrails and Privy Members ſhall be cut from his Body, and ſhall be burned in his Sight, and his Head ſhall be cut off, and his Body ſhall be divided into 4 Parts, and ſhall be diſpoſed of at the King's Pleaſure.

To the Printers of the Public Papers.

Meſſieurs,

AS many matters of low importance to the public, are frequently ſuffered to enter the preſs, methinks the following relation is highly worthy public and private notice, and if you will give the ſame a place in your papers as ſoon as poſſible, you will undoubtedly command univerſal attention; and may alſo be a motive to excite in every one a carefulneſs and vigilance, for the future, to exert the utmoſt in any emergency of the like nature.

On Thurſday the 14th inſtant, about the middle of the afternoon, as Mr. John Sturdivan, jun. in the upper part of Danbury, was working in his meadow about 50 rods S.E. of his houſe and in plain ſight, his child within doors about 3 years [illegible] old, being ſolicitous to go to his dada, and, as was uſual, obtained leave; and, as was ſuppoſed, went directly to his dada. [illegible]

[illegible] The child was found alive, and thanks be to God for the reſtoration! Oh, joyful words! how quick they flew thro' the multitude! They were immediately ordered to aſſemble together, on the tops of the mountains and in the vallies, to ſhout their joyful, loud huzzas, reſounding and proclaiming the good news, till the ſignal inſtantly reached the ears of the tender parents and relations, who, till then, were overwhelmed with diſtreſſing griefs and ſorrows, and it put a new ſong into their hearts, even thankſgiving to God, &c. And by the time the child was brought to its abode, the multitude was ſufficiently ſatisfied with the [illegible] man chooſing to depart till he had that day ſeen the ſalvation of God, &c. And here I think it proper to obſerve the ſentiments of the multitude, concerning the child's [illegible] at ſuch a diſtance as it was found, thro' ſuch an [illegible] wilderneſs. Some imagined it was bewilder'd and [illegible] ing wild as the beaſts of the field, [illegible] every difficulty, ſculking and eſcaping [illegible] of every thing it perceived approaching; but it [illegible] peared ſo in any ſhape, when diſcovered ; but was found glad when it perceived relief, ſtill calling upon its dada.—— Being concerned two days myſelf, & upon hearing many Indians reſorting to the Towns on the ſea ſide, to keep what they call a great ſabbath, & ſeveral of that ſort of people reſorting ſome time near by and in adjacent places, I gave it as my opinion that it was propable to me, that ſome of the cruel wretches, to pleaſe their devilish humour, had conveyed it at a remote diſtance, and left it to ſome inevitable fate ; and I could not be ſatisfyed with any other opinion. And now let us obſerve the good hand of providence in this doleful affair. The very day the child was found, ſeveral Indians from Newtown, which was near b , thro' a pretended concern, offer'd their aſſiſtance to find the child, but were never obſerved to be among the people, but only loitering about. Upon a ſuſpicion of Indians being miſchievous, the ſame day a pappouſe was examined at Reading, and by his confuſion and broken declarations, the ſuſpicion grew ſufficient to apprehend his father, who threatned to kill him and his mother if they revealed their knowledge of the affair. However, upon the whole he confeſſed that he and one Chree, a young Indian, found the child a little from home, near ſome buſhes which concealed them. They ordered the ſquaw and pappouſe to conceal themſelves till they returned. Then they convey'd the child near a mile W. from home, and ſtript it in a ſwampy place, and fixed his legs in the ground, pricked it with thorns under all its nails, and ſcourged it all over with briars, and threw bruſh over him, and there left him to periſh. But it ſeems thro' the vigilant diſpoſition of the people to find the child, the Indians were ſo terrified, that they moved the child ; if not it muſt have been ſooner found ; and doubtleſs they carried it acroſs the mountain ; for it appears impoſſible the child could get where it was found ; being unable in its beſt natural ſtrength, more eſpecially as it ſoon became weak thro' cold and nakedneſs, mortifications and wants ; and there is no doubt that if the Indians had found it firſt that day, they would have deſtroyed it. Two of the fellows were ſecured and tried at Fairfield, plead guilty, and were ſentenced to be whipt forthwith at the Gallows, with a Haltar round their Necks, and over the Gallows, impriſoned ſix weeks, and then to receive the ſecond part of the ſame tune, and return'd for ſix months more, and pay coſts, &c. The purport of every examination agrees with this relation ; and it is hoped a more effectual method than ever will be taken to deal with the blood-thirſty ſavages, who are extreamly perfidious revengeful and inhuman, &c. More might be added concerning the expences theyv'e often occaſioned to the goverments, but I ſubmit to leave that taſk to be performed by abler hands, and conclude myſelf a well-wiſher to the public. R. T.

"A ſhocking Affair happened the 26th of laſt Month, about three Leagues from hence. A Peaſent being in Love with a very handſome Girl, after having tried in vain every poſſible method to ſeduce her, ſeized upon her unawares in the Evening, and, as it is imagined, endeavoured to make her ſubmit to his Paſſion. The Girl was obſerved by ſome People at a Diſtance to run into a Wood with a View no Doubt, to eſcape from the Violence of the Fellow who followed her, and being unable to gain her to his purpoſe, he ſtabbed her ſeveral times with a Knife ; and perceiving that ſhe ſtill breathed, he firſt tore off all her Clothes, then ſtrangled her, and, it is preſumed, added another Act of Brutallity to that he had juſt committed. He afterwards cut down a great Number of Branches, with which he covered the naked Body and Clothes, and returned home the ſame Night. All poſſible Search was made for the unhappy young Woman for three ſucceſſive Days, and even her brutal Aſſaſin affected the greateſt Anxiety. So ſoon as the body was diſcovered, ſome Circumſtances appeared which gave ground to ſuſpect the real Author, and the Villain was accordingly apprehended ; ſince which he has behaved with great compoſure and has confeſſed the whole Affair."

It muſt be pleaſing to every Well-wiſher of this Province, to be informed that the Crops of Hay and Corn this Year have equalled the Productions of any Part of America or Europe, and that the Harveſt hath been uncommonly ſeaſonable.

Several Gentlemen of the Philadelphia Proprietors of Land in this Province, are lately returned from Piſton where their Grant lies, and are extremely well ſatisfied with the Soil and Situation, and intend carrying on that Settlement with Vigour and Alacrity.

We are aſſured that the Train of Artillery are ordered Home, and that another Company is daily expected here to relieve them.

By the Duke of Cumberland Packet, arrived at New-York; and the Captains Freeman and Marſhal at Boſton, there is the following Advices, viz.

A Letter from Pera, a Suburb of Conſtantinople, gives the following Account of the late Earthquake.—— It happened on the 22d, at Half an Hour after Five in the Morning, and laſted near three Minutes. Some ſay it was more violent than that which was in 1755, at Liſbon. Almoſt all the public Buildings are in Ruins. The Vizir's Houſe, which was built with Stone, and contained ſeveral hundred Perſons, is deſtroyed. All the People in it were killed, except a few who were taken out of the Ruins two Days after the Accident. Not more, however, than 8 or 9 hundred Perſons have loſt their Lives on the whole, altho' it was thought at firſt the Number would have amounted to ſeveral Thouſands. The firſt Shock was followed the ſame Day by 12 or 13 leſs ones, and including theſe, twenty-ſix have been counted within the Compaſs of a few Days.

Ratiſbon, June 30. They write from Vienna, that on the 23d of this Month, a Courier Extraordinary had arrived there from Conſtantinople, who not only brings a Confirmation of the Earthquake which happened there on the 23d of May laſt ; but according to his Report, and Diſpatches, this Earthquake has been much more violent, and the Damage more conſiderable than was at firſt reported. It is added, that the Conſternation there was the greater, as the Turks looked on this Event, as a Preſage of the happy Succeſs of Prince Heraclius.

June 2[illegible]. They write from Liverpool, that the eldeſt ſon of the King of Brack, a powerful Prince in the neighbourhood of Senegal, was to be ſent to England this Summer for his education.

July 10. Private Letters from Conſtantinople adviſe, that near all the Stone Buildings, in particular the Grand Moſque, the Old Seraglio, and the Palace of the Grand Vizir, have been entirely overthrown ; and ſome Accounts make the Number of People who periſhed, amount to upwards of 40,000. The Suburb of Pera, where the Miniſters, and in general all the Chriſtians reſide, ſuffered the leaſt. The Grand Signior, at the Time of the firſt Earthquake, was at one of his Summer Palaces, on the Banks of the Black Sea, about 18 Leagues from Conſtantinople.

They write from Jamaica, that the Governor of Cuba had refuſed the Engliſh Liberty to import any more African Negroes at the Havana, the French having engroſſed that whole Trade.

Commiſſions are come over from different Parts of America, to caſt a Number of Gold and Silver Medals, to perpetuate the Memory of repealing the Stamp-Act.

The laſt Letters from Naples ſay, that the Eruption of Mount Veſuvius ſtill continues, and the oldeſt Perſons living never remembered its having laſted ſo long.

July 12. It is very evident that France harbours no good intentions againſt England, as ſhe hath increaſed her navy ſo greatly, that ſhe hath now 80 ſhips of war, many of them very large, in the ports of Breſt and Toulon only. Such increaſe of the French navy is the ſtrongeſt proof that they intend to break with us again, as ſoon as they find a favourable juncture, ſince it cannot anſwer any other purpoſe. However, it is ſaid that ſome ſhips of war will be immediately ordered to cruiſe upon the French Coaſt, to watch the motions of their fleets.

It is ſaid that of 150 Men ſent out two Years and a Half ago to Gambia, in the Service of the African Company, on Governor O'Harra's Arrival, only two remained alive ; and of 70 at Senegal, only 17 are returned.

We are informed that the Giants found by Commodore Byron, meaſured from eight Feet and a Half to ten Feet in Heighth, & every Way Stout in Proportion. The Commodore made but ſhort Stay, as it was an incommodious Place for the Ship where he landed. All the Ship's Crew were ſworn to Secrecy, and particularly concerning what appeared to be the valuable Production of the Country.

Prince Ferdinand's retiring from the King of Pruſſia's Service is at preſent a Subject which not undeſervedly engages the Attention of the Public. By comparing Circumſtances with Events, the cauſes of the moſt important Incidents are frequently traced out ; but in this Caſe little is furniſhed to ruminate upon excepting uncertain Conjecture, and the Aſtoniſhment which ſuch an Event muſt neceſſarily create where every Thing ſeemed to promiſe ſo Diametrically to the contrary. It may be remembered, however, that about a Fortnight ſince, a great General, who commanded during the late War in Germany, was ſaid to have engaged in the Service of France. A few Months before that, Rumours were ſpread, that a great Quarrel had happened, at an Entertainment, between certain Members of the Royal Family at B——. How far either of theſe Circumſtances may be true, we preſume not to ſay. But ſuppoſing there to be any Foundation for them, we can no longer be at a loſs to gueſs at the Cauſes of this Reſignation, and that there muſt be ſome Diſguſt. The great Honours alſo lately paid to another Prince of the Serene Houſe of B——, afford but too much Room to fear that this Reſignation may be followed by a Second, eſpecially when it is conſidered that the Uncles Influence over the Nephew, has already proved ſuperior to parental Connection.

The Supreme Magiſtrates of Corſica to all Europe.—— The Genoeſe induſtriouſly ſpread a Report, that on the Death of our Chief, we ſplit into two parties, and muſt neceſſarily exterminate one another. It is true we could not have received a more fatal Blow ; but if our Cæſar has been aſſaſſinated, we ſhall not want an Anthony to revenge him ; and perhaps we ſhall find an Auguſtus to reſtore that Tranquility we ſo ardently long for. If Princes ſhould League together and take up Arms to haſten our final Ruin, we are both determined and ready to oppoſe deſpair to Force ; and however abandoned and overpowered by ſuperior Force, our martial Courage can never be extinguiſhed ; and we ſolemnly ſwear by the GOD who lives forever, that we will ſuffer ourſelves to be all maſſacred, rather than enter into any Negociation of Peace with the Republic ; and much leſs Submit to be her Subjects. To avoid therefore the being all aſſaſſinated, we ſhall fight for Victory, and if we fail of Succeſs, conſulting only our Deſpair, we ſhall voluntarily throw ourſelves into the Flames, like the unfortunate Saguntum, to ſhew that we make it an inviolable Law faithfully to keep our promiſes, and preſerve our Freedom.

She alſo ordered a daily Proviſion for the reſt of the Priſoners who ſtill remained confin'd, and ſeveral other Captives and poor Perſons have experienc'd her Humanity and Goodneſs.

Paragraph of a Letter dated London July 12, 1766.

"Yeſterday from Town I had the Pleaſure of Writing you by this Conveyance, and mentioned that all things in Adminiſtration were at Reſt ; but it ſeems nothing was leſs true ; for having Occaſion to go with Sir——, to Lord ——we were told that Mr. Pitt was ſent for Expreſs by his M———, and expected every Minute in Town, when a change of Miniſtry will certainly happen. What part his L——— will take is yet uncertain. It is not yet known who is to come in, but it is believed Mr. Pitt will nominate the D—— of G———, Lord S———e, and Lord B——l, to ſome Poſt of Adminiſtration."

A Gentleman from Philadelphia informs, that the Copies of the Letters of Mr. Hughes' Correſpondence, with the Miniſtry, &c. in England, relating to the Stamp-Act, publiſhed in the Philadelphia Journal of thurſday laſt, which were communicated by a noble Lord, had alienated the affection of Mr. Hughes's beſt Friends, and loſt him the whole Intereſt of the Friends or Quakers, and that he had ſued Mr. Bradford for publiſhing the Letters, in an Action of 1400l.

ON Tueſday the 3d of June laſt, Mr. Robert Rutlidge, a merchant of Prince Edward county, in Virginia, a worthy blunt man, of ſtrict honeſty and ſincerity, a man incapable of fraud or hypocriſy, ſpent the greateſt part of the day in Benjamin Moſby's tavern at Cumberland court-houſe, with ſeveral Gentlemen of his acquaintance, and was joined in the evening by Col. John Chiſwell. After ſome time had paſſed, Col. Chiſwell was talking in an important manner, and ſomewhat liberal of oaths ; upon which Mr. Rutlidge, who was intimately acquainted with him, and regarded by him as a friend, ſignified his diſapprobation, with leſs politeneſs perhaps than was due to a man of Col. Chiſwell's figure. Upon this Col. Chiſwell was extremely abuſive, and after calling Rutlidge a fugitive rebel, a villain who came to Virginia to cheat and defraud men of their property, and a Preſbyterian fellow, Rutlidge, who was then drunk, was provoked to throw wine out of his glaſs at Col. Chiſwell's face, ſome ſmall part of which did touch him. This was an indignity which perhaps men of honor ought to relent from any one, unleſs from an aggravated and abuſed friend, or a man intoxicated with liquor. Col. Chiſwell, who was then perfectly ſober, attempted to throw a bowl of toddy at Mr. Rutlidge, but was prevented by ſome of the company ; then he attempted to throw a candleſtick at him, but was prevented alſo in that ; and then he tried to ſtrike him with a pair of tongs, but he was likewiſe prevented in that. Upon which he ordered his ſervant to bring his ſword ; but as that was in another houſe, no one ſuſpected its being brought ; but on threatning to kill his ſervant if he did not comply, the lad went for the ſword, and delivered it to his maſter in the ſhed room. Upon Col. Chiſwell's re-entering the room, and going towards the chimney, and ſome of the company perceiving the ſword, one of them perſuaded him much to deliver it up, and approached towards him, Mr. Chiſwell went cloſe to the wall, and ſwore that he would run any man thro' the body who ſhould dare to come near him, or offer to take his ſword.

Then he ordered in an imperious tone that Rutlidge ſhould depart out of the room, as unworthy to appear in ſuch company ; and ſwore that if he did not immediately get out, he would kill him ; Rutlidge was very deſirous of remaining, and, hickupping, ſaid he had no ill will againſt Col. Chiſwell, and that he was ſure Col. Chiſwell would not hurt him with his ſword ; and when ſome of the company propoſed that Rutlidge ſhould be carried off and put to bed, others ſaid he ought not to be carried out, as he was not the intruder. However, Mr. Rutlidge was conducted by Mr. Joſeph Carrington to the door. Mean while, as he was conducted towards the door, Col. Chiſwell moved cloſe along the partition, about ſix feet, abuſing Rutlidge in the moſt opprobrious and affecting terms, cloſe to the wall was a table three feet five inches and a half in diameter, the neareſt part of which table was more than four feet diſtant from the partition ; to which Col. Chiſwell kept cloſe, with intention probably to prevent any one from getting behind him to deprive him of his ſword. The table was within leſs than three feet of the door. While Mr. Carrington was ſearching his pockets for the key of a room where he intended Mr. Rutlidge ſhould ſleep, and Mr. Rutlidge was ſtanding at the ſide of the door, and Col. Chiſwell at the ſame time continuing his abuſe, and concluding with the words Preſbyterian fellow, Mr. Rutlidge went from the door to the end of the table, repeating the word fellow. At the ſide of the table, ſeveral gentlemen were ſtanding, who would have prevented Mr. Rutlidge from going round it even if he had ſhowed a deſire ſo to do, and Mr. Carrington caught hold of him again, almoſt as ſoon as he had reached the table. Col. Chiſwell, ſeeing Mr. Rutlidge acroſs the table, went inſtantly from the wall to the table ; and with his ſword, or hanger, which I am informed was about two feet long, ſtabbed him thro' the heart acroſs the table. Mr. Thomſon Swann was cloſe to the table, with the breaſt of his coat, in conſequence thereof projecting over it ; and the ſword in its way paſſed through his coat, near the extremity of the third button hole from the bottom. Mr. Swann, upon ſeeing Col. Chiſwell advance, was going to ſeize the ſword to prevent miſchief. When Col. Chiſwell ruſhed up to the table, a gentleman, who had been for ſome time watching an opportunity to ſeize his arm or ſword with ſafety, ran up behind him, and caught hold of his arm ; but immediately he (Col. Chiſwell) told him that it was too late, and added, "He is dead, and I kill'd him." Mr. Rutlidge immediately ſunk down in the arms of Mr. Carrington, and inſtantly expired, without uttering one word, or ſhowing the leaſt emotion. Soon after Col. Chiſwell, with the greateſt calmneſs and deliberation, ordered his boy to take his ſword and clean it carefully, and rub it over well with tallow, leſt it ſhould ruſt. While poor Rutlidge was lying dead, Col. Chiſwell continued his abuſe, and ſome time after ſaid, "He deſerves his fate, damn him ; I aimed at his heart, and "hit it." After which he called for a bowl of toddy, and drank very freely ; ſo that before the juſtice of the peace, who was ſent for, made his appearance, he was ſomewhat intoxicated. Upon examining the gentlemen who were preſent, he was committed to the county goal. He ſhowed no ſign of concern next day, nor indeed for ſome time after. On the next day however, he enquired very kindly after Mr. Swann's health ; and ſaid he was apprehenſive that he had wounded him, as he had ſo ſmall a view of Rutlidge's body when he made the thruſt.—To all theſe circumſtances perſons of undoubted good characters and principles were witneſſes, more than one to every particular ; and I have not heard that the teſtimony of any perſon has deviated from what he conſtantly averred as fact on the occaſion, or in the leaſt differed from that of others.

By the inquiſition before the coroner, I am informed that it was found that Robert Rutlidge received his death by a ſword in the hand of John Chiſwell ; and the Examining Court refuſed admitting him to bail, and ordered him to be carried to the public goal to be legally tried. However, three judges of the general Court, out of ſeſſions, I am informed, were pleaſed to admit him to bail, without examining any one perſon who had been preſent at the ſhocking accident, or even ſeeing any of their depoſitions. Were theſe gentlemen right in ſuch proceedings ? Does it not appear an act of amazing partiality ? Would it not be proper and adviſeable for them to ſhow to the public ſome reaſon for this ſtep that may tend to remove the uneaſineſs which many ſuffer at preſent, from an apprehenſion that juſtice is perverted, and law trampled on ? They are honourable gentlemen, and prudent gentlemen ; and will, no doubt, be ſo kind as to take a little trouble to give ſatisfaction and eaſe to the public on this occaſion. The three judges of the general court, above mentioned, did indeed examine two perſons who were preſent at the examining court aforeſaid. Theſe two perſons, I believe, ſwore nothing but the truth ; but, did they ſwear the whole truth as above related ? Will not Mr. James M^{c}Doal, Mr. Joſeph Carrington's wife, Mr. Philip Tabb, and others, poſitively ſwear that they ſaw Col. Chiſwell make the fatal thruſt acroſs the table, as abovementioned ? Are there not many who will ſwear that, for a conſiderable time before, Mr. Rutlidge had ſhowed no diſpoſition to hurt Col. Chiſwell, and that he had no weapon offenſive or defenſive in his hand ? And is it poſſible that the three judges abovementioned could have admitted the criminal to bail, had they been properly acquainted with circumſtances of this diſmal affair.

On the next day however, he enquired very kindly after Mr. Swann's health; and ſaid he was apprehenſive that he had wounded him, as he had ſo ſmall a view of Rutlidge's body when he made the thruſt.—To all theſe circumſtances perſons of undoubted good characters and principles were witneſſes, more than one to every particular; and I have not heard that the teſtimony of any perſon has deviated from what he conſtantly averred as fact on the occaſion, or in the leaſt differed from that of others.

By the inquiſition before the coroner, I am informed that it was found that Robert Rutlidge received his death by a ſword in the hand of John Chiſwell; and the Examining Court refuſed admitting him to bail, and ordered him to be carried to the public goal to be legally tried. However, three judges of the general Court, out of ſeſſions, I am informed, were pleaſed to admit him to bail, without examining any one perſon who had been preſent at the ſhocking accident, or even ſeeing any of their depoſitions. Were theſe gentlemen right in ſuch proceedings? Does it not appear an act of amazing partiality? Would it not be proper and adviſeable for them to ſhow to the public ſome reaſon for this ſtep that may tend to remove the uneaſineſs which many ſuffer at preſent, from an apprehenſion that juſtice is perverted, and law trampled on? They are honorable gentlemen, and prudent gentlemen; and will, no doubt, be ſo kind as to take a little trouble to give ſatisfaction and eaſe to the public on this occaſion. The three judges of the general court, above mentioned, did indeed examine two perſons who were preſent at the examining court aforeſaid, Theſe two perſons, I believe, ſwore nothing but the truth; but, did they ſwear the whole truth as above related? Will not Mr. James M'Doul, Mr. Joſeph Carrington's wife, Mr. Philip Tabb, and others, poſitively ſwear that they ſaw Col. Chiſwell make the fatal thruſt acroſs the table, as abovementioned? Are there not many who will ſwear that, for a conſiderable time before, Mr. Rutlidge had ſhowed no diſpoſition to hurt Col. Chiſwell, and that he had no weapon offenſive or defenſive in his hand? And is it poſſible that the three judges abovementioned could have admitted the criminal to bail, had they been properly acquainted with circumſtances of this diſmal affair.

PHILADELPHIA, September 11.

A Letter from the Merchants in London trading to North-America to the Committee of Merchants in this City, dated June 13, 1766.

GENTLEMEN,

REFERING you to our former letters of the 28th of February and 18th of March, both which we hope you have long since received, we now incloſe three acts of Parliament which obtained the royal aſſent the ſixth inſtant, viz.

"An Act for indemnifying perſons who have incurred Penalties in America, on account of the Stamp-Act.

"An Act for repealing certain duties, and granting others in lieu thereof, and further regulating ſeveral branches of the American trade.

"An Act for eſtabliſhing certain ports in Jamaica and Dominica, for the more free importation and exportation of certain goods and merchandizes.

"The firſt will, doubtleſs, give you particular ſatisfaction, as compleating the repeal of the Stamp-Act: The other two, we conſider as the baſis of an extenſive ſyſtem of trade between Great Britain and her colonies, framed on liberal principles of reciprocal advantage, relieving the colonies from injudicious reſtrictions and ſevere duties, enlarging old, and opening to them new channels of commerce; and by ſecuring to Great-Britain an increaſing conſumption of her manufactures, and of conſequence, an extenſion of her navigation and revenue.

"You may be ſenſible, gentlemen, that from thoſe ſources have been derived the power, ſo happily exerted by this country on many occaſions to guard your religious and civil intereſts; we are therefore perſwaded that you will think it juſt and neceſſary to prevent, by every poſſible means, foreign ſtates from ſharing in the advantage of your commerce, and thereby depriving Great-Britain of the means to afford you future inſtances of her paternal protection.

"The conſideration that every degree of intercourſe between the Britiſh colonies, and the manufacturing countries of Europe, tends to ſtrengthen their navigation, and encreaſe their manufactures at the expence of our own, will, we are ſure, be a ſufficient motive to engage you heartily to carry into execution the clauſe of the regulation act inhibiting that intercourſe; this may effectually be done, if ſuch trade is held by the principal merchants among you, to be diſhonourable; the laws of reputation being ſtronger than any other; and we flatter ourſelves that your friends here will not, on any future occaſion, be made to bluſh by inſtances of its violation.

"We muſt obſerve that notwithſtanding the apparent neceſſity of new commercial laws, ſuch hath been the perſevering oppoſition to theſe ſalutary meaſures as to occaſion the loſs of much time, and to render it impracticable to obtain theſe trade acts in a ſtate of full perfection, for, altho' they are in themſelves very important, and far more than could be expected, yet, they are to be conſidered but as the great outlines of a plan to extend the national commerce; amendments will doubtleſs be found neceſſary, and muſt be adopted. In the mean time we perſuade ourſelves they will meet a ready obedience on your parts.

"It is incumbent on us to mention the happy union between the Weſt-Indian and North-American merchants, which has proved of great advantage in combating the oppoſition; it took place early in the ſeſſion, and for the general good, we ſincerely wiſh it always to ſubſiſt in its preſent cordiality.

"The regulation of paper currency is poſtponed, in order to communicate to the colonies, and take their opinions upon a ſcheme, for a general paper currency through America, which has been propoſed to the adminiſtration.

"The conſideration of permitting you to import wines, fruit and oil directly from Spain and Portugal, is alſo poſtponed.

"Nothing further remains unredreſſed which was recommended to us in your memorial; but the prohibition you are under from exporting bar-iron to foreign countries, a reſtriction, conſidered as beneficial to the iron manufactories of theſe kingdoms; to which, from good policy, reaſon and juſtice, a preference is due; and we beg leave to recommend your avoiding hereafter any applications, which may be conſtrued into the moſt diſtant means of interfering with manufactures of the mother country, either by furniſhing her rivals with raw materials, or by the public encouragement of ſimilar manufactures among yourſelves, no ſmall ſtrength having ariſen to your opponents, during the late ſtruggles from each of thoſe topicks.——In a word, the ſyſtem of great-Britain is to promote a mutual intereſt by ſupplying the colonies with her manufactures, by encouraging them to raiſe, and receiving from them all raw materials, and by granting the largeſt extention to every branch of their trade not interfering with her own.——

"Having now compleated, ſo far as it can be done this year, the important buſineſs for which we united in November laſt; we think it incumbent on us to repeat our ſenſe of the obligations the whole commercial intereſt of Great-Britain and America, is under, to the preſent adminiſtration to whoſe abilities, attention and perſeverance the progreſs made in adjuſting theſe great national points muſt be attributed, and, we hope, the good conſequences of theſe regulations, will tranſmit their names with honour to poſterity.

From the Pennſylvania Journal of September 4.

Meſſrs. W. and T. Bradford,—

The following copies of letters lately received from London, being very intereſting to the public, we beg the favour, that they may be made public through your free & impartial paper, which will oblige no ſmall number of your readers.

HAVING been confined to my bed twenty-five days paſt, with a violent diſorder, that was expected would have proved mortal, but thank God am now able to ſit up in bed, I ſhall attempt to give you a ſketch of not only my own conduct, but alſo that of the Preſbyterians and proprietary party here, relative to the Stamp-office.

In May laſt I received information, by a letter from Dr. Franklin, that he had recommended me for chief Diſtributor of Stamps in this province, and thus the matter reſted untill ſome gentlemen to the eaſtward received their commiſſions; whereupon mobs aroſe in ſeveral of the eaſtern provinces, and the officers were obliged to reſign. But as a prelude to the deſtruction and diſorder made by thoſe mobs, the printers in each colony, almoſt without exception, ſtuffed their papers weekly for ſome time before with the moſt inflamatory pieces they could procure, and excluded every thing that tended to cool the minds of the people, theſe meaſures they purſued, until the Preſbyterians in particular in every colony began to threaten the Stamp-Officers. And thoſe gentry in this province, about the beginning of September, began to be very noiſy, and ſome of them ſaid I ought to reſign, I gave them for anſwer, I had as yet no commiſſion, and therefore could not reſign what I had not. However about the middle of September it was reported that the Stamps would arrive in Capt. Friend, who was then expected, and theſe riotous gentry began to threaten they would deſtroy the Stamps as ſoon as they arrived. I therefore being deſirous as far as in me lay, to preſerve the Stamps, wrote, on the 17th, the letter (Nº. 1) to his Honour the Governor but received no anſwer, and as the Stamps did not arrive in Captain Friend, matters reſted until October and, when I received the paper (Nº. 2) being a note from Captain William Dowel, a tool of the party, and therefore I wrote my anſwer (Nº 3) to Mr. Dickenſon, owner of the ſhip, and on the next day I wrote my letter (Nº. 4) to his honor the Governor, but received no anſwer, and here matters reſted until Saturday the 5th of October, when I received information that the ſhip, with the Stamps was to come up to town that day, & that a mob would be collected by beating muffled drums through the ſtreets, and ringing the State-Houſe and Church bells muffled, which was accordingly done all the afterernoon, but at 2 o'clock the poſt arrived with the mail and packet, and among other things my Commiſſion, this the party ventured to alledge, becauſe there was a large packet for me: accordingly the mob collected, chiefly preſbyterians and proprietary emiſſaries, with [illegible] Allen's Son at their head, animating and encouraging the lower claſs.

About 3 o'clock the following perſons viz. James Tilghman, Eſq; Attorney at law, Meſſrs. Robert Morris, Charles Thompſon, Archibald Mc Call, John Cox, and William Richards, Merchants, and Mr. William Bradford, Printer, came to me on a deputation from a great number collected at the State-Houſe, to requeſt my Reſignation. I anſwered it is true I now have my commiſſion, but as two gentlemen, are bound for my performance in the ſum of 5000 l. I could not reſign unleſs they would indemnify my bail. Altercations on this head took up near an hour (Low as I was) and at laſt they ſaid, all that was expected of me was, that I would not put the act in execution in this province, until his Majeſty's further pleaſure was known, or until the act ſhould be put in execution in the neighbouring colonies; to this I thought proper to ſignify ſome diſpoſition to comply, becauſe I had many informations by my friends, that the Mob intended to proceed to the laſt extremities if I did not reſign: Upon this the deputation withdrew to conſult their aſſociates, and at ſix o'clock I received the paper (Nº. 5) being a peremptory demand. Thus the matter reſted until Sunday morning, when having recovered my ſpirits a little from the fatigue of that long altercation aforeſaid, I looked over the paper, and found more poſitive than what had been mentioned the day before, and therefore ſent for Mr. Charles Thompſon, one of the deputation, and aſked him if they were ſincere the day before or whether they came to wiredraw what they could firſt, and then force the reſt, becauſe I obſerved the paper ſent me, did not agree with the propoſition made to me, he ſaid he was ſincere, and could only anſwer for himſelf. I replied, well gentlemen, you muſt look to yourſelves, this is a high affair; he made anſwer thus, I do not know, but hope it will not be deemed rebellion. Indeed, Sir, I know no other name for it.----Well, ſays he, I know not how it may end, for we have not yet determined whether we will ever ſuffer the act to take place hear or not, and took his leave. On Monday morning, at 10, o'clock the whole deputation came, and I offered them the paper (Nº. 6) and after ſome conſultation among themſelves they objected to their names being inſerted: I ſaid, why ſure, gentlemen, you have not done a thing you are aſhamed to own. Not in the leaſt they ſaid, but there was no neceſſity for their names being inſerted, nor would they receive that reſignation, whereupon I ſaid to Mr. Tilghman, come Sir, take the pen and pleaſe yourſelf, for I ſee you are determined to be arbitrary; he then took the pen and formed the paper (Nº. 7) and when it was tranſcribing, I aſked them what they intended to do with the Stamps, as they had aſſumed the ſupreme power, in the province. They then looked at one another for a while, and ſeemed ſomewhat confounded, but at laſt Mr. Tilgham replied, we did not come prepared to ſpeak to that head; then another replied let Mr. Hughes take care of them, I anſwered, gentlemen, that cannot be, as you have now fixed matters, for was I to take the ſtamps into my care, I ſhould have your party come about my houſe & pull it down & deſtroy both me & them. Well, ſays another, let the Governor take care of them. Another then ſaid, perhaps, the Governor will call upon Mr. Hughes to put the act in execution; and when he declines, perhaps, the Governor will appoint an officer, and the act may take place.---Here a general pauſe enſued, but at laſt one and all cried out, let us ſee who will dare put the act in execution upon the Governor's appointment, we will take care of that. By this time the paper, (Nº. 7) was tranſcribed, and after I had ſigned it, they went away to proclaim it to their friends, and the next day I wrote the letter (Nº. 8) and received the under written verbal anſwer by my ſon.

[illegible] health at this time will not permit me to be more copious on this very ex[illegible] ſaid is ſufficient [illegible]

Perhaps their Lordſhips and you, gentlemen, may expect the Governor will exert himſelf on the occaſion, and ſtrengthen my hands, but this will not happen, for on the day that the mob were collecting, and after the drums began to beat, I am informed his honour left the city, and preſently after the Attorney General, who is recorder of the city left it alſo; whether the Mayor and chief Juſtice were out of the city I cannot ſay, but this is certain that, no one magiſtrate or public officer appeared abroad the whole day to diſcourage the mob, or to give the leaſt aid or protection. All therefore that I ſhall add to this head is, that if ever my hands are ſtrengthened ſo as it will be in my power to do my duty as chief diſtributor of the Stamps, I ſhall not fail to comply with the duties of my office in the ſtricteſt manner, & this I hope will ſufficiently ſave my ſecurities in their Lordſhips and your opinions, as it is now out of my power to diſcharge my duty, until the face of affairs are changed.

In paper (Nº. 7) you will obſerve the three Counties upon Delaware, included in my reſignation; the reaſon of which was, that on Sunday the 6th of October, a friend of mine privately ſent up a little Boy to inform me, that he had reaſon to believe a mob was uniting in thoſe Counties, and would ſoon be up at Philadelphia; this I knew would raiſe a ſecond mob here, and therefore I did that to prevent it and it has had the deſired effect.

I am now to acknowledge the receipt of a letter from the Secretary of the Stamp-Office, and alſo a bill of lading for [illegible] caſes and ſeven packs of Stamps for this province, excluſive of thoſe for New-Jerſey and Maryland; but there is neither invoice nor bill of parcels, nor any account of the prices the Stamped paper or parchment is to be ſold at, I have ſeen a printed paper ſaid to be the prices of the Stamps, &c. but as the bill of lading makes me liable to the freight, I ſhould be glad to know whether the freight is included in thoſe printed papers or not. If I had received the Stamps, I ſhould have been at a loſs on the firſt of November how to proceed; but as things now ſtand, there is time for my being fully informed, and eſpecially with reſpect to the invoice or bills of parcels, without which it is impoſſible for me to know what I am charged with at the Stamp-Office, and how far the Goods received agree with the charge.——

I am further to inform you, that I received in the packet ſent me by your Secretary, a bond, which in his letter he directed I ſhould execute before the Governor, or ſome other perſon of note, and ſend it back to the Stamp office by the firſt conveyance; which I ſhould have punctually complied with had I been in health, and had not our over-ruling gentry, the mob, thought fit to direct otherwiſe. However, I have the bond in my cuſtody, and whenever there is a proſpect of carrying the act into execution, ſhall not fail to execute the bond, and tranſmit it to the Stamp office by the firſt opportunity, and alſo do every thing in my power, faithfully to diſcharge my duty.

I am further to inform you, Gentlemen, that I am extremely obnoxious to the Governor and men in power, and that for no other reaſon, than that I have conſtantly, while I have been in the aſſembly, endeavored to promote the [illegible] intereſt and given oppoſition to [illegible] ſchemes that tended to [illegible] Majeſty's ſervice.

I am alſo unfortunate enough to be particularly hateful to the Chief Juſtice, becauſe I have charged him in the Houſe of Aſſembly with being a rebel upon his ſaying, that "if ever the government was changed, we ſhould find the King's little finger heavier than the Proprietor's loins." This declaration he made in the Houſe of aſſembly more than once, and I as often alledged, that his allegation tended to allienate the affection of the ſubject from the King, and therefore was treaſon, and that none but a rebel would be guilty of it. I alſo am particularly hateful to the proprietary party, becauſe it was my intereſt, aſſiduity and influence in the Houſe of Aſſembly, that enabled the province to ſend home Dr. Franklin to preſent our petitions for a change of government from proprietary to royal, which I hope is affected by this time.

Since writing the above, I am informed that Benjamin Shoemaker, Eſq; who is one of the people called Quakers, and alſo an Alderman of this city, met with the drummers as they were alarming the city, and took them to taſk, requiring to know by what authority they were endeavouring to raiſe a mob; they anſwered, if he would go to the State-Houſe, he might know. He then aſked who ordered them to beat about the ſtreets? they ſaid they had their orders from the Coffee-houſe. [N. B. kept by the beforementioned Mr. Bradford] Mr. Shoemaker then forbid them to proceed any further, and ſaid he would go immediately to the Mayor and have them committed; they anſwered, they could get the Mayor's orders when they pleaſed. But Mr. Shoemaker could not find the Mayor, nor any officer to aſſiſt him, and therefore was obliged to deſiſt, leaſt he ſhould draw the mob upon himſelf and family, and ſo have his houſe pulled down.

If ſome rule and order does not take place in America, I am very ſure that every perſon who has been named to the Stamp office muſt leave North-America ſhortly, or they and their families and fortunes will fall a ſacrifice to the deluded populace.

Common juſtice calls upon me to ſay, the body of people called Quakers ſeemed diſpoſed to pay obedience to the ſtamp act, and ſo do that part of the Church of England and Baptiſts that are not ſome way under proprietary influence. But Preſbyterians and proprietory minions ſpare no pains to engage the Dutch and lower claſs of people, and render the royal government odious, but at the ſame time profeſs great loyalty to the beſt of kings, and yet inſinuate, that his immediate government is intolerable. If his Majeſty and his Miniſters knew the pains taken by the proprietary partizans, to give a wrong bias to the minds of his Majeſty's ſubjects, I am confident they would not ſuffer the powers of government to remain ſix months in the hands of any proprietor on the continent. Neither ought the powers of government to be lodged in any private perſon, it being diſadvantageous to both his Majeſty and Subjects.

I ſhall conclude with the following obſervation, viz. That if Great Britain can or will ſuffer ſuch kind of conduct in her colonifts to paſs unpuniſhed, a man need not to be a prophet, nor a ſon of a prophet, to ſee clearly, that her empire in North-America is at an end, for I dare ſay theſe mobing gentry will immediately proceed to other extravagancies, as they will then begin to think their united power irreſiſtable.

That God of his infinite goodneſs may direct the councils and meaſures of his Majeſty and his miniſters, to that which may be beſt for Great-Britain and North-America, is, and ſhall be the conſtant prayer of,

Gentlemen,
Your moſt obedient, and humble Servant.

(N°. [illegible]) Philadelphia Sept. 17th, 1765.

“As great riots and diſturbances has happened in ſome of the neighbouring colonies, occaſioned by a diſlike the people have to the Stamp-Act, and it being reported that the Stamped-Papers, &c. for the province may be expected in a little time, and as his Majeſty's revenue is deeply intereſted in the preſervation thereof, I think it my duty to acquaint you, that notwithſtanding of any reports ſpread of my being named the officer for this province, that I have not received either bond, commiſſion, nor any other information whatever, of my appointment from the Stamp-Office or the Lords of the Treaſury, and therefore I can have no pretention whatever to take charge of the Papers, ſhould they arrive. This information I have thought neceſſary to give you, that you may take ſuch meaſures in the premiſes, as you ſhall think conſiſtent with your duty and judgment.”

To the Honorable) I am, Sir, John Penn, Eſq;) Your moſt obedient, Lieut. Governor) Humble ſervant, of Pennſylvania) JOHN HUGHES.

SIR,

“Mr. Dickenſon is in town, from London, and the ſhip Charlotte is at New-Caſtle and do not chuſe to bring her up, till you give orders about the Stamp-paper, as ſhe is a valuable ſhip.” WILLIAM DOWELL.

I pray ſend an anſwer per bearer.

To Mr. John Hughes,

(N°. 3) Philadelphia, 5 o'clock, 2 October 1765.

Mr. Dickenſon,

“I received your kind notice by Mr. Bradford, and for anſwer am to inform you, that I have not received from the Lords of the Treaſury, nor from any other perſon appointed by his Majeſty, any commiſſion or public information of my being the Stamp-officer for the province of Pennſylvania; and therefore cannot pretend to any right to take charge of theſe papers, nor ſhould I were they now at the wharf. The Governor is the officer of the crown, whoſe duty it is to ſecure thoſe papers, to him I refer you for directions how to proceed in the premiſes; and I make no doubt but his honour the Governor will take care to ſee that the papers are landed in a place of ſecurity, and there kept ſafe until ſome perſon, properly commiſſioned, ſhall appear to demand them. Signed by order of my father, JOHN HUGHES, Jun.

SIR,

“I incloſe you a letter I received laſt evening from Mr. William Dowell, by which I underſtand, that the Stamped Papers are arrived at New-Caſtle, in the ſhip Charlotte; that the owner of the veſſel does not care to order his ſhip into the port while theſe papers are on board, leaſt ſome violence ſhould be done to her; and as I have not the leaſt power from the Lords of his Majeſty's Treaſury, or any other public Board, authorizing me to receive them, and as his Majeſty's revenue is intimately concerned in their preſervation, I thought it my duty to give you this information, that you might take ſuch meaſures therein as your prudence ſhould ſuggeſt.”

I am, Sir, yours,
JOHN HUGHES.

To John Penn, Eſq; (N°. 5)

“A great number of the citizens of Philadelphia aſſembled at the State-houſe [illegible] demand of Mr. John Hughes, diſtributor of Stamps for Pennſylvania, that he [illegible] give them aſſurance under his hand, that he will not execute that office, and [illegible] that he will give them a fair candid and direct anſwer by Monday next, [illegible] o'clock, when he will be waited on for that purpoſe.”

Saturday, October 5th, 1765.

(N°. 6) Philadelphia, monday morning, 7th October, 1765.

“Whereas I was applied to on Saturday laſt, about three o'clock in the afternoon, by the following gentlemen, viz. James Tilghman, Eſq; Attorney at law, Meſſrs. Robert Morris, Charles Thompſon, Archibald McCall, John Cox, and William Richards Merchants, Mr. William Bradford, Printer, who aſſured me they were ſent by a great number of people then aſſembled at the State Houſe, in order to requeſt me to reſign the Stamp-office, and after ſome converſation on the Subject. Mr. Robert Morris and ſome others declared, that it was not expected nor deſired that my reſignation ſhould be any other than, the not excepting the office, and declining every ſtep or meaſure that ſhould tend to put the Stamp-Act into execution, until his Majeſty's further pleaſure ſhould be known, or until the act ſhould be generally carried into execution in the neighbouring colonies: And if that ſhould happen, I was then at liberty to do as I thought proper; and whereas about ſix o'clock the ſame evening, a paper was ſent me by ſome of the ſame gentlemen, in behalf, as I underſtand, of all thoſe collected at the Sate-houſe as aforeſaid, declaring, that a great number of the citizens of Philadelphia, aſſembled at the State-houſe, do demand, of Mr. John Hughes, diſtributor of Stamps for Pennſylvania, that he will give them aſſurance under his hand, that he will not execute that office, and expect that he will give them a fair, candid and direct anſwer by Monday next, at ten o'clock, when he will be waited on for that purpoſe.”

Saturday, October the 5th, 1765.

“I do therefore return for anſwer, to thoſe gentlemen, and all their aſſociates, that I have not hitherto taken any ſtep tending to put the late act of Parliament in execution in this province, and that I will not either by myſelf or deputies, do any act or thing that ſhall have any tendency to put the ſaid act into execution in this province, until his Majeſty's further pleaſure ſhall be known, or until the ſaid act ſhall be put into execution in the neighbouring colonies; and this I am determined to abide by, unleſs either the Governor or commander in chief of this province for the time being, ſhall call upon me to execute the ſaid act.”

“And whereas my commiſſion includes the three counties of New-Caſtle, Kent, and Suſſex upon Delaware, I do therefore hereby voluntarily inform the good people of theſe counties, that no act of mine ſhall, either directly or indirectly, involve them into any difficulties with reſpect to the ſaid Stamp-Act, before the ſame ſhall take place in the neighbouring colonies, or until his Majeſty's future pleaſure ſhall be known, or until the Governor or commander in chief for the time being of thoſe counties ſhall call upon me as aforeſaid to execute the ſaid Act.” (Copy) JOHN HUGHES.

(N°. 7) Philadelphia Monday Morning, 7th October 1765.

“Whereas about ſix o'clock on Saturday evening laſt, a paper was ſent to me, expreſſing that a great number of the citizens of Philadelphia, &c. (This paper of reſignation, was publiſhed verbatim, in the public papers in October laſt.)

(N°. 8) Philad. Tueſday Morning, October 8th, 1765.

SIR,

“I make no doubt but you have heard that a great number of people were collected at the ſtate houſe on Saturday laſt, by cauſing muffled drums to beat thro' the ſtreets of the city, and by ringing the State-Houſe bell muffled, and by directing all enquirers to repair to the State-Houſe for information and that after the people were collected, a deputation was ſent to me, demanding my reſignation of the office of chief diſtributor of Stamps for this province; and I am well informed, that great numbers of the ringleaders and promoters of this meeting, declared and vowed deſtruction to my perſon and property, if I refuſe to gratify them in their demands.”

My reſignation is accordingly made, and I beg you will be ſo kind as inform me where the Stamps are depoſited, &c. JOHN HUGHES.

The Governor returned the following verbal anſwer,

NEW-HAVEN, September 15.

ON Wedneſday laſt was the anniverſary Commencement at Yale-College in this Town, when 59 young gentlemen received the Honours of College, viz.

BACHELORS of ARTS.

MASTERS of ARTS.

Daniel Leonard, Joſiah Quincy, and Joſiah Dana, from Cambridge; Jeſſe Roots, from New-Jerſey; Hezekiah Biſſel, James Eells, Timothy Stone, Jonathan Landon, Vine Elderkin, Ebenezer Gray, Ephraim Judſon, Hezekiah Ripley, Ruggles Kent, Joſeph Trowbridge, Samuel Munſon, Ebenezer Baldwin, Stephen Mix Mitchell, David Ingerſoll, Eliſha Rexford, Joſeph Deniſon and Nathan Tuttle.

The Commencement was attended on by a crouded Aſſembly, who were highly entertained with the Exerciſes of the Day, which were very decently and ſuitably conducted. Beſides what is uſual on ſuch Occaſions, there was exhibited an Engliſh Oration in Praiſe of Liberty, as alſo a forenſic Diſpute in Engliſh.

The rev. Preſident being determined to reſign the important Office, in which he has ſo long ſerved God and his Generation, with unparallell'd Fidelity and Diligence, concluded the Exerciſes with a very pertinent and pathetic Latin Oration, which, for its peculiar Elegance and Dignity, merited and obtained the Attention and Approbation of the learned and judicious Audience; who could not but be much affected with the parting Speech of one, who they knew had been very greatly inſtrumental in promoting the noble Cauſe of Religion and Learning, and whoſe ſuperior Underſtanding and Knowledge had very much exalted the Honour and Reputation of the Academy over which he preſided.

To gratify the Public here follows a rough Tranſlation of the Preſident's Valedictory Speech. It may be reaſonably expected that a Tranſlation haſtily drawn, is not ſo beautiful as the Original.

SINCE it is the Faculty of Reaſoning that moſt highly exalts Mankind above the Brutes, it is neceſſary that Schools and Colleges be erected, in which this noble Faculty may be enlarged by Exerciſe and Practice, and rendered accurate and ſagacious in the higheſt Degree; eſpecially that the human Mind may have the cleareſt Conceptions and moſt ſublime Ideas of the divine Nature, and be fitted and prepared for celeſtial Felicity. For this Purpoſe this religious School was founded and erected by our Anceſtors, that ſelect Youth might be educated for the Function of the Goſpel-Miniſtry.---Since I have had the Honour of preſiding over this Academy, I have been greatly delighted in ſeeing it increaſe in Edifices, Inſtructors and Students, and in almoſt every kind of uſeful and pollite Literature; eſpecially that it has, for a long Time, annually produced ſo many ſhining Lights in the Church, and firm Pillars in the Civil State: whereof this Aſſembly of Reverend Divines, and Gentlemen well-ſkilled in political and military Affairs, is a moſt clear and ocular Demonſtration. But ſuch has always been the State of this College, as that I have always been involved in more Care, Buſineſs and Labour than is proper for one Man, or uſual with other Preſidents; which Labour for the good of College, I have, with the greateſt Pleaſure and Cheerfulneſs, gone through for almoſt twenty-ſeven Years; but being now ſomewhat advanced in Age, and overpowered by thoſe Fatigues, I am very deſirous of the Sweets of Retirement and a private Life; and therefore moſt freely reſign my public Office. I have long enough acted a public Part in Life. I have had of Honour enough, of Burden, by far too much---with a moſt ardent Deſire and Endeavour to promote the Honour and greateſt Emolument of this Society; eſpecially that the Minds of young Men might be repleniſhed with the Principles of true Religion.---And now I pray God, that the religious Foundation of this Society, eſtabliſhed upon the ſacred Scriptures and our Confeſſion of Faith, may be preſerved ſafe and pure to the lateſt Poſterity. And my Reverend Brethren, to whom is committed the Care and Authority of this Academy, I beſeech and even charge you, that you do not, on any Pretence whatever, turn aſide from the Way of Orthodoxy; and that you never chooſe a Preſident or Fellow, wh[illegible] dulgence or want of Care, any Corruption may ſteal into this ſacred Fountain, & thence into the Churches. May Yale-College continue long and flouriſh, and in the Light thereof may our Churches always rejoice! Farewel my Reverend Brethren! Adieu ye Lights of the Church! and all of you who have been educated in this Seminary of Learning! Shine more and more, in Church and State! --- Laſtly, I bid you one and all Farewel. May you be happy to all Eternity!

After this the Reverend Fellows paſs'd & enter'd the following Vote, as a ſtanding Teſtimony of their Reſpect and Gratitude to the Reverend Preſident,

“WHEREAS the Rev'd Mr. THOMAS CLAP Preſident of this College, at our laſt Meeting, was pleaſed to ſignify to this Corporation, that; conſidering his advanced Age, and that his State of Health was leſs firm than heretofore, and his long fatiguing Service here; he deſired to reſign his Office of Preſident, & enjoy the Sweets and Comfort of Retirement, during the Remainder of his Life; the Corporation, being much affected with Concern on Account of the Difficulties and dark State the College ſeems like to be under, upon the Preſident's Reſignation, have earneſtly deſired his Continuance in his Office, if he could conſiſtently with his Health and Eaſe of his Mind: But the Preſident remaining fixed in his Deſire of Reſignation, the Corporation find themſelves obliged, with Grief, to accept of it, and do accordingly accept of the Preſident's Reſignation. But think themſelves bound to return their ſincere and hearty Thanks to him, for his great, good and long Service in this College, which he has governed and inſtructed with great Diligence, Zeal and Faithfulneſs for the Courſe of many Years, and with great and extraordinary Oeconomy & Frugality managed the Concerns of it, and the building the new College, and Chapel. And we heartily wiſh him a happy Repoſe and a Glorious and Abundant Reward in the World above, with Jeſus and the Spirits of the Juſt made perfect.”

The Reverend Meſſieurs WELLES, of Stanford, DAGGET, of this Town, LOCKWOOD, of Weathersfield, and COOPER, of Boſton, have been mentioned, as Succeſſors to the Reverend Mr. CLAP.

Meſſieurs Ebenezer Baldwin, of Norwich, Stephen Mix Mitchell, of Weathersfield, and Job Lane, of Mansfield, are appointed Tutors of Yale-College.

On Thurſday laſt, between eleven and twelve o'clock, a terrible ſurf began, which continued all day, inſomuch, that all buſineſs on the Bay was obliged to be ſuſpended; and, as a ſoutherly wind was apprehended, the ſmall Craft quitted the road and ſtood to ſea. We hear of no damage being done, except a boat and a canoe being ſtove. Yeſterday, the ſurf being much abated, moſt of the ſmall veſſels returned.

Philadelphia, September 11.

Thurſday laſt arrived here capt. Marſhal from Antigua, by whom we have advice, that on the fifteenth of Auguſt they had a ſmart gale of Wind at Antigua, which drove a ſhip from her anchors and obliged to put to ſea, but was got back again without damage. The 17th of Auguſt a ſloop belonging to Antigua, arrived at St. John's, from the Grenades, who met with two or three wrecks on her paſſage, but knew not what they were; ſhe alſo gave account of a violent hurricane at Guadaloupe and Martinico, whereby fifty or ſixty veſſels were drove on ſhore, and others obliged to put to ſea, ſome of which overſet.

Lord Temple, firſt Lord of the Treaſury, with a new Board; Duke of Grafton and Mr. Pitt, Secretaries of State; Lord Shelburne, Secretary for the Plantations, a new office; Lord Halifax, firſt Lord of Trade, with a new Board; Lord Littleton, Preſident of the Council; with ſeveral other Alterations.”

“What was ſaid reſpecting Mr. Pitt's coming into the Miniſtry in the Papers of this Morning, was generally confirmed at Noon, with this additional Circumſtance, that the Miniſtry all reſigned Yeſterday after the Levee was over; at which were preſent her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Amelia, her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Dowager of Wales, and the reſt of the Royal Family.

“The Occaſion of the Reſignation is ſaid to ariſe from their not conſenting to be dictated to; but whether Lord B— or Mr. P—, or both, is not yet tranſpired.—They would have willingly ſtaid in, and ſerved their King and Country to the beſt of their Abilities; but as they were not thought ſufficient, they choſe rather to reſign than be Tools to any particular Perſons, not ſuperior to themſelves.”

It is bounded on two Rivers, the one Delaware, the other called Popaghton; a large Quantity of low Land on each River; and there is a large Brook, and two ſmaller, runs through it, very convenient for Mills of any Sort, as Delaware is Navigable to the aforeſaid Tract.——The Patent is near fifty Years old, and a good Title will be given. NUMB. 9

BOSTON, Sept. 22.

Laſt Saturday afternoon Capt. Conſtant Freeman arrived here in a ſhip from Briſtol in 6 weeks by whom we have the following late and important ADVICES from LONDON, viz.

From the London Gazette.

St. James's, July 30, 1766.

THE King has been pleaſed to grant unto the Right Hon. William Pitt, and the heirs male of his Body lawfully begotten, the dignities of Viſcount and Earl of the Kingdom of Great Britain, by the name, ſtile and title of Viſcount Pitt of Burton Pynſent in the county of Somerſet, and Earl of Chatham in the county of Kent.

His Majeſty in council was this day pleaſed to declare the right hon. Robert Earl of Northington, Lord Preſident of his Majeſty's moſt honorable privy council; and his Lordſhip took his place at the board accordingly.

His Majeſty in council was this day graciouſly pleaſed to deliver the Great Seal to the right hon. Chales Lord Camden; whereupon the oath of Lord High Chancellor was by his Majeſty's command, adminiſtred to his Lordſhip.

His Majeſty having been pleaſed to deliver the cuſtody of the Privy Seal to the right hon. William Earl of Chatham, the oath of Keeper of the Privy Seal was this day adminiſtred to him; and his Lordſhip took his place at the Board accordingly.

St. James's Aug. 2. His Majeſty has been pleaſed to appoint his Grace Auguſtus Henry Fitzroy Duke of Grafton, the right hon. Charles Townſhend, Thomas Townſhend, George Onſlow, and Pryſe Cambell, Eſqrs, to be his Majeſty's Commiſſioners, for executing the Office of Treaſurer of his Majeſty's Exchequer.

The King has been pleaſed to grant unto the right hon. Charles Townſhend the Office of Chancellor, and alſo the Office of Under-Treaſurer of his Majeſty's Exchequer, in the room of the right hon. William Dowdeſwell.

This day the Spaniſh ambaſſador had a private audience of his Majeſty, to notify the death of the Dowager Queen of Spain. Thus far Gaz.

LONDON.

Beſides the above promotions in the Gazette, the following are conſidered as authentic:—Admiralty, Mr. John Yorke reſigned; Sir George Young appointed in his ſtead-Sir Eardley Wilmot Chief Juſtice of the court of common pleas. Colonel Barre, Mr. James Grenville, and Mr. Oſwald, Joint Vice Treaſurers of Ireland: Lord Sackville goes out.—Earl Dartmouth, firſt Lord of Trade, reſigned: Offered to Mr. Dowdeſwell, but refuſed.—Lord North, nominated to be Joint-paymaſter, the other half offered to Mr. Dowdeſwell, but nobly refuſed. A letter has been ſent to Mr. Stuart Mackinzie in Scotland, offering him the Privy Seal, of that kingdom, and there is little doubt but he will accept it.-------No other changes will be made.

It is now well known for a fact that theſe great political changes have been brought about by Lord B—te aſſiſted by the Earl of N—th—n.

Aug. 2. Thurſday ſome diſpatches were ſent off to the hon. Francis Bernard Eſq; Governor of the province of Maſſachuſets Bay.

On Monday laſt General Murray arrived in town from Quebec.

Admiral Tyrrel died at ſea, nine days after he left Antigua, being the 27th of June; and, by his own deſire was flung overboard on the 28th.

Aug. 5. We hear the exportation of proviſions from Ireland, to the foreign colonies will ſoon be laid under ſome particular reſtrictions.

Care has been taken to tranſmit to the colonies the moſt early intelligence of the late great changes in order to prevent bad impreſſions

It is ſaid a ſtop is put to the making of a ſtatue, which was intended to be erected to the honour of a great perſonage.

John Smith Eſq; of Comb-Hay, in Somerſetſhire has offered himſelf a candidate to repreſent the city of Bath, in the room of the Earl of Chatham.

Nothing can equal the ſurpriſe and conſternation of the inhabitants of Bath, on finding the news confirm'd of the (late) great commoner's accepting a Peerage. Many perſons who had treaſured up his ſpeech relating to the American ſtamp-act immediately conſigned it to the flames; and we hear that at ſeveral places in the country, bells rang muffled on the occaſion.

We hear that the Goverment of Weſt-Florida is conferr'd on Alexander Duncan, Eſq; and that Lord Frederick Campbell is appointed to the Government of Nova-Scotia, in the room of Montague Wilmot, Eſq; deceaſed.

A correſpondent at the weſt end of the town, writes thus: "upwards of three hundred new brooms are preparing with all expedition to ſweep the Augean ſtable clean."

They write from Glaſgow that the bounty obtained on the Merchants importation of American timber, will this year amount to 5000l.

According to the laſt advices, the number of perſons killed and wounded in the late Earthquake at Conſtantinople, amounts to ten thouſand.

A ſcheme is ſaid to have been communicated to a great man in power, which will benefit the revenue 300,000l. annually, without the impoſition of a ſingle tax.

Aug. 7. Notwithſtanding people may think, they have ſufficient cauſe to ſuſpect the Patriotiſm of a certain great man, yet, for many ſtrong reaſons, improper to be divulged at preſent we are firmly perſuaded his conduct will convince them at the meeting of Parliament, that the P—ge hath not in the leaſt diminiſhed the zeal or integrity of the Patriot.

We hear that a Spaniſh war is talked of, and that a certain nobleman has adviſed (as he did upon a former occaſion) to ſend a fleet to Cadiz, to demand a categorical anſwer, with reſpect to some part of the behaviour of Spain ſince the late peace, about which a memorial is now preparing, in the Oliverian ſtile, to which no evaſive anſwer will be received.

It is expected that a categorical anſwer will be demanded from the States-General of the united provinces, relating to an affair of the utmoſt conſequence to this kingdom.

On Saturday night four Indian chiefs, and three Indian women arrived in town from New-England. It is ſaid their buſineſs here is to complain againſt ſome Dutch ſettlers near Albany, for encroaching on their lands, and driving them from their plantations, which encroachments are repreſented to contain 400 ſquare miles.

Yeſterday there was a great council at St. James's which did not break up till paſt four o'clock.

The ſame day William DeGrey, Eſq; was ſworn his Majeſty's Attorney General; as was alſo —— Willis, Eſq; his Majeſty's Solicitor-General.

We are informed that the cities of London, Bath and many other corporations in this Kingdom intend to ſolicit from the heirs of a certain departed patriot the return of the golden boxes, in which they preſented the Freedoms of their reſpective corporations to the ſaid Gentleman, before his late deplorable deceaſe.

It is now aſſured, notwithſtanding the authority of the Gazette, that the title of a certain great commoner will not be Earl of Chatham, but that of Earl of Bath.

It is ſaid that ſome other patents are preparing for perſonages, whom the favorite has thought proper to advance to like honors.

The King of Pruſſia, according to private letters from the continent, is abſolutely deprived of his reaſon. The fit of inſanity ſeized him one day as he was walking with his brother prince Henry at Potſdam; he caught a firelock from one of his guards, and preſented it at the prince, but happily was prevented from diſcharging it; ſince which he has been confined under the care of ſeveral phyſicians. It is added that if he does not ſhortly recover, the Prince Royal will take upon himſelf the goverment of the kingdom.

INTELLIGENCE EXTRAORDINARY. Laſt Thurſday the wind blowing freſh at North, the Patriot Pitt, formerly in the goverment ſervice, ſunk at Chatham, the carpenter reports, that her timbers had been much out of repair, but having been in Chatham-dock, and often hove down lately, it was imagined ſhe had been pretty tite again. It is not certainly known how the accident happened ſome ſay the captain ſaw a light at Chatham, which dazled his eyes; others affirm, that the pilot who was a Scotchman, ran him aſhore on purpoſe; ſhe now lies in a miſerable condition, with her head juſt above water, her upper-works greatly decayed, and it is imagined ſhe will be totally loſt.

HALIFAX, Auguſt 28.

On Fryday laſt arrived here in his Majeſty's Ship Launceſton, Philip Durrel, Eſq; Vice-Admiral of the Blue, and Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's Ships and Veſſels in North-America.

By the above Ship came his Majeſty's Commiſſion appointing the Hon. Michael Francklin, Lieut. Governor, and on Saturday laſt he was ſworn in at the Council-Chamber, when his Honor took upon him the Command of this Province accordingly.

The ſame day Admiral Durrel being dangerouſly ill, was bro't on ſhore to the Lieut. Governor's Houſe, where he died on Monday Evening, much regretted by the Navy and the Inhabitants of this Colony, to whom he was well known. By this unhappy event his Majeſty has loſt a good officer, for in the execution of his Duty, he was brave, vigilent, active, and juſt; and in private life, he was affable and ſincere.

On Monday laſt arrived in this harbour, four tranſports, having on board the 14th regiment, commanded by Lieut. Col. Dalrymple, who, we learn, are to remain here till further orders from General Gage at N. York.

BOSTON, September 22.

Laſt Saturday departed this Life, in an advanced Age, Mrs. Hannah Trecothick, Mother of Barlow Trecothick, Eſq; of London.—Her Funeral is to be on Wedneſday next, at Four o'clock Afternoon.

Paragraph of a Letter from London.

"Mr. PITT is undoubtedly a man of ſpirit, and, from his popularity, is able to do great things. We ſhall now ſee what figure he will again make at the head of affairs, as it is moſt certain he is capable of doing more for his country, than any other man alive:—To our enemies his very name is terrible; and at home ſuch ſavings may be made, and ſuch ſchemes may be carried into execution, as might be of infinite ſervice in leſſening our enormous debt, which is of the laſt importance; For the French carried on the laſt two years of the war againſt our funds, imagining we ſhould never be able to raiſe money to continue it, but they found themſelves miſtaken."

Paragraph from another Letter, Aug. 5.

"Laſt week died, raving mad, the renowned Lady Popularity: all her friends and acquaintance are inconſolable, eſpecially the lovers of turbulence, faction, and diſcord: Her death was occaſioned by a blow given her in the back of her head by a Scotch-man, which fractured her ſkull.

"Letters from Germany contradict the report of Pr. Ferdinand's entering into the ſervice of France."

Captain Peter Wells who arrived here on Thurſday laſt from a Whaling Voyage, took up a Schooner the 16th of Auguſt, in Lat. 52. 20 N. with neither Sails nor Running Rigging, which had three Men on Board, who had been taken by the Eſkamaux Indians, in Eſkamaux-Bay, the 3d of July laſt; the Captain and two others were killed, and theſe three wounded, but got aſhore.—The next day the Indians went off, when theſe Men came down, and the Mate ſwam aboard; he then made a Raft for the others to come on board alſo; ſoon after which they got ſome Powder and Shot, and loaded two Swivels, to be in Readineſs leaſt they ſhould be again attack'd. The Morning after the Wind coming fair, they were preparing to quit the Harbour, and had weigh'd one Anchor, but before they weigh'd the other, there appear'd 7 Shallops in Sight, and 7 Canoes before them; they came ſo near as to fire ſmall Arms on board the Schooner; but on the Mate's firing a Swivel, which unluckily ſet a Barrel of Powder on Fire and burnt him very much; and the Indians hearing ſuch a Noiſe, and ſeeing ſo much Fire, went off. The Schooner belong'd to Caſco-Bay, but we have not heard the Captain's Name,—Capt Wells meeting a Veſſel bound to Caſco-Bay, put the M on board, where they doubtleſs are arriv'd.

We hear from Dutcheſs county, that the day after Mr. Pendergraſt received the Reprieve reſpiting his Execution till his Majeſty's Pleaſure ſhould be known, a Number of Men, without the leaſt Tumult or previous Notice, ſuddenly aſſembled at the Goal where he is confined, and offered to releaſe and convey him to a Place of Safety: But he told them that as he had received a Reprieve, he choſe to remain where he was, and wait the Reſult. Beſides he told them, if he ſhould eſcape without any other Inconveniences, it would certainly be attended with the Loſs of his Property in this Government, which would reduce his Family to Poverty and Want. Upon this Anſwer, which he perſiſted in, the Company withdrew as ſuddenly as they met, without doing the leaſt Miſchief of any Kind.

The Maſt or Flag Staff on the Common, which was lately cut down, and occaſion'd a good deal of Diſturbance in this City, was on Tueſday Night cut down again, and another was, by the Inhabitants erected in its Place.

The Authors of this Inſult are not yet certainly known, but ſome particular Perſons are ſuſpected.

HARTFORD, Sept. 29.

Laſt Saturday Sen'night, Mr. Benjamin Stiles of Windſor, a young Man about 22 Years of Age, fell down dead, without uttering a Word, or making any Struggle.——He had been for ſome Months ſubject to a Bleeding at the Noſe, which, 'tis thought, was the Occaſion of his Death.

Laſt Tueſday Morning, a large He Bear, was diſcovered in an Incloſure, oppoſite the Treaſurer's, and being purſued, he took to the Main Street, which he kept till he got to the Lane that turns Eaſtward, by the South Meeting (notwithſtanding his being pelted from every Part of the Street, with Stones, Clubs, &c.) and was followed into the South Meadow, where he was ſhot. The Numbers of People that were out of Doors, to ſee ſo uncommon an Animal in the Town, made it dangerous to fire at him in the Street. In the Evening he was roaſted whole, and a large Company ſup'd on him.

Extract from an Enquiry into the Conduct of a late Right Honourable Commoner.

WE come now to the laſt Negociation; a Negociation inſtituted by the Favourite, and carried on by the noble Lawyer, lately removed from his own Department to another high Office in the State. The Error laſt Year had been in conſulting Lord Temple firſt. This Year another Method was taken, Mr. Pitt was firſt applied to; and after that Gentleman had had a Conference firſt with the late Lord Chancellor, and then with his M. Lord Temple was ſent for who directly after his coming to Town, waited on his M. at Richmond. Next Day (July the 16th 1766.) his Lordſhip received a very affectionate Letter from Mr. Pitt, then at North-End, Hampſtead, deſiring to ſee his Lordſhip there, as his Health would not permit him to come to Town. His Lordſhip went, and Mr. Pitt acquainted him, that his M. had been graciouſly pleaſed to ſend for him to form an Adminiſtration; and as he thought his Lordſhip "indiſpenſable," he deſired His M. to ſend for him, and to put him at the Head of the Treaſury; and that he himſelf would take the Poſt of Privy Seal.

The Commoner then produced a Liſt of ſeveral Perſons, which he ſaid he had fixed upon to go in with his Lordſhip; and which he added was not to be altered. Lord Temple ſaid, that he had had the Honour of a Conference with His M. at Richmond the Evening before, and that he did not underſtand from what paſſed between them, that Mr. Pitt was to be abſolute Maſter, and to form every Part of the Adminiſtration; if he had, he would not have given himſelf the Trouble of coming to Mr. Pitt upon that Subject, being determined to come in upon an Equality with Mr. Pitt, in caſe he was to occupy the moſt Reſponſible Place under the Government. And as Mr. Pitt had choſen only a Side Place, without any reſponſability annexed to it, he ſhould inſiſt upon ſome of his Friends being in the Cabinet Offices with him, and in whom he could confide; which he thought Mr. Pitt could have no Objection to, as he muſt be ſenſible he could not come in with Honour, unleſs he had ſuch Nomination; nor did he deſire, but that Mr. Pitt ſhould have his ſhare of the Nomination of his Friends." And his Lordſhip added, that he made a Sacrifice of his Brother Mr. George Grenville, who, notwithſtanding his being entirely out of Place, and excluded from all Connection with the intended Syſtem, would nevertheleſs, ſupport the Meaſures of their Adminiſtration: That it was his Idea to conciliate all Parties, which was the Ground that had made Mr. Pitt's former Adminiſtration ſo reſpectable and glorious, and to form upon the ſolid Baſis of Union, an able and reſponſible Adminiſtration, to brace the relaxed Sinews of Government, retrieve the Honour of the Crown and purſue the permanent Intereſt of the Public. But that if Mr. Pitt inſiſted upon a ſuperior Dictation, and did not chuſe to join in a Plan deſigned for the Reſtoration of that Union, which at no Time was ever ſo neceſſary, he deſired the Conference might be broke off, that Mr. Pitt would give himſelf no further Trouble about him, for that he would not ſubmit to the propoſed Condition

Mr. Pitt however inſiſted upon continuing the Conference; and aſked, who thoſe Perſons were whom his Lordſhip intended for ſome of the Cabinet Employments; his Lordſhip anſwered, that one in particular, was a Noble Lord of approved Character, and known Abilities, who had laſt year refuſed the very Office now Offered to him [Lord Temple] tho' preſſed to it in the ſtrongeſt Manner, by the Duke of Cumberland, and the Duke of New-Caſtle; and who being their common Friend, he did not doubt Mr. Pitt himſelf had in contemplation. This worthy and reſpectable Perſon was Lord Lyttleton. At the concluſion of this Sentence Mr. Pitt ſaid, Good God, how can you compare him to the Duke of Grafton, Lord Shelburne, and Mr. Conway? Beſides, ſays he, I have taken the Privy Seal, and he cannot have that. Lord Temple then mentioned the Poſt of Lord Preſident, upon which Mr. Pitt ſaid that could not be, for he had engaged the Precedency; but, ſays he, Lord Lyttleton may have a Penſion. To which Lord Temple immediately anſwered, that would never do; nor would he ſtain the Bud of his Adminiſtration with an Accumulation of Penſions. It it true, Mr. Pitt vouchſafed to permit the Noble Lord to nominate his own Board; but at the ſame Time inſiſted, that if two Perſons of that Board, (Thomas Townſhend and George Onſlow Eſqrs.) were turned out, they ſhould have a Compenſation, i. e. Penſions.

Mr. Pitt next aſked, what Perſon his Lordſhip had in his Thoughts for Secretary of State? His Lordſhip anſwered, Lord Gower, a Man of great Abilities, and whom he knew to be equal to any Mr. Pitt had named, and of much greater Alliance; and in whom he meant and hoped to unite & conciliate a great and powerful Party, in order to widen and ſtrengthen the Bottom of his Adminiſtration, & to vacate even the Idea of Oppoſition; thereby to reſtore Unanimity in Parliament, and confine every good Man's Attention to the real Objects of his Country's Welfare. And his Lordſhip added, that he had never imparted his Deſign to Lord Gower, nor did he know whether that Noble Lord would accept of it*, but mentioned it now, only as a comprehenſive Meaſure, to attain the great End he wiſhed, of reſtoring Unanimity by a Reconciliation of Parties, that the Buſineſs of the Nation might go on without Interruption, and become the only Buſineſs of the Parliament. But Mr. Pitt, rejected this Propoſal, evidently healing, as it appeared, by ſaying, that he had determined Mr. Conway ſhould ſtay in his preſent Office, and that he had Lord Shelburne to propoſe for the other Office, then held by the Duke of Richmond; ſo that there remained no room for Lord Gower. This Lord Temple ſaid was coming to his firſt Propoſition of being ſole and abſolute Dictator, to which no conſideration ſhould ever induce him to ſubmit. And therefore he inſiſted upon ending the Conference; which he did with ſaying, That if he had been firſt called upon by the K. he ſhould have conſulted Mr. Pitt's Honour, with regard to the Arrangement of Miniſters, and have given him an equal Share in the Nomination; and that he thought himſelf ill-treated by Mr. Pitt, in his not obſerving the like Conduct.

* Lord Temple afterwards wrote to Lord Gower, to excuſe the mention he had made of his Name.

LONDON.

Aug. 1. Yeſterday there was a great Court and Drawing Room at St. James's at which all the new Miniſters, and a great Number of Nobility were preſent: Lady Chatham, and Lady Northington were alſo at Court.

Aug. 2. Yeſterday his Majeſty came from Richmond to St. James's, where there was a Levee, when the Hon. Mr. York his Majeſty's Attorney General, reſigned his Place.

Aug. 4. Yeſterday Morning Lord Chatham had a long Conference with his Majeſty at the Queen's Houſe, after which he was at Court.

Sunday ſevennight died ſuddenly at the Black rock, Dublin, John Aldereron, Eſq; Lieutenant-General of his Majeſty's forces, and Colonel of the 39th regiment of foot.

Though the Expectation of the Public is foregone; yet we are aſſured, that a Plan has been concerted, by which the E. of C. will become as popular as the late W. P.

We are informed that the Right Hon. the Earl of Hartford is to continue in his Poſt of Lord Lieut. of Ireland.

We hear that the Right Hon. Lord Perceval, eldeſt Son to the Earl of Egmont, will be made a Commiſſioner of Trade.

We hear the youngeſt Daughter of the Earl of Bute, will accompany her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Carolina Matilda to Copenhagen.

It is with the greateſt Pleaſure we can aſſure the Public, that the Adminiſtration are determined to relieve the poor induſtrious Part of his Majeſty's Subjects throughout the whole Kingdom, from that unequal, Inadequate and oppreſſive Tax the additional three Shillings per Barrel Exciſe on Beer and Ale.—— And that this will be accompliſhed without the impoſition of any new Duty, by ſome Amendments in the preſent Mode of collecting the Duties on Spirits foreign and domeſtic, both which may be juſtly deemed unneceſſary Luxuries in Compariſon of Malt-Liquor, the Conſumption of which has gradually and largely been decreaſed ſince the three Shillings Duty took Place. At the ſame Time the Public are not without Hopes, that the conſtitutional Motion made laſt Year, and publickly approved by the late Great Commoner, and the preſent able C. of the E. in a certain Aſſembly, for an enquiry into the Laws of Exciſe and into the Execution of them, will be renewed and purſued with proper Spirit.

We are credibly informed that a certain Great Man has not ſwallowed the Hooks belonging to two charming Baits lately thrown out to, and caught by him, to the total Diſappointment and Mortification of certain Fiſhermen, who neither have nor dare to venture (if they had) two ſuch other Baits to catch him. *L. It is ſaid the D—— are greatly alarmed on account of their having moſt notoriouſly broke the Treaties of Peace and Marine, concluded with England in the Years 1667 and 1677, and are afraid they ſhall now be ſtrictly called upon to anſwer for all their paſt Conduct towards us.—— Ditto.

A new ſet of Mediterranean paſſes are now making out for the ſecurity of the Britiſh Navigation in the Mediterranean, and the counterparts will be ſent off to Algiers, with a new cut to prevent the poſſibility of their being tranſferred to Foreigners.

This week a great number of implements proper for the cultivation of raw ſilk, were ſhipped, on commiſſion, for Lieutenant Governor Bull of South Carolina.

We are aſſured, that extraordinary Expreſſes were diſpatched laſt Thurſday, to the Courts of France and Spain, with an Account of the late great Commoner having accepted a Title and Place.

Three Attempts have been made to obtain Addreſs from the City, on Occaſion of the late Changes, but without Effect.

SIR,

IT has cost me some serious hours thinking to what I should liken our present K. and ministry: and at last I could find nothing more resembling them than a Wheel-Barrow; you will think my Simile very odd; but it is a very good one when you hear the Explanation. The K. is the Body of it; L—d B—'s two Arms are the Handles; the Wheel is the Duke of N——tle. To prove this, the K. is the supreme Head and Body of this Kingdom; Lord Bute governs - - -; and turns — as he thinks fit; and drives the Duke of N—tle and his Party where he pleases; therefore how pleasing and agreeable would it be to see the case altered; That is to have the Wheel made into Handles; and L— B—'s Head to be drove down Tower-Hill instead of the Wheel of this Machine.——This is the true Wish of every

ON A LATE PROMOTION.

The Court to please old talking WILL,
Whose tongue was always at 'em,
Forevermore to keep it still,
Has made him Earl of Ch—m.

LONDON, July 15.

The Report of the very extraordinary Demands made by the King of Prussia, upon the Court of Great-Britain, (of three Millions, Sterling, and half our American Conquests) is now said to be without any Foundation.

July 29. It is said an English Nobleman of Distinction, passing thro' Berlin, and being earnestly desirous of an Audience of the Prussian Monarch, not on Matters of Business, but Literature only, was refused Admittance.

It was said of the French Minister who negotiated the late Peace, That he desired all the other Actions of his Life to be forgotten, and that alone remembered and engraved on his Tombstone; so great a service did he conceive he had rendered his Country by obtaining such Terms of Peace, when she lay entirely at the Mercy of the Enemy! But it seems all the Use she has made of the Lenity and Forbearance of that Enemy, has been to meditate and prepare for War. All our Advices from France assure us that she has been recruiting her Navy with all possible Diligence, and putting her Army under the best Regulations; that under the Conduct of an able Ministry, her Finances are already in as flourishing a Condition as they were before the Beginning of the last War, that she is now in a better Condition than she was then, to begin a new War, and that the Nation in general are desirous of it, but the King is averse to the Renewal of Hostilities.

We are assured that our Minister at the French Court has Orders to demand a precise Account of the Design of their Naval Armaments, and that several of our Ships of War are order'd to cruise upon the Coast to observe the Motions of their Fleets at Brest and Toulon.

It is said that France will soon recal her Troops from Corsica, where an English Fleet will be stationed to counteract them.

July 22. It is reported that all the British Seamen in the Service of Foreigners, not excepting the Portuguese, will be ordered home, as some Thousands will be wanted.

July 31. It is reported that Orders have been this Week sent down to Portsmouth, to get all the Ships in the Harbour ready for the Sea, which may be soon done, as the Marine there is kept in exceeding good Order.

We are told, the following Regulations are shortly to take Place: A Reduction of our Land Forces: The Militia to be put upon a better Footing; and the Royal Navy, the natural Bulwark of England, to be considerably augmented.

An order is sent to Ireland, for the several Forts and Castles in that Kingdom to be thoroughly repaired, and many great alterations in the Civil Administration there, will take Place in Consequence of the Change of the Ministry in England.

July 22. Yesterday sailed for the Downs, the Dolphin Man of War, and 4 Transports, in order to proceed on the intended Discoveries in the South Seas.

It is reported, Admiral Tyrrel has left a Fortune of £. 100,000, among his Relations. He had wrote about two Months since to his intended Lady, that he was coming home, and gave her order to draw for a large Sum to repair and fit up his House at Chelsea, and execute several other Matters, which were performing when the melancholly News of his Death arrived, which so affected the Lady, that she has been ever since in Fits, and constantly attended by a Physician, with very little Hopes of her Recovery.

We hear the Return of the Hereditary Prince of Brunswick, will be hastened on Account of some important Advices from the Continent.

From Cadiz we are informed, that the Spanish Marine is already upon a very good Footing, they have in their different Ports 40 Ships of the Line ready for the Sea, besides those on the Stocks and in America. Fourteen were to sail shortly from Cadiz, under the Command of Admiral Navarro, but their Destination was kept a secret.

It is said there will be no abatement of our full demand, on the Court of Madrid for the immediate Discharge of the Manilla Ransom, and that Hostages will be demanded till full payment is made.

We hear Col. Roy, of the Artillery, is soon to embark for New-York, to make an actual survey of the fortifications along the Coast.

They write from Guernsey, that two Transport Ships were taking in there a Number of French Protestant Families, who had come over from the Continent, to embark for the new British Settlements in America.

Aug. 9. It is now said, that the last Hand has been put to the Marriage Treaty between his Serene Highness, the Prince of Orange, and her Royal Highness the Princess Louissa Ann, and that the Ceremony will be performed at the Dutch Chappel at St. James's the Beginning of Octob. next.

July 24. On the 8th of June a motion was made in the House of Commons, and the Question being put, that an humble address be presented to his Majesty, to express the earnest wish and desire of this House, that his Majesty would suspend any prorogation of his parliament, until positive assurances shall be received from the several Governors of the respective provinces of North-America, that the people are returned to a due sense of their duty and obedience to the laws: that this house is the more earnest in their pressing solicitations to his Majesty, to grant this their humble request, as they may apprehend many of the fatal consequences of the rebellious disposition of his Majesty's subjects in those parts might have been prevented, if the parliament had been called last year, as soon as the accounts of the disorderly and tumultuous conduct of the Americans came to his Majesty's ministers: To assure his Majesty that this house is determined to support the legal authority of the Crown, and the just rights of the British legislature, over all parts of his Majesty's dominions; and when permitted to offer his advice, to guard the honor of his crown and government, from any insult whatsoever.

It passed in the negative.

LONDON, August 9.

It is assured that the new treaty of commerce concluded with the court of Petersburgh, is very advantageous for taking off a large share of British manufactures, which, by means of the Russian caravans, lately established at Petersburgh and Moscow, will be transported over land to the remotest parts of the empire.

We hear from Weymouth, that the four Indian chiefs, and three women, who landed there a few day ago, waited on Mr. Pitt's family, who are now there, and one of them made a speech to his eldest son; after which they were carried in one of Mr. Pitt's coaches, to the new assembly room, where the ball was opened by the Duke of Kingston. The Indians appeared highly delighted with the dances, and afterwards danced according to their manner with the war-whoop: and one of them afterwards danced a hornpipe in the English manner.

Orders are given for the Indian chiefs and women, just arrived in town from America, to be supported at the government's expence, during their stay there.

Tuesday morning while the Clerk of Richmond church in Surry, was ringing the bell for a person deceased, of a sudden the steeple fell down to the ground, but the man luckily escaped unhurt. The steeple had been built 800 years. The body of the church is crushed from top to bottom, and is in so ruinous a condition, that the inhabitants are afraid of going into it. King George II. would have rebuilt the church for the inhabitants, but they would not accept of his offer, and chose rather to expend 700l. in repairing it.

It is very remarkable that the late commoner, when he came up to attend the last memorable conference took up his lodgings at NORTH END.

At the feast of the Livery of the worshipful company of F——, on Friday last, the health of a late created Earl was proposed, which was rejected with an approbrious interpretation of his Title.

SAVANNAH in Georgia July 23.

The South-Carolina Gazette, of the 7th instant says, that Mr. Boyd and Mr. Miller, two Gentlemen from Virginia, with their Servants, were inhumanly murdered about seven weeks ago, in the upper Cherokee country, on Broad-River about 30 Miles from Fort Loudon, upon the Virginia path, as pretended by Northern Indians; but our informant, from several circumstances, believes, the Cherokees were the perpetrators, in revenge for the murder of nine of their people, at one Anderson's barn in Virginia, about August last year.

BRIDGETOWN, (in Barbados) August 30.

By Thomas Workman, Esq; who arrived here the 26th Instant, in a Flag of Truce from Martineco, we have the following melancholy Account of a most dreadful Hurricane that happened there the 13th and 14th Instant. Mr. Workman arrived at Fort-Royal on the 16th in the Evening, and was informed, that on the 13th Inst. a violent Gale of Wind from W.N.W. came on, which increased till about 11 o'Clock, that Night; from that Time till Morning it blew a Hurricane, that all the Vessels at St. Pierres, and many others at Fort Royal, were driven on Shore, and utterly lost, among which were 25 from different Ports in North America: That by the Returns from the several Parishes, many Houses, and the chief Part of their Sugar Works, had been blown down; and to the Number of Eight Hundred Souls, White and Black, had perished; and that their Canes and Ground Provisions were entirely destroyed. In Consequence of which, an Ordonance was published, giving Liberty to English Vessels to import Bread and Flour, paying a Duty of only one per Cent, to the French King, and other Provisions, agreeable to their former Ordonances.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18.

The Assembly of Pennsylvania have passed an Act for granting to his Majesty the Sum of £.4000 out of the Money now in the Hands of the provincial Treasurer, also,

A Supplement to an Act, intituled, "An ACT for granting to his Majesty the Sum of Fifty-five thousand Pounds and for striking the same in Bills of Credit by a Tax on all Estates, real and personal, Taxable within that Province."

Capt. White from Cadiz informs us, that while he lay there, four Sweedish transports with a great number of Spanish soldiers on board sailed for Carthagena in South-America; he also informs that two Galleons, with large sums of money, were arrived at Cadiz, from South-America.

NEW-YORK, October 2.

By Mr. Browne, from Martinico, we have the following Particulars of the Hurricane that happened there the 13th of August last.

About eight at Night the Wind blew very hard at N. W. and with a little Variation continued increasing till between eleven and twelve, when it blew the most dreadful Storm that had been remember'd there, attended with Lightning and hard Rain. Before the Storm was at the Height, about eleven o'Clock, every Vessel at St. Pierre, was either sunk or driven a Shore; about twenty-three French Drogers were dash'd to Pieces and entirely destroyed, seven English Vessels were drove on Shore, and some of them beat to Pieces; at Fort-Royal six English Brigs and Sloops were driven on Shore and most of them lost; a Brig of New-Haven, Capt. Douglass, lost her Masts, and a Boston Sloop rode out the Gale. The Houses were untiled, and greatly damaged, some of them torn to Pieces and others blown down, with abundance of Trees, Sugar Canes, &c. one House was said to be blown into the Sea, with all its Inhabitants. The Number of Lives lost from the Vessels, and by the falling of the Tiles, and Houses, was not then certainly known, some supposed it to be about 500, others 1000 and upwards.

Belonging to New-Haven, light, their Cargoes being landed and sold. Capt. Shelden, a Schooner, drove on Shore, and sold for £. 100. 5. Capt. Browne, a Sloop, the Captain lost, £. 26. 5. Capt. Sherman a Brig, chatered by a Frenchman, on Shore. Belonging to Boston, loaded with Molasses, ready to sail. Capt. English, a large Schooner, lost, saved 20 Hogsheads of Molasses of 100; sold the Spars for 5 Guineas. A Sloop, all lost. Belonging to the Eastward, with Fish, a large new Schooner, bilged, not sold. Belonging to Carolina, a Sloop with Corn, sold for 40, or £. 50.*

A DISCOURSE preached at Hartford North-Meeting-House, May 25th, 1766: Occasioned by that alarming Providence, the sudden Demolition of the School-House by Gun-Powder; whereby about Thirty Persons were wounded, Six of whom are since dead.

By the Rev. JOHN DEVOTION, A. M. of Say-Brook; providentially present.

To be sold, clear of Quit-Rent forever, at Two Shillings and Six-pence per Acre, New-Jersey Proc. (equal to Two Shillings, Connecticut Lawful Money.)

A Tract of valuable Land, in the Branch of the River Delaware, about thirty Miles above Cushetunk; containing ten Thousand and thirty Acres, in the Province of New-York. It is bounded on two Rivers, the one Delaware; the other called Popaghton; a large Quantity of low Land on each River; and there is a large Brook, and two smaller, runs through it, very convenient for Mills of any Sort, as Delaware is Navigable to the aforesaid Tract.——The Patent is near sixty Years old, and a good Title will be given. Any thinking Person must allow, that the Price is very low. Whoever has a Mind to purchase, may apply to JAMES PARKER, in Beaver-Street, New-York.——If one Person should think the Tract too large, it might make Twenty good Plantations, and every one be bounded on one or other of the Rivers, and might suit such, or any lesser Number that may think proper.——The Land was surveyed by Mr. Ebenezer Webb, a Surveyor well known in Connecticut; of whom any Person may learn the Quality of the Land, it being that Part of the Division known by the Names of Lots N°. 2, and N°. 15; the Latitude very little to the North of Hartford; and a Road is now making, near to the said Tract.

ANNAPOLIS, (in Maryland) Sept. 11.

Some very remarkable Causes, about 20, have been determined this Week, at our Assize Court.—The Actions were brought by some Seamen, against the Master of a Guiney Ship, for ill Usage, and Wages; and the Sailors got much the Weather-Gage of their Captain, and lay so far to the windward of him, that they run him down, by recovering very considerable Damages, their Wages, and Costs of Suit, which amount to many Guineas, the Actions being first bro't in the County Court, from thence remov'd to the Provincial, and from thence to the Assizes. [This was A GUINEA VOYAGE indeed.]

PORTSMOUTH, Sept. 29.

Saturday last the Scarboro' Mast-Ship, Capt. Tate arrived here in 6 Weeks and 4 Days from Plymouth, in England.—It is remarkable that this Ship has perfo med three Voyages from England to these Parts, in ten Months.

BOSTON, October 2.

Since our last arrived a Number of Vessels from their whaling Voyages, which in general has not been very successful.—One of them, viz. Capt. Clark, on Thursday Morning last discovering a Spermaceti Whale, near George's Banks, mann'd his Boat, and gave Chace to her, and she coming up with her Jaws against the Bow of the Boat, struck it with such Violence that it threw a Son of the Captain's (who was forward ready with a Lance) a considerable Heighth from the Boat, and when he fell the Whale turned with her devouring Jaws opened, and caught him: he was heard to scream, when she closed her Jaws, and Part of his Body was seen out of the Mouth, which she turned, and went off.

We hear from Weymouth, that last Week two Brothers belonging to that Place having some Dispute, one of them being much provoked by the other, struck him a Blow across the Face with his Hand, which knock'd his Head backwards against the Jamb of a Chimney, and he died soon after.

The Assembly of the Colony of Rhode-Island have lately passed an Act to prevent Fraud and Abuses in Hoops; and as a Number of our Customers towards Providence, and other Parts of that Government, carry many thither for Sale, the Notice thereof may be serviceable.—IT IS ENACTED, That after the first of November next, all Hogshead Hoops offered for Sale in that Colony shall (at least one half) be in Length Eleven and a half Feet, and the other not less than ten Feet:—Barrel Hoops, one with another, at least seven Feet and half, and of such Size as will be sufficient to lock at the small Ends, and otherwise sufficient for immediate Use: To be put up either Thirty or Forty in a Bundle:—Penalty, the Forfeiture of the Hoops, and Twenty Shillings for every Thousand offered to be shipped; and the Hoops not agreeable to the Measure, to be sold to the highest Bidder, in 24 Hours after the Surveyor gives Notice to the Owner.

We hear the Sum of three Thousand, three Hundred, and Five Pounds, eight Shillings and three Pence, have been already raised for the Relief of the unhappy Sufferers by the late great Fire at Barbadoes in the West-Indies. A Number of Gentlemen generously giving one Hundred Pounds Sterl. each.

LONDON August 2.

To the PRINTER.

SIR

I Obſerve, by the London Gazette, the great Commoner, Mr Pitt, is created Viſcount Pitt, of Button Pynſent, in the County of Somerſet, and Earl of Chatham in the County of Kent. Now, Sir, I apprehend neither of theſe Titles will entitle him to a Seat in the Houſe of peers, and for this Reaſon, that all Noblemen ſit in that Houſe by Virtue of their Barony, not becauſe they are Dukes, Marquiſſes, Earls or Viſcounts, but as Baron Lords; and as Mr. Pitt does not appear to be created a Baron, I ſuppoſe he intends keeping his Seat in the Houſe of Commons; and as his Lady is Baroneſs Chatham, that Barony will deſcend to the Son, with the addition of Viſcount and Earl; but why the Barony is omitted in the Father's Creation, many People are at a Loſs to account for; and ſhould be much obliged to Garter King at Arms, or ſome other able Herald, to account for this uncommon Creation, and whether there ever was an Inſtant of the like Grant. P. M.

The Earl of Bute is now become the firſt Toaſt in all ſenſible and polite Company.

It is conjectured, that the Earl of Bute's politcs, both abroad and at home, will appear very conſpicuous; that his extricating us from foreign connections, will turn out to his honor; and that a few months will make appear who has been the beſt politician for Great Britain, the Earl of Bute or the new Earl of Chatham.

It is tho't that Mr. Pitt's acceptance of a Peerage, will once more unite the Engliſh and Scotch on the ſame permanent foundation as before the Earl of Bute's coming into Power.

The Right Hon. William Campbell, youngeſt ſon to the Duke of Argyle, will ſet out in a few days with his Lady and family, for Portſmouth, in order to embark for his Government of Nova-Scotia.

Saturday Morning the Hon. Sir Francis Blake Delaval, Knight of the Bath, tried the Experiment of his new invented Phæton, the other ſide of Weſtminſter-Bridge, when he put his Horſes in a full Gallop, and in a Moment, by pulling a ſtring the Horſes galloped off, and left him in the Carriage, which ſtood ſtill.

It is ſaid that Patents are preparing to be made out for five Britiſh and nine Iriſh Peerages—We are aſſured that when the Liſt was brought to his M——, before he opened it, he aſked whether the Heir of the late Lord Foley was there? For that Gentleman, ſays he, ſhall be obliged to no one but my ſelf for this advancement; it is a Mark of Reſpect I ſhall pay to the Memory of his Predeceſſor.

This Morning will be publiſhed (Price 1 s) A Letter from William Earl of Bath, in the Shades, to William, Earl of Chatham, at Court.

The PITT, a Firſt Rate being much damaged in the Head in a late Cruiſe on the Coaſt of Scotland, is paid off and laid up at Chatham, where ſhe is to ſerve as a Store ſhip. On Examination, her Timbers, which were ſuppoſed to have been true Engliſh Heart of Oak turn out to be nothing more than mere Scantlings of a rotton Scotch Fir, brought up by the Favourite from Mount Steuart in Bute-ſhire and hewn out by him into a proper Form, at his Dock-Yard, near the Pay-Office Weſtminiſter

We hear that ſuch a ſurprizing Light has juſt now iſſued from the Temple of Liberty at Stowe, as will be of the utmoſt Importance in diſcovering the true Drift of ſome late ſecret Negotiations between the Thane and the Patriot; and will, it is ſaid, ſet the whole Tranſaction in ſo plain and clear a Point of View as the dulleſt Perſon will eaſily diſcern the Policy of the one, and the Patriotiſm of the other.

The Backwardneſs of the Citizens of London to addreſs on the preſent Miniſterial Changes, notwithſtanding the moſt preſſing Solicitations, brings to our remembrance a ſimilar Circumſtance in Shakeſpear's Richard the Third, where that Monarch thus addreſſes his Favourite, Buckingham:

Buck.) Now, by the Holy Mother of our Lord,

Extract of a Letter from Chatham, July 30.

"A very extraordinary and unhappy affair happened here this Day; the Patriot, a Ship that had made many ſucceſsful Voyages to almoſt every Part of the Globe, that had withſtood many Storms, and was eſteemed not only to ſail the beſt, but to have the ſoundeſt Bottom in all the Britiſh Navy, ſunk on a ſudden here to the utmoſt Surpriſe and Aſtoniſhment of every Mortal, and broke all to Pieces.

We hear the Indian Miſſionary, who has been ſome Time in London to ſolicit Contributions for the Support of Charity Schools amongſt his Country-men, the American Indians, and who has ſeveral Times preached at the late Dr. Chandler's Meeting in the Old-Jury, with great Approbation, is now arrived here.

BOSTON, September 25.

Monday laſt being the Anniverſary of the Coronations, of Our Moſt Gracious Sovereign King GEORGE the Third, and Queen CHARLOTTE, the ſame was celebrated here with the uſual Demonſtrations of Loyalty and Joy.

We hear from Brookline, that a melancholly Affair lately happened in the Family of Capt. Craſts of that Town: Three of his Children, one of the Age of about 6 Years, going to School, gathered ſome Seeds out of a prickly-Pod that grows upon Henbane, of which one of them ate a great Quantity, and poiſoned himſelf to ſuch a Degree that he died in a ſhort Time after in great Agonies. Another was much poiſon'd and in great Diſtreſs, but is likely to recover; the Third, and youngeſt, eating but a ſmall Potion, was not ſo much affected. This Henbane is not what generally bears that Name; it grows in the High-Way and is commonly known here by the Name of Devil's-Weed; it has a wide ſpreading Stalk and a broad Leaf, bears a large round prickly-Pod, and is of a bad Smell; when ripe the Pod opens, and the Seeds are like ſmall Coffee.

TO THE PRINTER.

HOW uncertain is the fate of man! to-day he is upon the top of the pinacle, & advanc'd to the higheſt degree of praiſe, to-morrow, he is down at the bottom; and all the ignominy and contempt of the meaneſt mortal is caſt upon him. How much then is human praiſe to be valued—How much then is [illegible] to be dreaded—What then is man whoſe breath is in his noſtrils?—— Thus the immortal PITT, who a few days ago was at the higheſt degree of praiſe, by all his Majeſty's moſt true and loyal ſubjects, the higheſt encomiums were given him. —— The great commoner, immortal, the great patriot of liberty, an angel for wiſdom, juſtice, humanity, nay the voice of the people was, no Pitt, no King. But now this great man, after many ſcenes, changes and turns of providence in our favour, through his wiſdom and prudence, (as ſecond cauſe,) in his great wiſdom ſees fit, to accept of a place in the houſe of Peers, which for wiſe reaſons before he refuſed; is at once try'd, judg'd, and condemn'd by the ungrateful World, without being heard a word in his own vindication. Now he is branded as a rogue, villain and a Traitor. He is ſatyriz'd and burleſq'd by the moſt infamous of Adam's race——But be not deceived, you who have truly thought well of this great man; theſe things come not from any who truly wiſh'd him well, they are only a trap to catch you with themſelves; now they ſpit their venom, they ſhew their teeth, they have try'd before and were not able to prevail. Now be careful leſt their deep laid ſcheme take its effect. Remember this great man, thy great friend, O America! is as capable of ſerving thy intereſt as ever; and never ſuffer the malice of Satan nor the wickedneſs of his emiſſaries to change thy good thoughts, or alienate thy dutiful affections towards him; believe him to be the ſame great good man, and thy great friend as ever; and he will prove ſo I doubt not. Let not ingratitude belong to any part of thy character; leſt the juſt puniſhment thereof ſhould alſo come upon thee. As thou haſt hitherto been moſt loyal ſubjects to thy moſt gracious Sovereign; ſo be faithful and true to thy beloved Pitt, and as he in his former glorious adminiſtration could be truſted, to carry into execution his own plans, (which all turn'd out well) without giving any account, or even being deſired to, ſo let us truſt him now, believing all ſhall turn out as well as formerly, and always remember, that we have no right to complain, before we have juſt cauſe to.—— Let not any of thoſe unjuſt ſatyres, and harſh and cruel reflections, that he is at laſt bought at his own price, and that he has fell into the trap, and that thoſe honeſt peices that are wrote in favour of him do him no honor, nor their authors; theſe are ſpeeches of ill-nature and a wicked heart, let none of theſe things move or prejudice you; dont deſire him with ſome ungrateful others, to return the honors you have confer'd upon him. Now, now is the time, and the beſt time to teſtiſie your love and gratitude to him, by conferring all the honors you are capable of upon him.—— Wait patiently and time will bring forth, he is thy great friend O America! let him remain ſo in thy breaſt, and reſolve that all the ſons of violence and lies, ſhall not prevail with you to join with them in belching out, detraction and calumny: but let love and gratitude to that great man, ſtill poſſeſs your breaſt; and never ſuffer yourſelves, to give way to any thing that ſhall prejudice you againſt your great Patriot and Benefactor, till you have full evidence that he is turn'd your enemy, by turning againſt your liberties. And as you had full evidence of his great faithfulneſs, wiſdom, policy, and many other virtues, towards your gracious King, his royal maſter and all his loyal ſubjects, before you ſounded forth his praiſe: ſo let the ſame rule have its operation through. I ſay, have full evidence, that he is a traitor to your liberties and privileges, before you cenſure or condemn him. And though the malice of his enemies may ſay this peice does him no great credit, nor the author; believe the greatneſs of his ſoul, pities the narrowneſs of their's, and the author regards their contempt with the ſame ſpirit.——Stand, O America! for your friend, who has ſtood for you, and fought the greateſt battle for you, that ever you was call'd to engage in, (and at a time, when through indiſpoſition of body, it was running the greateſt hazard; yet he counted not his life dear at that time for your ſakes) and has obtain'd a victory for you, has given the greateſt bond, even his own honor for your good behaviour. If you dont remember, you are guilty of the blackeſt ingratitude; and deſerve to be branded as ſuch, & will never deſerve another potent, powerful friend in the parliament of Great-Britain. Let us all then, with one heart and voice, do juſtice to the character of that great man, by ſounding forth his praiſe, and ſhowing our love and gratitude to him by all means and on all occaſions we can, and we may depend upon having every honeſt heart in Great-Britain, and the powers of Heaven on our ſide, againſt the gates of Hell and emmiſaries of the Devil.

Capt. John Leaycroft, who arrived here laſt Saturday from Jamaica, and left Kingſton the 16th of Auguſt, gives us the following information, That the maſter of a Spaniſh veſſel, lately from Cuba, informed the company, that St. Jago was totally deſtroyed, not a brick or ſtone houſe left ſtanding, and the Moro-Caſtle there levelled with the ground; that the ſhock was ſo violent and ſudden, that near five thouſand perſons were buried in the ruins or ſwallowed up, and the earth rolled like the ſwell of ſea. Capt. Leaycroft did not aſk when it happened, but underſtood it to be on or about the eleventh of June.—Capt. Leaycroft informs, that he met with a ſevere ſtorm on the ſixteenth of Auguſt which he apprehends muſt have done conſiderable Damage, ſaw a diſmaſted ſhip, and heard of ſeveral veſſels wrecked on the Coaſt, near Port Morant.

Sept. 22. By a Gentleman who was lately at Cuba, we are informed, that the earthquake had not proved ſo fatal to St. Jago as was mentioned; that only part of the caſtle, all the churches, and moſt of the dwelling-houſes had been deſtroyed: but that the ſhock extended thro' all the South ſide of the iſland, in many parts of which the ground was much rent, and in ſome places ſunk.

We have the pleaſure to learn by the maſter of a veſſel in four weeks from Jamaica, that the hurricane felt on the 16th of Auguſt, paſſed to leeward of that iſland, without doing any other damage there than what was occaſioned by a great ſwell of the ſea.

One William Linvill and his ſon were lately ſurpriſed and killed by Indians, as they were hunting in the mountains, beyond the head of Yadkin river: A young man who was with them eſcaped, but ſo much wounded, that he died ſoon after he got home. Some impute this outrage to the relations of thoſe Cherokees who had been murdered at Anderſon's barn in Virginia: But others ſuppoſe it to have been committed by Northward Indians, ſince accounts have been received that the Little-Carpenter's ſon and ſeven other of his relations were lately killed near the town where they lived.

The Great-Warrior and ſeveral other headmen of the upper Cherokees, have lately made a viſit to George Prince, Eſq; commandant at Fort Prince George. This is the firſt time that the Great-Warrior could be prevailed on to come to that fort ſince the war: He ſtaid with Mr. Prince fourteen days, was extremely well pleaſed, and appeared as well diſpoſed.—Upon the Creeks application to him to join them againſt the Chactabs, he refuſed to interfere, ſaying, they were rogues.

Tueſday laſt Capt. Tarby arrived here from Martinico, and adviſes, that there were 39 Sail of Engliſh Veſſels either loſt or run aſhore in the Hurricane there.

Captain Tarby lay in the Harbour of Cul de Sac Francois, with two other Veſſels, where they rode out the Hurricane, without receiving any Damage. He ſays it was computed that 150 Veſſels were entirely loſt, beſides about 200 Freight and Paſſage Boats; that the Hurricane was rather ſeverer, and the Loſs greater than mentioned in the Martinico Gazette: And that as ſoon as the General's and Intendant's Permiſſions for Proviſions were iſſued, Flour arrived in ſuch Plenty from all Parts, that it fell to 45 and 40 Shillings a Barrel, which obliged ſome Veſſels from Barbados to go the Engliſh Iſlands with their Cargoes.

Capt. Woods from Montſerrat, adviſes, that on the 13th of Auguſt, they had a violent Swell there, with a freſh Gale at North-Eaſt, in which the Veſſels that were there put out to Sea, but had all returned, without receiving any Damage.

NEW-YORK, October 9.

The Sailor who laſt Week wounded Mr. Wallace, cut off his Ear, and attempted to cut his Throat, not having the leaſt Difference with him or any one in the Family before, and the Action appearing by all Circumſtances, to be merely the Effect of a ſudden Fit of Inſanity; the Sailor was deliver'd by the Magiſtrates to his Captain, who agreed to pay Mr. Wallace for his Cure and Loſs of Time.

PORTSMOUTH, October 6.

Laſt Friday night a large wolfe killed 15 or 16 ſheep within a quarter of a mile of this town, ſome of which were on Severy's Iſland: and on Saturday in the forenoon, in attempting to ſwim acroſs the River to this Town, was met by one Carter, a Fiſherman, in a ſmall Canoe, coming from fiſhing, who immediately ſtruck a ſmall ſpear which he had in his canoe, into his body, then cut off his head and bro't it on ſhore, for which he received a bounty of ten dollars, out of the treaſury.

BOSTON, October 9.

Dennis Debert, eſq; writes that the addreſs to his majeſty by the houſe of repreſentatives of this province on occaſion of the repeal of the ſtamp act, has been preſented by his Grace the Duke of Richmond, and moſt graciouſly received; and that it arrived the firſt of any of the addreſſes upon that happy event. Alſo that the votes of thanks to the ſeveral illuſtrious members of both houſes of parliament, who moſt eminently diſtinguiſhed themſelves as the patrons of our liberty, were very kindly received.

NEWPORT, October 6.

A Letter from Caſtle Brew, at Annamaboa, on the Coaſt of Africa, to a Gentleman in this Town, dated June 20, 1766, ſays, "Sir, you'll be good enough to acquaint the Merchants trading to this Place, that the Coaſt is very much infeſted with Pirates, and that one in particular, is a Schooner, copper ſheathed, commanded by one Hide, has on board 34 Men, and is extremely well fitted with Swivels and Small Arms. She cruiſes between the River Setra-Crue and Cape Three-Points, and has taken between 12 and 14 Shallops, one of which belonged to Governor Brew, and had on board 1200l. Sterling in Goods and 50 Ounces of Gold Duſt: After taking from her a Cable and Anchor, for which they gave the Maſter a Receipt, they permitted him to go about his Buſineſs. Theſe Fellows neither murder nor force any into their Service; but on the Contrary, one of their Crew complaining that he was weary of that Life, they put him on Shore, and allowed him a Sufficiency to bear his Expences to the firſt Engliſh Factory."

To the PRINTERS, &c.

AS the people in America have been miſ-informed of the conduct of JOHN HUSKE, Eſq; member of parliament for Malden, with regard to the late Stamp-Act, I beg you'll inſert the following addreſs to that Gentleman, by which the public will be convinced how far he acted a contrary part, and how aſſiduous he has been in the cauſe of America; and that on the very day his effigy was burnt at Boſton, he preſented the miniſtry a plan of 12 free ports in America; ſix whereof were, with the greateſt difficulty, obtain'd laſt ſeſſion, and if by experience, it appears that theſe do not prove inſtrumental to the introduction of foreign European manufactures, it is highly probable, that the remainder of theſe contained in his plan will be granted next ſeſſion, viz. Penſacola, St. Auguſtine, New-York, Piſcataqua, Halifax, and Baſſeterre, in the Iſland of Grenades: We are beſides told, that if the merchants of America will unite for the effectual prevention of foreign produce or manufactures getting clandeſtinely into his Majeſty's colonies, they may expect the whole of America will be put upon the ſame footing as the free ports of Dominica and Jamaica: And that they have this in their Power has been fully demonſtrated by the effects of the Union, to prevent any Goods from Great-Britain coming into the Colonies till the Stamp act was repealed. There is no other Objection in England, to let us have Wine, Fruit, and Olive Oil, directly from Spain, Portugal, and Italy, and Salt to the Colonies South of Pennſylvania, than the Fear of our introducing at the ſame Time other Articles, prejudicial to the Trade and Manufactures of Great-Britain: That Mr. Huſke would have obtained the Liberty laſt Seſſions, if he could have removed the mentioned Objection to the Satisfaction of the Miniſtry and of Parliament; hence it is preſumeable, all the Merchants of America will ſee that they are called upon by every conſideration of Duty, Gratitude, and Intereſt, to unite directly in proper Meaſures, to put a ſtop to all clandeſtine Trade that is injurious to the Intereſt of the Mother Country.

From the foregoing Facts, we may ſee the Neceſſity of being cautious in crediting Reports to the Prejudice of Gentlemen ſo remote from us; for to Mr. Huſke's unwearied Attention, we are, undoubtedly, in a great Meaſure, indebted, for the Reconciliation ſo happily effected between Great-Britain and her Colonies, in which ſuch noble Proviſions have been made for the extenſion of Trade of the one, and the Abilities of the other, to pay for the Manufactures required from Home.

It is to be hoped Mr. Huſke's countrymen will now lament their credulity, being impoſed upon relative to that Gentleman, & exert themſelves in obliterating their attempts, to diſgrace one of their beſt friends in ſuch a public manner, as juſtice, equity, and gratitude demand of them.

WE have received, with infinite pleaſure, Mr. Haliday's (one of the deputies from Liverpool to ſolicit the repeal of the ſtamp-act, &c.) information, how much this kingdom and her colonies, are indebted to you, for your ſtrenuous and diſtinguiſh'd endeavours to obtain a repeal of the Stamp-act; the enforcement of which wou'd, at beſt, have for a long time, ſubverted our commerce with America, and have endangered not only the ruin of her, but of our own manufactures, and of the nation, while the happy and ſalutary repeal, we doubt not, will be received with joy, gratitude and thankfulneſs by the Americans, and our languiſhing, and almoſt loſt commerce, be revived with new ſpirit and vigor, to the advantage of both countries.

We are ſo deeply intereſted upon this particular occaſion, that we preſume to hope you will pardon our freedom in thus expreſſing our ſenſe of the noble part you have acted, and accept the ſincereſt and moſt reſpectful thanks of,

Sir, Your moſt obliged and very humble Servants;

(Signed by 161 Merchants.)

Weſtminiſter, March 1766.

Gentlemen,

I AM extremely ſenſible of the great honor you have conferred on me, in your kind approbation of my conduct in parliament, relative to the repeal of the American Stamp-act; & I am perſuaded, a repreſentation of it more favourable than it merits, has induced you to beſtow on me ſo obliging a teſtimony of your eſteem. The duty I owed to my native country, and the knowledge I had of the local circumſtances of it, demanded of me my utmoſt activity, in oppoſing the enacting of that law, when firſt propoſed, and made me flatter myſelf, that my remonſtrances againſt it, both in public and private, might not have been ineffectual. But the meaſure being reſolved on, predictions, tho' of an alarming nature, were then treated with contempt, which we have lived to ſee in leſs than a year verified, under a diminution, I fear, of the dignity and authority of this country.

Actuated by the ſame motives, animated by the diſtreſs of America, and the impending ruin of the commerce and manufactures of this country, I have employed my beſt efforts in contributing to its repeal; and I have the pleaſure to think, that the inexpediency of the act, the inequality of the tax, and the impracticability of the meaſure, were the true and only reaſons which engaged ſo great a majority to remove that cauſe of diſcontent, the ſource from which nothing but mutual miſery could flow to this kingdom and her colonies.

In the accompliſhing this very deſirable work, let me aſſure the conſtituents of the town of Liverpool, that much is to be attributed to the aſſiduity & activity of their moſt amiable and worthy repreſentative, Sir William Meridith; and I do moſt ſincerely congratulate them on a choice that reflects ſuch honor on their diſcernment. Conſcious of the little weight which my ſituation gives me, and of the little attention which my abilities may entitle me to, I have hitherto contented myſelf with the pleaſing reflection of having done my duty: But reanimated now by your generous approbation, I ſhall hereafter exert my beſt endeavours in promoting the reciprocal intereſt of this kingdom and her colonies. And by an unwearied application to the extention of the trade and manufactures of this country, ſecure to myſelf the continuance of your eſteem, held to be inviolable by, Gentlemen,

Your moſt obedient moſt obliged, and very humble Servant, JOHN HUSKE.

To the Merchants of Liverpool.

July 31. The reſpectful manner in which the Americans appear to receive the news of the repeal of the Stamp-Act, does them very great honour, and effectually juſtifies the meaſure. The nation, will receive advantage from it; the miniſtry ſome credit; and great glory will accrue to thoſe who in ſo diſtinguiſhed a manner took the lead in accompliſhing it. The framers of that tax, and oppoſers of its abolition, muſt now become doubly odious, both as Stateſmen and Patriots, or rather in their pretenſions to either character, which can never more be allowed them; for it is diſgraceful to take wrong meaſures, it muſt be infamous to aim at ſupporting them, when they are diſcovered to be wrong.

It is ſaid that a Bill will be brought into Parliament the next Seſſion, appointing Elections for Members of Parliament to be by Ballot; which, it is thought, will almoſt totally prevent all future Corruption on ſuch Occaſions; as it will be impoſſible to know on which Side an Elector votes, and conſequently render Candidates extremely cautious whom they truſt with a Bribe

CONNECTICUT COURANT.

LONDON, Auguſt 7.

Extract from a ſhort Account of a late ſhort Adminiſtration.

THE late Adminiſtration came into employment under the mediation of the Duke of Cumberland, on the 10th day of July, 1765, having laſted juſt one year and twenty days.

In that ſpace of time,

The diſtractions of the Britiſh-Empire were compoſed by the repeal of the American ſtamp-act.

But the conſtitutional ſuperiority of Great Britain was preſerved, by the act for ſecuring the dependence of the Colonies.

Private houſes were relieved from the juriſdiction of the Exciſe, by the repeal of the cyder tax.

The perſonal liberty of the ſubject was confirmed, by the reſolution for condemning the ſeizure of papers.

The trade of America was ſet free from injudicious and ruinous impoſitions.----Its revenue was improved, and ſet upon a rational foundation.----Its commerce extended with foreign countries; while all the advantages were ſecured to Great-Britain, by the act for repealing certain duties, and encouraging, regulating, and ſecuring the trade of this Kingdom, & the Britiſh dominions in America.

Materials were provided and inſured to our manufactures----The African trade preſerved and extended----The principles of the Act of Navigation preſerved, and the plan improved---And the trade for bullion rendered free, ſecure, and permanent by the act for opening certain ports in Dominica and Jamaica.

While that Adminiſtration provided for the liberty and commerce of their country, as the true baſis of its power, they conſulted its intereſts, they aſſerted its honour abroad with temper and firmneſs; by making an advantageous treaty of commerce with Ruſſia; by obtaining a liquidation of the Canada bills, to the ſatisfaction of the proprietors; by reviving and raiſing from its aſhes the negotiation for the Manilla ranſom, which had been extinguiſhed and abandoned by their predeceſſors.

They treated their ſovereign with decency, with reverence. They diſcountenanced, and it is hoped, forever aboliſhed the dangerous and unconſtitutional practice of removing military officers for their votes in parliament. They firmly adhered to thoſe friends of liberty, who had run all hazards in its cauſe, and provided for them in preference to every other claim.

With the Earl of B--- they had no perſonal connection; no correſpondence of councils. They neither courted him, nor perſecuted him. They practiſed no corruption; nor were they ever ſuſpected of it. They ſold no offices. They obtained no reverſions or penſions, either coming in, or going out, for themſelves, their families or their dependants.

St. JAMES's, Auguſt 6.

On Saturday the 26th of July, Mr. Ruſſel, one of his Majeſty's Meſſengers, arrived at the Right Hon. Mr. Secretary Conway's Office, with the Treaty of Commerce concluded between his Majeſty and the Empreſs of Ruſſia, which was ſigned at Peterſbourgh on the 20th June laſt, Old ſtile.

A very extraordinary letter to the mayor of Lymeric, for which 300 l. was offered to diſcover the author.

"Mr. MAYOR,

Sir It is with great indignation and contempt we reflect on the paſt and preſent maſſacre of many of the lives of our poor Roman Catholicks who are ſuffering for religion and liberty ſake, but ye heretic dogs the day will ſoon come that we will make your potent bloods go like a flood down your ſtreets ye heretick wolves we will ſoon ſhake off your yoke like true born ſons of hibernia and retaliate all grievances on your own heads you ſir with the corporation of Limerick thought to oppreſs the Roman catholick tradeſmen of the city by a grant of parliament charter but the time will ſoon come when we will drive your parliament to hell, and paint the walls inſide with the blood of its herotic members we are both able and willing to gain our liberty and ſettle ourſelves free maſters of our own ſoile and give you a fatle blow as our anceſtors gave the Dains and be well aſſured we will remember our love to you and the reſt of the clan and your member of the houſe Charles Smith by name for his vigilance in charters for the heretick hogs the tradeſmen of Limerick, that little pert animal Sir Henry Heſton ſhall pay for his vigilance in hunting the white boys ſo called we will give his body to our dogs for food and as a juſt reward of his merit his ſoul to the devil to conclude ſir a ſpeedy deſtruction to both king and government as by law eſtabliſt which is the ſincere wiſh of him who is and ever ſhall remain your profeſt enemy."

According to the informations we have received from different parts of the province, notwithſtanding the unuſual quantities of rain that have fallen laſt ſpring and this ſummer, if the harveſt ſeaſon ſhould prove good, there is a proſpect of a vaſt crop of Rice being made: But the Indico plant has ſuffered greatly by the rains: And the crop of corn is not likely to be very conſiderable.

AUGUST 25. By a letter from Auguſta, we are informed, that on the 29th three inhuman villains went to the houſe of John Scott Eſq; (commonly called ready money Scott) a Magiſtrate who lives above Stephen's-Creek, upon Savannah river, and robbed him of all his gold ſilver & paper money, to the amount of above 1450, l. treating him and his wife in a moſt barbarous manner. The account we have ſays, when they firſt came to his houſe, they demanded his money, upon which he offered them ſome half-pence; but they refuſed to take them ſaying they had not come 500 miles for his coppers; after which they ſeized him and his wife: The helpleſs old woman's head they covered with an empty bee-hive tied her up in a blanket, ran a brand's end of fire into her face, filled her eyes with aſhes, and then threw her into the chimney-corner: Mr Scott not being very ready to give up what they ſought they held him to the fire till his eyes were juſt ready to ſtart out of his head, burnt his toes almoſt off, heated irons and branded and burnt him in a ſhocking manner, and then made him ſwear three times on the bible, that he had no more money.—None of the perpetrators of this horrid barbarity are yet diſcovered.

LONDON, Auguſt 8.

MOurn, England, Old and New—from ſhore to ſhore—
Your great Commoner is now no more.
O Walpole, verſ'd in man! 'twas you foretold,
Each for his Price would ſtill be bought and ſold.—
Strange! that ambition ſhould itſelf defeat,
And bid a man grow little to grow great:
'Tis our own name that makes our acts our own:
Pitt was ador'd, but Chatham's quite unknown.
Eclipſ'd by titles thus, if patriots be,
Give me for life to keep the name of Free.

The N—— L——, who now holds the Great Seal, being aſked if that patent for the E. of C. ſhould be prepared for the S——s, made anſwer, Ay, ay, it muſt be ſo, there's no help for it, but I am ſure there's not a man in the kingdom will take it but himſelf. The anſwer correſponds well with the good ſenſe and friendſhip of the N——e perſon who gave it. But there is a ſmall miſtake in it; for the enemies of the Commoner, and the enemies of their country, rejoice exceedingly at his defection; and thoſe who lay in wait for him, triumph in the ſucceſs of their ſnare; they ſpread a net for his feet and he has fallen into the Pit which they dug for him, thank God, he fell alone.

It is ſaid a treaty of marriage will ſoon take place between Lord Viſcount Pynſent (Mr. Pitt's ſon) and the third daughter of John, Earl of Bute.

Aug. 9. Laſt Saturday morning died, at her lodgings near the Broad way in Deptford, aged 95 years, Mrs. Mary Luborne, relict of Capt. Luborne, formerly in the Eaſt India ſervice, who for upwards of 40 years has lived in Greenwich and Deptford, in the moſt penurious manner: ſhe even denied herſelf every neceſſary of life, wearing cloaths that would ſcarcely hide her nakedneſs, and thoſe covered with vermin; has not been known to have a ſpark of fire, or even a lighted candle, in her apartment for four years paſt, nor either to wear a ſhift or lie in a ſheet. She frequently went a begging on the high road, when ſhe went on buſineſs to London, and was alſo very light-fingered, having been detected in pilfering the moſt trifling things divers times. Notwithſtanding her wretched way of life, on opening her drawers, cheſts, &c. by her relations, there were found, as is ſtrongly reported, ſecurties in the bank, South-Sea, Eaſt-India, and other Stocks, to the amount of 40,000l. and upwards, beſides jewels and other precious ſtones, plate, china, clothes of every kind of the richeſt ſort, great quantities, of the fineſt ſilks, linen, velvets, &c. not made up, to a very great value, beſides a large ſum of money.

A letter received from Glouceſter, informs us, that on thurſday paſſed thro' that city for Scotland, in two hearſes, from Bath, the Remains of the late Earl and Counteſs of Sutherland. There is ſomething very affecting in the fate of theſe noble perſonages—The loſs of an only ſon, who died about a twelvemonth ago, lay ſo very heavy upon their ſpirits, that they determied to try whether the gaiety of Bath would deſpel the gloom. They had been there a few weeks only when the Earl was taken ill of a violent fever, during which the counteſs devoted herſelf ſo intirely to the care of her Lord, that it is aſſerted ſhe attended him for twenty one days and nights without ever leaving him, or going to bed; and the apprehenſions of his danger ſo affected her ſpirits and appetite, that her ſtomach refuſed all ſuſtenance, and ſhe died about three weeks ago, perfectly worn out with fatigue and watching; and on laſt monday ſe'night the fever carried off his Lordſhip,—This moſt amiable pair were an honor to Nobility. Their conjugal love was even proverbial. It appeared from the inſcriptions on the Coffins, that the Earl was only 31, and the Counteſs 26.

Among the variety of natural productions brought from Scotland by the gentleman mentioned in our yeſterday's paper, is that of the aſbeſtos, ſo well known to the ancients, by its duration after being tried in the fire. Altho' it is of the nature of a ſtone, yet, by a certain preparation, is diſſolved into ſomething like cotton, and may be wrought into a cloth. This gentleman, we are informed, has ſome of it made into paper, and has invented a red ink with which it may be wrote upon, and after being in the fire comes out pure and intire, but the letters are then of a black colour.

The aſbeſtos brought from Scotland, as mentioned in yeſterday's paper, was found among the rocks in the pariſh of Auchindoir near Strathbogie, and bordering upon the Highlands of Scotland. Some years ago the Lady of the Manor had a petticoat made of it. It is deſcribed by naturaliſts to be a fibrous, flexile, incumbuſtible, and elaſtic body, compoſed of ſingle and continuous filaments. Among the antients, Ciampi, of Rome, was ſucceſsful enough to make cloth of it, after ſteeping the ſtone in water and afterwards carding it as wool, and then having it ſpun into thread; which being wrought into a cloth by the help of other threads, and thrown into the fire, left the compoſition entirely of aſbeſtos. It will neither give fire to ſteel, nor ferment with equa fortis; and if thrown into the fire will endure the moſt extreme heat, without the leaſt injury to its texture.

Extract of a letter from Biceſter in Oxfordſhire, dated April 30.

"On Monday laſt curioſity led the principal inhabitants of this place to be preſent at the celebration of a more extraordinary marriage, than, perhaps, had ever before been ſolemnized at our church; the ſame couple having before not only been married a few years ago to each other, but in the interim each had the amazing fortune, one to marry a woman who had two huſbands, both living at the ſame time, and the other a huſband who had alſo two wives. The clergyman who performed the ceremony was ſo much afflicted with the gout, as to be obliged to be carried to church in a ſedan; and immediately after the wedding, at which the woman was given away by a Quaker, her child, about a month old, was brought to be baptized; and ſhe was afterwards publicly churched."

Letters from the lower Elbe, dated April 25, ſay, that all the pains the Empreſs of Ruſſia has taken to people the banks of the Volga has not anſwered her intentions. The foreigners who were enticed thither by the fine promiſes that were made to them, are periſhing with fatigue and wretchedneſs: They are abandoned to the diſcretion of the Chiefs, hated and feared by the people of the country, and deſtitute of protection againſt both; ſo that the borders of the Volga, which they looked upon as the land of promiſe, is likely to be the grave of theſe unhappy people.

Paris, July 7. In conſequence of the act of parliament of the 4th of June laſt, the young man committed for blaſphemy, was carried from the Conciergerie and executed at Abbeville the firſt of this month. He made the Amende honorable in declaring that he had wickedly and impiouſly, with deliberate purpoſe paſt before the holy ſacrament, without taking off his hat and kneeling; and that he had uttered blaſphemies againſt God, the Holy Sacrament, the Holy Virgin, Religion, the Commandments of God and the Church, mentioned in the proceſs; that he had ſung two ſongs, full of horrible and abominable blaſphemies againſt God, the Holy Sacraments, the holy Virgin, and the Saints, mentioned in the proceſs; and that he had paid marks of adoration to infamous books, and profaned the ſign of the Croſs, the Myſtery of the Conſecration of the Wine, the Benedictions uſed in the Church, and among Chriſtians, of which he repented, and begged pardon of God, of the King, and of Juſtice.

After this Amende honorable, he had his tongue cut out and his hands and his head cut off, and the whole conſumed in a burning pile of wood, with the body, and the aſhes ſcattered in the air. The Executioner burnt at the ſame time in the pile of wood the Portable philoſophical Dictionary, which makes a part of the infamous books which had been reported to the Regiſter of Court by the Seneſchal's Court of Abbeville. The other young man his accomplice is ſtill detained priſoner. They have delayed his ſentence, and the proceedings againſt two of the other three who have eſcaped; but the third had been executed in effigie."

LONDON, Auguſt 5.

Aug. 5. Eight celebrated Lawyers in Paris have ſigned a memorial, in which they give it as their opinion, that there are defects in the proceedings againſt ſome of the young fellows concerned in the affair of the crucifix at Abbeville; and conclude with a requeſt for the reverſion of their ſentance by a ſuperior tribunal; but it is thought this will not be granted. —Another Calas affair.

BOSTON, October 16.

Yeſterday his Excellency was pleaſed to declare in Council, that it was his Intention that the General Court ſhould meet at the Time it ſtands prorogued to, being the Twenty-ninth of the preſent October, that they may have any Opportunity to give an Anſwer to the Recommendation of His Majeſty, at the requeſt of the Houſe of Commons, which was laid before the Court laſt Seſſion.

We hear from Stoughton, that on Monday the 6th a Barn almoſt full of Hay and Grain, was ſtruck with the Lightning and ſoon conſumed by the Fire, notwithſtanding the utmoſt Efforts of the People to extinguiſh it. The Owner and his Son were in the Barn at the Time it was ſtruck, and providentially were ſo little hurt that they got out into the Yard before the Fire reached them.

We hear that a few days ago a Perſon had both his Eyes put out by pouring ſome cold Lyes into a Kettle to prevent the hot Lyes from flowing over when fluxing to make Pot-Aſh.

CONNECTICUT COURANT.

ALBANY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1766.

HIS Excellency Sir HENRY MOORE, Bart. arrived here on Thurſday laſt, late in the Evening, from his Expedition on Lake Champlain, and proceeded immediately to Capt. Schuyler's; from whence he ſet out again Yeſterday for Schenectady, in his Way to Sir WILLIAM JOHNSON's, attended by ſeveral Gentlemen of this City.——Whilſt his Excellency and General CARLETON, were employed in ſettling the Boundaries between the two Provinces, the Caeh-nawagha Indians reſiding on the River St. Lawrence, having been informed of their Arrival at the upper End of Lake Champlain, ſent a Deputation to welcome them, which they received in their Tents, on the Iſle de la Motte, with the uſual Ceremonies; and were addreſs'd by one of the Chiefs, in the following Words:

BROTHERS, the Governors of New-York and Quebec;

THE ſeven confederate Nations of the Province of Quebec, having heard of your coming to theſe Parts, tho't it their Duty to ſend a Deputation to wait upon, and to addreſs you on your Arrival.——We their Deputies, therefore, thank the Being above, for having been pleaſed to let us meet you in good Health, and for having guarded you on your Journey from any Accident; and likewiſe for having protected our new Governor on his Voyage over the great Lake, to arrive ſafe in his Government; and we moſt heartily bid him welcome, and wiſh him perfect Health and Happineſs to govern the ſame; recommending the Indian Nations in his Government to his Favour and Protection; this we confirm with theſe Strings of Wampum.

BROTHERS,

Having at the ſame Time heard that you was to aſcertain and fix the Boundaries between your reſpective Provinces, we ſaw it a very proper and convenient Opportunity, to return the Great KING of ENGLAND, our Father, our moſt humble Thanks, through you, for having moſt graciouſly taken Notice of all Indian Nations, their Lands, and Trade in America, in his Royal Proclamation of October 1763; which our Friend and Brother Sir WILLIAM JOHNSON, had then publiſhed to us, by his Deputy, Capt. CLAUS: And we moſt heartily requeſt of you to ſupport and protect us in the ſame, as our hunting Grounds lay chiefly in your two Governments.

A large Belt of black Wampum.

BROTHERS,

Since we lived under the French Government, we enjoyed our Hunting and Fiſhing about this Lake, without Interruption or Moleſtation; and were aſſured by the French Governor to continue ſo to do, as long as we lived hereabouts. As to the Dominion of the Lake, and the Lands thereupon, it is true, he reſerved that to the French King; but as to the wild Beaſts in the Wood, and the Fiſh in the Waters thereof, he ſaid they were for the Uſe of the Indian Nations living about it, without Exception; and which accordingly we have enjoyed above this eighty Years paſt: But now, BROTHERS, ſince this Lake and Country is in your Poſſeſſion we find there have ſeveral Settlements been making thereupon, which altho' it was not the Caſe in the French Time, yet we make no Objection to it; all that ſurprizes and alarms us is, that ſome of theſe new Settlers have told to ſome of our People, that they ſhould not hunt within their Right; ſhould this be the Caſe, and they have it in their power ſo to do, it would at once fruſtrate our preſent Hopes of His Majeſty's good Will towards us, and deprive us of our principal Subſiſtance and Livelihood.—And we beg by this Belt of Wampum, that you will be pleaſed to ſupport us in what his Majeſty was graciouſly pleaſed to reſerve to us, and be glad of your Opinion and Anſwer upon what we have now laid before you.

A long Belt of Wompum.

BROTHERS,

What we have been ſpeaking to you, concerning the Lake and Lands in Queſtion, was only ſince the Time the Europeans have come amongſt us; and as to the original Owners thereof, it is well known to have been the undiſputed Right of the Six Nations, and was chiefly occupied in the hunting Seaſons by the antient Mohawks, whoſe Deſcendants we are; and our Forefathers going to hunt, chiefly in this Neighbourhood, was one of the principal Reaſons for our ſettling upon the River St. Lawrence, near Montreal; as whenever they killed any Game neareſt that Market, they carried it there, and being well received and flattered by the French; and on the contrary, ſlighted and neglected by the Dutch, who then poſſeſſed the Province of New-York: Families after Families ſettled and remained in Canada, which occaſioned the Eſtabliſhment of what to this Day is called the French-Mohawks, and where we now live.——As to the firſt Building ever made upon Lake-Champlain, it is well known to be Crown-Point, which our middle-aged Men all well remember; and the Six Nations hearing of it, immediately remonſtrated againſt it to the French Governor, who telling them it was to guard againſt a ſudden Attack from the Engliſh, prevailed upon them with difficulty, to let him finiſh it; which at laſt they conſented to, with Condition, that no other Settlement ſhould be made upon the Lake hereafter, which he readily engaged in, and promiſed to obſerve.

BROTHERS,

The laſt Part of our Speech we have only made you by Way of Information; and therefore give no Wampum upon it.

BROTHERS,

WE return you our ſincere Thanks for your Compliments of Congratulation on our Arrival here; and are extremely happy in having the earlieſt Opportunity of giving you the ſtrongeſt Aſſurances of our good Will towards you.

BROTHERS,

As we are perſuaded you will not be wanting on your Parts, to merit that Protection which has been granted to you by the BRITISH CROWN, we ſhall always diſcourage every Attempt made in our reſpective Provinces of New-York and Quebec, to diſturb you in thoſe Rights and Privileges which have been confirmed to you; and ſhall endeavour, by every Means, to promote a mutual Confidence and good Underſtanding with the Seven Confederate Nations; recommending it to you, at the ſame Time, on this, as well as on any future Occaſion, to make a proper Diſtinction between Acts of Government, and the Proceedings of Individuals; nor to ſuppoſe, from the raſh and unjuſtifiable Actions of particular Perſons, that any public Countenance will be given to Violence and Oppreſſion."

Several Preſents were afterwards made to them, of different Kinds of Proviſions: with which, as well as the Aſſurances of Protection given to them, they appeared highly ſatisfied, and ſet out on their Return the ſame Day.

Tranſlation from a Swediſh Author.

ENGLAND without Diſpute is the Queen of Iſles, the Empire and Arſenal of Neptune. She is at the ſame Time the Peru of Europe, the Kingdom of Bacchus, the School of Epicurus, the Academy of Venus, the Country of Mars, the Abode of Minerva, the Support of Holland, the Scourge of France, the Purgatory of Partiſans of Oppoſition, and the Paradiſe of thoſe of Liberty. The Women are handſome, but their Beauty is attended with ſomething very inſipid. Bravery there, is, as it were, natural to the Men, but carried to an Exceſs that approaches to Savageneſs. Wit & Judgement Reign there, and perhaps more than in any Country whatever; but they produce a certain Air of Pride, which conſiderably diminiſhes their Merit. 'Tis there, one may ſay, that Fortune diſtributes her Favours abundantly; but theſe Iſlanders are ignorant of the Uſe they ought to make of them to Strangers, as the Courtiers and their Taſte are the only Objects of their Liberality. Their Language is an odd Mixture of almoſt all the Tongues of Europe; but with this Advantage that it expreſſes itſelf the beſt of all of them: In ſhort, 'tis a Nation, where nothing is wanting to its Happineſs, but to know how to enjoy it. Her natural Reſtleſſneſs and extreme, Jealouſy for Liberty and Property, have often plunged her into Civil Wars, which have laid her within ſix Inches of her Deſtruction.

The three Journies I made there having let me into their Manners, I venture to aſſert that it is the moſt delightful Country in the World for young Gentlemen to be amuſed in, provided they are Maſters of the Language, and able to ſupport the Expence:——And if the high Road to Hell be ſown with Delights and Pleaſures, you muſt neceſſarily paſs through England to it.

LONDON, Auguſt 9.

Inoculation for the Small Pox has become ſo common, and withal, ſo ſucceſsful, by the practitioners in Eſſex that the moſt timerous ventures to undergo the operation; an extraordinary inſtance of the truth of this will appear in the following article: Mr. Bright, of Maldon, and brother to the late corpulent Mr. Bright, being greatly terrified of having the ſmall pox, from his bulk, reſolved, on ſeeing ſo great a number recover from that diſorder, to undergo the operation; and accordingly after the uſual preparation, was inoculated, and laſt week happily recovered with only the loſs of as much fleſh, when he came to put on his uſual waiſtcoat, as buttoned up a middle-ſiz'd man in it with him; however, he is in full ſpirits, and likely to continue ſo.

Mr. Alderman Trecothick, we are well aſſured, intends to ſtand Candidate for the City of London at the next General Election.

We have already had (ſays a political Writer) a happy Earneſt given us of the intended Patriotiſm of future Meaſures, by finding that the Great are not now merely quarrelling for Places and Penſions; for we find that the noble Earl, who has been ſo long and ſo ſtrenuous in the Oppoſition, will ſupport the future Adminiſtration without deſiring any Poſt whatever: A noble example, worthy of every Commendation! We find too, that an able Commoner, if report ſays true, will relinquiſh the moſt lucrative Poſt of any, and at the ſame Time the moſt indolent one, in order to ſerve his Country in one of much leſs Profit, and a much more buſy Scene, wherein his Abilities are wanted. What though Party Malice has branded him with the Title of Weathercock! we know that no Man who loved his Country could, during the late Squabbles, remain long attached to any one Side without forfeiting his own Judgement and Conſcience. What the World idly judged to be the effect of Fickleneſs, proceeded rather from Spirit and Independence. Be it remembred, that he was the only Man who Stood firm in Defence of Mr. Pitt after his Reſignation, when the Mouths of all the Ungenerous were open againſt him. The Man who is thus grateful where he ought, and does not deſert his Friends in Diſgrace, will in courſe, be firm to Men and Meaſures, but not to Parties and Faction.

It is ſaid there will ſoon be a Re-call of all his Majeſty's Ships of War both in Ordinary and Commiſſion.

Yeſterday his Majeſty came from Richmond to St. James's, where there was a Levee, when the Hon. Mr. Yorke, his Majeſty's Attorney General reſigned his Place. His Majeſty returned to Richmond to dine.

One Day laſt Week a Wheat Field, conſiſting of ſeventeen Acres, belonging to Farmer King, of Kingſtown in Surry, was obſerved on ſtrict Examination to have no Grains of Corn in the Ears, on which it was cut down for Straw; It has been ſhewn at Kingſtown and other places, and is eſteemed a great Phænomenon of Nature.

Yeſterday the Company of the Royal Regiment of Artillery, lately ordered Home (who have been ſtationed here ever ſince the Year 1749) embarked on board the Tranſport for Quebec, where they are to leave the Company deſigned for that Place, and from thence proceed for England.

October 9. On Sunday laſt the Tranſport, with the two Companies of the Royal Regiment of Artillery ſailed for Quebec.

PORTSMOUTH, October 20.

Laſt Night about ſix o'Clock, a large Barn, having between forty and fifty Ton of Engliſh Hay therein, &c. belonging to Jonathan Moulton, Eſq; of Hampton, was ſtruck with Lightning, and entirely conſumed, and every thing therein. The Thunder and Lightning continued very ſevere moſt part of the Night, in this and ſeveral other places, but we don't hear of any other Damage being done.

BOSTON, October 23.

Tueſday Night was married here Mr. Eliſha Clark, of Middletown, in Connecticut, to Miſs Sally Hall, youngeſt Daughter to the Worſhipful Hugh Hall Eſq; of this Town: a young Lady of excellent Accompliſhments, with a handſome Fortune.

We hear from Portſmouth, New-Hampſhire, that on Monday laſt was committed to Goal there one Mrs. Elizabeth Odiorne on Suſpicion of the Murder of Mrs. Grant, Wife of Mr. Daniel Grant of that Place, and her Infant. It is ſaid, that two young Children of theſe Women having quarrel'd, Mrs. Odiorne carried Mrs. Grant's to its Mother for Correction, Mrs. Grant, who was ſitting at an Ironing-board, replied ſhe would as ſoon as ſhe had done what ſhe was about; but Mrs. Odiorne began to correct the Child herſelf, whereupon the Mother got up to reſcue the Child out of the other's Hands, when Mrs. Odiorne puſhing Mrs Grant againſt a Deſk in the Room, being with Child, ſet her into Travail, and ſhe expired ſoon after with her Infant.

Capt. Bellingham Watts arrived here Yeſterday from Newfoundland, on the 19th Inſtant in Lat. 43 15 North and Long 67 20 W. ſpoke the Brig Greyhound from Barbados bound to Portſmouth, out 28 Days, the People informed him that on the fifth, about five in the Morning the Veſſel was ſtruck with Lightning, every Man on board knocked down and ſtunned, all recovered again but one Man named William Molton, belonging to Philadelphia, who was killed, and one other wounded: The Mainmaſt was ſplit from the Top to the Step, alſo both the Pumps; the lower Deck and Part of the upper Deck were blown up, and the whole Veſſel was full of Smoak and Sulphur for an Hour; the Lightning likewiſe ſpoil'd both their Compaſſes, and ſcorch'd the Cards ſo much that Capt. Watts was obliged to ſupply them with one. They had met with a hard Gale which ſplit his Foreſail in two.

Tueſday Night laſt Capt. Smith from Fiſhing, arrived at Charleſtown, who brought 16 Hands belonging to a Ship, which had been caſt away near the Iſland of Antecoſta: The Ship was large, Frigate-built, was bound from London for Quebec, with a very valuable Cargo of dry Goods. The Maſter's Name—— Mitchel, who, with the ſecond Mate and three Hands were drowned.

We hear from Nantucket, that a Veſſel commanded by one Pinkham, in trying ſome Oyl on board, accidentally took Fire, and was ſoon conſumed.

Several Veſſels employed in the Whale Fiſhery, from the induſtrious Town of Warren in Rhode-Iſland Colony, have lately returned, having met with conſiderable ſucceſs. One Veſſel, which went as far as the Weſtern Iſlands, brought home upwards of 300 Barrels of Oil. Some Veſſels from Newport, have alſo been tolerably ſucceſsful. This Buſineſs, which ſeems to be carried on with Spirit, bids fair to be of great Utility to that Government.

We hear that a Perſon in a neighbouring Town, accidentally ſtep'd one of his Legs into a Kettle of hot Lyes that was boiling down to make Pot-Aſh, which in an Inſtant burnt off his Foot.

Laſt Lord's Day, a Child of Mr. Nathaniel Barber at the North-End, was baptiſed at one of the North-Churches in this Town by the Name of WILKES. The Ribbons on its Breaſt were diſtinguiſhed by a different Colour from the Cloaths, and wrought in large Figures № 45.

NEW-YORK, October 23.

To the PRINTER.

"ON Tueſday Night between 10 and 12 o'Clock, a Number of Soldiers with Bayonets, went to ſeveral Houſes in the Fields, where they were very noiſy and abuſive, to the great Diſturbance and Terror of the Inhabitants. This was occaſioned it is ſaid, by ill Treatment, which ſome of the Soldiers had received the Night before, at ſome of thoſe infamous Houſes, which to the great ſcandal of our wholeſome Laws, are ſuffered to exiſt as ſo many Receptacles for looſe and diſorderly People."

Capt. Bedlow, who arrived here on Wedneſday laſt in 21 Days from Santa Croix, acquaints us, that on the 18th of laſt Month, they had there a violent Storm, or rather Hurricane, which laſted near 24 Hours, in which Time he was obliged to ſlip his Cable and put out to Sea; When the Storm abated he got into Tartola, where three veſſels had been drove on ſhore, but would be got off again. The next Day he returned to Santa Croix, where the Sea had riſen ſo high, that many Hogſheads of Sugars were waſhed away in the Streets, and conſiderable damage done to other Veſſels.

The Boundary Line between the Provinces of N. York & Quebec (the Name now given to all Canada) is fixed at Latitude 45 Deg. which croſſes Lake Champlain, about two and a half Miles North of Wind-Mill Point, and is diſtinguiſhed by Openings made on each Side of the Lake, where ſeveral Trees are girdled and ſquare Poſts ſet up, mark'd with the Letters Y & Q. pointing to the reſpective Governments. The Opening on the Weſt Side of the Lake is at a low remakable Point of Land, which was then, by the Gentlemen preſent, named Moore's Point, in reſpect to his Excellency Sir Henry Moore our Govenor. His Excellency, and General Carleton, Lieutenant Governor of Quebec, were each attended by ſeveral Gentlemen from their reſpective Governments.

While his Excellency was at Windmill Point, ſeveral Gentlemen from Quebec, took the Opportunity to wait on him, and acquaint him with their Claims, by Grants from the French King, of all the Lands in thoſe Parts, on both Sides the Lake, as far South as Crown Point, or farther.——We are inform'd they very much inſiſted on their Right, from theſe Grants, and that his Excellency was pleaſed to acquaint them that the Determination would be left to the King and Council. Should the Claims of theſe Incroachers be admitted, it is hardly to be doubted but they may produce Grants for all the Lands to the North of Fort Edward.

Tueſday laſt paſſed by this city to the North River, from New-London, his Majeſty's ſhip the Cygnet, Capt. Durell; and we hear he is bound to Virginia, in a few days.

HARTFORD, October 27.

The Hon. FLIPHALET DYER, we hear, is appointed by our General Aſſembly, an Agent from this Colony, to the Court of Great-Britain.

On Sunday Evening, the 19th Inſtant, the Dwelling-Houſe of Mr. Simeon Willard of Sheffield, was ſtruck with Lightning, at one of the Gable Ends; the Lightning run on the Roof of the Houſe, till it got to the Chimney, where it went down into a Room in which Mr. Willard was ſitting, and kill'd him inſtantaneouſly.—Mr. Willard was a Perſon about 54 Years of Age—We don't learn that any One elſe of the Family was hurt; but it is ſaid the Houſe is a good Deal damaged.

"THE other day ſeeing a number of Gentlemen hovering about Court, all with ſeeming Concern in their Countenances, and doing great Obeiſance when either Governor or Council paſs'd along. It was aſked by One, what was the Meaning of all this parading, it was anſwered, that theſe Gentry were all Competitors for a Grand Bailiwick, now to be vacant, and as it was an entire ſecret, and all anxious to know who ſhould be the Favourite; a Stander-By, a Stranger, his Name unknown, offered to explore the Matter, when one of the Concerned, eager to be informed, and perceiving he was a Mumfordian Scholar, readily gave him a Half Joe, and beg'd him to prophecy Good concerning him——And the Fellow being thereupon fill'd with that Spirit, took his Pencil, and immediately drew an Effige upon Vellum, and placed the nine Figures all round it, and then looking ſteadfaſtly near Quarter of an Hour, without winking his Eye, (in which Time was collected a Number of Spectators, who gave the profoundeſt Attention) and after his thus ſtaring, he proceeded and ſpake as follows: "Men and Brethren, hearken; the Man who is to obtain this high Honor and Poſt of Profit, is to be neither a Merchant, nor a Merchant's Son; he is not to be one that has ſerved too long an Under Bailiff, already learnt to profit more by Perquiſites, Jobbs and Doublings, than by lawful Fees: Nor is he to be One that is merely qualified by the Atchievments of his Anceſtors, who have been improved in Poſts of Honor:—But the Man for this important Truſt, is he that has ſerved as an Under Sheriff enough to underſtand his Duty, that has juſtly obtained a good Character for Humanity, Honeſty and Fidelity among the People; has a good Freehold clear of Involvment, and is ſo ſituated, as to look one Way to the Court, and the other Way to the Goal, convenient for himſelf, and for all his Majeſty's Subjects; and he is alſo to be one who has no Connections or Buſineſs interfering with the Duty of his Office."—At this the Gentleman that gave the Joe, ſpake and ſaid "Your Humble Servant, Mr. Conjurer; you are not ſo much of a Witch as I expected; however, you are welcome to your Money, and I'll go home."—And all the People ſaid AMEN—AMEN.

Letters have been received in Holland from Batavia, dated the 24th of October laſt, which bring Advice that in the Iſland of Banda Niera, one of the Molucca Iſlands belonging to the Dutch, yielding nutmegs and mace, in lat. 4½ ſouth, about 25 leagues from Amboyna, they had there in the night of the 20th of April 1766, an eruption of the Volcano, which contined till the 4th of June, throwing out red hot ſtones, and other inflamable matter, without any intermiſſion, attended with a black ſtinking fog, which put the inhabitants into the greateſt conſternation, leſt the plague or earthquake ſhould follow it.

A letter from a Correſpondent, dated Barnſtable, July one, ſays. "On Sunday laſt, at the houſe of a Lady in this Town the moſt terrible loud groans and ſhrieks were heard, as of a perſon in the utmoſt agonies. It ſeemed chiefly to haunt a little boy, grandſon to the Lady. Search has been made in order to a diſcovery, but nothing found. Numbers of people flocked to hear it: Some ſuſpecting the boy, had him ſtript, but no impoſition could or can be found out. It has ceaſed ever ſince half paſt 10 o'clock in the forenoon of laſt Sunday, after having continued two or three hours. It had been heard a little at different times ſome days before; but on that day alarmed the inhabitants at three or four houſes diſtance. The boy aſſerts it to be like his brother's voice, who is now at ſea. It ſeems to have been common to the family to have preſages of death."

"Among the collection of voyages undertaken by the Dutch Eaſt-India Company, for the improvement of trade & navigation, there is an account of a diſcovery made by them in 1599, of an iſland ſituated in the Streights of Magellan, where they ſaw canoes, with ſavages on board, who appeared to be ten or eleven feet high, of a reddiſh colour, with long hair. As ſoon as the natives ſaw the ſloops, they ran aſhore, and threw ſo many ſtones at the Dutch, that they were afraid of coming near the ſhore; which the ſavages perceiving, returned to their canoes, and rowed towards the Dutch ſhips, making a great noiſe and outcry. But when they were come within muſquet-ſhot, the Dutch fired upon them, which affrighted them ſo, that they all went aſhore, and with their hands pulled up ſome trees, which afar off appeared to be a ſpan thick. A few days after, ſome of the Dutch ſailors going aſhore to look for proviſions, they were attacked by a company of the ſavages, who killed ſome, whom they tore in pieces, and wounded others. Theſe ſavages were all naked, except one, who had a ſea-dog's ſkin about his ſhoulders. They had wooden arrows, which they threw with their hands with great ſtrength and dexterity. The point was like a cramped iron, tied to the arrow with ſea dog's guts, and would run ſo far into the fleſh, that it was almoſt impoſſible to draw it out. The ſnow was pretty thick on the iſland, though it was the middle of ſummer. This ſome think, is the ſame iſland as that ſaid to be lately diſcovered by Commodore Byron.

CONNECTICUT COURANT.

From the New-York JOURNAL.

Mr. HOLT,

By giving the following Letter a place in your next, you will oblige ſome of your conſtant readers.

MY laſt, concerning the Colonies, leads me to an inquiry of a very extraordinary nature; it is, how America be- ame peopled before the diſcovery of it by the Europeans: this is a ſubject that I ſhall not pretend to prove to a demon- ration; but I ſhall give you the beſt reaſons that I am able, upported by the beſt authorities.——Anno 1492, hriſtopher Columbus, a Genoeſe, was fitted out by Ferdi- and and Iſſabella, King and Queen of Spain; who ſailing ſt ſoutherly, diſcovered Hiſpaniola or Florida. Soon af- e his return, Americus Veſpuſius ſailed thither, and made a e full diſcovery; and he indeed has the honour of giving s name to that vaſt continent; an infinite number of nati- s, and two vaſt empires, Mexico and Peru, were diſcovered him and his ſucceſſors; how thoſe people could get on is continent, which is ſeperated from Europe and Africa, y the vaſt Atlantic ocean, has employed the learned ever ſince diſcovery, and is not yet made quite clear.

For my part I am of opinion, that ſome of the nations of urope, or thoſe in the Mediterranean had diſcovered that ntinent about 1300 years before the birth of Chriſt. For e Phœnicians, who were the deſcendants of Ham, were a rt of thoſe people called in ſcripture the Canaanites, inha- ting the country about Tyre and Sidon; and were in thoſe [illegible] principal, if not the only people who traverſed the ſeas, led beyond the ſtraits of Hercules' Pillars (now called Giberal-) a vaſt way in a weſtern direction, & diſcovered a great con- ent; which Plato aſſerts, and which he in his Timæus calls lantis. This certainly muſt have been America, for there no continent weſt of Gibealter but that, and Ariſtotle who me after him ſays, or at leaſt inſinuates the ſame; and rnius, a modern ſays, that they made two voyages to it one der Atlas, and a ſecond, when ſailing along the coaſt of Af- , they were driven by ſtorms to the weſt, till they arrived America.

ut Ariſtotle poſitively ſays, that the Carthagenians had nd a country of great extent, weſt of Hercules' Pillars, to ich they frequently ſailed, and that ſome ſtayed in the ntry; but the ſenate of Carthage, he ſays, would not ſuf- their ſubjects to ſail there any more, leſt it ſhould be a ans of depopulating their own country.

The foregoing ſeems extremely probable, for it is well own, that the Phœnicians, and after them the Carthageni- had very large ſhips, and did actually ſail to Spain, and e of them to Britain, according to Strabo; what then can more likely, than that ſome of them were driven weſtward hat continent, by ſtorms from the eaſt? and a farther proof thoſe people had been there, is the religious rites prac- d by the natives, when Columbus diſcovered them, which e ſuch as correſponded with thoſe of the Phœnecians, and thagenians; in ſhort the above authorities are ſuch, that I not in the leaſt doubt of thoſe nations having viſited that continent; but that ſuch intercourſe was not often repea- , I think is clear; and therefore the few of thoſe crews might remain there (for it muſt be admitted, that they ied ſome women with them,) could not be the progenitors o many millions of people, as were found there by the niards. For the time between the Phœnecians and Car- genians going there, and with ſuch ſmall numbers, until diſcovery by Columbus, is not ſufficient for them to have the fathers of ſo many nations, which were extended C[illegible] Horn to Strait Davies, and even to the north of , and many of them to this day unknown.

muſt therefore be of opinion, that the bulk of this peo- had ſome other great ſource from whence they ſprang. e have been of opinion, that they derive their origin from ca, becauſe it is but fifteen degrees acroſs from Guinea to il; they therefore ſuppoſe the Africans got over thither. this opinion I am very far from adopting, for the moſt nt antiquity to this day, has not informed us, that the cans ever had in that part, any veſſel larger than a canoe, hey ever were a people of great ignorance. But beſides they are all black, and tranſplant them in any climate un- heaven, their progeny remains always black; therefore e natives of America had been deſcended from the Afri- , they muſt all have been of that complexion; whereas notoriouſly known, that there was not a black man found on all that continent, therefore that argument falls to the ground.

A nearer part of this continent to that of America, is Norway, which is but ſix or ſeven degrees diſtant from Greenland, which is allowed to be a part of America. Grocius is therefore of opinion, that the Europeans paſſed into America that way; but with due ſubmiſſion to that great man, I muſt differ in opinion from him; for can we ſuppoſe, that the Norwegians or Laplanders, who had nothing but little wherries like a canoe, could paſs ſuch turbulent ſeas as always prevail in thoſe parts of the world? but tho' we grant that a few of thoſe wherries did get over; can we ſuppoſe all North-America, Mexico, Peru, and down to Cape Horn could derive their origin from ſuch few? Surely it is unreaſonable to believe ſo.

Hitherto I have given the opinions, that have at different times prevailed; but from the little that I have read, and the leſs that I know of this globe, I am clearly of opinion, that the vaſt continent of America is not disjoined from the old world; but that it is all one and the ſame land, and not parted by any ſea, and this opinion I ſhall endeavour to ſupport.

From Calafornia N. W. there was a country diſcovered by our Sir Francis Drake; and Don John De Gama, a Spaniard, ſailed many days along ſhore of it, and has laid the coaſt down, running north-weſt, in about 45 degrees. And the Dutch have many years ſince diſcovered a country, which they call the Company's land, north-eaſt of Jedſo, and northward of Japan; this country diſcovered by them, is generally thought to be part of north-eaſt Tartary. But though it be a part of Japan, that does not disjoin it from Tartary; for Japan is not known to be an iſland. Now according to the Moſaical account, the peopleing of this globe began about the Euphrates; and ſoon after the deluge, we read of Babylon; next the diſperſion of nations. The deſcendants of Ham ('tis plain) went to Africa; thoſe of Japheth to the weſtward, and peopled Europe, as alſo Aſia Minor, Ruſſia, & ſome think Tartary. Shem and his deſcendants occupied the eaſt, as appears from the 30th verſe of the 10th chapter of Geneſis; this included Perſia, Aſſyria, Chaldea, and all the coaſt from Alexandretta to Sidon, with many other countries. At the concluſion of this chapter, Moſes drops all the reſt of the world, and gives only the hiſtory of Shem, down to Abraham and his deſcendants: To Abraham he confines himſelf, and drops even all the other parts of Shem's family, whom I think it is clear peopled all the eaſt; but when the moſt fruitful and deſireable countries were overſtocked with inhabitants, what is more reaſonable to believe, than that they extended themſelves to the north, and north-eaſt, from the plains of Shinar, 'til they after many ages reached the north-eaſtern parts of Tartary? And as long as the Europeans have known any thing of the Tartars, and even until this day, they have been and are a roving people, changing their place of abode, with their flocks and herds, for the ſake of better paſturage, juſt as the children of Iſrael did.

Now as the Europeans, or others have never been able to ſail round Tartary, tho' often attempted, and as Jedſo or Japan, or which is the ſame thing Tartary, ſtretches north-eaſt; what is ſo probable, as that thoſe roving Tartars following the coaſt, ſhould at length get to that country, diſcovered by Don John De Gama, tending north-weſt? For the one coaſt running north-eaſt, and the other north-weſt, muſt certainly meet, if no ſea prevents it, and none ſuch has been diſcovered.

Another reaſon to believe there is no ſea between, is that according to Hornius, the coaſt of Acapulca, and all Mexico, was much more populus when diſcovered by the Spaniards, than Brazil, Paragua, or the country about the ſtraits of Magellan, which proves their origin to have came from the N. W. which leads from Tartary. And as America abounds with a variety of Animals, known to the old world, they might go the ſame way into it, and I believe did; for no one can ſuppoſe, that tho' the Phœnecians or Carthagenians did ſail thither, that they would carry wolves, tygers, ſnakes thither by ſea. All this proves a junction of the continents, from N. E. Tartary to N. W. of California; ſome have wondered that no horſes were found there, to which Hornius ſays that the Tartars had none, and therefore none could go; 'tis true there are many animals in America, not known to the old world, but to this day we are not effectually acquainted with Tartary or Japan, and therefore do not know the animals they produce: And it is very remarkable, that the names of many places in America, were found to be the ſame with ſome in Aſia; one of the Tartar nations is called Canadina, from whence it is ſuppoſed, the nations up the river of St. Lawrence, gave the name of Canada; there is alſo a people in the eaſt called Hurons, ſo are the Indians about the Lake of that name, in North-America; it is likewiſe remarkable, that the ſamons Jinſeng was peculiar to Tartary, but a French jeſuit on enquirey found plenty of it in Canada; it is alſo found in other parts of that continent. This I think appears as if the Tartars had carried it there, for it is found in no other country but Tartary and America: Many more arguments of this kind might be produced to ſupport this opinion; but ſo late as 1735 a Ruſſian ſailed in thoſe ſeas, along the coaſt of Kamſhatka, tending N. E. about 70 leagues and ſent his boat on ſhore, but ſhe never return'd, the people being either deſtroyed or detained by the inhabitants: And a later traveller ſays, that the ſhips which go from Manilla to Acapulca, always ſtand N. to about 44 degrees, in order to have favourable winds; in which latitude he ſays they frequently have ſhallow water, which it muſt be agreed, ſeems as if there was a coaſt nigh at hand.

Many more arguments might be brought to ſupport this opinion, that America is joined to Aſia, and that its people went into it by way of Tartary. But what has been already advanced, I think is ſufficient to ſupport the foregoing opinion. I am Your's, &c. MARCUS AURELIUS.

LONDON, July, 7.

Notwithſtanding the various plauſible aſſertions, we are aſſured there never yet was a ſerious deſign of eſtabliſhing an epiſcopal government in North-America.

We hear from Dublin, that a tapeſtry manufacture is going to be eſtabliſhed in that city after the manner of the famous Gobelin's at Paris.

By a letter lately received from Devonſhire, we are informed, that one Mr. Churchill at hearing the cyder act was repealed, ordered two hogſheads of cyder to be brought out and placed before his door, and invited all his neighbours and all his friends to participate thereof; but while he was drinking ſeveral loyal and patriotic healths; he fell down, (with exceſs of joy) and expired with the jug in his hand.

We hear that agents are gone to Holland and Hamburgh, in order to engage foreign proteſtant emigrants to ſettle on the extenſive grants of land lately obtained by ſeveral gentlemen of fortune in his Majeſty's province of Eaſt-Florida.

We hear that Commodore Byron is to winter at the Brazils, in order to take the moſt early advantage of the ſeaſon for a ſpeedy paſſage thro' the ſtreight of Magellan.

We are informed from Elgin of Murray, in Scotland, that one Donaldſon, a labouring man, who had been deaf for upwards of twenty years, being at work in the fields, was ſuddenly ſtruck to the ground by a flaſh of lightning; ſoon after which, to the ſurprize of every body, he was fully reſtored to his hearing.

PHILADELPHIA, October 16.

Monday laſt arrived here the Brig Adventure, Capt. Harvey from Hiſpaniola, which Iſland he left the 18th of laſt month, and informs us, that he had not felt nor heard of any hurricane at that nor any of the adjacent iſlands, neither had he any on his paſſage, except a gale off Cape Hatteras. Capt. Hervey tells us, a ſloop, Capt. Huſſey belonging to Newbury, N. E. the ſloop ——, Capt Newel of Boſton, & a New-England ſchooner, were confiſcated, and the Captains and all the people, except a few that were aſhore, were impriſoned by the French at Cape Francois. He further informs us, that about the 20th of Auguſt, ſix Spaniards bro't into Cape Francois, from Porto Rico, a N. England built ſloop about 25 tons burthen, a ſhort quarter-deck, a large cramp-iron round her maſt near the deck, and by her bottom, it was thought ſhe had been on her voyage about two or three months: Circumſtances appearing hard againſt the Spaniards, as the ſloop appeared to be Engliſh, without any cargo, nor anchors or cables which had been cut away, they were taken up and committed to goal, on ſuſpicion of their having murthered the people and run away with the ſloop, as on examination they gave but a very poor account of themſelves. The ſloop was ſold and the money lodged in the hands of the King's officers, till ſomebody ſhould appear to claim the ſame.

We hear the General Aſſembly of this Province are to meet to proceed upon Buſineſs, the 6th Day of next Month, Circular Letters having been ſent to the ſeveral Members for that Purpoſe.

Friday Night laſt Capt. Tilly arrived here from Tortola, in 22 Days: he ſays, that on the 19th ult. they had ſuch a violent Gale of Wind at that Iſland, that every veſſel there was drove on ſhore, but that they were all got off again, without receiving any conſiderable Damage; and that among the ſaid Veſſels was one Capt. Hardey bound for Philadelphia.

The ſame day arrived the Meriam and Ann, Capt. Haſelton from Barbados, who informs us, that on the 21ſt of September, about 4 o'clock P. M. in lat, 23. 4, long. 64. 3. he met with a violent gale of wind, which obliged him to lay the brig to, under her bare poles, in handing the foreſail it was ſplit to pieces with the violence of the wind; about 5 o'clock, the knees and laſhing of the cabouſe gave way, went to leeward, and ſtarted about 5 feet of the plank ſheer, which lay continually under water, and the ſea alſo carried away a ſpare fore yard: The gale ſtill continuing, laid the brig on her beam ends, and having about three feat water in her hold the ballaſt and cargo ſhifted, by which ſeveral barrels of lime and ſugar were ſtove, ſoon after the wind ſhifting about to the N. W. carried away the ſprit ſail; by this time, the pumps being choaked with the ballaſt, they were obliged t bale the water out of the hold; about 8 o'clock, hoiſting th foreſail, to get before the wind, it ſplit to pieces; about a hour after the wind abated, when they got the veſſel t rights, as well as they could, and arrived here as above men tioned, without any other accident.

Captain Kitchin, from Blewfields in Jamaica, confirms th account we inſerted ſome time ago, of a hurricane at Jamaica on the 16th of Auguſt, in which ſeveral veſſels were loſt, bu we can't learn any particulars; he was forced to put to ſe as alſo a ſloop which parted her cables. Capt. Kitchen re turned to port, from whence he failed the 30th of Auguſt, the next day, about ſix o'clock P. M. 12 leagues E.N.E. fro Jamaica, fell in with a ſmall boat with ſix Negroes on boar almoſt dead with hunger, whom Capt. Kitchin took on boar who ſaid that they were at firſt 7 in number, that they belong ed to Savannah La Mar, and were drove out to ſea in th ſtorm of the 16th above mentioned, and had been to ſea a that time without either proviſions or water: They ſaid th one of their number had died a few days before, whom th had thrown overboard. The 8th inſt. off our Capes, he ſpok with a ſmall ſloop from Virginia for New-York, with ſtav on her deck, the maſter of which informed Capt. Kitche that on the 5th inſt. in a gale of wind at N.W. he had his ſails ſplit to pieces, and was then driving at the mercy the ſea. Capt. Kitchen could afford them no aſſiſtance, as t wind blew too hard.

Yeſterday arrived Capt. Allen, in 5 weeks from the Gr nades, and informs us, that he left Capt. Hodge and Ca Roger Richards, in ſloops belonging to N. York, at the G nades, alſo the ſhip Ann, Capt. Wright, who was drove o of Dominica in the hurricane of the 13th of Auguſt; he w unloaded, and was to ſail for the Bay of Honduras in abo two weeks; her ſupercargo had alſo got to the Grenades.

A Gentlemen in London writes to his Correſpondent here, Auguſt 30, that the Market is at preſent overſtocked with American Pot-Aſh.——that the beſt now ſells at 28 to 29 l. per Ton, and but few Buyers—that the Price muſt be conſiderably lower, unleſs the different Provinces ſtop the Exportation for a few Months, which will not be eaſily done till they are ſenſible of their Error.

One Night laſt Week a Gentleman at South-Kingſton was robbed of near 200 Dollars, in the following manner. The Rev'd Mr. James Lockwood, of Weathersfield, who was lately choſen Preſident of Yale-College, inſtead of the Rev'd Mr. Thomas Clap, reſigned, did not accept of that Office; therefore the Rev'd Mr. Naphtali Daggett, Profeſſor of Divinity of ſaid College, was choſen Preſident pro-Tempore; and he is to execute both Offices till a Separation is practicable.

Eliphalet Dyer, Eſq; who was lately appointed Agent for this Colony, at the Britiſh Court, declined the Truſt. William-Samuel Johnſon, L.L.D. who was choſen after Mr. Dyer's Refuſal, has accepted it, and we hear he purpoſes to embark for England next Month.

By late Advices from Ireland, they have not ſaved much Flax-Seed of their own Growth, conſequently they will want a Supply of American Seed. I believe the Price will be from 5s.6d. to 6s. Currency per Buſhel, and would recommend to you to ſend what you buy as early as poſſible to Market."

NEW-LONDON, October 24.

On the 31 Day of Auguſt laſt, ſailed from this Port, the Sloop Diſpatch, Capt. Savage of Middletown, bound to the Grenades, with a Cargo of Horſes and Oxen, and on the 6th, of September, in Lat. 36. he met with a hard Gale of Wind, which laſted about 6 Hours, hove the Veſſel on her Beam Ends, and carried off part of his ſmall Stock; and on the 18th of the ſame Month, in Lat. 28. he met with a violent Hurricane, which obliged him on the 19th to throw over all the Stock off the Deck: The Gale continued till in the Night of the 19th, when it began to moderate, and left the Veſſel a mere Wreck, and they were not able to make any Sail for Five Days after; but by the help of what little Sail they afterwards made, they arrived at Bermuda on the 27th of the month.—On the ſame Day they arrived there a Sloop of about 60 or 70 Tons, overſet drove by the Iſland, but at two great a diſtance to be towed in, having her Maſt cut away and no living Creature on board; and on the 4th of October, another Veſſel bottom upwards, was towed to the Iſland, but in attempting to carry her into a Harbour, ſhe drifted on the Rocks: She was 52 Feet Keel, and had a black Bottom; her Maſts were gone, but ſuppoſed to be a Schooner. By cutting through her Bottom, it was found ſhe had a Quantity of white Pine Plank in her Hold, and a Barrel of Flower floated from her mark'd A. B. No. 54—Capt. Savage having repaired his Veſſel at Bermuda, arrived at Stonington laſt Saturday.

Capt. Savage, 48 Hours after the Gale, ſaw a number of Horſes floating by him.

We hear that Mr. John Maſon, who went to Great-Britain in October 1764, to get a Re-hearing (of what the Maſons call a Cauſe or Controverſy between the Governor and Company of the Colony of Connecticut, and the Moheagan Indians, that was Tried and Determined in the Year 1743, at a Court of Commiſſioners in Norwich, in favour of ſaid Colony,) hath obtained the ſame, which is to be Tried we hear in England next February.

We hear that the preſent Miniſtry will ſoon talk to our neighbours the Dutch in the Oliverian ſtile, as that is the only method to bring their High Mightineſſes to do juſtice, and comply with their treaties; and it is imagined, that Count Weldeen's journey to Holland, is with a view to ward off a language which will be ſo very diſagreeable to the ſtates.

Sept. 16. Some folks who are not eaſy wrought upon by vague reports, do think, that things are ſo far from being firmly ſettled in the departments of national buſineſs, as to admit of great changes very unexpectedly.

Divers Gentlemen have lately gone over to N. York, and other provinces in North America, to claim lands given their predeceſſors almoſt a century ago. On the eſtate of one gentleman, 'tis ſaid Elizabeth Town is built, which will now turn out of great value to him It is probable this may give the American Lawyers ſome buſineſs.

LONDON, July 7.

A letter relative to the new diſcovery, ſent by Mr. Bowen, to the ſociety of arts, &c. in the Strand; with the reſolution of that ſociety, in conſequence thereof.

Gentlemen,

During near four years, whilſt I was priſoner in China, & had the opportunities of obſerving the productions of that country, being carried 2000 miles from place to place, thro' the interior parts thereof, I took notice of many things, which I hoped might be of ſervice in my own country, if it ſhould pleaſe God to permit me ever to return to it. Among the reſt I particularly took notice of a kind of powder in great eſteem there as an occaſional diet, which I found to be the powder of Sago, or China Salop, prepared for the uſe of travellers, both by land and ſea, which the Mandarins never travel without. At my return to England, I was fully perſuaded, that the vegetable which produced this powder in China, with which I made myſelf well acquainted, might be found in our American colonies; and with this view I went over to his Majeſty's province of Georgia, where I was ſo luckey as to find it, and have therefrom manufactured ſome quantity; this has been ſeen and approved of by ſeveral phyſicians and other gentlemen, as that it would be of great ſervice in hoſpitals, the army, navy, in the African ſhips, and in all long voyages, being an excellent antiſcorbutic.

And where in caſe of neceſſity, it would ſupply the want of other diet, and be of much ſervice to the ſick; the conſideration hereof I humbly ſubmit to this Society, with a letter from Dr. Fothergill: And am, Gentlemen, &c.

S. BOWEN.

At a meeting of the ſociety, held the 11th inſt. came to the following reſolutions, on the ſubject of the above letter.

Reſolved, That the Society by letter from Dr. Fothergill; and alſo from the experiments made by their committee, have reaſon to believe, that the Sago and Vermecelli, produced by Mr. Bowen, may be uſeful, as a cheap and ſalutary food, and may, under proper encouragement, become a conſiderable article of commerce, and therefore that Mr. Bowen is highly deſerving the encouragement of this Society.

Reſolved, That the better to encourage Mr. Bowen to proceed in the making theſe uſeful articles, the diſcovery of which in British-America, is owing to his obſervations in China, and his induſtrious application of thoſe obſervations in Georgia; the Society think proper to give their gold Medal to Mr. Bowen.

Accordingly, a few days afterwards, the Society for the encouragement of arts, manufactures and commerce, gave a gold Medal, engraved by Mr. Pingo, the following inſcription being engraved thereon.

To Mr. Samuel Bowen, 1765, for his uſeful obſervations in China, and induſtrious application of them in Georgia.

To Major ROBERT ROGERS, Eſq: Governor, and Commander in Chief of Michilimackinac, and its Dependencies, &c., &c.

May it pleaſe your Honour,

WE, the Merchants and Traders of Michilimackinac, beg Leave to congratulate you on your ſafe Arrival here. It gives us a particular Satisfaction, that you are appointed our Governor, more eſpecially at a Time that many of the Indian Nations, almoſt worn out with repeated Solicitations for Traders, are on the Eve of Diſcontent; but our Hopes from you, Sir, to reconcile Matters, and put the Trade upon a proper Footing, are very ſanguine. Your Activity, and the many eminent Services you rendered your Country in the Courſe of the laſt War, and the Reputation you have by that Means gained amongſt the Indians, will add Weight to your Councils, and re-eſtabliſh the national Credit, through the moſt extenſive and remoteſt Part of his Majeſty's Dominions.

Permit us to aſſure you, Sir, that on our Parts, we ſhall at all Times do every Thing in our Power, to bring the Indians to a Senſe of their Duty, and make your Reſidence as agreeable as the Place will admit of. And that we are, with the greateſt Reſpect,

To the Merchants and Traders at Michilimackinac.

Gentlemen,

THIS affectionate Addreſs deſerves my Gratitude. I cannot but be ſenſibly affected at the general diſcontent among the Indians; but be aſſured, that I ſhall enforce every ſalutary meaſure conducive to the re-eſtabliſhment of general tranquility, conſiſtent with the inſtructions I have, and may, from time to time, receive from Sir William Johnſon, under whom I act, from whoſe judgment and extenſive knowledge in Indian affairs, the grieveances you complain of, may ſpeedily be removed.

Be aſſured, my endeavours ſhall never be wanting, in promoting the trade of this diſtant poſt; and I ſhall be ready at all times, to adviſe with you on meaſures for its advancement. I am,

Gentlemen,
Your moſt humble Servant,
ROBERT ROGERS.

BOSTON, November 6.

Yeſterday being the 5th of November ever memorable on Account of the Diſcovery of the Gun Powder Plot, the ſame was obſerved here by a Diſcharge of Cannon from the Ramparts at the Caſtle, and likewiſe from the South, North, and Charleſtown Batteries.——The Populace, to ſhew their Deteſtation of Slavery, to divert themſelves and pleaſe the Inhabitants, erected a Number of Stages, whereon they exhibited to public View a Variety of very droll as well as ridiculous Effigies, which, however, are ſuppoſed to come as near the Originals as Diſtance and their knowledge of them would permit.—Thinking our Deliverance from the Stamp-Act ſomewhat analogus in its Conſequences to the Eſcape from the Popiſh Plot, it was thought neceſſary, by the Conductors of the Pageantry, to increaſe the Pope's Retinue by adding thereto in Effigy, a Number of the Friends of Slavery and arbitrary Power, and in particular ſome of the Advocates for the late Stamp-Act—An arch Friend, as principal Inſtigator, Dictator and Supporter of both Plots (evidently calculated to overturn the British Conſtitution of Government and deprive the Subject of his Liberty) clos'd the Rear upon the Stages. To convince the Inhabitants that no Diſorder or ill Uſage were intended, the front of their Lanthorns was inſcribed to Liberty, underneath which was wrote, The Lovely Unity. Having paraded the Streets thro' all Parts of the Town till Night, they quietly repaired to the ſeveral Places of Execution, where after beheading the Effigies of the Pope and his Confederates, they committed their Bodies to the Flames.

We hear His Excellency the Governor, with Advice of his Majeſty's Council, has been pleaſed to appoint Thurſday the 27th of this inſt. November to be obſerved as a Day of general Thankſgiving throughout this Province.

We hear the Rev. Mr. Samuel Blair is to be Inſtalled to the Paſtoral Care of the old South Church in this Town, Colleague with the Rev. Mr. Sewall, on Wedneſday the 26th Inſt. in the Afternoon.

Joſeph Sherwood Eſq; our Agent at the Court of Great-Britain, in his laſt Letter to the Governor and Company of this Colony, acquaints them, that he had applied to the Lords of the Treaſury for the Payment of the Money due to the Colony, by grant of Parliament, as a Reimburſement of their Services during the late War; but was told by their Lordſhips, that as there had been dangerous Riots in the Colony, on Account of the Stamp-Act, in which ſeveral Perſons had their Property deſtroyed, they were determined to retain the Money in their Hands 'till ample Compenſation ſhould be made to the Sufferers.—This Letter has been laid before the General Aſſembly, and the Agent requeſting Inſtructions how to proceed, they appointed a Committee to conſider & point out what was expedient to be done, who have made a Report, which was approved of, to this Purpoſe, that his Honor, the Governor, be requeſted to direct to the Agent to repreſent to their Lordſhips, that in Conſequence of a Parliamenttary Grant ſome Time ſince, the other Colonies had received their ſeveral Proportions; and with Regard to Riots; and the Deſtruction of private Property, that the Legiſlature knew of none, no Complaints of that Kind having come before them; but when any real Sufferers ſhould, in a Conſtitutional Manner, apply to the General Aſſembly for Redreſs, they would take the Matter into Conſideration, and do therein what they conceived to be juſt and reaſonable.

Yeſterday the Great and General Court met here, when his Excellency the Governor was pleaſed to make the following SPEECH to both Houſes viz.

Gentlemen of the Council, and
Gentlemen of the Houſe of Repreſentatives,

I HAVE thought proper to call you together, that you may have an Opportunity to give a poſitive Anſwer to what I recommended to you, by Order of His Majeſty, laſt Seſſion; as it will be expected of me that it be reported to His Majeſty before the opening of the Buſineſs of the next Year: And I heartily wiſh that it may be ſuch as will anſwer the Expectations and Deſires of your Friends in Great Britain. For my own Part, I ſhall upon this Occaſion, as upon all others, make the beſt Uſe of the Means you ſhall put in my Hands to promote the Honour and Reputation of the Province.

As you are called together for this Buſineſs only, when it is finiſhed, I ſhall have no Objection to your returning Home, until the uſual Time of opening the Winter Seſſion.

At a Meeting of the Freemen of the Town of Windham, on the 9th of September, A. D. 1766, it was voted (nemine contradicente) that the following Inſtructions be given to the Repreſentatives choſen to repreſent us, at the General Aſſembly, to be held at New-Haven, in October next.

GENTLEMEN,

OUR making choice of you to repreſent us at the General Aſſembly in October next, you will naturally and juſtly conclude, muſt reſult from the good opinion we entertained of your fitneſs and qualifications for ſuch an important truſt: But, that you might with the greater facility and certainty, conduct agreeable to your truſt, and the true character of Repreſentatives, and more fully anſwer the expectations of your conſtituents; we apprehend there is the greateſt propriety, as well as neceſſity of communicating to you our ſentiments, relative to ſome matters of importance which in our opinion, ought to come under conſideration [illegible] approaching aſſembly: not doubting but you will feel yourſelves under powerful engagements, to expreſs our ſentiments and exert your utmoſt ſkill and influence for the attainment of what is ſo ardently deſired by us.

1ſt. We requeſt that your utmoſt endeavours be uſed, to obtain an act, that no man's perſon be arreſted and impriſoned, when ſufficient means of ſatiſfaction can (otherways) be lawfully found, to be ſhewn and preſented by him; and alſo, that no man's perſon be held in priſon, who has no eſtate; or rather, that the force or validity of an act in colony law book, pages 8 and 9, to the abovesaid purpoſe, be revived, and ſtand in full force, by the repealing any after acts or clauſes, whereby the true intent and meaning of ſaid act is vacated, and render'd void, and of none effect.

2dly. That an additional clauſe be annexed to the ſheriffs and their deputies oaths, regulating and reſtricting the sheriffs, relative to their letting and ſelling their office; in the ſame manner in which the high ſheriffs in England are regulated and reſtricted; and that every high ſheriff and under ſheriff be ſworn to take no more than their lawful fees, for the execution of their office.

3dly. That no actions or ſuits at law be commenced at any of the adjourned county courts in this colony.

"YOU muſt have ſeen in the public papers, the attempt of Heraclius, a Georgian Prince, in making to throw off the Turkiſh Yoke, and the ſucceſs he has met with; what I am going to relate, is the ſteps he took towards it. The firſt neceſſary thing was to inſtruct his countrymen in the uſe of arms, and train them in the European diſcipline; in order to this, he opened his deſign to a young man, about his own age, of great good ſenſe, and a military genius, ſon to the richeſt merchant in the place. It was agreed between them, that Joſeph Armine (for that is his name) ſhould come to England, and endeavour to ſerve in our armies, till he had rendered himſelf perfect enough in the art of war, to be able to diſcipline his countrymen; he therefore attempted to gain his father's leave (under the pretence of trade) to come in a genteel manner, but the father would by no means hear of it; however, ſometime after, he ſent him with a carravan to Perſia, to manage his commerce there; ſoon after their arrival, Armine ſcraped together what money he could, and giving the carravan the ſlip, made his way to ſome of our Eaſt-India ſettlements, intending to get on board ſome of our ſhips, and in the mean time, trying to learn our language; there he was forced to remain, till he had no more money left than was juſt ſufficient to bribe a ſailor, belonging to one of our men of war, to conceal him on board till they were out at ſea, when he was to work as well as he could for his paſſage. In this manner he came to England, was landed at Wapping without a farthing in his pocket, which obliged him, for preſent ſupport, to hire himſelf to fetch in pots at an ale-houſe there. When the people of the houſe aſked him his name, he told them it was "Cockeyed ſon of a bitch," which it ſeems the ſailors uſed to call him, and he knew ſo little of the Engliſh, that he really thought it a proper name. At this place he ſtayed till he could talk it pretty well. When he came to London, he, for a livelihood, took up the honorable trade of a ſhoe-black, continually frequenting the parade, and all places where he could ſee the ſoldiers exerciſe, and aſking them queſtions about the battles they had been in: but his conſtant ſtand as a ſhoe-black was at Northumberland houſe; it happened while he ſtood there, one of the grooms was attempting to break a fine Arabian horſe in the court-yard; the fellow did it ſo awkwardly, that Armine was out of patience; he ran in and told him he would ruin the horſe entirely, but if he would leave it to him, he would ſhow him how to deal with an Arabian horſe; the groom ſwore at, and abuſed him, but ſtill could make nothing of it himſelf, while Armine ſtood ſtamping, and making a hundred contortions. At laſt a crowd of ſervants, who were gathered about perſwaded the groom to let him try (expecting the diverſion of ſeeing him break his neck) the fellow in a paſſion, bid him get on, and be d—d. Immediately Armine ran to the horſe, vaulted into the ſaddle at one leap, and in two minutes made the creature perform what paces he pleaſed. The noiſe this occaſioned among the ſervants reached my Lord's ear, who was ſoon told the reaſon, and ſent for him in, when, after a good deal of diſcourſe about horſes, finding by his anſwers, he was a man of ſenſe, my Lord enquired what brought him to England, and how he came to be in ſo miſerable a condition. Armine told him his whole ſtory, and named a merchant in London who his father correſponded with, but to whom he would not make himſelf known, fearing that his father, who he knew gueſſed he come to England, might have writ to him to ſend him back again if he could be found. On my Lord's ſending to this merchant, he found it really the caſe; the father had writ to him to find his ſon if poſſible, to pay any debts he had contracted, and give him ſixty pounds if he would come back; if not, to leave him to ſtarve. Armine refuſed to go; my Lord took him into his houſe, cloathed and entertained him at his table, till the time our troops went abroad, when he recommended him to the Duke of Cumberland, with whom he ſerved a campaign as a volunteer, fighting always near the Duke. He afterwards ſerved two campaigns under the King of Pruſſia. Prince Heraclius had then left his country, and was ſerving under the ſame King; there they met, and after two campaigns, returned together to Georgia, where they rouſed the ſpirits of their countrymen, inſtructed them in the art of war, and have had the ſucceſs you muſt have ſeen. Armine is now the general of Heraclius's army."

By a gentleman from Plymouth we learn, That a Sloop arrived there on Wedneſday Night laſt from St. Euſtatia, having been forced out of that Harbour the 7th of Oct. by a violent Gale of Wind, or Hurricane; he loſt his Cables, Anchors, Bowſprit, and is afraid there has been a great deal of Damage done to the Shipping.

Tueſday laſt arrived here his Majeſty's Packet Harriot, Capt. Oak, with the Mail in 47 Days from Falmouth:——She brings no latter Prints than the Merchant Ships arrived a Day or two before her:——But private Letters informs us, that ſuch great Quantities of Pot-Aſh have lately arrived in England from North-America, as to cauſe it to become a meer Drug; that the Price of it is fell above 25 per Cent. and much of it obliged to be ſtored for Want of a Market.——The public Prints, in general are full of Relations of Riots and Diſturbances all over England, on Account of the Dearneſs of Bread-Corn and Proviſions ſaid to be occaſioned chiefly by Fore-ſtallers; and a Bounty given on the Exportation thereof, by which means great Quantities are bought up, or fore-ſtalled, and the Poor much oppreſſed, &c. And the Grievance was become ſo apparent to the Court of England, that a Proclamation was iſſued on the 11th of September, to enforce the Statutes of the 5th and 6th of Ed. VI. and the 5th of Elizabeth, againſt Fore-ſtallers, Regrators & Ingroſſers of Corn, on the Pain of his Majeſty's higheſt Diſpleaſure:——And that it is ſaid, Letters having been received in England from Italy, with unlimited Orders to buy up all the Corn they could get, at any Price; the Conſequences were viſible; by ſeveral Ships being loaded therewith, bound for the Streights, and it was expected an Embargo would be laid to prevent the too great Exportation thereof; which had ſo alarmed ſome of them, that they had ſailed without having their full Loads:——but that whether an Embargo were laid or not, ſeveral of the moſt conſiderable Corn-Factors had determined not to export any more after the 18th of September, in hopes to put a ſtop to the impending evils that appeared ready to overwhelm the poorer part of the nation.——The ſcarceneſs of corn was alſo ſeverely felt in Scotland, where one noble inſtance of humanity is recorded the 6th of September, of Sir George Lockhart Bart. who not only ſold his farm-meal to the poor houſeholders, at a price greatly under the market price, but cauſed to be diſtributed weekly a quantity of oatmeal to the poor people in his neighbourhood gratis.——It was generally hoped, that the bounty on the exportation of corn would be taken off next ſeſſion of Parliament.

Saturday laſt ended the October Term of the Supreme Court of this Colony, during which the following Perſons received Trials, viz. Elizabeth Dent, for picking a Pocket Book out of a Man's Pocket in the public market with Bills of Credit in it to the Value of £3:12—and Elizabeth Floyd, for ſtealing wearing Apparel: Both found Guilty, and ſentenced to be hanged on Friday the 28th of this Inſt. William Herring alias Johnſton, Richard Hutchinſon & Thomas Maſon, a Boy of about 12 Years old, for Burglary, all three found guilty, and were burnt in the Hand. John Dominy, for attempting a Rape on the Body of a Girl of about 8 Years old; found guilty, and ſentenced to receive 39 Laſhes at a Cart's Tail, round the City, on Monday laſt, which was accordingly executed; and he is to receive the ſame number on Saturday next, and the ſame on the Saturday following, and to ſuffer three Months Impriſonment.—— Two other Women were tried for Felony, and acquitted:——And a Third, from ſome uncommon Circumſtances, committed till next Term.

Thurſday laſt the new Epiſcopal Chapel, in this City, called St. PAUL's, and eſteemed one of the moſt elegant Edifices on the Continent, was opened and dedicated to Almighty God. The Concourſe of People of all Ranks and Denominations (who attended on the Occaſion) was very great.

After Divine Service, which was adapted to this particular Occaſſion, an excellent Sermon was preached by the Rev. Doctor Samuel Auchmuty, Rector of Trinity Church. His Text was taken from Exod. iii 5. And he ſaid, draw not nigh hither: Put off thy Shoes from off thy Feet, for the Place whereon thou ſtandeſt is holy Ground.

The whole was conducted with the greateſt Decorum. The decent Behaviour of the Audience, conſiſting of many Thouſands of People, their Devotion during Divine Service, and fixed Attention to the Sermon, did Honor to themſelves and to the Preacher.

Friday laſt, John Morris was executed at Newark purſuant to his ſentence, for horſe-ſtealing; but John M'carty the other man condemned at the ſame time, was reprieved by the Governor of N. Jerſey.

The mail to go with the Harriot, packet will be made up next Tueſday night, and the veſſel is to ſail the next morning.

With Capt. Lawrence came paſſengers, Major James's Lady and her niece; Doctor Moffatt, of Rhode-Iſland; Mr. Walker, Collector for New-Caſtle on Delaware; Mr. Bander, and ſeveral others.

Capt. Johnſton, in 20 days from Antigua informs us, that on the 3d ult. was taken up at ſea, and brought to that Iſland, by one of their pilots, a large black ſloop without any living creature on board; ſhe had new ſails made by Chriſtopher Duyckinck of New-York, four ports in each ſide 4 cabbin windows with 4 panes of glaſs in each; her cabbin painted of a cedar colour, her ſtarboard ſhrowds cut away, and ſeveral cuts in her maſt, with her lumber port open: She had a new cable, hoops and lumber, and ducks on her deck; alſo ſeveral barrels of flower in her hold, ſome of which were marked H M. the brand F M, and others A M. 'Twas imagined ſhe took fire at ſea, as her callouſe was burnt, and deſerted perhaps too ſoon by the crew.

Capt. O'Brien from Cowes, has brought over about 100 recruits for the different regiments now in America.

Capt. Blow in 31 days from Coracoa, on the 9th ult. off the Iſland of Monaca, met with an exceſſive hard gale of wind at S.S.E. which continued 12 hours, and ſays, that if the gale was as ſevere to windward as he had it, that no veſſel could poſſibly ride it out at anchor at any of the iſlands where the roads are open to the S. and S.E. winds.

Laſt Wedneſday came on before the Supreme Court of Judicature for this Province, a Cauſe in which Mr. Thomas White, of this City Merchant, was Plaintiff, and Capt. John Brown, of his Majeſty's Ship Hawke, Defendant; for the Seizure of a Ship and Cargo in December 1763; when after a Hearing of ſeventeen Hours, the Jury bro't a Verdict for the Plaintiff, with 4046 l. Damages, and Coſts of Suit.

We have the Pleaſure to inform our Readers from good Authority, that his Excellency Sir Henry Moore, our Governor, has received Inſtructions from Home, to give his Aſſent to the Bills that may be paſſed and preſented to him by the General Aſſembly of this Province, for the Emiſſion of Paper Currency, or Money Bills of Credit.

LONDON, Auguſt 3.

THE Chamber-maid of a Lady of diſtinction at Valenciennes [in France,] murdered her miſtreſs in a moſt ſhocking manner. Her lady looking into the cellar, the maid puſhed her down ſtairs, and immediately following her, ſtopped her mouth, and beat her over the head with a brick till ſhe killed her; the maid then went up ſtairs, dreſſed herſelf, went to Veſpres, and gave out, that her miſtreſs was gone by herſelf to Onnain, a village about a league off, that ſhe was to go along the Scheld, and that the next day ſhe was to go to her to carry her watch and jewels. In the evening ſhe returned home, cut the body to pieces, and next morning carried part of it in a bag and threw it into the Scheld, and towards Evening ſhe did the ſame with the remainder. The ſame day ſhe carried the watch &c. to the clergyman's at Onnain, expreſſed much concern at her miſtreſs's not being there, and leaving the watch and jewels went to look for her, as ſhe pretended. On the 5th ſhe returned, took away the watch and jewels, and carried them to her miſtreſs's ſiſter, and that day ſome pieces of the body being found in the Scheld the unhappy wretch was the firſt who ſaid that they muſt belong to her miſtreſs, who, without doubt, had been murthered in going to Onnain. However, ſhe was taken up and examined, and people ſent to the houſe, who diſcovered ſeveral traces of murder; upon which ſhe was again examined, and after much prevarication in her anſwers, ſhe at laſt acknowledged the whole affair.

Auguſt 9. Robert Webber, late a Midſhipman in one of his Majeſty's Ships of War, who was condemned for Felony at laſt Maidſtone Lent Aſſize, but reſpited, and who received Sentence at the laſt Lent Aſſize to be tranſported for Fourteen Years, delivered a Petition into Court, praying that he might ſuffer Death purſuant to his Sentence.

Auguſt 18. Yeſterday a poor Woman, Wife of a Cork-cutter, in Long Ally, Moorfields, was ſafely brought to bed of three fine Boys; and laſt Year the ſame Woman had twin Daughters.

This Week a Lady of Diſtinction, in all Appearance healthy, has had her Coffin bro't Home, which, contrary to the Intreaties of her Family, ſhe has cauſed to be depoſited in her Study, from a firm Perſuaſion that it will not be many Days unoccupied.

Yeſterday Morning Two Men, Priſoners in the Fleet-priſon, quarrelling, a Battle enſued, when one of them gave out, pretending he had received great Hurt, and went to his Bed, and, in order to affright the other had his Face floured, and himſelf laid out as if dead; the Farce was carried on for ſome Time, to the great uneaſineſs of his Antagoniſt; at laſt, he got up, and went and played on the Bear 'till about ſeven o'Clock in the Evening, when he complained of being ill, went up to Bed and in a few Minutes afterwards died in Earneſt, verifying the old Proverb, That it is ill jeſting with Death & the Devil.

Monday laſt were brought over in the Britannia Greenland Twenty Shetland Sheep; they are extremely Diminutive, the Rams, though full grown, not being much taller than a Lap-Dog.

From Marlborough, in Wilts, we have the following remarkable Particulars, which may be depended on as Facts.——On Monday, the 23d of June, Mr. Gh, of that Town buried his Wife; and was ſo greatly afflicted on the Occaſion, that he cou'd not be prevailed on to leave the Grave, but ſtaid there, weeping and bewailing his Fate, all Monday Night, great Part of Tueſday, and and all Tueſday Night; his Grief appeared ſo very great that it drew Tears from a great Number of People, and ſome of his Friends thought him delirious. It's an old Saying, The hotteſt Love is ſooneſt cool'd; and it appears, by Mr. G's Behaviour, that the greateſt Grief is ſooneſt alleviated; for the next Day (Wedneſday) he ſet out in a Poſt-Chaiſe for London, to pay his Addreſſes to a young Lady he was formerly acquainted with; ſhe made no Objection to his Propoſal, but deſired he would ſtay a Week for Decency's Sake: on this Mr. G came again to Marlborough, and ſtanding at his own Door Saturday Morning, he ſaw a young Girl, about 15, riding aſtride on Horſeback: he deſired her to walk in, and after a little Converſation aſked her if ſhe would marry him? the Girl (who was Daughter to a labouring Man of the Town) gladly embraced the Offer, but on Account of her Age the Father's Conſent was requiſite; this was ſoon obtained by Mr. G's making him a Preſent of a Cow he had bought that Morning; accordingly the Marriage was ſolemnized about 11 o'Clock, and after the Ceremony the new-married Couple went into a Public-Houſe not far from the Church, where the Bridegroom gave his Bride a conſiderable Sum of Money, and all his Keys, telling her to go Home to take Poſſeſſion of his Houſe; which ſhe did; and Mr. G. having carous'd with his Friends ſome Time, went Home likewiſe; but, after about three Hours private Converſation with his Wife ſome Diſſatisfaction appearing, he immediately ordered a Poſt-Chaiſe, and taking with him a Widow Lady aged about 60, ſet out for Bath, leaving his Bride, Houſe, &c. to the Care of two young Fellows of his Acquaintance, having ſtaid at Bath three Days, which were ſpent in the greateſt Jollity they returned to Marlborough, where he ordered a conſiderable Number of Mourning Rings to be made in Memory of his deceaſed Wife; theſe he diſtributed to his new Spouſe, all her Relations, and his own and Matters being amicably ſettled between him and his Bride, they now live happy and contented.

Extract of a Letter from Mednam near Great Marlow, July 30.

A poor hungry Fellow called Adnoſe Jack, was tempted, for a trifling Wager to attempt to eat five Pounds of Bread, five Pounds of Eels, and to drink five Quarts of Beer. The Beer and the Bread he performed, but having eat about three Pounds and three Quarters of the Eels, he grew ſick, and Yeſterday died, in great Agonies, at a Public-Houſe in Great Marlow. He is one of the Company, mentioned in the Papers laſt Week, concerned in eating the nineteen Pounds of Eels"

This Practice is grown very common of late; and it is a great Pity that ſome Method is not taken to put a Stop to it; for ſurely theſe Miſcreants, who are guilty of it, ought to be puniſhed for it more than any other Species of Thieves.

Reading, [in England] July 12. The following Particulars of a Wedding lately celebrated at Th----ham in this County, (as the Fact may be depended on) may perhaps be entertaining to our Readers:—One Mrs. W-lk-s a Widow, of Hampſhire, being a good deal embarraſſed in her Circumſtances, and unable to pay her Creditors their full Demands, put the following Stratagem into Execution to deceive them; having dreſſed herſelf with an Intent as was thought to go and ſee her Siſter that lives at Th----ham, ſhe met a poor travelling Man between that Place and Newberry, whom ſhe deſired to go and drink with her: This Propoſal was very readily accepted by the Man, and they ſat ſome Time diſcourſing, when ſhe aſked him if he was married, and being anſwered in the Negative, propoſed that he ſhould be ſupplied with Apparel, &c. neceſſary for that Purpoſe, if he would conſent to marry her: This Propoſal was, on the Man's Part, very agreeable, and a Licence being immediately purchaſed, the Marriage Ceremony was performed in the Preſence of ſome of the Woman's Relations, and the Nuptials celebrated to her Satisfaction. The Woman on her Part returned the Man Thanks, and the Man on his Part, (having obtained a Suit of Cloaths, and three Guineas in Pocket) wiſhed his Bride Health and Happineſs, thanked her for her Kindneſs, and departed with a Wiſh, That he might meet with ſuch another Wife in the next Pariſh. The above Perſon, on being aſked where he was born, ſaid, that, ſo far from knowing the Place of his Birth, he did not for a certainty know his own Name, but believed it to be Briſtow.

At Edinburgh, Mr. BRAIDWOOD, a Writing Maſter, has diſcovered a Method of teaching the Deaf and Dumb to read, write and keep Accounts. Two of his Pupils in September laſt, paſt Examination before the Right Honnorable the Earl of Morton, Preſident of the Royal Society at London, Sir David Dalrymple Bart. and ſeveral other Gentlemen of Diſtinction, when they read, wrote and anſwered Queſtions, by the Motion of the Lips, and by writing on a Table with the Fingers: In ſhort, what is related of them is moſt incredible, notwithſtanding thoſe Miracles are ſaid to be performed in the Preſence of inconteſtible Witneſſes.

Auguſt 23. A ſon of Mr. Miles, a baker, at Richmond, who had uſed the ſeas, conceiving a prejudice againſt his brother, as being a favourite of his parents, without any other provocation, took an opportunity to ſtab him in the breaſt, in three places, of which wounds he inſtantly fell down dead, and the murderer made his eſcape; but becoming purſued, was ſoon after taken and committed to New-Goal, Southwark. In the late war Miles beeing a midſhipman, was entruſted with the care of a French prize; but upon her paſſage home, the Maſter found means to make Miles drunk, confined him under the hatches, and carried the Ship ſafe to the firſt French port.

Letters from Tolouſe, dated the 17th of Auguſt, ſay, "On the 22d of laſt Month, about four in the afternoon, the ſky became on a ſudden ſo dark over the village of Pelleport, that it appeared like the approach of night. A horrible tempeſt enſued, which blew down the largeſt trees, and the hail which fell at the ſame time deſtroyed the vineyards and all the fruits of the earth; but this havock, notwithſtanding it was ſo deplorable, was not to be compared to what happened at the church, into which twenty perſons retired for ſhelter, and among them Mr. Dangla, the vicar of the pariſh. Whilſt they were all at prayers at the foot of the altar, a flaſh of lightning filled the whole church, knocked down the ſteeple, and the roof falling in, the prieſt was covered with the ruins, from which however he afterwards diſengaged himſelf, and out of the 20 perſons who were in the church, five were killed and ten wounded. The chapels and the walls of the church, which did not fall with the ſteeple and the roof, are ſo much damaged that they muſt be entirely rebuilt.

We have ſeen Advertiſements in the London as well as the country papers for hands to get in the harveſt in Lincolnſhire, where the want of them was ſo great as to encourage the offer of extraordinary wages, which we likewiſe hear have been paid in all parts of the kingdom, notwithſtanding the great number of Welch and Iriſh who have this year, as on all others been aſſiſtant in all our harveſt work. Query, if this is not to be conſidered as an irrefragable proof of the rapid decreaſe of that moſt valuable part of our national depopulation, well known to be occaſioned by the uniting of farms and the bounty on exported corn; the two great evils which are accellerating the ruin of this kingdom, as the ſources of all abuſes, and the hardſhips that are experienced by the labouring, and moſt uſeful part of the people, as well as the cauſes of the great decline of our moſt valuable trade in exported manufactures?

Sept. 19. Notwithſtanding what is continually repreſenting by ſeveral writers to the contrary, for what purpoſes they beſt know themſelves, we can take upon us to inſert, from the beſt information we could poſſibly obtain, as well as from all the obſervations which we ourſelves have been enabled to make, that the ſudden heat which had been raiſed in the public mind, by infuſed ſuſpicions of our great ſtateſman & his colleagues in the Adminiſtration, has almoſt entirely ſubſided, and it will not be in the power of artifice or deception to renew; it being at preſent the general declared diſpoſition of men, to hope for the beſt, and wait for meaſures and events on which opinions may be grounded, with avoiding the imputation of raſhneſs or error.

THIS day, according to the calculations of ſome eminent aſtronomers, the planet Mars approached nearer, by Two millions of miles, to the Earth than it has for ages paſt. According to this Calculation, its approach was nearer to the Earth than in the year 1529, by 338,000 miles: and it was 3 times and two thirds nearer than its neareſt aproximation to the Sun, being in abſolute numbers 932—This ſtriking phænomenon is, by an ingenious aſtronomer, "thought to be the criterion of an offended Deity."—Although aſtrologers, and ſuch as delight to ſearch too curiouſly into the ſacred decrees of the Almighty, may perhaps prognoſticate that ſo near an approach of this warlike planet portends wars, bloodſhed, or ſome other very great misfortune to our planet, yet we have the higheſt authority to reſt entirely ſatisfied, that nothing but the wilful, impenitent tranſgreſſions of mankind will ever induce the omnipotent Creator, "in whom we live, move, and have our being," to withdraw that over-ruling Providence by which this world has from its firſt creation, been ſolely preſerved. "The extraordinary Interpoſition of Providence in the two following Accidents, that lately happened near this Place, I think ſhould not paſs unnoticed, viz. "By this time I hope tranquility and good temper reigns through the whole continent, and that the ſatisfaction of being releaſed from diſtreſs, prevails more in the minds of the coloniſts, than ever the gloom that that very diſtreſs at firſt occaſioned; you ſhould now ſurely be ſatisfied. You have got into the hands of a miniſtry, who, in fact, did you the eſſential ſervice of getting the Stamp-Act repealed. The union between the mother country and her colonies being thus happily cemented, ſhould not be interrupted by ſmall peeviſh diſputes upon matters of little or no moment. Wiſe and calm men ſhould ſeize the happy opportunity of inculcating the greateſt cordiality and kindneſs; ſhould encourage people to meet wiſhes of a mile government, and not to cavil upon little inſignificant points, after having obtained the very eſſence of liberty.

"Lord Shelbourn, as Secretary to the Southern Department, has the Colonies under his care; he has hitherto acted upon large and general principles; and be perſuaded that his moſt zealous wiſhes are, to be able to procure for this kingdom, and the colonies, the moſt permanent and ſolid advantages.

"You know too well the nature of the people here, to be much ſurprized at the flagrant abuſe againſt Lord Chatham, but it is dying by degrees; and it is begun to be underſtood, that he can be a great miniſter to his country, let him ſit in what houſe of parliament, or occupy what high office he pleaſes."

On Saturday Night laſt, a Party of Sailors and a Number of Soldiers belonging to the 46th Regiment, in a Public Houſe in the Commons, had ſome Words, and at length came to Blows, in which one of the Sailors received ſeveral dangerous Wounds, which makes his Life uncertain: The Tranſgreſſors are ſince apprehended and confined.

Extract of a Letter from New-Haven.

We hear from Middletown, that on the 21ſt Inſtant, the Hartford Fleet arriv'd there, conſiſting of two Sloops and a Scow, convoy'd by a Batteau from Springfield: The Fleet was ſeparated in the Night of the 18th, by a ſudden Squall, which took them as they open'd a ſmall Brook, and occaſion'd much Damage; one Man bruis'd his Finger, cutting away a Thowl-pin on board the Convoy, but is likely to recover.—The Convoy was obliged to bear away for Wangham, and by the Help of Jury Maſts, reach'd her Port, where ſhe is re-fitting; and 'tis tho't ſhe will be able to put to Sea in about a Fortnight.—One of the Fleet ſtruck upon a Mud-Turtle, but happily no Lives were loſt.—The Scow came to Anchor, and rode out the Storm.———The ſame Day arriv'd two Scows from the other Side of the River, with Sand, after a fine Paſſage of half an Hour, the People all well on board.

N. B. We had certain Intelligence by the Hartford Paper, that the Fleet ſail'd on Saturday laſt.

NEWPORT (R. Iſland) Nov. 10.

The General Aſſembly of the Province of the Maſſachuſets Bay, met at Boſton on Wedneſday the 29th ult. and were petitioned by the Hon. Thomas Hutchinſon, Eſq; and the other Gentlemen who ſuffered by the Riots the laſt Year in the Town of Boſton, for Compenſation for the Damages they had ſuſtained. The Hon. Houſe of Repreſentatives having taken the Petitions into Conſideration, the Queſtion was put, whether Compenſation ſhould be made out of the Province Treaſury, which paſſed in the negative. Several other Methods were propoſed for making Satisfaction, which were rejected, as the Houſe did not think the Government reſponſible for the Damages done by a ſmall Set of obſcure Villains, who were univerſally deteſted by all the orderly Inhabitants of the Province. The Houſe finally came into a Reſolution for admitting a Bill to be brought in for making Compenſation, which is to be tranſmitted to the ſeveral Towns throughout the Province, by the reſpective Members of Aſſembly, that they may have an Opportunity of conſulting their Conſtituents, and make a Report at their next Seſſion.

NEW-YORK, November 27.

By a letter from St Euſtatia, dated October 7th, we are informed that they have lately had a gale of wind there, more violent than has been known ſince the Year 1747. It began at midnight, on Monday the 6th of October, at E.N.E. attended with a ſmall ſhock of an earthquake, and increaſed till five in the morning when ſhifting to South most of the veſſels were obliged to ſlip, and ſeek for ſafety at ſea. Thoſe that did not weigh before the height of the gale were obliged to part from their cables. Many veſſels that had been laid up during the hurricane months, and thought all the danger over, had come there to be employed, and ſhared the ſame fate with the reſt; ſome foundered at their anchors, others drove to ſea, without any body on board, ſome with one, ſome with two, three, or four perſons to navigate them, &c.

Lately arrived the New Edward Capt. Chambers, in 45 Days from the Downes, with whom came paſſengers 6 Indians; ſome or all of whom we hear, went ſome Months ago, from America to complain of Encroachments on their Lands, and it is reported they have obtained Orders to have their Grievances redreſſed.

Two of them are richly dreſſed in Scarlet, with Gold Lace, they were very kindly treated in England and favourably heard——on their Arrival we hear they waited on his Excellency the Governor.

The London Papers by Capt. Chambers, are to the 29th of Sept. but contain nothing remarkable, except moſt melancholly and alarming Accounts from all Parts of England, of the ſtarving Condition of the Poor, thro' the dearneſs of Proviſion, when at the ſame Time the Harveſts have been plentiful, and vaſt Quantities exported, for which a great Bounty is paid by the Government——A moſt prepoſterous Policy!——It appears by the Papers that Meaſures are taken to ſtop the Exportation, and that Orders are ſent for that Purpoſe to ſeveral diſtant Ports.

NEW-HAVEN, November 29.

Mr. Timothy Baldwin, of Amity, a Pariſh in New-Haven, departed this Life laſt Tueſday. For about a Year paſt he was troubled with a ſmall Obſtruction in diſcharging his Urine, but not ſo as to prevent him doing his common Buſineſs. Fourteen days before his Death he rode into Town, about ſeven Miles; was inſtantly taken with a violent Pain in the lower Part of the Abdomen, with a ſtrong Inclination to diſcharge his Urine. He ſuppoſed it to be a Cholic; but never diſcharged a Drop until the Day before his Death, only by the Uſe of the Catheter, and Nothing but Blood. His Bladder was taken out by Dr. Leverett Hubbard, in which he found a Wen as large as a Gooſe-Egg, by the Sphincter Veſicæ or Muſcle that goes around its Neck, and a putrid Ulcer, which contained about ten Ounces. The Bladder and what it contained weighed 4 Pounds.

From the LONDON CHRONICLE.

Reading the papers, I ſaw a paragraph of one of the criminals at Maidſtone having petitioned to be hanged; and as I am the perſon, I make bold to ſend you the petition I ſent to his Majeſty; and a copy of the letter which I ſent to the Earl of Shelburne, and to the Earl of Northington; the copy of the Speech I ſpoke at the bar, July the 24th; and the copy of the Letter I ſent to Judge Clive, dated July the 30th, 1766; which if you think proper to put in your paper, I ſhould be very glad, as you have my name at length to all the above, as it is the true copy.

I am, Sir, your humble ſervant,

Maidſtone Goal, ROBERT WEBBER.

Auguſt the 26th, 1766.

To the KING's moſt Excellent MAJESTY,

The humble Petition of ROBERT WEBBER,

Humbly ſheweth,

THAT your Petitioner was tried at laſt Lent aſſizes at Maidſtone, in the county of Kent, for a robbery committed on board of your Majeſty's ſhip the Medway, & was found guilty of death. Your Petitioner was reprieved by the Judge before he left the town; and at the late aſſizes your Petitioner was had to the bar, in order to have the ſentence of tranſportation paſſed upon him for fourteen years; when your Majeſty's Petitioner refuſed to accept of your Royal Clemency; and if your Royal Majeſty will order your Petitioner to his former ſentence, he will diſcover three weighty affairs, which ſeveral of your Majeſty's innocent ſubjects have been taken to cuſtody for, and had like to have loſt their lives, particularly concerning an affair, which happened to the city of London about eight years ago, which your Petitioner will diſcloſe upon the terms of death; as that is all the reward your Petitioner requires.

ROBERT WEBBER.

A copy of a letter I ſent to Judge CLIVE, July the 30th, 1766.

My Lord,

WITH humble ſubmiſſion to your Lordſhip, I beg leave to trouble you with theſe few lines: My Lord, when I was bro't to the bar before you, in order to have the ſentence of tranſportation paſſed on me for fourteen years, I refuſed to accept of his Majeſty's Royal Clemency, I begged of your Lordſhip to order me to my former ſentence, which was death; your Lordſhip gave me no other anſwer, than it was out of your power. Therefore I humbly beg that you will repreſent this my reſolution to our Sovereign Lord the King; As I had rather die than live under bondage for ſo many years.

I am, with ſubmiſſion, your Lordſhip's moſt humble and obedient ſervant,

Maidſtone Goal, ROBERT WEBBER.

July the 30th, 1766.

The copy of the letter ſent to the Earl of SHELBURNE and to the Earl of NORTHINGTON.

May it pleaſe you, my Lord,

WITH humble ſubmiſſion, I beg your Lordſhips pardon by troubling you with this. My Lord, I am an unfortunate young man, that was tried at Maidſtone in the county of Kent, laſt aſſizes, for a robbery committed on board of his Majeſty's ſhip the Medway, & I was found guilty, and received ſentence of death for the ſame, but was reprieved before the Judge left the town, which I did not deſire nor aſk for; and at the late aſſizes I was had down to the bar, in order to have the ſentence of tranſportation paſſed upon me for 14 years, which I refuſed as your Lordſhip will ſee in my ſpeech at the bar; the Judge gave me no other anſwer than it was out of his power to grant me what I aſked for. As I did not receive the ſentence of tranſportation, made bold to ſend Judge Clive a letter dated July the 30th, 1766; and I not hearing from that, makes me trouble your Lordſhip with this, hoping you will lay the encloſed Petition before his Majeſty, as I lie under his authority and government, and go by the laws of this land. I was not caſt for tranſportation, nor did not except of the mercy offered me, nor the ſentence I did not receive, for death was all I wanted; and if his Royal Majeſty will grant me my requeſt, I will make three very great diſcoveries, which many have been taken up and tried for, and were near loſing their innocent lives for, which I was guilty of; one thing concerning the city of London, in 1758. I hope your Lordſhip will not lay this aſide, and forget it, but lay it before our Sovereign Lord the King; and I hope his Majeſty will grant me my deſire as it will be of great ſervice to many of his innocent ſubjects.

My Lord, I am, with humble ſubmiſſion,
Your Lordſhip's moſt humble and
Maidſtone Goal, obedient ſervant,
Aug. the 18th, 1766. ROBERT WEBBER.

The Speech I made at the Bar, July the 24th, 1766.

My Lord,

I beg to ſpeak a few words: I preſume, my Lord, I am brought to this bar in order to receive his Majeſty's Royal Clemency, which to many might be very acceptable, though not to me, for death is all I require. My Lord, I am a young man, and have lived well in the city of London, but loſſes in trade drove me to utter want, which was the cauſe of my committing the fact I ſtand here for. I have a wife big with child; friends I have many in good circumſtances, but I am forſaken by all; and for theſe 12 years paſt I have been under an infirmity of body, which makes me that I cannot undergo bondage. Therefore my Lord I beg you will not miſconſtrue my words to a contempt of mercy, offered at this tribunal of our Lord the King, but for the cauſes before named; I humbly beg of your Lordſhip to order me to my former ſentence; if ſo done, I will make ſome weighty affairs known before I leave the bar.

NEW-YORK, November 20.

On the Virtue of Rye, uſed inſtead of Coffee, and what may be ſaved by the Uſe of it.

RYE has long been uſed, eſpecially in the Country, in poor Families; for Neceſſity is the Mother of Invention. About three Years ago (I am informed) its Uſefulneſs was publiſhed in one of our News Papers, and from that Recommendation has been uſed in ſome Families ever ſince: I have lately tried the ſaid Method, and find it to anſwer, and even to exceed all the ends of Coffee, and incomparably cheaper.

I find it to exceed Coffee in its nouriſhing Virtue, to the beſt of my Judgment, as 2 to 3; i.e. two Diſhes of Rye-Coffee, to go as far in nouriſhing, as three of Weſt-India Coffee; and beſides this, it ſeems to me not to require ſo much Bread, &c. as the Weſt-India Coffee.

Another Advantage is that it requires leſs Sugar, as Rye is naturally a ſweet Grain, which however is taken away in a great Meaſure by burning of it.

One Quart of Rye, the Coſt of which is about a Half-Penny, or at moſt two Coppers, will do the ſame ſervice as one Pound of Coffee.

If it be well managed in the Burning a nice Palate can ſcarce diſcern the Difference between it and Weſt-India Coffee; and tho' diſcernable, the uſing it a Week or two will perfectly reconcile the niceſt Palate to it, if there be no Prejudice in the Caſe.

Let your Rye be good and clean, burn it in a Pot or Pan, ſtir it well, and burn it rather browner than Coffee; ſome People uſe the Grain whole, others grind it, the latter is the moſt Profitable: When you are to uſe it boil it a little longer than you do Weſt-India Coffee.

I eſteem it much wholeſomer than Coffee; Coffee it is ſaid is apt to dry the Blood, has a Tendency to Coſtiveneſs, and poſſibly the Gentlemen of the Medicinal Faculty know other evil Conſequences attending the Uſe of it.

The ſuperior Excellence of Rye uſed inſtead of Coffee is obvious both in Point of Nouriſhment and Health, and alſo in Point of Profit.

I am perſuaded that the Uſe of it, will ſave more Sugar than will pay for double the Quantity of Rye uſed; therefore more than all the Coſt of W. India Coffee is ſaved; which in a Family who uſe it conſtantly, ſuppoſe to be 50 Pounds a Year, at only 12d. is 50s a Year, and upon the Suppoſition, that only 500 Families uſe it in this City, the ſaving is no leſs than 1250l. per Annum.

'Tis thought that the Generality of our Citizens uſe either Coffee or Tea for their Breakfaſts; I ſuppoſe there are in this City 3000 Families or upwards, ſuppoſing only one Half i.e. 1500 of them could be perſuaded to uſe Rye-Coffee; then at the above Computation, no leſs than 3750 or upwards per Annum would be ſaved in this City only.

It would alſo be of Service to the Public, could we be content with Teas of our own Growth; this would ſave this City only, above 6000l. per Annum in Caſh, as we cannot purchaſe foreign Teas with our own Produce. ——But this (as I am no Botaniſt) is a Subject I would recommend to an abler Hand than

Sir, your humble Servant
OECONOMY.

N.B. Some People prefer Barley before Rye, but I have not tried the Difference.

BOSTON.

In Council, Novem. 13. 1766.

ON a motion made to his Excellency in Council, and the unanimous deſire of the Council thereupon, that he would permit the Earl of Shelburne's Letter of the 13th of September laſt (a Copy of which had been communicated to the Board) to be printed.

The Governor gave Orders for printing the ſame accordingly.

SIR, Whitehall, Sept. 13. 1766.

I HAVE had the Honor to lay before the King your Letters of the 29th of June & 19th of July laſt, together with the Incloſures therein contained; and I have received his Majeſty's commands to communicate them to ſuch of his ſervants as he thinks proper uſually to conſult upon his moſt important affairs as ſoon as the ſeaſon of the year will conveniently admit of their meeting for this and other purpoſes.——In the mean time, his Majeſty is extremely ſorry to obſerve any degree of ill-temper remaining in his colony of Maſſachuſetts-bay, or, that points ſhould be ſo improperly agitated as to tend to the revival of diſputes, which every friend to America muſt wiſh to be forgotten.—They have ſeen the parliament of Great-Britain give due attention to all well-founded complaints of the provinces, notwithſtanding they appeared to them, in ſome parts not ſo properly urged; and tho' the legiſlature will certainly on all juſt occaſions, exerciſe and enforce its legiſlative power over the colonies, yet it cannot be doubted, but it will exert it with a due regard to the nature of their connection with the mother country.

Upon this occaſion it is proper to obſerve, in general, that the eaſe and honor of his Majeſty's government in America will greatly depend on the temper and wiſdom of thoſe who are entruſted with the adminiſtration there: And that they ought to be perſons diſdaining narrow views, private combination and partial attachments.—It is with great pleaſure, Sir, that I have obſerved the manner in which you have conducted yourſelf during the diſputes of the laſt war, which I cannot do, without highly approving your attention and watchfulneſs, on the one hand, to ſupport the authority of government, and on the other, the tenderneſs and affection which appeared in all your letters, towards the people under your government.——A temperate conduct founded on the true baſis of public good, avoiding all unneceſſary reſerve, where nothing arbitrary is thought of, and nothing unreaſonable is required, muſt carry conviction to the hearts of the deluded, conciliate the minds of all, and inſure the confidence of his Majeſty's loyal and loving ſubjects of America.

Upon theſe conſiderations I am perſuaded that the aſſembly will immediately upon their meeting, fall upon meaſures to terminate all local difficulties, which appear by your accounts to have hitherto prevented that compliance which will be expected by parliament, with the recommendations you have been required to make in conſequence of the reſolutions of both houſes.——It is impoſſible to conceive that they will ſuffer any private conſiderations to interfere with their deſire of ſhewing a proper ſenſe of that paternal regard which they have experienced from his Majeſty, and of that attention which parliament has given to their complaints, which can never be done with more propriety than by granting with the utmoſt chearfulneſs, a juſt compenſation to thoſe who have ſuffered by the late diſorders.

I am with great truth & regard, Sir, your moſt obedient humble ſervant,
SHELBURNE.

Governor BERNARD.

The following BILL now pending in the houſe of repreſentatives, has been publiſhed by their Order, for the Conſideration of the ſeveral Towns in this Province, viz.

A BILL intituled an Act for granting Compenſation to the Sufferers, and of free and general Pardon, Indemnity and Oblivion to the Offenders in the late Times.

WHEREAS the King's moſt excellent Majeſty taking into his gracious and ſerious Conſideration the Troubles, Diſcords Inſurrections, Tumults and Riots, which have lately happened in America, and that divers of his Subjects have thereby greatly ſuffered in their Property, and others by occaſion thereof; and otherwiſe have fallen into, and are obnoxius to great Pains and Penalties: Out of a hearty and pious deſire that ſuch Sufferers be compenſated, and put an end to all Suits, and Controverſies and Proſecutions that by occaſion of the late Diſtractions have ariſen, or may ariſe between any of his Majeſty's Subjects; and to the intent that a Veil be drawn over the late unhappy Exceſſes, has been pleaſed graciouſly to ſignify his deſire to forgive and forget them: at the ſame time of his abundant Clemency recommending a Compenſation to the Sufferers in their Property, with ſuch a Conduct in general as ſhall be at this great Criſis the beſt means of fixing the mutual Intereſt, and Inclination of Great-Britain and her Colonies on the moſt firm and ſolid Foundation.

From a grateful ſenſe of his Majeſty's Grace and Clemency; in order to promote internal Peace and ſafety;—to make Compenſation to ſaid Sufferers, and as a means, as far as in our Power, of demonſtrating to all the World our ſenſe of the Happineſs we enjoy in being part of the Britiſh Empire, and intitled to the Rights and Privileges of Britiſh Subjects: We his Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal Subjects the Repreſentatives of the Commons of this Province, in the Great and General Court aſſembled, of our free and good Will have reſolved to give and grant, and pray that it be enacted:

And be it accordingly enacted by the Governor, Council and Houſe of Repreſentatives, that there be granted and paid out of the public Treaſury of this Province to the Hon. THOMAS HUTCHINSON, Eſq; the Sum of 3194l. 17*s.* 6*d.*

To the Hon. ANDREW OLIVER, Eſq; the Sum of 172*l.* 4*s.*

To WILLIAM STORY, Eſq; the Sum of 67l. 8*s.* 10*d.* in full Compenſation for their Loſſes and Sufferings in the late Times of Confuſion.

And be it further enacted, That all Riots, Routs and unlawful Aſſemblies, councelled, commanded, acted, done or made within this Province, between the firſt Day of Auguſt, 1766; and all Burglaries, Felonies, & Breaches of the Peace whatſoever committed in, by or during ſuch Riots, Routs and unlawful Aſſemblies be, and hereby are pardoned, releaſed, indemnified, and diſcharged & put in utter Oblivion; and that all and every, the Perſon or Perſons acting, adviſing, aſſiſting, abetting and councelling the ſame, be and are hereby pardoned, releaſed, acquitted, indemnified and diſcharged from the ſame; and off and from all Pains of Death, & other Pains, Judgments, Indictments, Convictions, Penalties and Forfeitures therefor, had or given, or that might accrue for the ſame; and that all ſuch Indictments, Convictions, and Forfeitures, are hereby declared null and void.

And be it further enacted, That any Perſon indicted or preſented, or in any Manner proſecuted, for any of the Offences by this Act pardoned, may plead the general iſſue, and give this Act in Evidence, which ſhall be ſufficient to acquit him.

Provided, That nothing in this Act contained, ſhall extend to the pardoning, or give any Benefit whatever to any Perſon who is, or may be unlawfully poſſeſſed of any Goods or Chattles taken or ſtolen from any Perſon, unleſs the Poſſeſſor ſhall within 30 Days after the publication of this Act, have ſurrendered and delivered them up to the Owner.

Provided alſo, That nothing in this Act ſhall extend to the barring any civil Action of Treſpaſs for Damages ſuſtained by any Perſon, not compenſated by this Act.

Yeſterday was obſerved here as a Day of general Thankſgiving.—On this Occaſion large Collections were made in many or moſt of the Churches in Town for the Relief of the Poor and Indigent, to enable them the better to provide againſt the Inclemency of the approrching Seaſon.

At the Cloſe of Divine Service, ſeveral of the Aſſemblies were entertained with a Number of Anthems, which were well adapted to this religious Feſtival, and ſung to general Acceptance.

The People of a Veſſel which came round Cape-Cod ſince our laſt, inform, they ſaw 6 Veſſels aſhore.

Tueſday laſt a large Tranſport Ship put in here, having on board a Detachment of his Majeſty's Royal Train of Artillery, who were bound to Quebeck to relieve thoſe which had been there ſeveral Years; but the above Ship after making many Attempts to get up the River in vain, was obliged to put in here: We hear alſo that a Number of the ſame Corps which had been relieved at Halifax were on board thoſe at Quebeck.

On Tueſday the 11th Inſtant, a new Meeting Building for the Rev. Mr. Bernard of Haverhill, was ſtruck with Lightning: it had Points & a Conductor as far as the Bellfree, but not being completed to the Earth, it left the Conductor & enter'd into the Corner Poſt, and ſhatted it very much and kindled ſome Shavings into a Flame, to the Surprize of the Workmen, who were then in the Houſe, but happily both they & the Houſe were preſerved.

ENGLISMEN! ſons of candour, who refuſe not juſtice to American ſavages, though they have ſcalped and devoured thouſands of your countymen; lend me your ears.

The man whoſe ſingle word ſo late might ſtand againſt the world is now arraign'd, inſulted, and none, almoſt ſo poor, do him revesence.

Can Britons then have forgot, how early in life, and with a narrow fortune, he hazarded the rage of a miniſter to preſerve the rights of a freeman; and with what ſuperiority, even then he awed the votaries of venality and corruption? When long after threatned with dangers from abroad, and ſunk, in deſpondence at home, his country with one voice, called on him to deſend and deliver; ſay, did this man diſappoint her hopes? Does not his name at this day diſmay our foes, more than the remembrance of our formidable armies, or yet more formidable fleets? It will not, it cannot be denied. In the name of fairneſs, then therefore do not condemn unheard this faithful, meritorious citizen.

Some weeks ago the affairs of Britain were reported to be in confuſion.----the dangerous hero of the North was ſaid to have joined the Family Compact----Prince Ferdinand to have become a penſioner of France; a Prince, whoſe Idea alone thrown into your enemies ſcale inſtantly ſunk your ſtocks----------the Spaniſh A---r threatning to leave you if you ſpoke a ſyllable more of the M----a ranſom---the French chicanenery continued on the Banks of Newfoundland-----the French infidelity tampering with the Indians and back-ſettlers-----the French avarice ſmuggling among your ſugar iſlands along the coaſt of Africa and Aſia---------your neighbours the Dutch at their old tricks---and all this while none of your late wretched ſtateſmen were poſſeſſed of ability or reſolution enough to oontroul your open or conntera&#8203;ct your ſecret enemies. The general cries of the people at laſt reach our Sovereign's ear; their patron is called once more to vindicate their invaded honors; he undertakes the arduous, but noble taſk---but the gardener of Stow, in his riding-coat ſtudded with a ſtar, haſtens to ſhare the importance which he has not merited; our champion with conſcious dignity rejects the claim.

He begins the ſecond epoch of his hiſtory---with what---by procuring the advancement of an approved advocate of freedom to hold the ſcales of equity; by propoſing healing meaſures with the Nothern Monarch and the reconciling him again to his natural connexions; by projecting to retain in our ſervice for life, at the price of one ſhip of the line, the greateſt General's attachment, through the promotion of a friend of his to a regiment. The darling of the Britiſh army alſo is raiſed to the chief command, at no additional expence to the public, the pay of a few Aid du Camps and of a Secretary excepted; & laſtly, a young man, who was a conqueror and a hero when only a lieutenant in the Guards, is made an Aid du camp to the King. Are theſe the crimes for which the late William Pitt is the object of univerſal odium and unbounded reproach? No ſay you, he has taken a Peerage, ſo much the worſe for his popularity; but it remains to be proved, that it is all the worſe for his country:------ But he cannot ſerve that country ſubſtantially now: This likewiſe remains to be proved; and will the Grand Jury of England condemn without evidence?

The Hiſtory of John Bull's Children.

I Sir Humphry Poleſworth, who formerly gave the world a true and faithful account of John Bull, and of his mother, and his ſiſter, and wives, and his ſervants now write the hiſtory of his children, and how they were got, and how they were educated, & what befel them. Courteous reader, if thou haſt any curioſity to know theſe things, read the following chapters and learn.

Chap. I. Of ſeven natural children, which John Bull had in his younger days by Doll Secretary, his mother's maid namely three boys, John, jun. or Maſter Jacky, Yorkey, and Jerry; four girls, Penelope, Mary, Virgey, and Caroline: How the old lady would ſuffer no baſtards in her family: And how the poor infants were turned adrift on the fiſh ponds as ſoon as born; how they landed on the weſtern ſhore, and there nurſed by a wild bear, under the green wood tree.

Chap. II. How John diſowned them, and left them to get over the childrens diſorders, the beſt way they could, without paying a farthing for the nurſes, or apothecary's bills, and how, as ſoon as they had cut their eye teeth, and able to walk alone, John claimed them for his own.

Chap. III. How Maſter Jacky turned Fiſherman and Ship carpenter; Yorkey and Jerry drove a great trade; Miſs Penny dealt in flour, called the maid of the Mill, and never curtſy'd to any body: How Mary and Virgey ſet up a ſnuff ſhop, and Caroline turned dry ſalter, and ſold indigo; how they all flouriſhed exceedingly and laid out every penny they earned in their father's warehouſe.

Chap. IV. Of two children more, which John had afterwards in lawful wedlock, viz. a boy which he called Georgey, after his great patron, and a girl which he called Peg, after his ſiſter Margaret; how he crammed them with ſugar plums, and how they remained ſickly, ricketty brats at this day.

Chap. VI. How John called for his ſtick and his barge, and croſſed the pond to ſave his daughter's virtue; how young Lewis gave him a confounded rap on his fingers, and drove him back, and then at his daughter again.

Chap. VII. How her brother Jack came to her aſſiſtance, and threw young Lewis on his back; how old Lewis Baboon flew to help his ſon, and carried Lord Strutt along with him; how John Bull returned and muſtered all his children at his back and to it they went.

Chap. VIII. How they had a long tuſtle; how John's children ſaved their old dad from a broken head, and helped to ſeize young Lewis and tie him: how the old folks agreed to leave young Lewis in cuſtody, and drink friends themſelves; and how John made his children pay a ſhare of the reckoning without giving them any of the drink.

Chap. IX. How John in his cups bragged of his exploits, and ſaid he had done all himſelf, and his children nothing; how he made choice of fair George, the gentle ſhephard, for his houſe ſteward because he could tell, without the book, that two and three made five, and the multiplication table by heart.

Chap. X. The whole ſtewardſhip of fair George; how he neglected to proteſt Lewis Baboon's note of hand on the day of payment, releaſed Lord Strutt from a mortgage on his manor of Eaſtland; how he took an averſion to cyder and would allow none to be drank in his family; how he rummaged every man's cheſt for pen, ink and paper, and obliged thoſe he catched writing to ſtand a top of the table, with a wooden neckcloth under their chin, while he counted ſixty times ſixty; and how this is called the Gentle Shepherd's benefit of clergy unto this day.

Chap. XI. How Fair George took an antipathy to John's children, becauſe he ſaid they put nothing into the box at Chriſtmaſs; and when they came to pay their ſhop accounts, they brought in their money at the back door; how he adviſed John to brand them on the far buttock, as they do ſtray cattle, that he might know them to be his own.

Chap. XII. How John's children rode reſtiff, and ſwore they would not have the broad R ſtampt on their b—ckſ—s; how John, in heating the irons, burnt his own fingers moſt d——ly; how all his neighbours laughed, and Fair George could not find a plaiſter.

Chap. XIII. How John in a paſſion, kick'd Fair George down ſtairs, and rung up other ſervants: how they adviſed him to conſult his wife; and how Mrs. Bull bid him let his children alone; that tho' born in ſin, they were his own fleſh and blood, and needed no ſtamp to ſhew it; how John took her advice, and let the irons cool again; and how ſome ſuſpected if John's ſervants had not ſubmitted he would not have complied ſo ſoon.

Chap. XIV. A dialogue on education, between Fair George and lame Will; how Will proved it to be both cruel and impolitic to pinch children till they cry, and then pinch them for crying; and how George anſwered and ſaid nothing.

Chapt. XV. How John, by means of his new ſervants, became beloved of his children, and reſpected of his neighbours; how he obliged Lewis Baboon to beat down the walls of Ecleſdown caſtle, becauſe it overlooked his pond, and herboured ſea gulls to gobble up his fiſh; how he made him alſo pay up his note of hand; and how Lord Strut was-------

But Mr. Printer I have given you enough to judge of the general plan of this hiſtory. Pray let me have your opinion as to the publication. My notion at preſent is to ſend it abroad in ſixpenny numbers, and engage the country carriers to take it down; it may paſs for political an hundred miles from town.

On Sunday laſt in the Forenoon, an excellent Sermon was preached at Trinity Church, by the Rev. Dr. AUCHMUTHY, from Exod. ii. 16. "And when ſhe had opened it, ſhe ſaw the Child; and behold to Babe wept. And ſhe had Compaſſion on him, and ſaid this is one of the Hebrew Children." There was a very generous Contribution made for the poor Schollars; who alone ſung an Anthem to the great ſatisfaction of the Congregation.

SHIP NEWS, WEATHER, &c.

From all Quarters every Veſſel that arrives, continues to bring freſh Accounts of Shipwrecks and Diſtreſſes both by Sea and Land, occaſioned by the late terrible, and uncommonly frequent Storms and Tempeſts, with which, eſpecially the W. India Seas and Iſlands have been viſited. The following further Particulars we have received from ſeveral Places, viz.

Baſſaterre, in St. Chriſtophers, Oct. 15. Several Veſſels were driven from Montſerrat, and wrecked on the Windward Side of Nevis, in the Storm of the 12th. The Schooner Diamond, Crawford, arrived there, in Lat. 32, 25, Lon. 53, 30. loſt a Maſt, and was laid on her Broadſide till righted by the Aſſiſtance of a Brig from Liverpool.—Saw ſeveral Veſſels in Diſtreſs, but was unable to help them. October 18. Much Damage done at St. Croix, and moſt of the Veſſels driven aſhore and loſt.—The Sloop Edward, Painter, a few Days out from St. Kitts, ſaid to be loſt, with all on board, except a foremaſt Man, taken up at Sea, and brought into Nevis. Octo. 16. A hard Gale, and remarkable Swell at Dominica, which continued 24 Hours, and obliged many Veſſels to put to Sea, but all returned ſafe. On the 18th they had a ſmart Shock of an Earthquake, but received no Damage. Since that, the Ship Phenix, Knight, from Africa, and three other Veſſels, have been driven on Shore and loſt.

Accounts much more terrible from Guadaloupe and Marigalante than from Dominica, in the firſt of theſe Iſlands, 51 Veſſels were wrecked, among which were, the Packet Boat, and a large Ship from Nantz, with 600 Hogſheads of Sugar, Cotton, &c. The Plantations ſuffered greatly, many ſmall Houſes near the River, with all their Furniture, were waſhed away, and ſo rapid was the Current, that the Inhabitants had hardly Time to eſcape. Seven Veſſels were driven aſhore, and conſiderable other Damage done at Marigalante. Oct. 23. From Antigua the above Accounts are confirmed, and we hear that at Montſerrat, their Proviſions, and many Pieces of Cane are deſtroyed. Many of the Houſes there in Plymouth Town, are abandoned, the People not daring to live in them, for fear of the falling Waters. The Damage the Iſland has ſuſtained by the late Storms, is computed at ſeveral Thouſand Pounds. St. Vincent has alſo ſuffered greatly; the flouriſhing Canes of Governor Ottley, Col. Young, and other Gentlemen, are levelled with the Ground, and entirely ruined; and others have ſuffered in Proportion. Nov. 27. Capt. Allibone, arrived at Philadelphia from St. Croix, adviſes, that a Ship arrived at St. Thomas's, a Schooner at St. John's, and a ſmall Veſſel at Tortola, have all loſt their Maſts in the late Gales; that 6 or 7 Veſſels from St. Euſtatia, St. Kitts, &c. had put into St. Croix, having loſt ſome their Anchors, ſome their Maſts, and ſome their Sails ſplit to Pieces; that a Brig belonging to St. Kitts, was caſt away on the Virgin Iſlands. At the Grenades, on the 21ſt of October, at 4 o'Clock in the Morning they had a ſmart Shock of an Earthquake, which laſted three Minutes; at Baſſaterre the Inhabitants were greatly alarmed, and ran from their Houſes, fearing to be buried in their Ruins; but providentially the Town received no Damage. At a Gentleman's Plantation about 6 Miles from thence, the Dwelling-Houſe, Sugar Houſe, and all the Out-Houſes were entirely thrown down.—But it was not known that any Lives were loſt. The Earthquake was ſenſibly felt on board the Shipping in the Harbour; and alſo at Barbados, with leſs Violence and Duration.

"Yeſterday Afternoon, about 4 o'Clock, a Rebellion broke out at Croſs-Path, within three Miles of this Place. Doctor Lock's new Comorantee Negroes began firſt, and were ſoon joined by Mr. Wedderburn's, and then Mr. Lewis's; they killed at Croſs-Path, a Diſtiller belonging to Sweet-River, after that the Book-keeper of Blackmoraſs, & wounded a White Woman ſo deſperately that it is impoſſible for her to recover. They have alſo killed ſeveral Negroes and Children, but have not damaged any Houſe, except the Hot-Houſe, on Blackmoraſs. There are ten Parties out after them."

On Tueſday Evening, Nov. 25, about Ten o'Clock, Thomas Bates, of Hanover was found lying on the Road near Hanover Church, groaning as in great Agony, but Speechleſs, was carried into the neareſt Houſe (from which he had rode off, after Eight o'Clock the ſame Evening) where after toſſing in Pain for ſome Time he expired. The Coroner returned a Verdict, that "he died by a Fall from his Horſe, having received a mortal Contuſion on one of his Temples."

Laſt Night, about nine o'Clock, on board a Sloop from Egg-Harbour, loaded with Shingles, one Davis, Maſter, lying without the Great Dock, a Fire kindled, it is ſuppoſed under the Hearth, in the Cabbin, burſt out, and got to a conſiderable Height before diſcovered. It is ſaid moſt of the Things in the Cabbin were deſtroyed, and the Veſſel, with ſeveral others, and their Cargoes were in great Danger; but by timely Aſſiſtance, and ſcutling the Veſſel, the Fire was extinguiſhed, after having done, it was ſuppoſed, about 50l. Damage.

About three o'Clock on Sunday Afternoon, a Female Child, ſuppoſed not many Hours born, was found dead in a Bag in Trinity Church-Yard near the N. E. Corner.

Laſt Week one Samuel Morringer, a Lad about 15 Years old, was found dead in his Bed, in a Garret, in a Houſe in Montgomery-Ward, in this City: It appeared to the Coroner's Inqueſt that he was ſuffocated, by having drank too much Rum the Night before.

On Thurſday laſt, John Harris, who lived on the Commons in this City, as he ſat at Dinner, was ſeized with a Fit, and expired in 2 Minutes.

One Day laſt Week a Countryman ſelling Meat in one of our Markets, happened to lay his Pocket Book down on one of the Stalls, and turning his Head another Way, the Pocket Book was carried off, with a conſiderable Sum of Money in it: Some Perſons were taken up on Suſpicion, but not the leaſt Proof appearing on them, the Pocket Book and Money, 'tis feared, were totally loſt.

We are credibly informed, That ſeveral Debtors lately confined in Goal, in this City, are diſcharged by the Charitable Benevolence of the Lady MOORE.—A ſecond Inſtance of that Lady's good Diſpoſition ſince her Arrival here, in the Courſe of 12 Months; and ſets an Example worthy Imitation, eſpecially as it has a direct Tendency to the Preſervation of their poor diſtreſſed Wives and Children, by letting them have the Aſſiſtance of their Huſband's Labour for Support the approaching Winter.

Portſmouth, N. Hampſhire, Nov. 28.

Laſt Wedneſday, at his Majeſty's Superior Court of Judicature, &c. held here, Mrs. Elizabeth Odiorne was tried for the ſuppoſed Murder of Mrs. Catharine Grant; and after a Hearing of five Hours, the Jury retir'd for an Hour, and then returned with a Verdict of Manſlaughter only.

LONDON.

In the ſpace of the laſt 6 years, there have been three Grooms of the Stole, five 1ſt Lords of the Treaſury, eleven Secretaries of State, five Firſt Lords of the Admiralty, five of Trade, and about ninety other changes at the principal Boards; ſo fluctuating has been the councils of this nation.

Sept. 26. This day his Majeſty in Council was pleaſed to order an Embargo to be laid upon all veſſels laden or to be laden in the ports of Great Britain with wheat or flour, to be exported to foreign parts; and that the ſaid embargo do continue to the 14th day of November next: Alſo a like order to prevent the diſtilling of any kind of low wine ſpirits from any wheat meal, until the ſaid day.

Friday the price of corn in Mark-lane fell one ſhilling per buſhel, and is expected ſtill lower, owing to a ſtop being put in the port of London to its exportation.

A lady well known in the literary world, who intends after her deceaſe to be diſſected and anatomized, has lately had made an elegant mahogany caſe, richly adorned with emblems of death, in which her ſkeleton is to be kept.—The above caſe it is ſaid, coſt fifty guineas.

Sept. 30. Yeſterday morning early her Majeſty was taken in labor, at her palace, on which meſſengers were diſpatched to her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Dowager of Wales, the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the two Secretaries of State, and others of the Privy Council, who attended with all expedition, and her Majeſty was ſafely delivered of a PRINCESS between 6 and 7 o'clock. The news of this happy event was communicated to the Public by the firing of the Tower guns at noon, which was followed by the ringing of bells and other tokens of joy.

Yeſterday on receiving the news of her Majeſty's ſafe delivery, ſeveral of the nobility came to St. James's, the Lord in waiting, and alſo the Lady of the Bed-chamber attended to receive the compliments of the Nobility on the occaſion.

Capt Sweet is not certain where the other Captains who were taken up belonged, but conjectures ſome of them were from Boſton.

Laſt Night came to Newgate, under a ſtrong Guard, a Waggon loaded with Pirates, to take their Trial at the next Court of Admiralty. Two of them, the Evidences, only were committed to Newgate, the other 16 were ſent to the Marſhalſea Priſon where they behaved very outrageouſly, but a proper Guard was ſet over them. They ſeveral Times attempted to murder the Evidences, and determined to do it if poſſible. The Black, one of the Pirates, is ſaid to be of great Importance in his Native Country, but ſo ferocious, that it is ſaid he killed two of his own Children, and after that his Wife, becauſe ſhe fretted at him; and on board the Phœnix, off Guinea, killed three Men ſleeping in their Hammocks, beating their Brains out with a Hammer.

It is a Pity his Proceedings are not generally known. I wiſh ſome Perſon who has a more perfect knowledge of them would publiſh them to the World, to prevent if poſſible unweary Souls being beguiled by him——If his private Behaviour were inquired into, I am inform'd ſuch things would appear, and particularly with regard to the fair Sex, as that it would be a Shame for me to ſpeak of thoſe Things that are done of him in Secret——But——I forbear."

THE Connecticut COURANT; AND THE WEEKLY ADVERTISER.

An Authentic Account of the Crime Behaviour, and Execution of Mr. Le Febvre de la Marre, the young Gentlemen who ſuffered lately at Abbeville.

THIS young man, about the age of 20, and of a good family, by keeping bad company, was become a great rake, and guilty of ſeveral flagrant irregularities; among which, his want of decency to the hoſt, and when in liquor, going into the market place with his companions, and ſtriking the image of Chriſt in an inſulting manner—for this he certainly ſhould have been puniſhed, and made an example of; but when a puniſhment exceeds all proportion to the crime, and the ſentence comes from the moſt reſpectable body of the nation, not from a provincial parliament, we then begin to ſhudder, and from thence form our ideas, & with great juſtice, with the ſtate of that kingdom.

Le Febvre de la Marre was condemned for the crime abovementioned (the mere effects of youthful ſpirits, inflamed by wine and bad example) to have his head cut off, and his body thrown into the fire, with Voltaire's Dictionaire de Philoſophique, which he confeſſed was a favourite book with him.

He heard his ſentence read to him (according to cuſtom) with great tranquility and when it was finiſhed he laughed; the Confeſſor applied to him with great fervency; but he would not talk with the Prieſt of any thing but trifling matters, & of thoſe with pleaſantry. When they came to take him to the place of execution, he ſtill appeared with the ſame tranquility; but upon mounting the ſcaffold, there was an alteration in his face; at which the Prieſt cried out, you have then ſome fear of death? Not at all, (ſaid he) but I behold, with ſome indignation, many of my enemies got together here to feaſt themſelves upon my execution.—There they are! (pointing to them) Good God! is it poſſible that the hatred of men ſhould go to ſuch extremities? The Prieſt taking the advantage of this reflection, to ſpeak to him of the tremendous moment when he was to paſs from life to death, and of the conſequences. My Rev. Sir, (ſays the young man) I ſhall in a very little time know more of the matter than yourſelf. What is that paſteboard floating at the end of that cord? That is your unhappy accomplice, who is hanged in effigy. This cauſed de la Marre to laugh again; but afterwards looking a little ſeriouſly, he ſaid, that his companion was a mean fellow to run away; and that if he had regarded his honor, he ſhould have been really hanged along with him. As he ſtood upon the ſcaffold he ſaw ſeveral men well dreſſed who, are they? He was told they were ſeven executioners. That is very rediculous—what, ſeven hangmen for me, only me! He ſmiled, and beckoned one of them to come to him. Pray who are you, Sir? I have the honor to be the executioner at Paris. What is it you who beheaded Mr. Lally? I had the honor, Sir—I will tell you what, friend, it has not done you much honor for you did it clumſily. It is true, there was a fault, but it was not mine; Major Lally would not have the complaiſance to lay his head properly. Well, tell me Sir what I muſt do for your honor, and I will;—I am not experienced in theſe matters! this is the firſt time I ever had my head cut off: place me yourſelf. With all my heart, Sir, replied the executioner, and he placed him directly; but the young man ſtirring a little without knowing it, the hangman ſaid in a low voice to the prieſt, he does not lie right. Upon which Le Febvre turned round to him, why the Devil then don't you place me? it is your buſineſs, & if you fail, you will lay the blame upon me. How am I now? The executioner anſwered with a ſtroke of his ſword, which cut off his head at once, and his body was directly thrown into the fire with the Dictionaire Philoſophique.

t Tueſday arrived here Capt. Ives, in a Brig, in 7 Weeks from Briſtol, by whom we have the following

Freſh Advices, viz.

LONDON, October 4.

By Letters in yeſterday's French mail from Cadiz and Madrid, we have undoubted accounts, that the ranſom of the Manillas was happily ſettled between that court and our's in conſequence of which, an expreſs was ſent to Vera Cruz, ordering the flota to ſail for Europe, which had been detained by order of the Spaniſh court, ſome little time before, inſomuch that the expreſs met the flota after being at ſea three days, and returned to Vera Cruz, and unloaded the treaſure until further orders.

The Count de Horn, who is gone as ambaſſador extraordinary from Sweeden to the court of Denmark, on account of the marriage of the Prince Royal of Sweden to the Princeſs Sophia Magdalen, his Daniſh Majeſty's eldeſt ſiſter, (whoſe nuptials were to be celebrated laſt Wedneſday by proxy at Copenhagen) has in his retinue 12 ſuperb coaches, and other carriages; and the preſents with which he is charged for the Princeſs, conſiſt of a gold ſnuff box enriched with brilliants, and adorned with the portrait of the Prince her conſort; another portrait of the ſame Prince enriched with jewels; a diamond ring, and ſeveral fine pearl necklaces.

At preſent there are nine Princes and Princeſſes Royal of the Crown of Great-Britain, and nine Princes and Princeſſes of the ſecond degree, all deſcendants of our late moſt gracious Sovereign King George the ſecond and Queen Caroline. There has not been at one time ſo numerous a royal iſſue of England ſince the conqueſt.

His Majeſty has been pleaſed to create his Royal Highneſs Prince Henry Frederick Duke of Cumberland.

A ſcheme is ſaid to be under conſideration for introducing an equitable and eaſy land-tax throughout the Britiſh provinces in North America, which, without diſtreſſing the ſubjects, will more than compenſate for the repeal of the ſtamp-act.

Oct. 7. On Sunday died at his houſe in Poland ſtreet, the Right Hon. the Earl of Cromartie. His Lordſhip was ſentenced to be beheaded in 1746, for being concern'd in the Rebellion in 1745, but received his Majeſty's moſt gracious Pardon.

According to private Advices from Hamburgh, a Report was current, that his Pruſſian Majeſty was actually making Diſpoſitions for bringing a powerful Army into the Field next Spring; but the ſecret Object of theſe Preparations were variouſly talked of.

The News of Prince Ferdinand's entering into the French ſervice cauſes great ſurpriſe to many perſons. The man who led our armies with ſuch courage, intrepidity, and fortitude, to change ſides, is very amazing, and at the ſame time diſcovers perfidy, which is diſguſting. After having fought for us, and received honors, beſides being allowed a penſion for his great ſervices, to join our enemies, diſcovers avarice, ingratitude and inſtability---There needs no argument to prove, that there muſt be ſome great enterprize formed by France, when they have taken the greateſt General of the age into their ſervice at ſo great a price. It would be abſurd to imagine, that they hire him to be inactive, therefore it is prudent to guard againſt the conſequences.

The petty Officers on board Admiral Corniſh's Squadron at taking the Manilla, it is ſaid will ſhare 600 Dollars per Man when the Ranſom is paid.

It is ſaid that the Eaſt India Company, as a grateful acknowledgment for the many, great and ſignal advantages with which it hath pleaſed Divine Providence to bleſs their arms in the Eaſt-Indies, intend to alleviate the Diſtreſs of their unfortunate fellow ſubjects in Barbadoes, with a donation of ſeveral thouſand pounds.

It is likewiſe ſaid, that ſeveral other companies, particularly the South-Sea, will, according to their reſpective abilities, follow this truly glorious example.

Several perſons, ſkilled in the art of making and blowing glaſs, are preparing to go to New York upon high encouragement, where a Glaſs manufactory is now eſtabliſhing, from which great advantages are expected.

Diſpatches of great importance, from the court of Spain, are ſaid to have been received Yeſterday at St. James's

They write from Liſbon, that the Court was going to prohibit the Importation of Velvets from Genoa, in order to favour the Manufactures of Great Britain.

We are informed a number of Spitalfield's Silk Weavers are engaged to embark for Copenhagen, where that Manufacture is now carried on to a Degree never known before in that Kingdom.

It is ſaid that the Inhabitants of New-York, by eſtabliſhing ſo many Manufactories in that Province, will make an annual Saving of upwards of 200,000l.

We are informed that Sir Matthew Featherſtonehaugh, Bart. will ſhortly be created a Peer of Great-Britain.

It is alſo ſaid, that —— Calcraft, Eſq; will likewiſe be advanced to the ſame Honor.

Extract of a Letter from Great Colton, Warwickſhire.

A Mob has roſe here, conſiſting of upwards of 1000 Men, who divide themſelves into Gangs of 3 or 400 each, and continue traverſing from one Market Town to another, doing incredible Miſchief wherever they come; the Reaſons they alledge for their aſſembling in this Manner, is the Farmers ſending their new corn to Briſtol for Exportation, which has raiſed its Price to Eight Shillings per Buſhel, and through this iniquitous Practice the Bakers ſell only 3 Pounds four Ounces of Bread for Sixpence.

There has been brought to an aſſayer in town, from one of our late acquiſitions in America, a piece of ſilver ore, weighing twelve ounces, from which, on aſſaying, have been extracted 10 ounces of pure ſilver. And we are further informed, that there are Applications made for twenty aſſayers to go abroad, who are offered the greateſt encouragement.

They write from Hanover, that ſeveral Hundred Emigrants had been engaged in that Electorate for the new Settlements in America.

We are informed, that above 50 American built Veſſels have been ſold, in in the Courſe of the preſent Year, to foreign Powers in the Mediterranean.

Great Riots at Exeter, Uffeolm, Lemnion and other Parts of Devonſhire, many Mills deſtroyed, the Grain in them and many Granaries of the Farmers ſeiz'd and ſold for 4 or 5s a Buſhel, and the Money ſent to the Owners.

We are informed, that Patents are making out for ſeven or eight new Peerages; among the reſt, it is ſaid the Earl of Briſtol and Lord Viſcount Townſhend are to be created Marquiſſes.

QUEBEC, October 27.

On Tueſday laſt the Rev. Mr. Veyſſiere, who a few Days ſince left the Order of the Recollects (amongſt whom he was known by the Name of Father Emanuel) and declared himſelf a Proteſtant, took the uſual Oaths of Allegiance to the King, Abjuration of the Power of the Pope, and Abjuration of the Pretender, and ſubſcribed the Declaration againſt Popery. He appears to have taken this happy Determination from the laudable Motive of Conſcience only, after a long and careful Conſideration of the Points in Controverſy, between the Roman and Proteſtant Profeſſions, and to have ſtood in reputable Eſteem amongſt thoſe of the former, as well as the few of the latter he has been known to. The Reverend Father Emanuel Creſper, the preſent worthy Commiſſary of the Order of this Province, was ſo juſt as to ſay of him, after he had declared his Intention: That he was a Man of very good Behavior, and exact in his Duties. A Teſtimony which does equal Honor to the Candour of the Father Commiſſary, and the Character of Mr. Veyſſier.

BOSTON, Dec. 11.

On Friday laſt Mr. Robert Waterman of Cambridge, Carpenter, being an Evidence at the Court at Charleſtown in ſome Affair, juſt as he had finiſhed his Depoſition, bowed his Head to the Court, as it was tho't in order to retire, but inſtantly fell down in a Fit, and expired the next Sunday Morning. He was a young Man about 24 Years of Age, and ſuſtained a good Character: Formerly belonged to Hingham.

Monday laſt Mr. Nathaniel Proctor, of this Town, Bookbinder, was ſeiſed with a Pain in his Breaſt, and died in a few Hours.

There has been ſeveral other Inſtances of ſudden Deaths within theſe few Days paſt: It may be tho't of no great Conſequence to many, the mentioning from Time to Time theſe Occurrences, and what are generally called Accidents; but we doubt not they are oftentimes beneficial to ſome, by putting them on reflecting how great the Change muſt be---the paſſing ſo ſuddenly from this World to the unknown.

We hear that on Saturday Evening laſt, the Houſe of Mr. Tucker, of Cumberland, near Providence, was conſumed to Aſhes, and Himſelf and two Children burnt therein. It is thought the Fire was occaſioned by a Candle left with the Children when put to Bed: There was a Quantity of Flax in the Room, and the Children calling out Fire! Mr. Tucker went up and threw ſome Water on the Flax, which occaſioned ſo much Smoke that it ſuffocated him and the Children.

Saturday laſt the Bill, entituled as follows, "An Act for granting Compenſation to the Sufferers, and of free and general Pardon, Indemnity and Oblivion to the Offenders in the late Times," paſſed both Houſes of Aſſembly now ſitting here; to which his Excellency was pleaſed to give his Conſent the ſame Day.

NEW-YORK, Dec. 11.

On the proper Application, (and conformable to Orders) made by Major Thomas James, who ſuſtained a Loſs on the firſt of November, 1765, in this City;--his Cauſe has been conſidered by the Honorable Houſe of Repreſentatives, now ſitting; and they have been pleaſed to grant him the Amount of his Account ſworn to, of the Sum of £. 1745-15-2: for which that Gentleman gave the Houſe his hearty Thanks, and aſſured he would communicate their Generoſity, by the firſt Opportunity to his Majeſty's Miniſters of State.

Some Letters from Mobille, via Penſacola inform us, that it has been ſo ſickly in that Place, that all the Inhabitants have left it except about a Dozen Families and the King's Garriſon.

LONDON, Sept. 27.

In the ſhip Peter, Capt. Smith from New-York, arrived here lately, came paſſenger one Mrs. Wilſon, aged upwards of 104 years: She has her health and memory perfect, and is very full of Spirits, She is a native of Northumberland, where ſhe married, had three children at one birth, who were all married in one day, and all now alive with upwards of 20 children. She went to America with her huſband, who was in the army; and has beſpoke a paſſage next ſpring to return thither, after having ſeen her children, grand children, &c.

A great variety of iniquitous practices, which have for ſeveral years paſſed without much notice in England, have enriched many particulars, but reduced the common and lower claſes of people to poverty and ruin; have occaſioned an amazing decreaſe of inhabitants; and yet even thoſe that remain are periſhing for want of the neceſſaries of life. The immediate cauſes of theſe evils, are, the bounty on the exportation of wheat, which at once increaſed the taxes, and the price of the neceſſities of life, ſo that the poor were doubly impoveriſhed. The profits of the trade; which induced many rich men to become exporters of grain, and farmers—By degrees the ſmall farms were engroſſed and laid into large ones in the hands of rich men, and the produce of thoſe farms was alſo ingroſſed by other rich men, and between them the poor were left without means of ſubſiſtence. The ſtock of cattle, &c. for proviſions, manifeſtly decreaſed, and became dearer; and the quantity of corn made in England has been greater than formerly—and though this inriched individuals, it has increaſed taxes and the national debt; it has increaſed luxury and extravagance, uncharitableneſs, oppreſſion, and poverty, and every vice that can ruin a people.

ROME, September 1.

The ſcarcity of corn is ſo great, that if not ſupplied in one month, it is ſuppoſed one half of the people muſt die of want; many of the villages have already conſumed all their corn, and live on fruits, nuts, &c. and the reſt muſt all ſoon be reduced to the ſame neceſſity. Four ſacks of corn, which the Duke, &c. had bought and paid for, for the uſe of his own family, was ſeized by the Pope's commiſſary, and carried to Rome.—They continue to ſearch every houſe, and after allowing what they think may ſuffice for the family, ſeize the ſurplus for the Pope; but they have no regard to thoſe familes that have none at all, who, as their neighbours can now no longer ſupply them, muſt die for want. The Pope has forbid the Carnival.

The depoſition of William Harris, mariner.

THIS deponent being duly ſworn on the holy Evangeliſts of Almighty God declareth and ſaith, That ſome time in the month of Auguſt laſt, he ſailed in the ſloop called Polly, whereof one —— Dorris was maſter, bound from New-York to the Leeward Iſlands, and about three weeks afterwards, being then in the latitude twenty-five, to the beſt of this deponent's knowledge and there being at that time on board the ſaid ſloop the ſaid maſter, his mate, named Denelt, two paſſengers, whoſe names were unknown to the deponent, a portugueſe, who ſaid his name was Joſeph Andrews, a Dutchman, named Nicholas Johnſon, both mariners on board the ſaid ſloop, a cabbin boy, named —— Cobbs, and a boy, whoſe name this deponent cannot recollect; in the night, about twelve o'clock, the captain's watch being out, the ſecond watch was called being the mate's, this deponent's, and one of the boy's; and when this deponent came on the deck, together with the mate and boy the mainſail being then half maſt high, the mate ordered the mainſail to be hoiſted, & went forward to aſſiſt, and, as the main-ſail was hoiſting, he the ſaid Joſeph Andrews ſaid to this deponent,—Will, is it not your turn to relieve the perſon at the helm? And this deponent anſwered it was; but he would firſt aſſiſt in hoiſting the mainſail; which being done, and as this deponent was going aft, he heard the mate tell the ſaid Joſeph Andrews to aſſiſt in hauling down the flying jib, after which he would not be diſturbed, it being his watch below.

And this deponent ſaith, he went immediately after that, and relieved the man at the helm, who was Nicholas Johnſon; and as this deponent was at the helm, one of the paſſengers came on the deck, and ſtood looking with his face forward, when the ſaid Joſeph Andrews came running aft, on the lee ſide, and came up between the companion and the tiller-head, and ſtruck down the ſaid paſſenger with a large ax, uſed for the cutting of wood, which this deponent obſerving, cried out, For God Almighty's ſake, Andrews, what are you about? Upon which the ſaid Joſeph Andrews then made a ſtroke at this deponent, and miſſed him, and he this deponent immediately ran aft, and ſaid Joſeph Andrews attempted to follow him; but on hearing the paſſenger groan whom he had knocked down, he turned to him, killed him, and as this deponent believes, then threw him overboard, during which time this deponent went out upon the flying-jib-boom end, in order to ſecrete himſelf from the ſaid Joſeph Andrews: And this deponent further ſaith, that after his ſtaying ſome time on the flying-jib-boom end, the ſaid Joſeph Andrews came forward, and called to this deponent and aſked him, if he would agree to his and the Dutchman's propoſals, meaning the ſaid Nicholas Johnſton; telling this deponent, there were no others then on board, dead or alive, except the ſaid Joſeph Andrews, Nicholas Johnſton, and this deponent, which greatly ſurpriſed and alarmed this deponent, as he never ſuſpected what had happened, and what they afterwards related to him.

And this deponent ſaith, He then Aſked them what the propoſals were? Upon which they replied, that the veſſel was their own and if he would conſent to their propoſals, he ſhould come in from the flying-jib-boom end in ſafety, and have one third of what was in the veſſel.

And this deponent ſaith, that through fear and in hopes of ſaving his life, he conſented; and after coming from the flying-jib-boom they made him follow them into the cabbin, where they broke open ſeveral of the lockers to look for liquor, and alſo broke open the captain's cheſt, and took from thence two bottles of wine, and after ſwearing this deponent never to diſcover, they then told him, that before the ſecond watch, in which this deponent was, they being in the firſt watch with the captain, they had thrown overboard (alive) one of the paſſengers, and knocked down the captain, and threw him overboard (dead) and had alſo thrown over the cabbin-boy (alive).

And this deponent further ſaith, That he verily believes, the mate and the other boy, who were in the watch, and came on the deck with this deponent, were killed before the ſaid Joſeph Andrews ran aft, and knocked down the paſſenger as aforeſaid; and his reaſon for ſuch belief is, that if they had not been killed before, they would have come aft to the aſſiſtance of this deponent, as this deponent made a noiſe, thinking that the capt. was aſleep in his cabbin, and that he would awake him, and alſo to bring the mate and boy and Dutchman aft, not then ſuſpecting that the Dutchman was concerned with the Portugueſe.

And this deponent further ſaith, that about three or four days afterwards, the ſaid Joſeph Andrews, Nicholas Johnſton, and this deponent, quitted the ſaid ſloop, and took to the boat, in order to go in her to St. Euſtatius, and they ſteered for the iſland of Nevis, & ſo ran under the iſland of St. Chriſtopher's; and this deponent obſerving the ſaid Joſeph Andrews and Nicholas Johnſton to be faſt aſleep, ſteered the boat near Brimſtone-hill, and being nigh the ſhore, and imagining his life to be in danger, as he had overheard the ſaid Joſeph Andrews and the ſaid Nicholas Johnſton, while they were in the ſloop, ſay, that they would knock him on the head and heave the log with him; and, when in the boat, he ſaw the ſaid Joſeph Andrews give the ſeveral ſigns to the ſaid Nicholas Johnſton to kill this deponent; he this deponent ſtripped off his ſhoes, and took both the oars that were in the boat, that is, the oar he ſteered the boat with, and an oar that lay in the boat, and caſt himſelf with them into the ſea, and ſwam to the ſhore under Brimſtone-hill aforeſaid: And this deponent ſaith, he does not know what became of the ſaid Joſeph Andrews and Nicholas Johnſton, after he quitted the boat as aforeſaid, but believes, they made ſome contrivance to get into St. Euſtatius.

And this deponent further ſaith, he cannot conceive what inducement they could have had to commit the ſaid ſeveral murders, unleſs it was with a view of getting what money or valuable effects, if any, that were on board, belonging to the captain and paſſengers.

And, laſtly, this deponent ſaith, that the ſaid Joſeph Andrews is about five feet ſix inches high, of a ſwarthy complexion, with very black curled hair, well made, has a wife at New York, and lived in a ſtreet in the city of New-York, called the Golden Hill, ſpeaks good Engliſh, and has often attempted to paſs for a Welchman: And the ſaid Nicholas Johnſton is ſomewhat taller than the ſaid Joſeph Andrews, of a fair complexion, light [illegible] hair, has a full face, but not ſo well made as the ſaid Joſeph Andrews.

WILLIAM HARRIS.

St. Euſtatia, November 12, 1766.

DEAR SIR,

I Wrote a few Days paſt[this Letter is not come to Hand]incloſing a News Paper with an Account of a late horrid Murther, and that one of the Villains Nicholas Johnſon, was taken. He and the other Murtherer Joſeph Andrews, came here in a Boat, and remained till William Harris's Depoſition, giving an Account of the Murther, made its Appearance here, in the St. Chriſtopher'sGazette, ſoon after which, Andrews departed in a Veſſel bound to Caſco-Bay.

As ſoon as his Honour Governor Derwint ſaw the Paper, he immediately publiſhed a Proclamation that no Perſon ſhould carry either of the Murtherers off the Iſland under the Penalty of 50,000 Pieces of Eight, and cauſed the moſt diligent Search to be made for them; it was too late to ſecure Andrews, but Johnſon was ſoon taken & had in his Cuſtody, the Cheſt and Clothes of the Captain, mark'd with his Name. By the Laws here no Man can be put to Death but by his own Confeſſion, notwithſtanding ever ſo many Witneſſes againſt him, but as he is put to the Rack, and tortur'd more or leſs in proportion to the Appearances or Evidence againſt him, unleſs he makes a full Confeſſion without it, thoſe that are guilty ſeldom or ever eſcape but knowing what they muſt ſoon expect often make a full Confeſſion without making any other Evidence neceſſary. For this Reaſon, Harris was not ſent for from St. Kitts, to give Evidence, and Johnſton to avoid the torture made a full Confeſſion. He confeſſed that he killed the Mate and threw one of the Boys, alive over board, the reſt of the horrid Buſineſs was perform'd by Andrews, who was the greateſt, at leaſt the moſt active Villain of the two, and had much the largeſt Share in this bloody Tranſaction.—It is therefore the earneſt Deſire of the People here, eſpecially your Countrymen of New-York and North-America, that you will publiſh this Account, that as this Joſeph Andrews has ſhown himſelf an Enemy to all Mankind, all Mankind may join in their Endeavours to bring ſo bloody a Villain to Juſtice.

Nicholas Johnſton, is to be executed on Saturday next the 15th Inſtant. He is to ſuffer on the Rack that is to be faſten'd to a Croſs where the Bones of his Arms, Legs and Thighs are to be broken with an IronCrow. [It is ſaid he confeſs'd that this was not the firſt time he has deſerved Death for Murder,——and as one of the Men who murder'd the French Maſter of a Veſſel (who took them on board out of Charity)& afterwards put his Widow, Children and Negro on board a Canoe and turn'd them a drift at Sea, as publiſhed about a Year ago, went by the Name of Johnſton; alſo one of the Murderers of a traveller laſt Winter in the Jerſies, near Piſcataway, was called by the ſame Name—it is not improbable that this is the very Man, and that providence has conducted him to a Place, to ſuffer for his Crime where the Puniſhment is more adequate to the Heinouſneſs of them, then he could have found in the Engliſh Dominions.]

On the 12th of November, arrived here, Capt. Denelt from New-York, who on hearing an Account of this tragical Affair, was ſhocked beyond Deſcription, the Mate of Captain Duryee, having been his Brother.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4.

By Captain Newtown, from New-Providence, we learn, that about the firſt of November his Majeſty'sSloop of War, the Eſcort, Captain Folie, in going into the Harbour, there being a great Swell, was driven on the Barr, where ſhe beat off her rudder, and, it was thought, received conſiderable Damage in her Bottom; that a Number of People from the Shore went immediately to her Aſſiſtance, when ſhe was got off, and carried in, but ſo very leaky they could ſcarce keep her free with both Pumps till they had taken out her Guns, Stores, &c. in order to heave her down, and that they were obliged to keep one Pump continually going after ſhe was lightened.—

NEW YORK, December 11.

Sunday laſt an excellent Charity Sermon was preached by the Reverend Mr. OGILVIE, at St. George's Chapel, from 12th. of Luke & 33d Verſe, and a genteel Collection was made for the Benefit of the Charity School in this City. — The Hymn ſung by the Charity Children was very pleaſing to the Congregation in general.

On Sunday next another is to be preached at St. Paul'sChapel, by the Rev. Mr. INGLES, and a Collection to be made for the like laudable Purpoſe.

Extract of a Letter from the Grenades, dated October 24, 1766.

" Our Aſſembly are now ſitting and amongſt other Laws, have paſſed the following: That all Flour, Bread, Butter, &c. ſold in this Iſland, is to be ſold hereafter by the Hundred or Pound Weight.—They alſo intend laying a Duty on all Flour, Bread, Beef, Pork, Butter, Cheeſe, &c. imported here; and intend giving a Bounty of 30 Shillings per Head, on all live Cattle brought from the Northward. They alſo intend appointing Inſpectors of Lumber."

Paragraph of a letter from Quebec, November 28, ſays,

"The famous rum duties claimed by the King, as Heir at Law, and by Conqueſt, to the French King, was Yeſterday by our new Judge, ſpecial Jury, &c. given againſt the Crown; the King's Attorney talks of appealing, but we mean to remonſtrate to his Majeſty againſt the illegality of taxing us againſt our Conſent; and plead his own Proclamation in our Behalf, where he promiſed the Canadians, as well as Engliſh, the ſame Rights and Privileges as his natural born Subjects. We do not refuſe the neceſſary Aid for the Support of Government in this Province, but claim the Right to raiſe them ourſelves, and hope daily to learn, this has been granted us, in giving us, as well as the other Colonies an Aſſembly, which we have ſome Time ſince applied for.

LONDON, October 4.

It is ſaid the ſum of 15,000l. per annum, which the late Duke of Cumberland enjoyed before the rebellion, will be ſettled by parliament on the preſent Duke.

It is worth obſervation, that in all human probability, the attention of parliament will be little leſs deeply engaged, the next ſeſſion, with the affairs of the Eaſt, than it was in the laſt with thoſe of the Weſt; as well as, that the honor and right of Great Britain will be the principal points in agitation in the enſuing enquiry, as they were in the former one.

October 7. Her Daniſh Majeſty arrived at Harwich about 4 o'clock on the 2d Inſtant, and the next day at 12 embarked on board the Mary Yatcht, and in the evening about 6, was clear off the Harbour. Her Majeſty was dreſſed in a Bloom Colour, with white Flowers.—Whereever ſhe paſſed, the earneſt wiſhes of the People were for her Health, and praying to God to protect her from the Perils of the Sea.—An eaſy melancholy at Times ſeemed to affect her, on Account of leaving her Family, and the Place of her Birth; but upon the whole ſhe carried an Air of Serenity and Majeſty, which exceedingly moved every one that beheld her.

" Every thing here has been in great confuſion, occaſioned by the outragious proceedings of a diſtreſt mob; but the principal inhabitants armed themſelves with quarter-ſtaves engaged the rioters, took 28 priſoners, and put the reſt to flight; ſince which they have not been able to make head: The whole city has been illuminated, and upwards of 500 of the inhabitants patroled the ſtreets for two nights paſt."

One Robert Webber, capitally convicted at laſt Maidſtone aſſizes, for robbery on board the Medway man of War, but reprieved by his majeſty to be tranſported, made ſtrong inſtances to be rather hanged, promiſing to make great diſcoveries were he permitted to die: However he was tranſported with other convicts, and left behind him the following confeſſion.

" This is to certify whom it may concern, that I would have made a full diſcovery of the deſtruction of the temporary bridge in April 1758; and in 1757 of a burglary committed in the houſe of Mr. Chriſtopher Hay now keeper of the Poultry compter; and of another burglary committed in the houſe of Mr. P. W—ll, for which Sir John Fieldiug offered a reward of 40l. it was committed in Jannary 1764; and another burglary committed on the 5th of January 1765, in the houſe of Mr. Moſes Chriſtaine, a Jew, in Leaden hall ſtreet, for which a reward was offered by Sir William Stevenſon of 100l. from the city, and 50l. from the loſer."

BRISTOL (in ENGLAND) Sept. 27.

Thurſday ſe'ennight a large mob of poor people, conſiſting of near 2000, went to North Bradley mill, and pulled down part of it: Broke all the windows of the houſe and mill, and ſhared what corn they found. From whence they ſet out for Beckington mill, near Frome, and at the turnpike were met by Thomas Prowſe Eſq; member for the county of Somerſet, and ſeveral other gentlemen. Mr. Prowſe laid before them the dangerous conſequences of ſuch proceedings, deſiring them to diſperſe, and aſſured them of his beſt endeavours for their relief. To this they replied, they had not eat a morſel of bread for three days, but had ſubſiſted on grains, &c. and that their wives and families were in the ſame miſerable condition. They then reſolutely proceeded forward to the mill. The miller having aſſiſtance and fire arms, diſcharged them among the mob. On this a battle enſued in which many of the rioters were wounded; one is ſince dead, and 'tis ſaid others cannot recover. Their ammunition being expended, the mob ſet fire to a fagot pile, a mow of hay of 12 tons, a ſtable, the dwelling houſe and mill. Thoſe within narrowly eſcaped their fury. They took all the miller's wheat and flour they could find, wheeled his waggon into a fire they had prepared in the field, and then marched off. By the immediate aſſiſtance of the neighbours, after their departure, the ſtable, mill, and waggon, were preſerved, but the reſt entirely deſtroyed.

NEW-YORK, Dec. 18.

We hear that the Brig Briſtol Packet, Captain Brigſtock, a few Days after ſhe left this Port, bound for Amſterdam, met with very ſtormy Weather, wherein her Mainmaſt was carried away, and the Captain and two other Men were waſhed overboard and loſt.—We hear that the Ship Polly, Capt. Farquhar, from this Port, alſo met with ſome Diſaſter, but cannot learn of what Kind or Degree, it is hoped not very conſiderable.—Notwithſtanding the Embargo on ſhips outward bound with Grain. Flour, &c. and the Prohibition on Diſtilleries, there was the greateſt and moſt dangerous Mobs and Inſurrections all over England, that was ever known, great Numbers of Mills and Houſes were deſtroyed, and many Lives loſt—in ſome Places the civil Magiſtrates, with the County Militia, in others, Parties of Soldiers had for the preſent ſuppreſſed ſeveral Parties of Rioters, but had by no Means allayed that Spirit of Tumult and Diſcontent, that had generally ſpread though the Land, occaſioned by the long continued Hardſhips and Oppreſſions, with which the Poor have been burdened.—From the Weſt-Indies we hear, that Markets in all the Iſlands were extremely low for all Kinds of Exports.

BOSTON, December 18.

Monday laſt, Joſeph Andrews was diſcover'd in this town, and immediately taken up and carried before a magiſtrate, who committed him to Goal: He denies being concerned in the piracy and murders mentioned in William Harris's Depoſition; but by many circumſtances which appeared on his examination, (the particulars of which we have not yet received) there is no doubt of his guilt. — He had his hair taken off, and wears a wigg: denies his being a Portugueſe, but that he was born in Wales. Several articles with the Captain's name and mark thereon were found upon him.

LONDON, Sept. 30.

THE Princeſs born Yeſterday is by Birth Princeſs Royal of England. It is remarkable, there has not been a Princeſs Royal born, while her Father was King of England, ſince the Reign of King Charles I. Whoſe eldeſt Daughter, Princeſs Mary, was Mother of our glorious Deliverer King William III.

Oct. 2. Laſt Night, about Nine o'clock, her Royal Highneſs, the Princeſs Carolina Matilda, was married, by his Grace the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, at the Chapel Royal at St. James's. His Royal Highneſs the Duke of York ſtood as Proxy for the King Denmark; and at Six this Morning her Majeſty ſet out from Carlton Houſe, on her Voyage to that Kingdom. Lady Mary Boothby, with ſome other Perſons of Quality attended her Majeſty to Harwich, where ſhe is to remain at the Houſe of Griffith Davis, Eſq; Collector of the Cuſtoms, till ſuch Time as may be convenient to embark. Her Majeſty was obſerved to ſhed Tears plentifully on her getting into the Coach.

They write from Gibraltar, that the Maſter of a Veſſel juſt arrived from Madeira had brought Advice, that a French Frigate, of 36 Guns, had put into the Road the Day before he ſailed, to take in Wines, &c. bound on ſome new Diſcoveries in the South Sea.

We hear that her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Caroline Matilda has ordered genteel Preſents to all her Servants, and alſo ſome Benefactions to be diſtributed among a number of poor Perſons after her Departure.

Commiſſions have been received by the Packet from Liſbon, to buy up a Number of Cannon, from 12 to 36 Pounders, to be ſhipped for the Portugueſe Weſtern Iſlands.

One of the Objects of the Treaty of Commerce, ſaid to be negociating with the Grand Seignor, is for the Importation of fine Wool from Turkey, which will greatly Benefit our Woolen Manufactory.

Friday, and not before, Dr. Louth kiſſed His Majeſty's Hand, on being appointed Biſhop of Oxford.

The Diſpute between the king of Pruſſia and England is at preſent ſubſided. His Demand, it is ſaid, was Half our Conqueſt in America, as Co-partner in Trade; on which England demanded Sileſia, and his other conqueſts, which the King of Pruſſia refuſed, and threatened to invade Hanover: He was then informed, if any of his Troops ſet Foot on the Territories of that Electorate, all his Ships ſhould be ſeized immediately and then he might ſee whether the Money he could raiſe in Hanover would be equal to the Profit received by the Trade of 600 Ships conſtantly employed, which the King of Pruſſia is poſſeſſed of.

They write from Savanna in Georgia, that their Crops of Hemp and Flax had this Year turned out ſo plentifully, that it was expected the Bounty would exceed 9000l.

In a ſhort Time the Right Hon. Lord Mountſtewart, eldeſt Son of the Earl of Bute, and Member of Parliament for Boſſiney, will be married to the eldeſt Daughter and co-heriſs of the late Lord Windſor, with a Fortune of 5000l. per Ann.. Several fine Carriages are already made for them, painted with his Lordſhip's and the Lady's Arms on them.

OCTOBER 4. A Liſt of the Perſons accuſed of Piracy, Murder, &c. brought to England from the Coaſt of Africa, in his Majeſty's Sloop Hound, Capt. John Maccartney, Commander.

JOhn Winn, alias Capt. John Power, born at Briſtol, and John Tomlin, born in London, for running away with a Schooner, on the firſt of April 1766, off Cape Apoolonia, when the maſter, John Fox, was on ſhore; likewiſe for ſhooting the mate through the ſhoulder, and one other man in the cheek; alſo for tying up one Peter Baſſam, a black, flogging him as long as he the ſaid Power, could, reſting himſelf ſome times, and then took a cutlaſs and cut this man all over the body and head to pieces, and after all ſome one of his crew took the carpenter's ax [illegible] his head off, and then threw him over board. Theſe two perſons were taken on board the Hound at Prampram Fort April 18th. Peter Jardine, borne at Quebec, in Canada, & Amba, or Betſey, born at Anamaboe, in Africa, are Evidences againſt them. Jardine's evidence is very clear. Amba her black name, Betſey, her white name, was John Fox's companion, and was on board the ſchooner before ſhe was run away with and claimed by Capt. John Power (who took the command, and called the Schooner the Brave) as his property: this girl's evidence is very clear, and ſtrong.

Accra, a black, born at Accra in Africa, for killing two white men, in the river Lagos in Africa, in February 1765, by knocking them on the head with a hammer, on board a ſmall ſchooner belonging to Mr. Johnſon, chief of Dix Cove, Africa, and embezzling great part of the cargo: he was then a gold taker on board ſaid ſchooner. This priſoner was taken on board the Hound April 1766, from a ſchooner ſlaving at Quaſh. The evidence againſt him is a black boy, born in Africa, the place and alſo his name unknown. Capt. Maccartney was preſent at Dix Cove when Mr. Johnſon, chief of that fort, examined this black boy before Capt. Cleveland of the Phœnix; and the boy is very clear and ſtrong in his evidence, and ſays he knows ſome of the ſlaves this Accra ſold, now at Cape Coaſt, who will be evidence againſt Accra.

Harry Roberts, born in Denmark, Derick Vanderp, born at Rotterdam, and Anthoney, alias Nath. Cates, born in Venice, for running away with a ſix oared boat, the latter end of February 1766, at Cape Lanoo in Africa, from a Dutch ſhip called Maria Magdalen, belonging to Middleborough, Francis Richards, maſter. This ſhip has five owners but none of the names are known. Theſe priſoners were taken all on board the Hound in April laſt, at Whydah; Harry Roberts from the Jenny, an Engliſh ſnow, and Nicholas Gates from the Prince of Conde. Chriſtopher Smith, born at Stetin, in Pruſſia, is evidence againſt them. This Chriſtopher Smith and the three priſoners, all agree and confeſs, that they did run away with the boat, but with no other deſign than to get clear of their own ſhip, where they ſay they were very ill treated.

Peter Ampa, alias Hamper, born at Konninſburg in Pruſſia, confeſſes that he ran away from the ſnow Plumper, Capt. [illegible], belonging to Liverpool, in March 1766, at Grand Paſſaw, in Africa. This Ampa alſo confeſſes, that after he left the Plumper, he went on board the Maria Magdalena, Dutch ſhip and then run away with this ſhip's boat, with the other Dutchmen before-mentioned.

His Majeſty's armed ſchooner the St. John, Capt. Hill, on the 24th of July laſt took a New-England brig, and two ſloops from Novaſcotia, trading with the French in Gaſpee-Bay, Newfoundland; they were carried to Placentia.

A piece of Dutch inhumanity was performed a few days ſince on board one of their men of war in Plymouth harbour; an Engliſh Sailor who had been ſhip wrecked in Holland, being willing to get to his native Country, procured a paſſage in a Dutch ſhip to England; but on the ſhip's arrival at the above port, they would not permit him to go on ſhore; upon which he petitioned the Admiralty there who ordered an Officer to take him out. The officer was refuſed the man, and queſtioned how he came to know the man was there? The officer ſhewed the petition, which ſo exaſperated the Dutch officers, that they ſeized the poor man, and gave him 300 ſtrokes, with a five inch rope, which mangled his body and ſides in ſuch a manner, that large quantities of fleſh were ſwabbed up by the decks, and his cries were heard near a mile; not a ſailor on board the ſhips in Catwater could bear to ſtay upon deck. It is ſaid that on Monday the Admiralty ſent another order for the man; but the officer was refuſed admittance into the ſhip; upon which, we hear, the Captain of one of our men of war went on board, and upon examining and ſearching the ſhip, took 9 Engliſh ſailors, men and boys, ſome of whom they had kidnapped here, by perſuading them to go on board to ſee if they liked to go with them, and then clapped them in Irons. It is thought the poor man cannot ſurvive his puniſhment.—It is hoped theſe inhuman brutes will be made to anſwer for this unheard of cruelty.

We are credibly informed the Dutch man of war is ordered to be detained in Plymouth harbour, till a proper enquiry can be made.

We hear that Mr. Stuard of Paris, one of the Authors of Gazette Litteraire de l'Europe, and, an intimate friend of Mr. Wilkes, has at the deſire of that Exile for Liberty, undertaken to write the Hiſtory of Corſica, which is to be dedicated to a Patriot Nobleman of England, whom Mr. Wilkes calls the Ultimus Romanorum, the only remaining ſupport of conſtitutional freedom. Mr. Stuard reckoned one of the ableſt writers, When his Hiſtory of Corſica is completed, there is a buſt of him to be placed among the Worthies.

The Court of France has publiſhed an Ordinance as an inſtruction to the ſoldiery. It is divided into 15 articles, the firſt is, That all ſoldiers that do not join their regiments at the expiration of their furlows, ſhall be taken up by any of the Magiſtrates, and committed to priſon, from which they ſhall not be releaſed till a proper guard arrives to conduct them to their reſpective corps. The other 14 articles relate to the ſoldiery under different circumſtances, with threats of ſuitable pains and penalties in caſe they do not obey the orders contained in the piece abovementioned.

They write from Rochford, that they are buſy there in forming a legion under the command of de St. Victor, which is to conſiſt of 45 companies each compoſed of 100 men, together with 8 Matroſſes, a like Number of grenadiers, ſerjeants and corporals, one piece of cannon, after the Sweediſh manner, and two ſmall field pieces; but they do not tell us for what mighty ſervice this new legion is intended.

We hear the King of Portugal has iſſued a decree, forbidding the religious, or other obſervance of all Saints days, except thoſe of the Apoſtles; on the alledged account of their commonly being rather employed to vicious than pious purpoſes. And by the ſame decree, all Court Hollidays are forbidden to interrupt any buſineſs tranſacted in any public offices. Poſſibly the late regulation intended to qualify the former for reaſons that may be ſuppoſed.

The Indian lady was ſeized with violent tremblings, and ſaid ſhe thought ſhe was brought there to be ſacrificed; the whole congregation was now alarmed, ſome fancying there was a fire, others that the walls of the church were tumbling down: in ſhort, they all ran out but the Miniſter, who ſat down with great compoſure, till his audience returned.

SIR,

THE Cry of the Poor, againſt the Dearneſs of Proviſions encreaſes daily, and, in my Opinion, not without juſt Provocation: Meat of every Kind has long ſince been beyond the Reach of the poor Man's Pocket, and unleſs, in a ſhort Time ſome Stop is put to the Exportation of Corn, God only knows what the Poor are to eat, for I am afraid they will not be able to purchaſe Bread for themſelves and Families: What ſignifies amuſing us with a Proclamation againſt foreſtalling of Corn? We moſt of us know there are ſuch Acts exiſting; but I ſhould be glad to be informed, whether the Proclamation has, or can ſtop the Exportation of Corn, without the further Aid of Parliament? If not, I hope common Humanity will oblige the Members of the two great Aſſemblies to give it their earlieſt Conſideration, in order to pacify the Minds of the Poor, which hitherto have been too juſtly irritated. A few Days ago I fell in Company with a Set of Seafaring-Men, at a public Houſe in Graveſend; the Converſation began about the exorbitant Price of Proviſions of every Kind; Bread in particular, took up the greateſt Part of the Debate, and all agreed unleſs the Price of Bread was lowered, and a Stop put to the Exportation of Corn, the Poor of that Place muſt follow the Example ſet them by their Fellow-Sufferers at Exeter. An old Sailor then in Company, and who had given great Attention to the whole Diſcourſe, got up with all the Coolneſs imaginable, and, ſwearing a hearty Oath, ſaid, I'll tell you what, my Lads; I have but one wiſh left for them, which is, that another Ear of Corn may not grow in this Kingdom, for theſe ſeven Years to come, and that your great Folks may be forced to eat Horſe-Beans during that Time, for endeavouring to take the Bread out of the Mouths of their beſt Friends, in order to feed their Enemies. The wiſh of the old Tar was only diſapproved of as affecting the Poor as well as the Rich. I am therefore in Hopes, before the Meeting of Parliament, ſome good and ſenſible Men will conſider of different Clauſes for an Act to overthrow foreſtalling of every Kind, and thereby enable many of the laborious Poor, to purchaſe Proviſions at a moderate Price for their Families, who for ſeveral Months paſt, I will affirm, have been ſcarce able to keep them from ſtarving. Nothing gives me more Satisfaction, than when I meet with Letters upon this important Subject in your Paper, and I ſincerely hope that every Perſon will take up his Pen, who can give the leaſt Aſſiſtance to the poor and hungry.

I am, Sir,
Your's, &c.

Letters from Madrid adviſe, that the earthquake in the iſland of Cuba (which laſted near ſeven minutes) had entirely ſwallowed up the quaries of free-ſtones and chalk-pits in the neighbourhood of St. Jago; the inhabitants of which city all abandoned their houſes and took refuge, ſome in the open fields, others in the barracks erected in the great ſquares of the city, in one of which the hoſt had been depoſited. This calamity happened on the 11th of June laſt about midnight; though there were not above forty lives loſt, yet the number of the maimed and wounded was much more conſiderable. The ſame earthquake was pretty violent at Bayamo, a port in that iſland; and ſlight ſhocks ſtill continued to be felt when the accounts came away.

Extract from the Votes of the Honorable Houſe of Repreſentatives of the Province of Maſſachuſetts-Bay. Veneris, 5 Die Decembris, A.D. 1766.

ORDERED, That Major Hawley, Mr. Otis, and Mr. Adams, be a Committee to prepare a Reſolve, ſetting forth the Motives which induced this Houſe to paſs the Bill for granting Compenſation, &c. Who reported as follows, Reſolved, That this Houſe in paſſing the Bill for granting Compenſation to the Sufferers, and of free and general Pardon, Indemnity and Oblivion, to the Offenders in the late Times, were influenced by a loyal and grateful Regard to his Majeſty's moſt mild and gracious Recommendation; by a Deference to the Opinion of the illuſtrious Patrons of the Colonies in Great Britain; and for the Sake of internal Peace and Order: Without any Regard to any Interpretation of his Majeſty's Recommendation into a Requiſition, precluding all Debate and Controverſy; and under a full Perſwaſion that the Sufferers had no juſt Claim or Demand on the Province. And that this Compliance ought not hereafter to be drawn into Precedent.

After which the Houſe paſs'd the two following Reſolutions, viz.

I. Reſolved, That it was the indeſpenſible Duty of the Sufferers to have applied to the Government here, rather than to the Government at Home; and the neglect of any of them to petition to this Aſſembly till October laſt, while they were complaining at Home, is very reprehenſible.

II. Whereas it appears to this Houſe by the Reſolutions of the Honorable the Houſe of Commons of Great Britain, that it was their Opinion that the Reſolutions of diverſe Aſſemblies in America, had a Tendency to encourage the Riots that happened there. Reſolved, That this cannot be ſaid of the Reſolutions of the Houſe of Repreſentatives of this Province, as the ſaid Riots happened about two Months before any ſuch Reſolutions were made.

From the Corſican Gazette.

Corte. On the 13th of April, by the meditation of the Count de Marbeuf, an exchange of Priſoners was concluded on between the republic of Genoa and the State. The ceremony was performed under the walls of Furiani: Signo Barbgaggi being commiſſioned to act in behalf of his Excellency our General. It is condition'd in this exchange, that none of the priſoners on either ſide ſhall be employed upon actual ſervice, while the troops of France remain in the iſland.

It is remarkable, that of the Corſican priſoners there have periſhed in the priſons of Genoa, in the ſpace of three years, 103, for the moſt part young and robuſt men, who have died of mere want, and of 56, who have been kept alive by the generous and pious care of an old Jeſuit Father, one died on board, three hardly ſurvived their landing at Baſtia, and the reſt are in ſo bad a way, that they cannot hope long to enjoy their regained liberty. On the other hand, of the Genoeſe priſoners, taken by us in much greater numbers, only 5 or 6 have died in our priſon.

Some time ago an Engliſh veſſel laden with barley coming from Sicily was ſhipwrecked near to Portovecchio, but the crew, and part of the cargo had the good fortune to be ſaved. When the news of this misfortune was brought to General Paoli, his excellency immediately diſpatched a perſon of diſtinction, with a detachment of militia, to give all poſſible aſſiſtance to the Engliſh ſailors.

Aug. 30. Mr. Wildman of Plymouth, appeared in his bee dreſs at Norfolk-houſe, before the duke and dutcheſs of Norfolk, and others of the nobility, who expreſſed great ſurprize on obſerving the command Mr. Wildman had over thoſe ſagatious inſects.

This gentleman who has made himſelf greatly famous through the Weſt of England, for his command over bees, being come to town, gave notice to Dr. Templeman, ſecretary to the ſociety for the encouregement of arts, &c. that he would pay him a viſit on Wedneſday the 27th of Auguſt in the Afternoon, in his bee dreſs. Several gentlemen and ladies, who had heard of this viſit, were aſſembled at the doctor's. About five o'Clock Mr. Wildman came, brought through the city in a chair, his head and face almoſt covered with bees, and a moſt venerable beard of them hanging down his chin, which rendered his appearance truly reverend. The gentlemen and ladies were ſoon convinced that they need not be afraid of the bees, and therefore went up familiarly to Mr. Wildman, and converſed with him. After having ſtaid a conſiderable time, he gave orders to the bees to retire to their hive that was brought for them, which they immediately obeyed with the greateſt precipitation.

The SPEECH of the OTAWAS to Gov. ROGERS, upon his taking Poſſeſſion of the Fort at Michilimackinack, and its Dependencies, viz.

A String of Wampum.

MY Father, my Cheifs here preſent, deſire you will open your Ear, and hear the Anſwer to the Speech you made us Yeſterday.

We thank you for coming to enlarge the Fire that was already lighted up among us, and thank you for coming to take Poſſeſſion of this Place.

We Otawas thank you for giving us the Liberty to come and warm ourſelves by the Fire of Friendſhip that you have lighted, and we cannot thank you too much, for we ſee that our Wives and Children have Liberty to come and walk in your Fort without Reſtraint.

We thank our great Father the King, we ſee he takes pity on us to give us fine Weather and make the Road ſmooth.

A Belt.

This belt is for you to ſit upon and to convince you that you may ſit quiet and eaſy, and that no bad Birds come in our Towns.

We thank our Mother for coming along with our Father, we ſee by her coming that ſhe had no Fear, that they thought ſhe had ſome of her Children the Otawas here that were quiet, that ſhe thought well of us, that ſhew'd us Charity; here is a Bed we give her, ſhe may ſit down upon it quietly, without Fear, and ſee her Children all around her.

Gives her a Beaver Blanket.

A Belt.

My Father we give you this Belt, to tye your Arms and ours together, we deſire you will be kind enough to hear what we tell you, we ſpeak from our Hearts that our Hands may be tied together, and that if any bad Birds ſhould come to tell you any Thing about us, that you will not liſten to them; nothing bad is in our Hearts, and you may be ſure on our Parts if any bad Birds ſhould come among us, that we will ſhut our Ears and not hear them, for with this Belt we tie your Hands to ours, ſo faſt, that nothing on Earth ſhall ſeparate them: We thank you for having ſo much Pity on us as to come here to make univerſal Peace with all Nations. The Father of Life when he put us upon the Earth, did not tell us that we ſhould live forever, and the few Days that we have to live, we hope it will be in Unity and brotherly Love; that you will at all Times have Charity for us, and grant us what we aſk, and if any young Fools among us ſhould do any Thing wrong, we hope that you will ſhew him Charity.

More Strings of Wampum.

Father, our Hearts are joyful To-day, for the great Fire that you have lighted up amongſt us warms every-body, for which Warmth we hope that you will have Patience, and not refuſe hearing what we have further to ſay,

We hope you will ſhew Charity to all the Traders that are here, and let them go away when they pleaſe, and we deſire that you would ſhew Charity to thoſe Traders that are gone away in the Night, perhaps ſome of them will not return thro' Fear; but as our late Father had permitted all his children Traders, and the Seaſon advancing, we hope they may throw away their Bugbares and come here, may walk boldly into the Fort, with their Heads lifted up as we come into your Houſe, for they will hear that their new Father is come to make all People happy, and we hope that you will ſhew them Charity—[Shewing a Belt given by General Gage,] This is a Belt to convince you, that the Nations, Fallaviens, Puans, Sakes and Foxes, joined our Hands with theirs, to hold faſt together when this Belt was given us, it was given us as the largeſt Tree that could be found in all the Woods, and that there could never riſe up a Mountain high enough to hide that Tree, and when we look'd upon it, that it ſhould remain and keep from us all bad Thoughts; and we now hold it faſt, and remember what was told us, and ſhall not forget it.

A Belt of Wampum.

Here is a Belt that the Traders gave us at the Time the Fort was cut off, to remember the good Things we had done for them.

A Belt of Wampum.

This Belt our Father Sir William Johnſon gave us, upon it all Towns and Nations are painted, and he himſelf holds the Hands of all Nations, you ſee him ſit down here, and when he hears any bad News he looks towards us, and imagines we are ready to go to his Aſſiſtance.

A Belt of Wampum.

This Belt our late Father gave us, he told us, my Children I am going away, I give you this to remember what I told you, and that you may behave well; I ſhall always remember what you have told me, and I hope you will not forget any Part of what I have told you. There is your Village at one End, and mine at the other End, and here is the Road open and ſmooth for you at all Times, to come and ſee me without Reſtraint.

We ſhew you theſe Belts, Fathers, to convince you that our Hearts are as good, and that we will take Care of them in the Manner they ought to be taken Care of, and remember every Thing that was told to us with theſe Belts, and not forget any Part of it.

CHARLES-TOWN, [S.Carolina]

November 24. Tueſday laſt, about one o'clock P. M. a very uncommon Phænomeon was obſerved in the air, by many people here, and many other and diſtant parts of the province. It was obſerved as a large ball of fire, projected along, with great velocity, in a direction from S. E. to N. W. and then break or burſt, when a large body of ſmoak and vapour was ſeen to be thrown up higher in the air. When it burſt it ſeemed to be about 50 or 55 degrees of altitude; and from the time that the exploſion was ſeen, to the time the report was heard, ſeveral minutes paſſed, ſome ſay 5, ſome 6, and others ſeven minutes, but as no one made any accurate obſervations there can be no certain time fixed on. The medium, however, of the ſeveral conjectures, as to the time between ſeeing the ball of fire burſt, and hearing the report, makes the diſtance by the common computation at leaſt 70 miles from Charles Town; yet ſo great was the effect of this exploſion in the air, at that great diſtance, in ſhaking all the houſes ſo ſeverely, as to make many think it was an earthquake, particularly thoſe who had not been accuſtomed to the particular noiſe of earthquakes. The noiſe of the exploſion ſeemed like the report of two very large great guns, at no great diſtance, very quickly fired one after the other.——We learn that it was heard, equally loud, 70 miles S.W. and S. of Charles-Town, and the ſame diſtance N. and every where ſurprized the people, with the uncommon noiſe and violent ſhake of the houſes; and that the cattle ſcattered about the field an woods, were obſerved to collec themſelves in bodies.—What thi extraordinary meteor was, or whenc it aroſe,—whether it broke upward from the earth, or, whether it aroſ from ſome fortuitous and ſudde congeſtion of igneous and inflamable materials in the atmoſphere, w have not as yet date enough to determine exactly.

Williamſburg, Virginia,

Dec. 11. On Monday the 20th of October laſt there fell in Halifax county an amazing ſhower of hail, which was proceeded by a great noiſe in the air. Many of the hailſtones were large as a pint bowl, and one meaſured five inches long an hour after it fell. The cloud aroſe in the northweſt, and had its direction to the ſouth eaſt. The trees are not only ſtript of their leaves but of their boughs and twigs alſo, and appear more naked than they would have done in the middle of winter. The noiſe which preceded the ſhower, & the ſhower itſelf, which laſted near an hour, were ſo dreadful that many people began to apprehend the laſt day at hand. It killed many fowls, and ſome hogs; and it is ſurpriſing it did not kill even cattle and horſes.

LONDON,

Oct. 5. Yeſterday Morning early one of the moſt dreadful Storms of Rain, Thunder and Lightning happened that was ever known in the Memory of Man, and the Damage done thereby is incredible. Many Chimnies were thrown down in the High Grounds at the Weſt End of the Town, where the Storm was very violent. John Hill, a Watchman of High Holborn, declares, that about two o'Clock a Ball of Fire fell near his Stand, that the Earth trembled under him, and that there was ſo great a Smell of Sulphur, that he was near being ſuffocated.

The Ships at Anchor below Bridge received very great Damage Yeſterday Morning: ſeveral of them were drove from their Anchors and run foul of each other, and ſome had their Maſts ſhivered by the Lightning, ſo that they muſt be repaired before they can proceed on their Voyages.

October 7. According to private Advices from Hamburgh, a Report was current that his Pruſſian Majeſty was actually making Diſpoſitions for bringing a powerful Army into the Field next Spring; but the ſecret Object of theſe Preparations were variouſly talked of.

Oct. 11. They write from Guernſey, that two capital Diſtilleries have lately been eſtabliſhed there, which is intended chiefly for the Supply of the Newfoundland Fiſheries.

Oct. 13. We hear that an eminent Jew Merchant in this city has lately purchaſed Diamonds to the Amount of 50,000l. for Exportation to Denmark and Sweeden.

Oct. 14. His Majeſty has been pleaſed to allow his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland 9000l. per Annum out of Civil Liſt, to commence from the 10th of this Inſt. October.

LONDON, October 17.

Letters from Glouceſter, dated Oct. 15, ſay, that people are all quiet in that county, and are returned to their work. The Bakers in and about Stroud and Durſly ſerve them with good Bread, made all one way, as they term it, ten pounds and ſome two pounds and a half, for a ſhilling.

The Earl of Chatham had no leſs than ſeven Expreſſes ſent down to him to Bath on Thurſday night, from which we may reaſonably conjecture, that ſomething extraordinary is under conſideration.

They write from Berlin, that the Sieur Urſinus, Privy Counſellor of Finances, was arreſted the third of this month in his own houſe, and carried to the citadel of Spandau. At the ſame time a ſeal was put on all his papers. The cauſe of his diſgrace is differently reported.

From ſeveral parts of Norfolk we are told, that large numbers of the Militia, have actually joined the rioters, and that there will be a neceſſity for a body of regular troops to quell the inſurgents.

Peter Schuyler; and was eſteemed a Lady of great Forecaſt, Prudence and Oeconomy.

Capt. Banks arrived here on Thurſday laſt in 22 Days from Penſacola; and the Intelligence by this Veſſel is, That the Creek Indians, who have for many years committed Murders on the Engliſh, and never could be brought to give ſatisfaction; have lately, for the Murder of two Engliſhmen, been threatned by Brigadier Taylor in a moſt ſpirited Manner, ſhould the Criminals not be brought to Juſtice: In this he was ſoon gratified by ſixty of their Deputies waiting on him the latter End of laſt Month, with White Evidence to prove they had cut off the Murderers; and to give Aſſurance of their future good Behaviour. This is the firſt Inſtance of that numerous and haughty People, having given of their Dependance on the Engliſh.

Governor Johnſton, we alſo learn, by the ſame opportunity is on the Point of going home, as re-called for Mal-Adminiſtration: On which Account the Inhabitants of Weſt-Florida are not diſpleaſed.

A Spaniſh Regiſter Ship from La Vera Cruz for New-Orleans, was lately caſt away at the Mouth of the River Miſſiſippi, with a great Quantity of Dollars on board, which were all ſaved with the whole Crew.

Capt. M'Clure, in 11 Weeks from Londonderry, ſpoke with the following Veſſels on his Paſſage, viz. The 20th of Oct. in Lat. 55, with the Ship Falls, Capt. Robinſon, from Londonderry for Halifax, with Paſſengers; the 29th of November in 38, 12, with the Ship York, Capt. Berton, from this Port, for London; and 22d December, with Capt. Doubler from Monto-Chriſto, for Boſton, who on the 17th before fell in with Capt. Fowler, in a Brig from Falmouth for this Port, in great Diſtreſs, having loſt his Main-Maſt, was without any Proviſions on board, having met with extreme hard Gales of Wind, and was reduced to ſuch Extremities as to be obliged to eat a Shark without cooking, that Providence ſent in their Way; Capt. Doubler generouſly divided his Stock with Capt. Fowler, the whole being no more than a Barrel of Flour and another of Pork.

Saturday Noon, in a hard Squall, an Elizabeth-Town Boat going up the Kills, filled ſo ſuddenly, that a Woman and two Children in the Hold was drowned before any Aſſiſtance could get to them; the Boatman and Capt. Lawrence with Difficulty ſaved their Lives.

Laſt Saturday Week a Sailor belonging to Capt. Harris, bound to Auguſtine, fell overboard in the Narrows, & was drowned.

By Capt. Nelſon, who arrived here laſt Monday Morning from Nevis, in 29 Days, we have the Pleaſure to hear there is like to be very good Crops in moſt of the Iſlands; the Hurricane and Storm not having done the great Damages to the SugarCanes that was at firſt apprehended.-----Capt. Nelſon met with pretty hard Weather, eſpecially on Saturday laſt, when being cloſe up with the Light Houſe, the Wind was ſo violent, that it tore a good new Mainſail quite out of the Bolt Rope, and beat him off, but he happily got in the next Day. One of our Pilot-boats laying off the Hook at Anchor the ſame Day, was obliged to cut her Cables, or be forced under Water.

From New-Jerſey we are aſſured, that about a Fortnight ago, at a ſpecial Court of Oyer and Terminer, and general Goal Delivery, held at Suſſex County, one Symmonds, that murdered an Oneida Indian, in that County, the Beginning of laſt June, was tried, convicted, and received Sentance of Death pronounced againſt him, but we have not learnt the Particulars.

Capt. Miller from Londonderry, on the 2d Inſtant, in Lat. 36. 39. ſpoke with the Ship Friendſhip, Capt. Davenwood, from Maryland for London, out 9 Days, all well.—And on the 17th ſpoke with two Sloops from New-London for Dominica, with Horſes on board, but the Wind blowing freſh did not learn their Names, they had been 5 Days out: The ſame Day ſaw a Brig with Jury-Maſts ſtanding to the N. E. but could not ſpeak with her.

HARTFORD, January 12.

The Weather which of late has been very cold, chang'd to warm; and laſt Monday it began to rain, which continued that Night and next Day, (there being a good Deal of Snow on the Ground) it occaſioned a great and ſudden Flood, which has done great Damage to the Mills, Dams, Bridges, &c. In this Place, a large Dam is carried away, together with a Saw-Mill, & the greateſt Part of a Griſt-Mill, in which was deſtroyed a conſiderable Quantity of Grain and Meal; another Griſt-Mill on the ſame Stream has received ſome Damage, and the Great-Bridge, was with the greateſt Difficulty preſerved. A Warehouſe, fitted up for, and occupied by a Family, at the Ferry, was entirely carried off by the Ice, and the Family very narrowly eſcaped, eſpecially the Woman, who was confined to her Bed, with a lame Leg.——Happily the Ice ſtop'd before the Flood got to its Heighth, or tis probable, all the Stores and Dwelling-Houſes at the River-ſide had been ſwept away.—All the Weſt-Diviſion Bridges, but One, are carried away, and their Mills much damaged—beſides the above, the Town will ſuffer greatly in the Loſs of Fences, which are prodigiouſly damaged.—At Middletown, the Great Bridge, lately erected, is carried away, as is alſo, ſeveral other Bridges on the ſame River—in the Weſt Part of that Town ſeveral Bridges, Mills, and Dams are ſwept away.—Mr. STEPHEN BLAKE, of that Place, an Under Sheriff, and his Son about 12 Years old, were both unfortunately drowned, in attempting to croſs a Bridge, at the South End of the Town—they were both on one Horſe. Mr. Blake ſuſtain'd a fair Character, and his Death is lamented by his Acquaintance. Their Bodies have been ſince taken up, & buried in one Grave.--At Suffield, all their Mills, Dams and Bridges are either carried away, or much damaged; & it is ſaid it will be ſome Time before any of their Mills can be fix'd for grinding.—At Farmington, a Fulling-Mill, with its Dam has been carried off; their Bridges are a good deal damaged, but none of them are entirely gone.—The Bridge at Windſor, which lately coſt 200l. in building is deſtroyed. At Wintonbury, a Fulling-Mill, and Dam, belonging to Capt. Gillet, was carried away, together with a Quantity of Cloth that was in the Mill. On the Poſt Road between this Place and New-York, there is only Kingſbridge and a Bridge at Norwalk, left ſtanding.— —New-Haven has ſuffered very much, having loſt three or four large Bridges, and two or three Dykes made for daming out the Tides.——In ſhort, our Intelligence is very diſagreeable, from all Parts of the Colony, no Town having eſcaped ſharing ſome Loſs, the whole of which will amount to conſiderable throughout the Government.

On the 7th Inſtant at half paſt One in the Morning departed this Life, of a putrid Fever, at New-Haven, the Reverend THOMAS CLAP, for many Years Rector and Preſident of Yale-College, aged about 65.

Nov. 27. A bill is brought into the Honorable the Houſe of Burgeſſes for erecting a ſtatue to his Majeſty, as a grateful acknowledgement for repealing the Stamp-Act, and thereby reſtoring the rights & privileges of his American ſubjects; alſo an obeliſk, to commemorate the ſerviſes of thoſe noble and worthy patriots that diſtinguiſhed themſelves in bringing about that happy event.

This day it was determined in the Hon. Houſe of Burgeſſes, by a large majority, that the Office of treaſurer of this colony ſhall be excerciſed by one perſon; and it was accordingly agreed that Robert Carter Nicholas, Eſq; ſhould be intruſted with that important department.

It was alſo voted that the Speaker of that houſe ſhall have a ſalary of 500l ſterling a year.

NEW-YORK, December 18.

We are well aſſured from New-Jerſey, that upon the News of the ſeveral Ships coming from England to load with Wheat, and its riſing to a Dollar a Buſhel, that one ſingle Farmer at Roiton, brought to market there One Thouſand Buſhels. This proves there might be plenty of Wheat in this Country, if we had Farmers enough. And notwithſtanding the dearneſs of Proviſions in general here, it ſhews only Money is wanting to procure them: For ſeveral of thoſe Ships are already loaded and ſailed with Wheat, both from this Place and Philadelphia, and it has been bro't to Market in ſuch Plenty that the Price has fell conſiderably.

Laſt Sunday departed this Life, in the 88th Year of his Age, Col. Henry Cuyler, an eminent Merchant in this City, and of an unblemiſh'd Character.

St. JAMES's, October 8.

THIS day the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor (Sir Robert Ladbroke Knt. Locum Tenens) Aldermen and Commons of the city of London, in common council aſſembled, waited on his Majeſty; and being introduced to his Majeſty by the Right Hon. the Earl of Oxford, James Eyre, Eſq; the Recorder, made their compliments in the following Addreſs:

To the King's moſt excellent Majeſty.

Moſt gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal ſubjects, the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of the city of London, in common council aſſembled, with the moſt zealous ardor and affection, embrace the earlieſt opportunity of approaching the throne of the beſt of Princes, with our joyful congratulations on every event pleaſing to your Majeſty and ſalutary to your kingdoms.

The ſafe delivery of the Queen, a Princeſs endeared to your Majeſty and the whole nation by every royal and virtuous accompliſhment, fills our hearts with the utmoſt thankfulneſs to Divine Providence.

An increaſe of your Majeſty's auguſt family by the birth of a Princeſs Royal, cannot fail of diffuſing univerſal joy amongſt all your faithful ſubjects, as it farther ſecures to them and their poſterity a long continuance of thoſe ineſtimable bleſſings which they have hitherto enjoyed under the protection of your Majeſty's illuſtrious houſe.

The auſpicious marriage of your Majeſty's Royal ſiſter, the Princeſs Carolina Matilda, with that great Potentate the King of Denmark, (on which we beg leave to felicitate your Majeſty) muſt afford the moſt intereſting ſatisfaction, not only to us and all your Majeſty's loyal ſubjects, but alſo to every Proteſtant power in Europe.

Permit us, Royal Sir, to aſſure you, that your faithful Citizens of London are ever ready to evince to all the world, that their hearts and affections are ſincere oblations of gratitude to your Majeſty for your conſtant and paternal care, and eſpecially for the recent inſtance of your tender attention to the neceſſities of your people.

" YOUR loyal and affectionate pro-
" feſſions upon the happy event of
" my Queen's ſafe delivery, and the marri" age of my ſiſter to my very good ally the " King of Denmark, cannot but be moſt
" acceptable to me.
" It is with pleaſure that I ſee the juſt
" ſenſe which the city of London enter-
" tains of thoſe meaſures which the ne-
" ceſſity of the occaſion obliged me to " take for the relief of my people; and
" I hope they will have the deſired effect
" of quieting the minds, and removing
" the diſtreſſes which ſeemed daily to en-
" creaſe."

They were all received very graciouſly, and had the honor to kiſs his Majeſty hand.

After which his Majeſty was pleaſed to confer the honor of Knighthood on Robert Darling and James Iſdail, Eſqrs; the sheriffs of the city of London.

A very melancholly Inſtance of the Imprudence of taking in a Paſſenger from a Convict Ship, lately happen'd a few Miles from this City: Nine of the Family have Died already of the Jail Fever, and Four more are now in a dangerous Condition, from the ſame Diſorder. The Fever that lately raged here was of the ſame Kind, and, as generally ſuppoſed, was brought in by one of theſe Ships. Surely the many ſhocking Inſtances of the like Nature, by which many Families have ſuffered extremely, will make People more Cautious how they admit under their Roofs, theſe Wretches, doubly Nuſances from the Contagion of their Diſtempers, and of their Vices.

Wedneſday laſt one Samuel Harris, late Cooper on board Capt. Valentine's Veſſel from Surrinam, (who on the Paſſage had ſome blows with another Young Man, that was the Aggreſſor, and who died in a ſhort Time after) was tried here by a ſpecial Court of Admiralty held for that purpoſe, and acquitted.

On the 27th ult. in the Evening, one Mr. Bird of Dorcheſter returning home from this Town where he had been to purchaſe ſeveral neceſſaries for his Family, was froze to Death. His Body was diſcovered the next Morning within a few Rods of a Houſe, with a Bag on his Shoulder.—He has left a Widow and ſeveral Children.

The ſame Evening Mr. John Waite of Chelſea, was Froze to Death in returning home from Lynn, where he had been catching of Fiſh.

It is ſaid the cold Weather laſt Week was ſeverer than has been for above twenty Years paſt. People travelled ſafely on the Ice from the Town to the Caſtle and other Iſlands.—Numbers who were neceſſarily expoſed had ſome their Hands, others their Ears, Cheeks, Eyes, &c. froze.—Several poor Perſons had their Feet froze even while in Bed, being deſtitute of ſufficient Covering.

And after Death ſtill leave behind

Extract of a Letter from Galats, Aug. 16.

"We have been a good deal diverted in this part of the world, with the Accounts from England, of the progreſs of Prince Heraclius of Georgia, and of the great advantages he of late had obtained over the Ottoman forces. To credit them, one would be induced to believe, that the Turkiſh power had received a fatal blow, and that the Georgians were on their way to ſeat themſelves in the Imperial city of Conſtantinople. The real fact is this, Prince Heraclius is Chief of one Tribe in the hilly country of Georgia, which acknowledges the Porte as their Sovereign, and to whom they pay a tribute. This tribute was paid in ſlaves; a certain number of young perſons, of both ſexes, being annually ſent to Conſtantinople for that purpoſe. The exactors of this tribute having wantonly abuſed their power, by demanding the daughter of a man of high diſtinction in the country, occoſioned at firſt that commotion, which has ſince made ſome noiſe. Prince Heraclius endeavoured to appeaſe the commotion, by offering an annual tribute in money in lieu of the other; but this was refuſed on the part of the Turk, and a body of troops was diſpatched to inforce the payment of the tribute. Paince Heraclius had the gallantry to oppoſe, and the good fortune to repel them. The natural ſtrength of the country has as yet preſerved him from the chaſtiſement he has reaſon to expect; to prevent which, he is now fortifying, and ſecuring himſelf by raiſing troops, by alliances with the neighbouring tribes, and by every other method in his power."

RICHMOND, in Surry, Auguſt 27.

The following is a true account of the horrid murder committed by Richard Mihill, on his brother Robert Mihill, both ſons of a baker in this town.

About a month ago Richard Mihill, was under ſome difficulty to pay a ſmall debt, for which a writ was made out againſt him, and delivered to two of the officers of Kingſton court, who went to Richmond, in order to arreſt the defendant; but he judging their buſineſs, retreated, with a piſtol in his hand, and, with oaths and imprecations, threatened to ſhoot the firſt man that ſhould endeavour to take hold of him; the officers did not execute the proceſs, but went and applied to his mother to ſee what ſhe would do; who willingly paid the demand of the officers, to extricate him from that trouble, as ſhe had often done before on other occaſions. Notwithſtanding this indulgence, the unhappy man wanted ſome more money, and, with a knife in his hand threatened to cut his mother's throat, if ſhe refuſed to ſupply him, who was thereupon obliged ſo to do. This affair reaching the ear of his brother the unfortunate deceaſed, he told his mother, ſhe might work forever to no purpoſe and all the care he, the deceaſed, could take, would be of little avail, if ſhe would give way to relieving the priſoner with money every time he would apply. Something of this being told Richard, he publicly declared he would be revenged on his brother Robert, who, very worthily had the care and management of the buſineſs of baker, for his father who is much advanced in years. The above declaration of Richard being told to Robert, and being adviſed to ſwear the peace againſt Richard, he did ſo, and got a warrant to apprehend him; but alas! the uſual good-nature of the worthy, unhappy deceaſed, induced him, a day or two after to go to the officer who had the warrant and deſire him to give it up; alledging, he believed it was only paſſion in the priſoner to drop thoſe words: that he was his brother, and ſhould it be executed he muſt be committed to goal, where in all likelihood, he might long remain for want of bail, which he could not bear a thought of, and therefore deſired to, forgive him; upon which the warrant was given up, and a day or two after, the deceaſed met his moſt wretched, wicked brother, and generouſly accoſted him thus, "Dick, I am not afraid to meet you, though you have publicly threatened my life; you are my brother, I never did you wrong, therefore conclude you can mean me no harm; I had got a warrant againſt you, which I now deſtroy; I am no more than a journeyman to my father, there is all the money in my pocket; and gave the priſoner ſeven ſhillings: The ungrateful wretch's return for this kindneſs was, the next time he ſaw the deceaſed, which was on Saturday the 23d inſtant, coming with ſome potatoes in his apron into the ſhop, the priſoner, without ſpeaking a word, with a caſe knife ſtruck the deceaſed acroſs his wriſt, and cut his arteries, & ſtabbed him in the breaſt; which wound would not have been mortal according to the ſurgeon's account, but the bloody villain made a ſecond ſtab, which reached the main artery of the heart; on which the deceaſed endeavoured to croſs the way to Mr. Strudwick's, a worthy, good ſurgeon, and a friend of the deceaſed, but he could reach no further than the poſt at the door, which he hung by with his hands until he dropped ſpeechleſs, and expired. The maid heard the villain ſay, as he ran thro' the ſhop, "Damn him, I have done for him;" and as ſhe had heard words often paſs between the brothers, ſhe ſuſpected ſomething had happened, and immediately went to the door, where ſhe ſaw the deceaſed weltering in his blood; upon which an hue and cry was made, and the delinquent taken and brought before Sir William Richardſon, knight, where he prevaricated much, ſometimes confeſſing, and at others denying the fact: however he was committed by Sir William, and detained the ſame afternoon, by Charles Jemmet, Eſq; coroner for the town and hundred of Kingſton, for the wilful murder of his brother Robert Mihill.

P. S. A younger brother is now confined at Richmond, for threatning to ſet fire to the houſe of Mr. Mihill, ſenior, becauſe he was not admitted as heir at law into the houſe and trade." (The father is ſince dead.)

Anecdote of Saladin, Soldon of Egypt.

SALADIN, the ſoldan of Egypt, though he had dominions enough of his own, was always ready, when occaſion offered, to make free with other people's.—At his return without ſucceſs from the ſiege of Mouſul in Syria, he ſeized into his hands the whole lordſhip of Emeſſa, in prejudice to the right of Naſir Eddin, the young prince, who claimed it. And this he did, upon pretence, that the late father of the youth had forfeited it, by giving countenance to confederacies againſt the ſoldan's intereſt.

Saladin, however, ordered, that proper care ſhould be taken of the injured prince's education: and being deſirous to obſerve what progreſs he made in his ſtudies, he was brought one day before the ſoldan; who aſked him with much gravity, 'In what part of the Alcoran he was reading?—'I am come, replied the young prince, (to the ſurpriſe of all who were near him) to that verſe which informs me, that he who devours the eſtates of orphans, is not a king, but a tyrant.'

The ſoldan was much ſtartled at the turn and ſpirit of his repartee; but, after ſome pauſe and recollection, returned the youth this generous anſwer:—'He who ſpeaks with ſuch reſolution, would act, with ſo much courage, that I reſtore you to your father's poſſeſſions, leſt I ſhould be thought to ſtand in fear of that virtue which I only reverence.

THERE is no condition of life expoſed to ſuch a variety of ſufferings, as that of priſoners; in being deprived of liberty they become deprived of every thing. They are forced from the rights of nature, becauſe they are either criminal, or unfortunate. They are no longer treated as men torn from the boſom of their families, but are delivered over to the mercy of the ſtranger, who, by being accuſtomed to the ſight of their ſufferings ſees with the greateſt obduracy, the greateſt objects of commiſſeration, gives them their bread and water by meaſure, or, perhaps, by a refuſal, profits in the affliction of the miſerable, deprived of the goods, which it has been their hard fate to loſe! or which juſtice does not permit them to enjoy. They have ſcarce wherewithal to cover themſelves, ſcarce a place of repoſe, though weary with continual chagrins, and corroded by the anxiety which their preſent, and the proſpect which their future miſeries cauſe: Their bodies corrupted by the tainted exhalations which they breathe in theſe damp and dreary abodes, are eaten away by the wounds which are thereby cauſed, and by the maladies which they there contract.

Are there any calamities to be compared with the calamities of theſe unfortunate wretches? Are any words plantive enough to paint with ſufficient energy the nature of their miſeries? Shall I repreſent theſe priſons as regions accurſt, where neither the rain of Heaven, nor the due falls? Where reputation languiſhes, where the hopes of future fortune are loſt, the conſolations of friendſhip, the conveniencies of life and the repoſe even of conſcience itſelf? Shall I deſcribe theſe dreadful ſepulchres, in which living men are interred, who ſeeing themſelves conſigned as it were to death, either wait it as a puniſhment, wiſh it in diſpair, or experience it already in the ſeverity of their tortures? Shall I repreſent theſe unfortunate men as wretches, whom juſtice has ſeperated from the commerce of the world, eſcaped in a manner from the providence of God, for whom, it ſeems, the ſun is ceaſed to ſhine, and night itſelf taken the place of day; who in a frightful ſolitude attend only to the repentance of the crimes which they have been guilty of; and who, having only for their ſupport a little morſel of bread, moiſtened with their tears, make uſe of it to ſuſtain a life of the moſt cruel miſery? Shall I mention the misfortunes of their ruined families? Of children bewailing the captivity of their fathers; of fathers bewailing the poverty of their children; of mothers who cannot, with all their care and labour earn a ſcanty ſubſiſtance for their daughters; of daughters who find even their beſt labours inſufficient to furniſh a ſubſiſtance for their mothers. They have many enemies to inſult them, few friends to comfort them, and alaſs! ſcarce any charitable perſons to aſſiſt them.

After peruſing the above pathetic diſcription of the celebrated Flechier, I could not help reflecting on the injuſtice of confining perſons in goal and expoſing them to the moſt dreadful afflictions merely through a ſpirit of reſentment; ſuch a conduct is in direct oppoſition to humanity, and before the tribunal of conſcience in the ſevereſt manner condemnable. If thou haſt not to pay (ſays the wiſe man) why ſhould they take thy bed from under the? If then ſuch a ſpirit of mercy was in the Jewiſh law thought abſolutely neceſſary in caſes of diſtreſs, how much more ſo ought it to be encouraged under the law of chriſtianity? If a man has not wherewith to pay, why ſhould he be deprived of liberty? Is it wiſe to deprive him of that which may put him in a condition to pay? Can money be extorted by confinement where there is none? Where there is nothing to be had, the King muſt loſe his right; yet tho' this may be true of the King, it is not ſo of the ſubject. The plea which the diſtreſſed may make, that he has it not in his power to pay, will not ought avail: He muſt be deprived of the rights of nature, of liberty and all its valuable appendages, becauſe unavoidable circumſtances and adverſe turns of fortune have rendered him incapable of doing that, which otherwiſe he would have done with the greateſt pleaſure.

A goal pays no debts; for what reaſon then muſt perſons be confined there? To perſevere in the confining of people even under a conviction that they have it not in their power to diſcharge what they owe, is cruel indeed! And in ſight of the Deity moſt abominable. In that awful preſence what mercy can he expect, who has himſelf ſet mercy at diſtance, and in the pride of reſentment puniſhed, merely becauſe he had the power of puniſhing.

By the Arrival of the Duke of Cumberland Packet, and ſeveral other Veſſels from England, we have the following Advices, VIZ.

Whitehall, Nov. 11, 1766.

THIS day his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and being in his Royal Robes, ſeated on the Throne with the uſual ſolemnity, Sir Francis Molineaux, Knt. Gentleman Uſher of the Black Rod, was ſent with a meſſage from his Majeſty to the Houſe of Commons, commanding their attendance in the Houſe of Peers. The Commons being come thither accordingly, his Majeſty was pleaſed to make the following SPEECH, viz.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

THE high price of wheat, and the defective produce of that grain laſt harveſt, together with the extraordinary demands for the ſame from foreign parts have principally determined me to call you thus early together, that I might have the ſenſe of Parliament, as ſoon as conveniently might be, on a matter ſo important and particularly affecting to the poorer ſort of my ſubjects.

The urgency of the neceſſity called upon me, in the mean time, to exert my royal Authority for the preſervation of the public ſafety, againſt a growing calamity, which could not admit of delay. I have therefore, by and with the advice of my Privy Council, laid an embargo on wheat and flour going out of the kingdom, until the advice of parliament could be taken thereupon.

If further proviſion of law be requiſite or expedient with regard to the dearneſs of corn, ſo neceſſary to the ſubſiſtance of the poorer ſort, they cannot eſcape the wiſdom of parliament, to which I recommend the conſideration thereof.

At the ſame time I muſt with concern take notice, that, notwithſtanding my cares for my people, a ſpirit of the moſt daring inſurrection has in divers parts broke forth in violences of the moſt criminal nature.

Neceſſary orders have been given for bringing ſuch dangerous offenders to condign puniſhment, and ſpeedy juſtice; nor ſhall vigilance and vigor on my part be wanting, to reſtore obedience and reverence to law and government.

I have the ſatisfaction to inform you, that, ſince I laſt met you, I have concluded a treaty of commerce with my good Siſter the Empreſs of Ruſſia, whereby that conſiderable branch of trade is fixed on a juſt and ſatiſfactory footing.

It is with pleaſure that I alſo acquaint you, that the marrirge between my good Brother the King of Denmark and my Siſter the Princeſs Caroline Mathilda has been ſolemnized, and the natural alliance between the two crowns happily ſtrengthen'd by an additional tye of ſo agreeable a nature.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

I have ordered the proper eſtimates of the current ſervice of the year to be laid before you.

Such ſupplies as you may grant ſhall be duly applied, with the utmoſt fidelity, and ſtricteſt regard to the objects for which they were granted.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The general poſture of affairs in Europe affords no occaſion to lay any thing new before you on that head. My purpoſes are conſtant and fixed to maintain, on my part the public tranquility inviolate: and to ſupport the dignity of my crown, and the rights of my ſubjects. The juſtice and wiſdom of the other great powers of Europe leave no room to apprehend any intentions of a contrary nature.

Nov. 14. When the Right Honorable the Houſe of Peers addreſſed the King on Wedneſday laſt, his Majeſty was pleaſed to return the following moſt gracious anſwer, viz.

"MY LORDS,

THE ſenſe you expreſs of the meaſures which the ſafety of my people put me under the neceſſity of taking, during the receſs of my Parliament, affords me the higheſt ſatiſfaction. I rely on your aſſurances, that you will conſider, with attention, the proper means of preventing the evils of ſcarcity, and the neceſſary meaſures for enforcing that obedience and reverence which are due to laws & government.

Your approbation of the treaty of commerce which I have concluded with my good ſiſter the Empreſs of Ruſſia, is extremely agreeable to me; and I receive with particular pleaſure, your congratulations on the birth of my daughter the Princeſs Royal, and on the marriage of my ſiſter the Princeſs Caroline Mathilda with my good brother the King of Denmark."

The following is his Majeſty's anſwer to the Addreſs of the Hon. Houſe of Commons, preſented to him on Thurſday laſt, for his moſt gracious SPEECH from the throne.

GENTLEMEN,

"I Return you my moſt hearty thanks for your loyal and affectionate addreſs. The part you take in the late happy events in my family, completes the ſatiſfaction I receive from them. I ſee with pleaſure the continuance of that zeal and true public ſpirit which I have always experienced in my faithful Commons, by your early attention to the ſeveral great objects recommended to your conſideration, and particularly to the means of providing againſt the evils attending a ſcarcity of corn, and for ſecuring the tranquility of the country. You may depend on my invariable attention to the happineſs and proſperity of my kingdoms."

The following is her Majeſty's anſwer to the congratulatory meſſage of that Houſe preſented to her on her happy delivery of a princeſs:

GENTLEMEN,

I Thank you very ſincerely for this freſh proof of your duty to the king, and your regard to me. You may be aſſured of my always entertaining the moſt hearty wiſhes for the welfare and proſperity of Great Britain.

Nov. 3. We hear Mr. Wilkes has, ſince his arrival in town, been viſited by many perſons of diſtinction, to welcome him on re-viſiting his native land.

They write from Newfoundland, that Admiral Palliſer propoſed to return with the fleet to England by the 15th of December, when the fiſhery would break up, having notified the French at St. Peter's & Miquilon, that all ſtages and fiſhing tackle and boats found on ſhore after that period, would be deſtroyed.

It is ſaid that the government propoſes to ſuppreſs ſome manufactures eſtabliſhed in our American colonies, and which are greatly prejudicial to the fabrics of Great-Britain and to encourage all thoſe that are equally advantageous to England and her colonies.

Laſt Tueſday night the young Princeſs Royal was baptized by the name of Charlotta Caroline Matilda.

Some Letters from North America, ſay, that in caſe of continuing the uſual remittances in caſh to England, there will not be left, in another year's time, hardly ſufficient to pay the king's taxes and cuſtom-houſe dues.

We hear the colony agents intend to make application to parliament for leave to eſtabliſh mints for the coining of ſilver money in America.

Nov. 8. Wedneſday the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Bute arrived in town from his ſeat at Lutton Hoo.

A detachment of the royal regiment are ordered to embark for the iſland of St. John's, Newfoundland.

Nov. 10. Yeſterday there was a numerous court at St James's, among whom were preſent the Earls Temple, Chatham, the Rt. Hon. George Grenville, who were all in agreeable converſation with each other, and every action had the appearance of a Coalition between theſe eminent perſonages.

According to private letters from Hamburgh, Prince Ferdinand of Brunſwick is ſoon to re-enter into the Pruſſian ſervice.

Saturday Sir Robert Kite, was ſworn into the office of Lord Mayor of this city.

On Saturday night ſome diſpatches were ſent away from the Secretary's office for Sir Henry Moore Governor at New-York to be put on board the Duke of Cumberland packet now at Falmouth.

The ſame day ſome diſpatches were received from Sir William Johnſon in America, whoſe arrival here is ſoon expected, in order to lay before the miniſtry a plan of great importance, for the benefit of the colonies.

It is ſaid Sir John Cuſt, ſpeaker of the houſe of Commons, will ſoon be created a Peer.

Yeſterday the Dukes of Cumberland, Northumberland, Montague, and the Earls of Northington and Chatham, took their oaths and their ſeats in the Houſe of Lords.

We are informed that ſome vigorous and effectual meaſure will ſoon be taken to reduce the exorbitant prices of proviſions and corn, an auguſt aſſembly having fixed on Wedneſday next to take the ſame into their mature conſideration.

We hear many petitions are intended to be preſented to a great aſſembly, deſiring an immediate ſtop to be put to the making of ſtarch from wheat.

His Majeſty, in conſequence of an addreſs of the Lords ſpiritual and temporal in parliament aſſembled, has extended the embargo on wheat and flour, and likewiſe ordered an additional embargo to be forthwith laid upon the exportation of Barley or Malt.

The quantity of wheat conſumed by the ſtarchmakers is computed at 30,000 quarters per ann.

It is ſaid that the Right Hon. Earl Temple will be ſhortly created a Duke. And,

The Right Hon. Secretary Conway, and George Auguſtus Pitt, Eſq; Peers, of Great Britain.

11. It is ſaid Mr. Wilkes is not returned to Paris, but is gone to reſide ſome time in Holland.

PHILADELPHIA, January 15.

Extract of a Letter from London, dated November 8, 1766.

"As to Politicks, there is nothing to write on this Head till the Parliament meets next Thurſday, when the State Combatants will certainly ſtart. You will ſee in the Papers, that a Coalition between Lord Chatham, the Duke of Bedford, Earl Temple, and G. Grenville, is ſaid to have taken place; but I aſſure you, there is no Foundation for ſuch a Report. They will be ſtrongly in the Oppoſition; what figure they will make, we ſhall ſoon now ſee, but Lord Chatham will certainly have enough upon his Hands.

"The firſt Buſineſs the Parliament will go upon, is thought, will be the Corn Bill, and other Laws for regulating the Price of Proviſions, if that can be done to any Purpoſe.---After that, the Affairs of the Eaſt-India Company will probably engroſs their Attention; and I believe they intend to take the Territory they have acquired in India under the Protection of the Britiſh Government, allowing the Company a reaſonable Part of the Revenues of it. This will ſecure their Conqueſt, which they would otherwiſe be in great Danger of loſing, as it is almoſt impoſſible they can maintain it by their own Strength alone. They talk of an equal Land Tax, and other Schemes, which will be very agreeable, if carried into Execution.

"As the Parliament is drawing near its Concluſion, they are beginning already to canvas for the new Elections, tho' at the Diſtance of almoſt two Years. This is a ſad, but unavoidable Inconvenience; becauſe the Buſineſs always ſuffers on theſe Occaſions, and the Morals of the People are greatly corrupted.

"Wilkes, you will ſee, is returned to England once more; but I do not find he has had any Encouragement to come home; ſo it is likely he will be obliged to take himſelf out of the Way again."

NEW-YORK, January 15.

By Capt. Dobſon from New-Orleans, we have Advice, that tho' a Spaniſh Governor, with about one hundred Men, had arrived there ſome Time ago, yet that the Garriſon and Iſland were ſtill in the Poſſeſſion of the French; who were in general diſſatiſfied with the Ceſſion of that Place to the Spaniards, and would much rather they had been put under the Engliſh Government; but that the Spaniſh Governor had ſent an Expreſs to the Havannah, for three hundred Men more, and when they arrived the Fort and Place were to be peaceably put into his Poſſeſſion; and Capt. Dobſon ſays, as he came by the Havannah, he ſaw ſeveral Veſſels getting under Sail there, which he apprehends were thoſe Forces. It was aſſerted, that the Spaniards had actually ceded all the Iſland of Hiſpaniola to the French, in Lieu of the Iſland of Orleans; and that moſt of the Spaniſh Settlers of Hiſpaniola, had left that Iſland and gone to Port Rico. Capt. Dobſon touch'd at Penſacola in his Way Home, and ſays that Governor Johnſton was preparing to return for Europe in eight or ten Days.---With Capt. Dobſon, came Paſſenger Col. George Croghan, one of the Superintendants of Indian Affairs, and ſeveral other Gentlemen, who went by Way of Pittſburgh to the Illinois, to make Peace with the Southern Indians, which 'tis ſaid having happily effected, they went down the Miſſiſſippi to New-Orleans.

January 22. We have Intelligence from Dominica, by a private letter that a great Number of Engliſh Veſſels have arrived there ſince its being made a free Port, particularly from New-England, whereby Proviſions and Lumber of all kinds, were become exceeding plenty, and meer Dregs, whilſt but very few foreign Veſſels have arrived there; the French in particular doing all they can to prevent their Veſſels from going to that Iſland, and Martinico kept open to Engliſh Veſſels, in order to induce them to come thither, rather than to Dominica, when they have ſuch Commodities on board as ſuit the French Market.

BOSTON, January 22.

Tueſday the Honorable John Temple, Eſq; was married to Miſs Bowdoin, Daughter of the Honorable James Bowdoin, Eſq; of this Town.

We hear that a fine Picture of Col. Iſaac Barre, is come in Capt. Dixey who arrived here laſt Week from London, to be placed in Faneuil Hall, agreeable to a Vote of the Town paſs'd in September 1765, as a ſtanding Monument of our Gratitude to him for his noble and patriotic Speeches in Parliament in Favour of the Colonies, their Rights and Privileges.

We hear that the Right Hon. General Conway's Picture, which was alſo voted to be ſent for, is ſhortly expected over.

We hear that in the late Storm a ſmall Schooner belonging to Barnſtable, bound from Connecticut, was drove out from the Hayenaes (a Harbour near the Vineyard) and ſtruck upon a Reef of Rocks, by which Accident the Veſſel, Cargo and all the Crew, 4 in Number, were unfortunately loſt.

By Capt. Dixey, we have received the News of the Death of the Honorable CHAMBERS RUSSEL, Eſq; who, after a ſhort Illneſs of three Days, departed this Life, at Guilford in Surry, on the 24th Day of November laſt, in the 54th Year of his Age.

Capt. Symmes in a Schooner from Martineco, laden with Molaſſes, having put from the Vineyard on Monday the 29th ult. a thick Snow Storm came on at Night, which drove the Schooner on Sandy-Point, about three Leagues Eaſt of Nantucket. The People with great Difficulty ſaved their Lives, having near 8 Miles to travel, moſt of the Way up to their Middle in Snow, before they could reach any Habitation: It is ſaid chief Part of the Cargo will be ſaved; but the Veſſel loſt.

NEW-HAVEN, Jan. 9, 1767.

On Wedneſday Morning of this Week, at half after ſeven o'Clock, departed this Life, The Reverend THOMAS CLAP, late Preſident of Yale College, in the 63d Year of his Age, after about a Fortnight's Illneſs. Yeſterday his Funeral was attended with great Decency and ſolemnity. A reſpectful ſolemn Silence and Stillneſs was obſerved to reign through College, as in a Houſe of Mourning. The Corps, preceded by the Tutors and Students was conveyed to the Chapel, where a Sermon, ſuited to the Occaſion, was preached by the Reverend Naphtali Dagget, from Acts xiii. 36, to a very crouded Aſſembly. A large Number of the neighbouring Miniſters, and all the honorable Judges of the County Court (which was then ſitting in New-Haven) paid their Reſpects to the deceaſed by attending the Funeral. After Sermon, the Corps was carried, in the Manner juſt mentioned, to the Burying-Place, and depoſited in the Grave.

Thus this learned, great and good Man hath finiſhed his Work, and retired to Reſt. 'Tis likely the Public will ſoon have his Character more at large.

He had a liberal Education at Harvard College in Cambridge: was ſettled in the Work of the Goſpel Miniſtry at Windham, where he ſerved the Church of Chriſt as a faithful Miniſter for thirteen Years: was thence called to be Preſident of Yale-College, over which he preſided for almoſt twenty-ſeven Years; which Station he well adorned, as an able, faithful Inſtructor, and ſteady Guide. He was a great Genius, improved by extenſive, univerſal Learning, moſt firmly attached to the peculiar, diſtinguiſhing Doctrines of the Goſpel; lived a very exemplary Life of ſteady Devotion to God; was eminently faithful in diſcharging the Duties of every Station and Relation he ſuſtained; performed the moſt important Services to his Generation, and having faithfully finiſhed the Work aſſigned him on Earth, he met Death with the utmoſt Compoſure of Mind, and Reſignation to the Will of God; and ſo fell aſleep in Jeſus.

Son to Mr. Stephen Goodwin of that Place, who from his Childhood was an Example of Piety, and filial Duty.—In the Year 1761, the Deceaſed received the firſt Public Honors of Yale-College with eminent Merit: ſince which Time, with Eſteem and Reſpect (for the Space of about three Years) he had ſerved his MAKER, and Fellow Men, in the Character of a public Preacher of the Goſpel: He was a Subject of Chriſtian Devotion—a ſingular Inſtance of Patience (eſpecially through his late lengthy and diſtreſſing Illneſs) a remarkable Subject of good Literature; an Ornament to Society; to the Seminary of Learning, in which he received his Education, and to his Profeſſion; an Honor to his Acquaintance and Friends; in fine, his Perſon was agreeable and pleaſant; his Converſation was entertaining and profitable, and his Death is greatly lamented.

A melancholly Affair lately happened at Weſt-Fenton, in the County of Haddington, in Scotland. A Dog belonging to a Farmer's Herd of that Place, happened to be bit ſome Time ago by a mad Dog running through the Country. Shortly after, this Dog turned alſo mad, and before it was known to the Farmer, had bit his Horſes and Cows, the fatal Effect of which has lately made its Appearance. Seven or eight Cows were obliged to be ſhot, and buried; one of the Horſes was obſerved to be under the Influence of that dreadful Diſtemper; and it is feared the Whole of the Beaſts there are infected. A poor Man, Servant in that Place, had alſo his Cow, the main Support of his ſmall Family, bit at the ſame Time, and ſhe has ſhared the ſame Fate with the Farmer's Cattle. Melancholly are the Apprehenſions of the Servants, and others, who have uſed the Milk of theſe Cows for ſome Time paſt. The Dog, after having done ſo much Miſchief, ran off, and has not ſince been heard of.

Proper meaſures will be likewiſe taken for the puniſhment of all thoſe who ſhall be acceſſary to the fomenting theſe diſtubances by withholding the neceſſaries of life from being bought, and ſold at reſonable prices.

Conſtitutional and Political ENGLISH CATECHISM. Neceſſary for all Families

From a late ENGLISH PAPER.

Q. WHAT kind of people are the Engliſh?

A. A nation, generous, brave, free, reſtleſs, and inconſtant.

Q. Are they happy?

A. Exceſſively; and moſt ſo, when they re on the brink of ruin.

Q. How do you claſs them?

A. The moſt general and natural diviſin of them is, into rich and poor, wiſemen nd fools.

Q. What are the rich?

A. Biſhops, p—ps, and j—ges, gamlers, quack-doctors, placemen and phyſiians; merchants who know when to reak with judgment, ſub-ſheriffs, ſtockers, attorneys and mountebanks.

Q. Who are the poor?

A. The inferior clergy, moſt of the nolity, all the army, (except one or two vergrown generals) ſome of the R---l faily, tavern bullies, led-couſins, and eve author in the nation.

Q. Who are the wiſe?

A. Men whoſe reaſoning faculties are concentered in finding out the means accompliſh the one thing neceſſary to blunary felicity.

Q. What is that?

A. Making a Fortune.

Q. How is this done?

A. It is uſually effected either by preyg in a bareſaced legal manner on our llow-creatures, or by ſilently making vantage of their follies and weakneſſes.

Q. Who are thoſe people?

A. They may be compriſed in the folwing liſt; apothecaries, uſurers, footen in great families, counſellors in good actice, Italian eunuchs, pawn-brokers, bob-hunters, bawds, and toad-eaters.—heſe are the wiſe: they could not with ict propriety, be claſſed with the rich, cauſe they ſometimes (tho' rarely) miſs their end.

Q. Who are the fools?

A. All thoſe who let love of pleaſure, e, fame, literature, on any conſideratinterfere with this grand purſuit; mely, players, ladies of eaſy virtue, oughtleſs rural 'ſquires, prime-miniſters, tuoſi, ſchool-maſters and projectors.—ll theſe are fools.

Q. Is England fertile in ſtateſmen?

A. No country is more ſo; they are as lenty as maggots in a Cheſhire cheeſe, at has lain ten years a mouldring.

Q. Where do they inhabit?

A. In the day time behind a counter; the evening at a coffee-houſe.

Q. Are there many patriots in England?

A. Many pretended ones.

Q. How many real ones?

A. One in a century.

Q. What are the qualifications requiſite to ſtitute a man a pretended patriot?

A. He muſt be inſolent without meaſure, of a voluble tongue, or ready at his pen, a bareſaced lyar, a man of abandoned principles, incapable of bluſhing, and in fine, he muſt be proof againſt any bribe—but a large one.

Q. Are there many ſects in this country?

A. Yes; methodiſts, jews, papiſts, quakers, atheiſts, hutchinſonarians, mahometans, anabaptiſts, preſbyterians, and free-thinkers.

Q. What is the eſtabliſhed religion in England?

A. Open Infidelity.

Q. Do they worſhip no real or ideal being?

A. Yes; they have two domeſtic deities, to whom they pay great honors; theſe are faſhion and ſelf-intereſt.

Q. What is faſhion?

A. An agreeable tyrant.

Q. What is its progreſs?

A. It begins with the vain, is improved by the filly, and ſtops with the wiſe.

Q. What does it regulate?

A. The dreſs of the ladies,—the philoſophical and political tenets of the men,—the hours of meals, and the value of toys,—it determines which is the beſt ſtay-dancer, the beſt phyſician, the beſt [illegible], the moſt eloquent divine, the moſt heavenly opera, the ſoundeſt lawyer, and the fineſt woman of pleaſure;—and moreover it regulates and fixes the ſtate of the town.

Q. What is the preſent ſtate?

A. It conſiſts in preferring French kickſhaws to Engliſh beef and pudding; dying away at an Italian opera, or having a capacity ſufficiently enlarged and exalted to catch in a ſhort time the favourite airs of Artaxerxes, or the Maid of the mill.

Q. What is the conſtitution of England?

A. It is not like wit, * "a thing much talked of, not to be defined:"——but it is like many other matters, a thing much talked of, and little underſtood.

Q. Are there many laws in this country?

A. So many that they ſerve to perplex one another.

Q. Whom do they bind?

A. The meaner ſort.

Q. What good end do they anſwer?

A. They transfer, by a kind of magic charm, the properties of weak, well-minded perſons, to their own members, emphatically ſtiled the limbs of the law, who make up about one fifth part of his Majeſty's ſubjects.—Beſides which it allows particular privileges to particular perſons.

Q. What are theſe privileges?

A. To the eldeſt ſons of wealthy eſtated men the privilege of being fools; to men of great families who have been ſix months in the army, to command men that have been in it forty years; to paultry garret-ſcribblers the privilege of railing at their ſuperiors; to old diſappointed courtiers the privilege of condemning preſent meaſures, whether right or wrong, and to M—s of P———t the privilege of not paying their debts.

Q. What privileges doth cuſtom allow?

A. To fine women the privilege of talking nonſenſe; to favourite actors the privilege of behaving inſolently to the public; and to ſtale maids the privilege of uttering nothing but ſcandal.

Q. What is the army?

A. Sometimes a ſchool of good manners, but oftener of vice and immorality.

Q. How do officers riſe?

A. By merit.

Q. How many different kinds of merit are there?

A. Four: the firſt conſiſts of having a pretty large ſum at command; the ſecond in being ſon to a nobleman in place; third in marrying the b——d, or w——e of a g———l o———r; and the laſt in being a tale-bearer and lik-ſpittle to the c—l of the r———t one belongs to.

Q. What is the buſineſs or duty of an officer?

A. In time of peace to ſaunter from tavern to tavern, and from coffee-houſe to coffee houſe; from court to the play, and from play to the court; from the gaming table to the bagnio, from the bagnio to Vauxhall, thence to Ranelagh, and from that to Hyde-Park.---All theſe duties to be performed in a red coat, with a ſhoulder knot and a cockade.

Q. What is his duty in time of war?

A. To be ready to go at a word to the freezing regions of Newfoundland, or Hudſon's-Bay, or the burning climes of Senegal or Grenada; and when there, (if ſtill alive) for a certain daily ſtipend, to ſtand patiently as a mark to be ſhot at, till he is bid to move; and then kill as many people, (whoſe faces he never ſaw before) as he poſſibly can.

Q. What is good nature?

A. Squandering one's fortune upon proſtitutes, hangers on, gamblers, and intimate friends of half a day's ſtanding, and finally reducing one's ſelf from a ſtate of eaſe or affluence, to indigence and beggary.

Q. What is good fellowſhip?

A. Being drunk every night, and ſhortening one's little portion of life at leaſt a dozen years, by various exceſſes.

Q. What profit does it bring to a man?

A. He is called a jolly dog, a d——nd honeſt fellow, and has not the trouble of thinking.

Q. What is politeneſs?

A. Swearing with a good grace; never giving the lie; cuckolding one's moſt intimate friend, and then killing him fairly: forgetting one's old acquaintance, and ſpending twice one's income.

Q. What are the chief curioſities in England?

A. It is a land fertile in wonders; the following, as they are moſt rare, are reckoned the moſt curious.—A modeſt woman of quality, a primitive biſhop, a real maid of five and thirty, an exciſeman with a conſcience, an author with a ſecond ſuit of cloaths, a n———n of common ſenſe, a woman who has continued three months a widow, a theatrical hero of modeſty and œconomy, an attorney without a cloven foot, and a man of parts, wit and learning with a thouſand a year.

Q. Is this country in a flouriſhing condition?

A. It is; notwithſtanding the general corruption that reigns in it.

Q. To what is this happy circumſtance owing?

* Vide Otway's Venice preſerv'd, Act I.

A. To the following accident: Virtue fired with indignation at ſeeing the eagerneſs with which theſe iſlanders embraced and followed vice in every ſhape, under which ſhe choſe to preſent herſelf to them, was preparing to leave the place forever, which ſhe would have done, had ſhe not found a temple unpolluted, where vice never dared to enter. This made her change her purpoſe, and in this temple ſhe fixed her ſeat.

Q. Where is this extraordinary temple to be found?

Laſt Thurſday morning a poor labouring man was found in a gardiner's ground at Plymouth, by the ſervant. The man found him ſtanding againſt a hedge with his eyes fixed upwards into a tree; upon which the man ſpoke to him and told him his maſter would be very angry if he came and found him there; but no anſwer being made he ran and fetched a boy that was in the garden, and went up to the man calling, but yet had no anſwer. They then took him by the hands which they found quite ſtiff, upon which they were both frightend, and ran to call their maſter and miſtreſs, who came and found the man in the poſture as above; but they ſoon diſcovered that there was life in him. By this time it was ſpread round the neighbourhood, and the man was by ſome known. His wife was ſent for, who came, and with aſſiſtance got him home. She ſaid that he left her the ſame morning, about three o'clock, with an intent to go to Catdown, to load a barge with lime ſtone. He continued ſpeechleſs till he died. There were no apples, nor any thing elſe found in his pockets. It is ſaid that when he left his wife and children, he wiſhed the D——l might have him if ever he ſaw them more.-----Let this be as it will; raſh and profane vows are always productive of evil; therefore let the unhappy fate of this poor creature be a warning to others.

We hear, for the farther encouragement of the poor and laborious people of this kingdom, that if an equal land tax of two ſhillings in the pound upon a new ſurvey, takes place, it is intended to take off the additional duty on beer, and lower the duties on ſoap, candles, leather, and others which chiefly affect induſtry, trade and manufacture; as this new tax will fully anſwer theſe purpoſes, and be more equitable than any other that can be thought of.

PARIS, October 27.

THE Modeſte frigate of 24 guns and 70 men including paſſengers, bound from Marſeilles to Cape Francois, was laſt month burnt in her paſſage by lightning: and the Commander, Capt. Jules Gayet, made the following depoſition on board an Engliſh veſſel, named the William and Jane.

Sept. 23, 1766. I ſailed from Marſeilles Road for Cape Francois, on the 16th of this month, from which day till the 19th, at ten in the evening, the wind was in our favour, as it conſtantly blew Eaſt or North Eaſt. At half an hour paſt eleven the veſſel was ſtruck with lightning, which beat down moſt of the perſons on board. Several of the ſailors were ſo much hurt, that they had ſtrength hardly enough to riſe, but no lives were loſt; only two horſes were killed. As ſoon as we were able to diſcover one another through the ſurrounding cloud, I gave orders to ſearch over the veſſel, and no traces of fire could be found in any part of it: but we had ſcarcely time to recover ourſelves, before a ſulpherous ſmell preſaged what we had apprehended. A black ſmoke came up from the hold of the ſhip, and increaſe viſibly. There was an immediate cry for water, and there was a great quantity poured down. The ſmoke ſtill encreaſing I cauſed all the gun powder to [illegible] thrown overboard as faſt as poſſible. I then ordered the officers to put out the two boats, which they did with too much haſte, and threw themſelves almoſt headlong into them. We opened every place for the water to come into the hold; but all our efforts were vain; and the horrer of the laſt night, added to the dreadful death which preſented itſelf, ſeemed to add fierceneſs to the flames which incloſed us. The fire then reached the long boat, and deprived us of the laſt reſource. The progreſs of the flames were very rapid; the main-maſt fell half burnt, and the whole ſtem of the veſſel was on fire. The reſt of the crew and paſſengers preſſed forward, and held out their hand to the ſhore, which was not far from us: but the wind was now againſt us. There was no time to deliberate; we were to periſh in the flames or throw ourſelves into the ſea, with the faint hope of ſaving ourſelves on ſome pieces of the wreck. Between twelve and one the flames reached us. The people cried, Save yourſelf, Captain, you are yet in time. We looked about us, and exhorted each other to give aſſiſtance, while we were climbing from rope to rope; and in proportion as we went from the fire, we came nearer the other element, ſupporting ourſelves on the fallen maſts and rigging which ſerved us as a float.

Saturday 20. As the morning grew lighter, we were able to reckon up five and thirty perſons, myſelf included, and in this terrible ſituation we continued for four days; and providence, whom I did not ceaſe to implore, was pleaſed to preſerve us to the number of nineteen. The children were among the firſt who died; they were followed by thoſe of the crew who were leaſt able to undergo the fatigue, and we who were left, had little hopes of paſſing another night. Several of the people loſt their ſenſes, and aſked me who ſhould be killed firſt to ſerve as food for the reſt; and one man aſked me very calmly for money to buy bread and meat. Thoſe, who were ſo exhauſted that they could not hold any longer to the maſt, gave us notice of their death by the noiſe of their fall; and, by the motion in which they thereby put the maſt obliged us all to ſwallow the ſalt water. I encouraged, as well as I could, thoſe who ſtill retained their ſenſes; but my voice and ſtrength both began to fail me.

The firſt favour of heaven was a calm, which enabled us to ſupport ourſelves with leſs difficulty. We had now for two nights beheld the ſhip in flames, and were in additional danger from the fire of our artillery, which went off as ſoon as it was heated by the flames. We had no news of the two boats which firſt of all left us, nor any ſignal from thoſe who were on different pieces of the wreck. I myſelf ſaw the death of ſeventeen of thoſe who were with me.

At laſt, on Tueſday the 23d of September, ſome of my people diſcovered in the night, by the light of the moon, a ſmall veſſel, which did not ſeem to perceive us. We cried for help, but could not make ourſelves be heard. Then two of the ſailors left their hold, and tried to reach the veſſel by ſwimming. Finding their ſtrength not ſufficient for this, they ſupported themſelves on the top-ſail-yard, and rowed with their hands. By this means they came up to the ſhip, which was an Engliſh one, and had the happineſs to find the people ready to give them all the aſſiſtance in their power.

Capt Thomas Hubbert, who was the Commander, immediately ſent out his boat and, about nine in the morning, being about ſix or ſeven leagues off Cape de Moulin, I was received on board the Engliſh veſſel with all poſſible humanity. The Captain firſt gave me a glaſs of wine, but I was able to ſwallow only a few drops, & thoſe with difficulty. It was then offered to Mr. Fauquette, a young man of a good conſtitution, and the ſon of Mr. de Brue, but as he was lifting it to his mouth, he was ſeized with convulſions, bit and broke the glaſs with his teeth, and fell down dead at our feet.

The Engliſh Captain arrived at Merſailles on the 30th September, with the eighteen men, Captain Gayet having been put aſhore very ill; but there are hopes of his recovery. And we are informed, by a letter from Genoa, that eleven other perſons, who belonged to the Modeſte, have been brought into that port by a Dutch ſhip, who fell in with them on her paſſage.

It ſhould ſeem that one of the principal trading towns in the kingdom begins to be of this opinion; for, among other arrangements which have been taken there, the gentry and moſt oppulent dealers have agreed not to give any more ſumptuous entertainments, which was become too much the faſhion of late, and had even got to a moſt enormous pitch."*

DEFINITION of ODD THINGS.

IN a court which leads to the Strand, and called, if I don't miſtake Round court, there is the ſign of the parrot, out of the parrot's beak there is a label, on which is wrote Money for odd Things.

This led me to conſider, what ſort of Things we might claſs as Odd Things: and what Odd Things would fetch money?

Honor is at preſent a very Odd Thing: and what I believe a great many dealers, find their account in. There are ſuch things as debts of honor, but we never hear of notes of honor being diſcounted. A famous man of the town once aſked a pawnbroker, to lend him ten pieces upon honor; that I would, (replied the other) if I knew how to ſtick a ticket upon honor.

Religion may be claſſed among the number of Odd Things, at preſent. I am ſure the people who publickly profeſs it, are looked upon to be very odd ſort of people.

Wit is alſo a very Odd Thing, and men of wit are very odd ſort of people. But there are ſeveral ſorts of wit; there's Court Wit, City Wit, and Country Wit; Weſtminſter Wit, [illegible] and Kenſington Wit, Tavern Wit, and Alehouſe Wit. All theſe wits are like particular exoticks in botany, which can only thrive in their own ſoil, the leaſt tranſplanting kills them.

Modeſty muſt certainly be looked upon to be a very Odd Thing, becauſe the perſons who poſſeſs it, have ſomething very ſingular about them.

Judgment may be looked upon as an Odd Thing, as ſome perſons have an odd way of judging.

But, of all the Odd Things that infeſt their Majeſties ſubjects, Opinion is certainly the moſt unaccountable.

I have heard a fellow who could not read deliver his ſentiments upon De Moivre; and a ſhoemaker, who works for ſome of the players, pronounce on Shakeſpear's errors.

If there is one torture, which the mind feels more acute than another, it muſt be endured by ſome artiſts, who are obliged to ſubmit to ſuch deciſions; and yet the preſent mob criticks, are no more than illiterate coblers.

When a painter or ſtatuary, among the antients, had finiſhed any piece of work, the workman placed it near his ſtreet door, and retiring behind a blind, heard the perſons who paſſed by, give their opinions upon it; and often mended his work from accidental hints, which he heard in his liſtening ſeat.

This behaviour was ſomething odd, and the Grecians, muſt be a very odd ſort of people. For where is the modern, who could bear only for ten minutes, to hear the paſſers by opinions of his performance.

A few days ago a poor miſerable object, almoſt ſtarved to death, aſked charity of a dignified lawyer in the Temple, and told him her name was Honeſty, the daughter of Conſcience, to which he replied, "Away woman, I know nothing of you or your family, if I ſee you here again, [illegible] be ſent to the houſe of correction."

Since writing the above, we have been favoured with the following pieces: which whether they anſwer to the above Deſcription or not, muſt be ſubmitted to the candid Reader.

S I R,

WE have the Honor to preſent the Petition of John Frazier, Eſq; Captain in the late 78th Regiment, Deputy Pay-maſter General at Montreal, and one of the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas; John Campbell, Eſq; Captain in the 27th Regiment; Daniel Diſney, Eſq; Captain in the 44th Regiment; St. Luke la Corne, late Captain in the French Service, and Knight of the Order of St. Louis; Simon Evans, Lieut. in the 28th Regiment, and Mr. Joſeph Howard, Merchant.

At the ſame Time that we expreſs our Abhorrence of the Breach of public Order, in the Outrage committed on the Perſon of Mr. Thomas Walker, and our Wiſhes for the Diſcovery of the Perpetrators; we cannot be unmoved, when we conſider the Circumſtances of thoſe Gentlemen, now torn from their Families, and impriſoned on Suſpicion thereof.

Until we hear the Crime proved againſt them, we cannot help intereſting ourſelves for Men, who from their Families, Stations, Services, and eſtabliſhed Characters, (until this ſurprizing Stroke) ſtood in the higheſt Degree of Eſtimation in this Province.

We not only feel for them, but for their Families; with what Affliction do his Majeſty's new Subjects behold the grey Hairs of their Countrymen ſo unexpectedly, perhaps, irretrievably affronted!

We therefore moſt earneſtly intreat you, Sir, to interpoſe your Authority, to metigate the Rigour of the Law; a Diſpenſation even from which, would be in this Caſe, (if in any) we humbly conceive, juſtifiable.

We are ſo well convinced of theſe Gentlemen's Honors, that all and every one of us do hereby offer to become their Bail, to the outermoſt Extent of our Fortunes, nay even with our Lives, as well for their Appearance to take their Trial, as for the Safety of Mr. Walker's Perſon from any Hurt from them, in Conſequence of their Enlargement.

From your Honor's known Clemency and Moderation, we flatter ourſelves with the ſtrongeſt Hopes, that every poſſible Management in Favour of theſe Gentlemen, will be employed; their before untainted Characters, and the public voice, makes us confident that none ever was better applied. All which is with the greateſt Reſpect humbly ſubmitted to your Honor's judicious Conſideration.

Brigadier General Carlton orders Mr. Adam Mabane, Surgeon of the Garriſon of Quebec, to ceaſe thoſe Diſcourſes and Practices, calculated to diſturb the Peace and Tranquility of the Province, and miſrepreſent the Actions and Intentions of the Lieutenant Governor, on Pain of being ſuſpended from his Employments, and proſecuted according to Law.

Quebec, Nov. 29, 1766.

To Lieut. Col. Irving, Major of the 15th Regiment of Foot.

The following Extract of my Letter to Capt. Frazier, Capt. Campbell, Capt. Diſney, St. Luke la Corne, Lieut. Evans, and Mr. Howard, will explain to you my Opinion of the Requeſt in the Memorial preſented by you, Lieut. Col. Jones, M. La Naudiere and Capt. Morris, ſupported by a Letter in French, ſigned by ſeventeen Canadians, and two Engliſh; and another in Engliſh, preſented by you at the ſame Time, ſigned by you as Member of Council, and again as commanding a Regiment; afterwards by 68 Engliſh.

EXTRACT.

"I HAVE received your Memorial, chiefly ſetting forth, that the Chief Juſtice had refuſed to accept of Bail, and ſuffer you to be at large till the Time of your Trial; therefore praying I would interpoſe my Authority, and accept of ſaid Bail, and grant you that Liberty which he has refuſed. I ſincerely lament, and am convinced the Chief Juſtice doth alſo lament, that the Circumſtances of your Caſe, will not ſuffer him to enlarge you conſiſtently with his Duty, and the ſolemn Oath he has taken, to adminiſter equal Law and impartial Juſtice.

As unfortunately, the Perſon to whom the King has delegated his Authority in theſe Matters has found himſelf obliged in Compliance with his Duty, to make this final Declaration. My interpoſing my Authority, and arbitrarily wreſting you out of the Hands of the Chief Juſtice of King's Bench, would be irregular, illegal, and, in my Opinion, what would merit his Majeſty's high Diſpleaſure.

After explaining my Opinion of the Requeſt, I muſt ſay a Word or two, as to the Meaſures taken to enforce it. That many Perſons who have ſubſcribed, did not know the Evil Tendency of interfering in Numbers in the free Courſe of Juſtice, I ſincerely believe, both from the good Opinion I have of them, and thoſe non-declarations ſince: But that Gentlemen who have the honour to be of the King's Council, ſhould not know, that Law and Juſtice were to be obtained for the Sake of Law and Juſtice alone, I did not expect; that any of them ſhould particularly exert themſelves to procure Numbers; ſhould appoint them to aſſemble about the Time of coming from divine Service on Sunday; ſhould take Poſt in the Street, and importune People returning to their Homes, with an Intent to go in Numbers to the Lieutenant Governor's, and in this Manner to enforce ſuch a Requeſt; that Mr. Mabane, then one of the Council, and a Judge of the Common Pleas, ſhould tell me in Excuſe for his Conduct, that he thought that the greater the Numbers, the more likely he was to ſucceed, as if by Numbers he tho't to intimidate and to make me ſwerve from my Duty, as far as he has done from his. This, as it directly tends to overturn Law, Juſtice, and good Government, appears to me very extraordinary, from a Counſellor and Judge.

I muſt juſt add, for your Information, Sir, that had I wreſted this Power out of the Hands of the Chief Juſtice, I ſhould have been guilty of Diſobedience to the Spirit and Meaning of the 20th Article of his Majeſty's Inſtructions, which you have had ſome Time in your Hands.

The Readineſs with which all deſiſted from coming up, on hearing my Opinion of ſuch a Proceeding, is a Proof to me of the good Intentions even of thoſe I do not know, and their future Conduct I hope will confirm it to all the World.

St. CHRISTOPHERS,

Nov. 19. On Saturday morning laſt, Nicholas Johnſon, the murtherer and [illegible] was publickly racked, purſuant to his [illegible] in St. Euſtatius. About 9 o'clock in the morning he was conducted out of the fort, to the place appointed for his execution, where he was bound faſt with cords to an engine reſembling St. Andrew's Croſs. The executioner, with a great deal of deliberation, then proceeded to execute the law upon the criminal, breaking his right leg with a blow of an iron bar provided for that purpoſe. He bore the breaking of his legs and arms without a groan; but when his thighs came to be broke, he made terrible out-cries. After all his limbs were thus mangled and ſhattered, he received twenty two blows on his ſtomach before he expired. Some time before his execution he confeſſed that he had formerly been guilty of two murders; and acknowledged that he and his accomplice, Joſeph Andrews, intended to have murdered William Harris, the day he eſcaped out of the boat. Johnſon was about thirty five years of age, five feet, ſix inches high, and a very pleaſing chearful countenance: His behaviour after ſentence, and at the place of execution, was decent and reſigned, which makes us conclude, that had he lived as well as he died, his life would not have been brought to ſo ignominious a Period.

December 20. By the moſt authentic accounts we have been able to receive of the damage ſuſtained by the inhabitants of Martinico in the late dreadful hurricane, the following ſeems moſt to be depended upon, and the rather, as it is extracted from the liſts ſent to Count d'Ennery by the Commandants of each quarter, viz. Four churches unroofed, 6 deſtroyed; 57 white inhabitants killed, and 53 wounded; 150 ſeafaring people drowned; 148 negroes killed, and 416 wounded; 705 houſes unroofed, & 709 thrown down; 81 ſugar-houſes, 101 currying houſes, 78 ſtill-houſes, 47 ſtoves, 645 kitchens, 331 raſping-houſes, 95 mills, 372 houſes for ſtoring coffee, 245 thraſh houſes, and 6751 negro huts demoliſhed; 62,323 forms of ſugar loſt; 96 ſnows, brigantines, ſchooners, and ſloops, with 18 pettiaugers, and 27 canoes daſhed to pieces, and 600 hogſheads of ſugar loſt.

St. George's Town, Grenada, October 25, 1766.

This Iſland whoſe happy Situation has hitherto ſcreened it from thoſe Accidents, which lately befel almoſt all the neighbouring ones, was on the 21ſt Inſtant expoſed to very great Danger, by the moſt alarming Earthquake that has been felt for many Years. It began about 5 o'Clock in the Morning and continued without Intermiſſion for above 2 Minutes in a Direction from about S. E. to N. W. a Duration of which perhaps there is hardly an Example. However, very providentially no Damage has happened in Town but the Country has not eſcaped ſo well as ſeveral Stone Buildings on many Eſtates, particularly to Windward, have been ſhattered, and others have loſt their Roofs. On the 24th at Night, two ſmart Shocks were felt there without doing any Hurt. They write from St. Vincent and Curracoa that it was alſo felt in both theſe Iſlands at the very Moment it happened here; but the Accounts received from Trinidad, by a Launch which arrived Yeſterday, are truly dreadful, the Deſcription they give of it is beyond all Conception. They alledge the Face of the Iſland is totally changed, whole Mountains being levelled, and that the Earth was ſo ſtrongly agitated as to make it impoſſible to ſtand on one's Feet.

NEW-YORK, Feb. 5.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in London, dated Nov. 7. 1766.

"I have ſtrong Reaſons to believe that the preſent Miniſtry will continue; they ſeem much diſpoſed in Favour of America, and its Liberties, as well as thoſe of Pennſylvania in particular."

Extract of another Letter from London, November 14, 1766.

—"Our Merchants are ſtill contemplating new Schemes for the Service of the Colonies, which will, in Time, I preſume, be laid before the Miniſtry; and as they are now aſſociated into a regular Body, which they never were before, they will, for the future, be more attentive to theſe Points, and puſh them forward with more Weight and Vigour."

The ſeveral Criminals mentioned in our laſt, ſentenced to be executed on Monday the 2d Inſtant, we are aſſured have their Sentence reſpited til Monday the 9th Inſtant, by the Clemency of his Excellency our Governor, at the Solicitation of the Rev. Doctor Auchmuty and ſome others, induced thereto from the little Preparation theſe poor Wretches have hitherto made for their eternal State; but we are told no further Time will be given.

BOSTON, February 5.

The late extraordinary good Sledding has brought to Market great Quantities of Fuel and Proviſions, and a great Variety of the Produce of this Country.

It muſt give great Pleaſure to every one, to ſee that the People of this Province have gone ſo much into the raiſing WHEAT the Summer paſt: There has been brought for Sale, within a few Days upwards of 20 Tons of fine Flour, well bolted, equal in Quality if not ſuperior to any imported from the other Governments: It ſold at the Rate of 5l. 15s. per 100 Weight.---Chiefly brought from the Frontier Towns, one hundred Miles diſtant from hence; eight Tons were brought from Northfield, and it is ſaid forty Tons more is expected from that Town, beſides great Quantitis from other Towns.

Tueſday Night laſt, a few Minutes after Ten o'Clock, the Bake-houſe improved by Mr. George Bray, (formerly Mr. Davenport's) nigh the Mill Bridge, burſt into Flames, which immediately communicated to ſeveral Buildings contigious thereto: The Wind blowing high, and moſt ſteadily at one Point, the flaming Cinders ſoon drove on the Roofs of the Houſes on every Quarter, and Water being ſcarce, the Flames for ſome Time baffled the Efforts of the Firewards, and Enginemen: & while they were employed in extinguiſhing the Fire where it firſt broke out, it was found neceſſary for ſome to attend at diſtant Places; and being uncertain what Courſe the Flames would principally take, obliged a great Number of Families to remove their Goods and Furniture, few thinking themſelves ſafe in that Neighbourhood: A large Brick Houſe belonging to John Hancock, Eſq; which was ſlated, in a great Meaſure ſtopped its Courſe Southward, and a Brick Wall of Mr. Bulfinch's prevented his Houſe, and thoſe on the South Side of the Mill-Creek, from being burnt; but the Flakes of Fire drove moſtly to the Northward, paſſing over the Creek, catch'd the Houſes of Capt. Ball, the Pilot, Mr. John Griffith, Mr. Jacob Emmons, with many others, & conſumed all as far as Croſs Street; excepting thoſe which fronted that Street, Middle-Street, and Fore Street, the back Part only of ſome of theſe were burnt, tho' all were on Fire ſeveral Times; the large Manſion Houſe of Mr. Jonathan Williams, Merchant, was the laſt that was entirely conſumed: Many other Houſes were on Fire ſeveral Times and conſiderably burnt, eſpecially in Fore-ſtreet; but the Tide coming up into the Docks the Engines were plentifully ſupplied with Water; by which they were prevented from being conſumed, and the Fire from ſpreading further. It was about Three o'Clock in the Morning before the Flames were ſubdued; during ſo many Hours the Inhabitants were indefatigable in ſupplying the Engines with Water, and helping the Diſtreſſed, notwithſtanding the Extremity of the Weather, which was ſo cold, that the Water which fell on their Cloaths immediately froze—Nothing ſeemed favourable at the firſt breaking out of the Fire, excepting the Time, being before the Inhabitants were generally in Bed—the Weather had come on very ſevere in the Evening, and the Wind high at W. and N. W. the Streets ſlippery and covered with Ice and low Water:—It was really diſtreſſing eſpecially for thoſe who had Children and ſick Perſons to take out of their Beds, and remove with their Goods to a great Diſtance;——Many Goods which were bulkey and heavy, were obliged to be left in the Street, whereby they were much damaged.—The Loſs to the ſeveral Sufferers, we pretend not to eſtimate, but certainly muſt be very great, as it is ſaid above 20 Dwelling-Houſes were conſumed, and between Forty and Fifty Families deprived of their Habitations. But by a gracious Providence, no Lives were loſt, nor do we hear of any dangerouſly wounded, though many were expoſed to immediate Dangers, being confined to narrow Paſſages, among the Flames of Fire, and the Falling of Houſes.

We have not yet obtained a Liſt of thoſe Families who were burnt out

This is the Second or Third Time that Mr. Bray has unfortunately been deprived of his Bake-houſe by Fire.

The Perſon ſuppoſed to ſet the Goal on Fire, and eſcaped, mentioned in our laſt, was apprehended on Friday at Watertown, it having been very cold he was conſiderably Froſt-bitten before he ventured into the Houſe: He was brought to Town and committed to the new Goal; his Name is Sharp, had been convicted of ſtealing Leather at Roxbury, and was to have the Diſcipline of Whipping the Day he eſcaped. The other Perſon who alſo made his eſcape was not a Perſon concerned in ſtealing at Roxbury, as ſuppoſed, but a Servant to Mr. Mein in King-Street.

The New Stone Goal being now ſuitable to receive Priſoners, they are removed from the old Goal, which has been taken down.

Saturday laſt came to Town Capt. William Scott, and informs, that on his Paſſage, about 20 Days ago, in a Brig, bound from Liſbon for this place, his veſſel ſprung a leak, upon which he endeavoured to get to Nantucket, but the wind coming contrary, he came to an anchor upon the ſhoals laſt monday, in 12 fathom water, where, notwithſtanding the utmoſt efforts of the people, who were quite ſpent with pumping, the Water gained upon them ſo faſt that the next day ſhe foundered; the crew took to their boat, and after about 6 hours got aſhore at Nantucket.

From the CONJURER, No. I.

I AM a very unfortunate creature, who if my accuſers are to be believed, have more crimes to anſwer for than I am hours old. I am the youngeſt of four brothers, whoſe names are EVERY BODY, ANY BODY, SOME BODY, and NO BODY. 'Tis out of my power to conceive, in what manner I have diſobliged the world, that they ſhould lay every villainy upon my ſhoulders, the perpetrators of which are unknown; but this I can aſſure you is the caſe, although I never committed even an imprudent action. Sometimes, indeed, I am ſaid to poſſeſs many notable virtues, but as theſe confer honor where they are found, my Brothers hardly ever chooſe to diſown them, ſo that you ſee, they very ſeldom fall to my ſhare. EVERY BODY knows, that when a crime has been committed by ANY BODY, who cannot be diſcovered, the common cry is, that NO BODY has done ſo and ſo; though at the ſame time it is evident that SOME BODY muſt be guilty.

In ſpeaking of the depravity of ANY BODY, nothing is more common than the making the compariſon between us, by ſaying, NO BODY is more wretched, wicked, and ſo forth; but in order to ſilence my accuſers, I ſhall make it appear, that I am the only one of our family, that am at all times ready to benefit mankind, even contrary to my own intereſt, and without being deſirous of aſſuming any merit to myſelf therefrom. Whenever you obſerve any ſcheme of public utility pointed out, that ANY BODY may perform, with but a little trouble, pains and expence, pray who do you think ſets about it? Why NO BODY. Again, was it ever known that ANY BODY would refuſe a favour offered him for nothing? or that SOME BODY or other, would not be glad to accept of it? When even EVERY BODY catches at it, and NO BODY declines it.

There are many very important duties in life, which it is incumbent upon EVERY BODY to perform for the general welfare. Now if you go to ANY BODY, and aſk him why he does not do ſo and ſo, he anſwers your queſtion by propoſing another, ſaying, why ſhould I trouble my head about it? Go to SOME BODY elſe. And what ſays this laſt? Why, he refers you back to ANY BODY; but nevertheleſs you will ſay that the buſineſs is done at laſt, true——but by whom?—by NO BODY, as uſual.

But from a conſcientiouſneſs of my innocence, I could with tolerable patience, brook theſe indignities, were not people cruel enough to deny me my exiſtance; although from the moſt common expreſſions my Entity is proved to a demonſtration. "Is NO BODY at home?" ſays one, "I waited half an hour, and NO BODY came:" ſays another, whom do miſers extend their bounty to on this ſide of the Grave, whilſt they deny it to EVERY BODY? Anſwer, NO BODY; and what ſays that celebrated hiſtorian, called Pliny, on my behalf? Why thus, if I can read. Nemo mortalium omnibus horis ſapit. NO BODY is wiſe at all times.

Your worſhip will therefore be pleaſed to acquaint theſe Gentlemen, that I deſerve better uſage from their hands than to be loaded with their miſdemeanors, and that you may not be intimidated from making this public, I can aſſure you, for I ſpeak from my own knowledge, that although you may find EVERY BODY ſufficiently polite to read your lucubrations with patience; ANY BODY willing to allow them ſome merit, and now and then SOME BODY to be entertained with them; yet if you would find a real admirer, you muſt have recourſe to,

Sir, Yours, &c.

NO BODY.

A very extraordinary Anecdote relating to Sir William Windham.

SIR William Windham, when a very young man, had been out one day at a ſtag hunt, in returning from the ſport, he found ſeveral of the ſervants at his father's gate, ſtanding round a fortune-teller, who pretended, at leaſt, to be deaf and dumb, and for a ſmall gratification, wrote on the bottom of a trencher, with a bit of chalk, anſwers to ſuch queſtions as the men and maids put to him by the ſame method. As Sir William rode by, the conjurer made ſigns that he was inclinable to tell his fortune, as well as the reſt; and in good humour he would have complied, but not readily finding a queſtion to aſk, the conjurer took the trencher, and writing upon it, gave it back with with theſe words very legible, "Beware of a white horſe." Sir William ſmiled at the abſurdity of the man, and thought no more of it for ſeveral years.

But in the year 1690, being on his travels in Italy, and accidentally at Venice, as he was paſſing one day through St. Mark's place in his calaſh, he obſerved a more than ordinary crowd at one Corner of it. He deſired his driver to ſtop, and they found it was occaſioned by a mountebank, who alſo pretended to tell fortunes; conveying his ſeveral predictions to the people by means of a long narrow tube of tin, which he lengthened or curtailed at pleaſure, as occaſion required.

Among others, Sir William Windham held up a piece of money; upon which the ſooth-ſayer immediately directed the tube to his carriage, and ſaid to him very diſtinctly, in Italian, Signior Ingleſe, Cavete il blanco Cavalle; which in Engliſh is, "Mr. Engliſhman, Beware of a white horſe." Sir William immediately recollected what had been before told him, and took it for granted that the Britiſh fortune teller had made his way over to the continent, where he had found his ſpeech; and was curious to know the truth of it. However, upon inquiry, he was aſſured that the preſent fellow had never been out of Italy; nor did he underſtand any language, but his mother tongue. Sir William was ſurpriſed, and mentioned ſo whimſical a circumſtance to ſeveral people. But in a ſhort time this alſo went out of his head, like the former predictions of the ſame kind.

We need inform but few of our readers of the ſhare which Sir William Windham had in the tranſactions of government during the laſt four years of Queen Anne; in which a deſign to reſtore the ſon of James the Second to that throne which his father had ſo juſtly forfeited, was undoubtedly concerted; and on King George's arrival, puniſhed, by forcing into baniſhment, or putting in priſon, all the perſons ſuſpected to have entered into the combination: among the latter of theſe was Sir William Windham, who, in the year 1715, was committed priſoner to the Tower.

On the inner gate were the arms of Great Britain, in which there was now ſome alterations to be made, in conſequence of the ſucceſſion of the houſe of Brunſwic; and juſt as Sir William's chariot was paſſing through to carry him to his priſon, the painter was at work, adding the White Horſe, the arms of the Elector of Hanover. It ſtruck Sir William forcibly; he immediately recollected the two ſingular predictions, and mentioned them to the Leut. of the Tower, then in the chariot with him, and to almoſt every one who came to ſee him in his confinement; and though not ſuperſtitious, he always ſpoke of it as a prophecy fully accompliſhed. But here he was miſtaken (if there is any thing prophetic in it) for many years after, being out a hunting, he had the misfortune of being thrown from his ſaddle in leaping a ditch, by which accident he broke his neck. He rode upon a White Horſe.

ONE of the firſt Peers of England waited, at his chamber, upon Sir Matthew Hale, Chief Baron of the Exchequer; and, the uſual compliments being over, began to inform him,——"That he was then unhappily engaged in a Lawſuit, which was ſoon to come on, and to be tried before him, and that he might the better underſtand it, before it came into Court, was the reaſon of his preſent viſit.—Upon which the Judge immediately interrupted him, and ſaid, —'You don't deal fairly, in thus coming here to my chamber, in a private way, in order to treat with me about ſuch affairs: For, added he, it is not my way ever to receive any informations of any cauſes whatever, but in open court, where both parties are, and have an equal right to be heard alike."—Whereupon his Grace (for he was a Duke) meeting with ſo unexpected a repulſe, went off directly in a huff, and poſted away to St. James's to complain of it to the King, (Charles II.) as of a rudeneſs, that was not to be endured by ſo high a perſonage.—But the King replied,—'Be content, my Lord Duke, and thankful, that the Judge uſed you no worſe. For I verily believe, ſaid his Majeſty, that he would have uſed me no better, had I gone to ſolicit him in any of my own cauſes.'

Oh Integrity! how irreſiſtably doſt thou plead in every breaſt! And though often gaged and ſmothered, yet in the event, in time or eternity, art not to be ſilenced, but will ſpeak, and ſpare not.——Reader, art thou a Miniſter of Juſtice? Then go and do as this upright Judge did. And let no frowns of the creature, however exalted, no ties of blood, however endearing, no earthly conſiderations, however powerful, prevail on thee to counteract that all-ſpeaking voice of the DEITY within thee.

NEW-YORK, Feb. 12.

On Monday laſt, the four condemn'd Criminals, mention'd in our former Paper, were executed, purſuant to their Sentence, on a Gallows erected for that Purpoſe, near the Freſh-Water. Their Execution had been ſuſpended a Week, at the Interceſſion of the Rev. Doct. Auchmuty, who finding them all remarkably ignorant, even of the firſt Principles of Religion, had, ever ſince their Condemnation, and eſpecially the laſt Week, been very aſſiduous, as have alſo the other Miniſters of this City, in giving them ſuch ſpiritual Aſſiſtance as their unhappy Caſe required.

Friday laſt, Doct. Auchmuty preach'd a Sermon to them on the 13th Verſe of the 130 Pſalm,—"Yea, like as a Father pitieth his own Children; even ſo is the Lord merciful unto them that fear him." The Sermon concluded with an Exhortation ſuitable to the Occaſion.—To guard againſt Sin in general, ſince, in whatever Shape it may appear, it has a natural Tendency if indulged, to lead to the moſt enormous Crimes, the leaſt Sin differing only in Degree, not in Kind from thoſe for which theſe poor Criminals were condemned to die.—for "the Wages of "all unrepented allow'd "Sin, is Death."

On Sunday laſt the Rev. Mr. Ogilvie, Curate of Trinity Church, gave them a very affecting Exhortation, concluded with a Prayer and Hymn, adapted to their melancholy Circumſtances. Many of the Inhabitants of this City, attended theſe Diſcourſes, and from their Obſervation of the calamitous Situation of the poor unhappy confined Debtors, immediately ſent Wood and other Neceſſaries for their Relief, which were received with the utmoſt Gratitude, and will propably excite others to follow ſo laudable an Example.

Solomon tells us, it is better to go to the Houſe of Mourning than to the Houſe of Mirth.——It is certain that People abounding in Riches, and ſated with luxurious Enjoyments, are apt to forget the Diſtreſſes of their Fellow Creatures, or to form very faint, imperfect, unaffecting Conceptions of them.—Hence it is, that ſo little is done, by Perſons who have the Ability, and are not deſtitute of Humanity, or Compaſſion, for the Relief of thoſe unhappy Perſons, who without any Crime but being poor and unfortunate, are excluded from Society, cut off from the Comforts of Life, and rendered uſeleſs to their Families and Country. It is therefore to be wiſhed, that thoſe whom Heaven has bleſſed with Affluence, and will Judge for the uſe they have made of it, would more frequently viſit thoſe dreary Abodes of Indigence, Famine, and Wretchedneſs. We ſee, in this Inſtance, the good Effect of ſuch Viſits, tho' accidental; the Impreſſions made upon the Mind by ſenſible Objects of ſo affecting a Kind, have that Force which is neceſſary to rouſe our languid Virtues and call them into Action.

Our Saviour himſelf has told us his Eſtimation of our Conduct in this Reſpect.—"Come ye bleſſed of my Father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the Foundation of the World. For I was an hungred and ye gave me Meat; I was thirſty and ye gave me Drink: I was a Stranger, and ye took me in: naked, and ye clothed me: I was Sick and ye viſited me: I was in Priſon, and ye came unto me. Then ſhall the Righteous anſwer,—Lord when ſaw we thee an hungred and fed thee? or thirſty and gave thee Drink? when ſaw we thee a Stranger, and took thee in, or naked and cloathed thee? or when ſaw we thee Sick, or in Priſon and came unto thee? and the King ſhall anſwer,——Verily I ſay unto you, inaſmuch as ye have done it to one of the leaſt of theſe my Brethren, ye have done it unto me. He ſhall ſay alſo unto them on his left Hand—Depart from me ye curſed into everlaſting Fire, prepared for the Devil and his Angels."

"For I was an hungred and ye gave me no Meat; I was a Stranger, and ye took me not in: naked and ye clothed me not: Sick, and in Priſon, and ye viſited me not. Then ſhall they alſo anſwer him——Lord, when ſaw we the an hungred, or athirſt, or a Stranger, or naked, or Sick, or in Priſon, and did not miniſter unto thee?—He ſhall anſwer them——Verily I ſay unto you, inaſmuch as ye did it not to one of the leaſt of theſe, ye did it not to me. And theſe ſhall go away into everlaſting Puniſhment: but the Righteous into Life eternal." Surely theſe Declarations, of him who is the Foundation of the Chriſtian's Hope, are of inconceivable Moment to all Chriſtians. But if ſuch is the Guilt of neglecting to relieve our Brethren in Diſtreſs, when we have Ability to do it, what is the Guilt of thoſe who unjuſtly or needleſsly plunge them into it, and uſe that very power which was given them to do Good, to the Perpetration of Evil, and the Indulgence of a Diſpoſition to Uncharitableneſs and Cruelty, which ſeems to be in a peculiar Manner, offenſive to God, and hurtful to Mankind?

At the Place of Execution the Criminals ſeem'd reſign'd to their Fate. Crawford, Carrol, and the Negro Woman, ſaid little or nothing, and appear'd much terrified at the Approach of Death; but Williams ſpoke ſome Time to the People, adviſed them to ſhun the vicious Courſes that had brought him to ſo ſhameful an End, and acknowledged the Juſtice of his Puniſhment.

The printed Papers, ſaid to contain the Account they gave of themſelves, was to the following Purpoſe,

John Carrol of Drogheda in Ireland, an elderly Man,—to the beſt of his Knowledge—had committed other Faults beſides that for which he was to die.—Theſe he confeſſed to his Maker, before whom he was going to appear, and with Horror anſwer for his heinous Crimes, for which he was now juſtly to ſuffer,—but truſted in God only for Remiſſion, and died in the Roman Catholic Faith.

Iſaac Crawford, aged 22 Years, born in the Pariſh of Glendermot in the County of Londonderry, Ireland, of poor, but honeſt Parents, was educated in, and ſtill profeſſed the Preſbyterian Faith—Having Diſputes with the Friends of his Wife, he left her and his Children, came to New-York an indented-Servant for 2 Years, was ſold to Leonard Liſpenard, Eſq; ſerved him faithfully for one Year in his Brewery—when getting acquainted with ſome vicious Countrymen and lewd Women—he forgot his Hearts Joy and Children at Home——plunged deeper and deeper in Guilt, and was inſenſibly led to commit Crimes which he ſhould before have ſhuddered at the Thoughts of—The Succeſs of ſome Villanies encouraged him to commit others, till he had merited the Puniſhment which had now overtaken him, and was to put an End to his Crimes and Life together. He denied having committed any capital Crime in his own Country or in this, except thoſe for which he was to die,—was ſincerely penitent, and hoped for Mercy from God's infinite Goodneſs,—ſaid that tho' but young he had had enough of this troubleſome World, hoped he had made his Peace, and ſhould go to a better—Was thankful that he had not been diſturbed by the Priſoners after his Condemnation, and had been aſſiſted in preparing for a future State.

Theſe 3 Men, on the 14th of laſt Month broke out of Goal, and the ſame Night broke open and robb'd a Houſe at Greenwich, the Brewery of Alderman Leſpenard, and a Stable from which they ſtole three Horſes, Saddles and Bridles, with which they were taken about 30 Miles from N. York, [illegible] mentioned in the Papers; they were indicted for Burglary, and Horſe Stealing, and found guilty on both Indictments.

The Negro——it is ſaid was about 17 Years of Age, and confeſſed ſhe had committed a Theft of £.5, before the Theft and Burglary for which ſhe ſuffered. They were all hanged together.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.

Laſt Week Colonel George Croghan, arrived here from the Illinois, by the Way of New-Orleans, Penſacola and New-York.—And we have the Pleaſure of informing our Readers, that this Gentleman has not only happily confirmed the Peace he made the Year before, with the numerous Tribes which compoſed the Weſtern Confederacy; but he has adjuſted, on Terms very beneficial to his Majeſty's Intereſt, the great Conteſt which ſubſiſted between the Northern and Weſtern Confederacy.

A few Days ago, a young Man, an Apprentice to a Ship Carpenter, in the Liberties of this City, unhappily fell from the Scaffold of a Veſſel on the Stocks, by which he was inſtantaneouſly killed.

About a Fortnight ago, the Wife of an old Gentleman of this City, who is now upwards of 84 Years of Age, took her Flight from this World to the World of Spirits, and her Huſband affectionately followed her to the Grave on Crutches;—ſince which, he has had the Reſolution to take to his Arms, by Marriage, a young, vigorous Nymph of Twenty five, who kindly conſented to ſupply the Place of the deceaſed Matron. May they enjoy all poſſible nuptial Felicities!

BOSTON, February 12.

WE had on the evening of the 27th ult. at nine o'clock a fire, it broke out in a large old wooden ſtore at the eaſt end of our town, the wind being very high at N. E. and many wooden houſes lumber-yards and cooper ſhops adjoining, and near thereto (and our town being in no preparations to extinguiſh the flames) it ſpread every way by ſix o'clock the next morning; notwithſtanding we blew up ten or fifteen houſes, it conſumed forty or fifty dwelling-houſes, and twice as many ſtores, with a conſiderable quantity of proviſions, and many hundred thouſand feet of lumber, boards, plank and joiſts, hoops, ſtaves heading, ſhingles, and many hundred rum and ſugar caſks, and goods: the loſs on the whole is very great; ſome ſingle perſons loſt from 4000l. to 7000l. our currency, a piece; and the loſs fell on many that ſuffered in the laſt fire in May; and indeed the whole town is nearly ruined by theſe two fires.——

We hear from Worceſter, that on laſt Lord's Day the Choriſter in St. Martin's, and a Number of ſuperſtitious Bigots that could not diſtinguiſh Pſalm Tunes from Jiggs, took it to be a Jigg, and thereupon danc'd out of the Houſe, whether for Conſcience ſake or a party Spirit, we leave to the candid Reader to judge.

From the St. Chriſtopher's Gazette, January 7.

By the Sloop Betſey, Capt. Gibbs, who in her paſſage from Martinico, touched at Barbadoes, we have an Account that on Saturday the 27th ult. a terrible Fire happened at Bridgetown, which in a little Time conſumed upwards of 170 Houſes, and had it not been for the Activity of the Seamen in the Harbour, the Church and every Building in that unfortunate Town muſt have been deſtroyed.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in Waterford, to his Friend in Dublin, dated October 18.

"As I was on a party of pleaſure, with ſome friends, going Paſſage, the wind blowing hard at S. S. W. we preceived a large Whitehaven veſſel, with her ſails furled, and ſeemingly in diſtreſs; and perceiving no body on board we made up to her, and hailed her; but receiving no anſwer, we ventured to go on board, where we found a parcel of poor women lying in a fever, quite delirious, and not able to give any account of themſelves, whom we relieved as well as we could, with what neceſſaries our little veſſel afforded.

"Upon ſearching further we found the Cocket of the veſſel, which diſcovered her to be the tranſport ſhip, Capt. Ford, commander, bound for Eaſt Florida from Dublin, with 150 convicts on board. By all appearance, we ſuppoſe the hands have been murdered and thrown overboard, as we found on board their compaſs, quadrants, clothes, &c.

"Upon coming into the harbour, we gave notice of it to the officers in the Cuſtomhouſe, who immediately went and bro't her in here."

HARTFORD, February 16.

On the third Day of laſt Month died at Wilton, a Pariſh belonging to Norwalk, the Rev. Mr. WILLIAM GAYLORD, Paſtor of the Church in ſaid Pariſh, in the 58th Year of his Age, and 34th Year of his Miniſtry—He died with a convulſive or an apoplectic Diſeaſe. He was the eldeſt Son of Deacon William Gaylord of Hartford, who ſtill ſurvives, and is in the 89th Year of his Age.

Laſt Week nine valuable Horſes, owned by Mr. Samuel Smith of Amenia, fell through the Ice at the little River in Middletown, and one Mr. Robert M'Clieve, who was driving them acroſs the River, narrowly eſcaped being drowned, as he was in the midſt of the Drove when they fell in, but was providentially preſerved on a ſmall Cake of Ice, till he was relieved. The Horſes were all got out, with a good Deal of Difficulty, but were very much jam'd and bruized Inſtances of this Nature happen ſo frequently, that People ought to be very careful in croſing Rivers on the Ice, at this Seaſon.——A few Nights ago one Mr. Loomis of Windſor, loſt a valuable Mare under the Ice at our Ferry.

CHARLESTOWN, (S. Carolina) Dec. 5.

BY Capt. Henderſon from Penſacola, we learn, That a moſt terrible Hurricane was felt there on the 22d of October which had done much Damage as well on ſhore as in the Harbour: That the Gale began at E. S. E., was extremely violent from about 10 o'clock at Night till 6 in the Morning, when, the Wind ſhifting to the W. S. W. it abated: That only four Veſſels rode it out, not without receiving ſome Damage; and all the reſt were driven aſhore, viz. the Brig Rebecca, Robert Craig, Maſter, from this Port; a Brig from the Bay of Honduras, belonging to Jamaica, four of whoſe Hands and the Owner's Son were drowned; four Schooners and one Sloop, all of which were entirely loſt, except one of the Schooners (a Man of War's Tender) that was likely to be got off. That on the 2d Inſt. his Majeſty's Ship the Ferret, commanded by Capt. Murray, came in there from a Cruiſe, entirely diſmaſted: And that five very rich Spaniſh Galleons from La Vera Cruz, bound for Havanna and Old Spain, were drove on ſhore in the Bay of St. Bernard, W. and S. of Penſacola, ſome Time before the Hurricane of the 22d of October, to whoſe Relief a Veſſel had been ſent from New-Orleans, but was ſuppoſed to be loſt; whereupon the Adventure Man of War, commanded by Capt. Fitzherbet, ſailed from Penſacola the 11th of November, to give them all poſſible Aſſiſtance.

Mr. GREEN,

By giving the following a Place in your next, you will certainly oblige ſome, and 'tis hoped, not diſoblige any of your Friends and good Cuſtomers.

THE Object of Phyſic, in the human Body, according to the incomparable BOERHAAVE, is Life, Health, Diſeaſe, and Death, with the Cauſes from whence they ariſe, & the Means by which they are to be regulated, reſtored or prevented. Phyſic is therefore the Science or Knowledge of thoſe Things, by whoſe Application and Effects, Health may be preſerved when preſent, and reſtored when loſt. Hence the Neceſſity, Uſefulneſs and Dignity, are ſufficiently apparent. From mature Conſideration whereof, the Practitioners in Phyſic and Surgery in Litchfield County, were induced to convene and incorporate, by the Name of, The medical Corporation, in Litchfield County. And after being properly organiz'd, by chooſing a Preſident, Clerk, &c. unanimouſly came into the following Reſolves, viz.

I. We the Subſcribers, Members of the Medical Corporation in Litchfield County, do covenant and engage, to and with each other; that (acting on the Principles of Honor, Honeſty and Fidelity) we will treat one another in a friendly and honorable Manner, not taking any Advantage, one of another, in our Profeſſions or Practice, that may tend to the Hurt or Detriment of any Member of this Corporation, either in his Intereſt or Character, whereby Contempt or Reproach may be brought on worthy Practitioners, and true medical Knowledge. And any Member who ſhall be found guilty of a Violation of the above Engagement, after a fair Trial, and refuſing to heal and accommodate the ſame, ſhall be deemed unworthy to be continued a Member of this Corporation, and denied all the Privileges and Benefits of the ſame.

II. That for the future, all and every Candidate for Practice, either Apprentice to any Phyſician, or Surgeon within this County, or Stranger, or Foreigner, coming into the County, ſhall ſubmit himſelf to an Examination by this Corporation, or a Committee choſen and appointed for that Purpoſe, by the Corporation, and abide their Determination (unleſs ſuch Stranger or Foreigner ſhall be able to produce ſufficient Credentials of his Knowledge and Skill in Phyſic or Surgery, according as he ſhall profeſs) on Pain of the higheſt Diſpleaſure and Neglect (as Practitioners in either of the above-mentioned Arts) of all and every Member of this Corporation.

III. That any reputable Phyſician, or Surgeon, belonging to any other County within this, or any other Government, upon proper Application and Deſire, ſhall be admitted a Member of this Corporation, and entituled to all the Privileges and Immunities of the ſame, upon Condition of his conforming himſelf to the Rules and Orders made, eſtabliſhed, and obſerved by the Corporation.

IV. That (if found neceſſary) a Committee ſhall be choſen and appointed, to whom Candidates for Admiſſion to Practice may apply, and be examined: And ſaid Committee ſhall make Report of the Performances of ſuch Candidate, or Candidates to the Corporation, for their Acceptance or Diſapprobation.

V. That when any Candidate for Practice has been examined as aforeſaid, and admitted, a Certificate thereof ſhall be given or preſented to him, ſigned by the Preſident, in the Name and Behalf of the Corporation, and atteſted by the Clerk.

VI. That it ſhall be the Duty of every Member, carefully and duly to obſerve and minute every rare and uncommon Occurrence, either in the Phænomena of Diſeaſes, or Operation of Medicines, and communicate the ſame, together with his Sentiments of the Cauſe, and the Methodus Medendi which ſucceeded, to the Relief of the Patient (if any) but if altogether at a Loſs how to account for the Appearance, ſhall (after having given a regular Hiſtory thereof) have Liberty to propound it to the Corporation by way of Query, for their Conſideration and Diſcuſſion.

VII. That it be recommended to each and every Member of this Corporation, as a Thing deſireable, and greatly tending to the Advancement of true medical Knowledge; that they may make at each Convention, a ſhort Diſſertation upon ſome one of the ſeveral Branches of Phyſic or Surgery upon ſolid and true philoſophic Principles.

VIII. That this Convention ſhall be held at the Court-Houſe in Litchfield, twice in a Year, viz. On the ſecond Tueſdays of June and January, at one of the Clock in the Afternoon on ſaid Days, and that the Preſident and Clerk ſhall be choſen annually, at our Convention in January.

Since the foregoing Reſolves, the Corporation have thought proper, and accordingly appointed, at each Convention, a certain Number to prepare Diſſertations againſt the next; and alſo determined that the Examination be performed before the Corporation, by Examiners choſen at each Convention, for that Purpoſe. In Conſequence of theſe Reſolutions, two young Gentlemen, viz. Ebenezer Beardſley and Thomas Ranney, offered themſelves at our laſt Meeting in January, were examined, accepted and made free of this Corporation.

And as the Corporation was influenced to theſe Meaſures principally from Motives of public Good, they would humbly hope to meet the Smiles and Approbation of the Public; and that Gentlemen of the Faculty, of ſuperior Abilities, in other Parts of the Colony, will candidly accept and improve on theſe Hints, or ſtrike out ſome better and more effectual Method to advance medical Knowledge; and diſcountenance the Growth and Increaſe of Ignorant Pretenders to the healing Art.

Mr. GREEN,

As the Opinions and Obſervations of Mankind (differently affected by oppoſite Intereſts, and conſequently on contrary Purſuits) relative to natural Phænomena and the Conduct of Fellow-Subjects, eſpecially in important Matters, and high Life, are vaſtly various; and ſometimes the Principles and particular Deſign upon which the more wiſe and powerful may act, ſo intricate and miſterious, that even much Study and Pains will not always afford a ſatisfactory Reſolution: Therefore, to ſuggeſt a Tho't, to conciliate the anxious Minds of ſome few (too ready to imagine ſome partial Deficiency, or ominous Solecism in the natural & moral World, and in Conſequence thereof, inadvertently utter and publiſh their impious Complaints of Injuries and Loſs where none are ſuſtained) and to inculcate within your Sphere, a pacific Diſpoſition and Fondneſs to philoſophize upon, and improve to Advantage, whatever inevitably occurs, however unintelligible or unwelcome at the firſt Glimpſe; pleaſe to inſert the following Extract of a Letter from Litchfield County, dated 8th January, 1767.

——"LAST Monday a foggy Morning introduced a cold, rainy Day; when the watery Particles congealing to whatever obſtructed their Decent or Paſſage, covered the Fields, Streets, Buildings, &c. with a Pavement or Wall of ſolid Ice——The ſmalleſt Branches of Trees and Shrubs, grew to the Size of Ox-Goads in few Hours; 'til unable longer to ſupport the exceſſive Load, many broke, and more bent to the Ground; (thus there fell Hail-ſtones of ſome hundred Pounds Weight, and ſeveral Yards in Circumference) and in many Places rendered the Roads impaſſable.——Next Morning the Cold abating and Rain increaſing, the Streams ſwelled (without overflowing their Banks) to a prodigious Heighth, beyond the Memory of Man; which in their reſiſtleſs Career, ſwept away Headlong, innumerable uſeful Mills, coſtly Dams, and important Bridges, down the Current of Time, into the great atlantic Common, but happily did no Damage, becauſe "Actus Dei Nemini facit Injuriam."

Whatever is, is right, is beſt:

Ungrateful Man (averſe to know!)
Each in its Way His Praiſes ſings
Who holds the Scale of Time & Things.
Fate, Nature, Chance, and all Events,
Controul'd by ſovereign Providence,
Obey his Will—Proclaim his Might,
And prove—WHATEVER IS, IS RIGHT.

To Mr. PLAIND FACTS.

SIR,

I Perceive by a late Advertiſement, that you intend to entertain the Publick, with a periodical Paper, containing plain and certain Facts relating to State Affairs, and to interſperſe ſome Opinions and Obſervations of your own upon them.——I muſt confeſs that I am not diſpleaſed with the Publication of any Facts that tend to promote the public Intereſts, by detecting the Views of deſigning Men, or opening the Eyes of the Ignorant; but the Scheme you have propoſed, may be productive of Miſchief rather than Benefit to the Public, unleſs executed with Caution. A Word of Advice from a Friend to the Colony, to the Liberty of the Preſs, and to Yourſelf, I hope will be kindly received—and that Word is this,—Beware of blowing up the Flames of Party Spirit, to an higher Degree than they have hitherto riſen, and thereby introducing greater Evils than thoſe which conſiſt in an unequal Diviſion of Judges and Magiſtrates in the different Parts of the Colony.—Notwithſtanding your firſt Performance appeared in an affected illiterate Dreſs, yet there was ſomething ſo droll add ſarcaſtic in ſome Parts of it, that I plainly perceive, that eleven Chapters more wrote in the ſame Spirit (if not duly and prudently reſtrained) will tend to make ſome very odious Diſtinctions in the Colony. GOD knows we have had Diſtinctions enough already—Calviniſm and Arminianiſm, have for ſeveral Years loſt their theological Meaning, and have been uſed moſtly in a political Senſe.—But this was in ſome Meaſure tolerable, in as much as the Men claſſed and diſtinguiſhed by them were not confined to, or conſidered in any local Bounds; But if in Addition to this, the Great River is to be the Boundary of two contending Parties, we ſhall be in a Situation much more deplorable.——If the Weſt Side of the River, exceeding the Eaſt in Wealth and Numbers, can't afford its Proportion of Men, qualified for the important Stations of public Truſt, I am ſorry—and if they can afford their Proportion, and Faction has determined the Matter otherwiſe, I am ſorry.—The Facts you have related may be ſerviceable, and what you may hereafter relate, may be of uſe—but I beg of you to keep my Caution in View;—I ſee your Genius leads you ſo much to Sarcaſm and Ridicule, that tho' it may direct Some, it will ſo far nettle Others, as that it is eaſy to forſee, while Revenge and Envy, and ſeveral other fruitful Seeds of Reſentment have a Place in the human Breaſt, the Conſequences may be rather bad than good.

Mr. Plaind Facts, I wiſh you well, and hope what I have wrote, will be received with Kindneſs and Candor.

Your Humble Servant,

PLAIN TRUTH.

NEW-YORK, February 19.

Monday laſt arrived here the Lord Hyde Packet Boat, Capt. Goddard, in Eight Weeks, with the Mail from Falmouth, by whom we have the following Advices, viz.

LONDON, Dec. 2.

SOME Letters from Gibraltar mention, that the Dey of Algiers had revoked the orders for Engliſh veſſels to depart the harbour within a time limitted; but that the ſhips of no other nation had been ſuffered to remain.

The Empreſs of Ruſſia and the King of Pruſſia both intereſt themſelves in favor of the greek and diſſenting churches in Poland. They have each of them preſented a memorial, in which they ſet forth, that the ſaid churches have enjoyed an uninterrupted privilege for time immemorial, of profeſſing and practiſing their religion in that kingdom.

Extract of a Letter from Paris, dated December 1.

"The following anſwer made by the King of Poland to the repreſentations of the Empreſs of Ruſſia in favour of the proteſtants in that country, was tranſmitted to Madam Geoffrin.

"I have not forgot the obligations I am under to the Empreſs of Ruſſia, among the means which God Almighty made uſe of to raiſe me to the throne; but when I came to it I promiſed the exact obſervation of my religion throughout my kingdom. If I was weak enough to abandon it, my life and my throne would be expoſed to the reſentment of my ſubjects. I am threatened with forcible means to oblige me to do what is aſked of me, which would reduce me to an extremity equally unhappy. I perceive ſome danger in whatever reſolution I may take; but I had rather be expoſed to ſuch as my duty and honor induce me to make choice of; and from this time I join with my country in defence of our holy religion."

We hear that Lord Forteſcue has given orders to his ſteward to get all his lordſhip's corn threſh'd out, and ſold to the poor at South Moreton at four ſhillings and ſix pence per buſhel.

It is ſaid no ſuperior poſts in the army will for the future, be diſpoſed or exchanged, without the conſent and approbation of his majeſty.

We hear that half the 10,000l. prize is the property of the ſon of a butterman in Picadilla.

Wedneſday the undermentioned Noblemen and Gentlemen kiſſed his majeſty's hand on being promoted to the following poſts, viz.

His Grace the Duke of Ancaſtor to be Maſter of the Horſe to the King, in the room of the Earl of Hertford.

Theſe are to be relied on, and no more appointments were made on Wedneſday.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman of the Engliſh Factory at Liſbon, to his Correſpondent in London, dated November 3.

——"There is a moſt aſtoniſhing change here within a ſhort time, with reſpect to religious matters: the Pope has loſt all his influence, and the Inquiſition dare not exerciſe their's. A book has been lately publiſhed here; where it is plainly ſet forth, that whenever the Pope deviates from his hierarchial dignity, the government of the church devolves entirely upon the Biſhops, as their reſpective diocees; and there are many inſinuations in this piece, that his Holineſs has been very fallible in this reſpect: In a word, it would not be at all ſurprizing to ſee a reformatian here in a ſhort time, and the Portugueze, from a bigotted, ignorant, ſuperſtitious people, become an enlightened, philoſophical race; for they are not naturally dull, but are lulled to this ſtate of inſenſibility by mere prieſtcraft. This would be a fortunate change for the Engliſh nation in general, and the factory in particular.

Friday noon the trials of the rioters ended at Norwich, when the following received ſentence of death, viz. Robert Roice, for beginning to demoliſh and pull down the New Mills in that city; John Crawforth, for beginning to demoliſh and pull down the dwelling houſe of Thomas Becker; James Flemming, John Hall, and David Long, for a like offence, at the dwelling-houſe of Robert Elwin, Baker; John Hall, and David Baker, a ſecond time capitally convicted, for demoliſhing the malt-houſe of John Clover, at Carrow; James Lincoln, Henry Nobbs, and James Codner, for beginning to demoliſh and pull down the dwelling-houſe of Richard Lubbock.

John Royce was alſo tried and found guilty by a ſpecial verdict, of being preſent with two other rioters, and encouraging and abetting them in demoliſhing and pulling down the New Mills; ſubject to the opinion of the judges, whether the ſaid John Royce is guilty within the meaning of the Riot Act of the 1ſt of George I.

Five others are to remain in priſon till next quarter ſeſſions for this City, or find bail for their appearance. Two are acquitted and diſcharged.

The petty Jury conſiſted of ſixty of the principal Manufacturers and Tradeſmen; fity nine of whom appeared in court on Tueſday morning.

We hear that the cauſe of the firſt ſeparation of the Rev. Meſſrs. Whitefield and Weſley, and of the difference which has appeared in their Doctrines for above theſe twenty years, being at length diſcovered by them to be about mere non-eſſentials in religion, they are going to accommodate matters between them, and to enter into a perfect agreement for the future; and that their preachers are to aſſiſt each other at their reſpective places of worſhip, as occaſion requires; ſo that the Tabernacle and Foundry are no longer to be conſidered as two diſtinct places, but as one. And it is thought they will find it very hard to perſuade their People to be of the ſame mind with themſelves, notwithſtanding it has been much laboured at by them of late.

BOSTON, February 19.

On Tueſday laſt the Houſe of Repreſentatives, by a large Majority, paſs'd a Reſolve that the Lieut. Governor, not being elected a Councellor, has by the Charter, no Right to a Seat at the Council-Board, with or without a Voice, while the Commander in Chief is in the Province.

We hear from Rutland Diſtrict, That on the 2d Inſtant a Number of Dogs were in Chaſe of a Deer, which run on John Colwell, Eſq'rs Houſe of that Place, and in his Fright fell off ſaid Houſe and broke his Neck, HALIFAX, in Nova-Scotia, Jan. 22.

In the ſevere cold Weather we had here the beginning of this Month, Brandy, Rum, Spirits of Hartſhorn, and Salt Volatile, were frozen. A more intenſe Cold is not remembered here, by the Settlers ſince 1749, nor by the Natives for more than 40 years paſt.

QUEBEC, January 12.

By Letters from Mount Lewis, of the 19th of November laſt, we learn, That they ſaw there, about that Time, at four o'Clock in the Afternoon, a Ball of Fire fall from the Heaven's to the Earth. Its Courſe, ſay they, was from Eaſt to Weſt; and in its Tail they obſerved a Writing, which one of the Letter Writers has painted a la Nature, ſays he; but the Characters are ſuch as no printing Types can repreſent, or we would have inſerted them. This Writer begs the Wiſe-Men and Sooth Sayers to inform him what this portends. It is thought, from its Tail, that it may prognoſticate a Sting.

NEW-YORK, February 19.

The public Prints brought by the Packet are in general very barren of Intelligence of any Importance: Our Advices by private Letters and Reports are, That his Majeſty's Ships now on this Station, are to continue here three Years longer:—That his Majeſty's moſt gracious Pardon is come over for the unhappy Pendergaſt, who was condemned in Dutcheſs County laſt Summer for High Treaſon:—That Mr. Thomas Cumming, who has the King's Patent to be Vendue Maſter for New-York, has ſent over a Deputation to Mr. John Alſop, Merchant of this City; but whether he will exerciſe that Office here, or try Titles with thoſe who now exerciſe it, is not for us to ſay:—That the Intelligence we had ſome Time ago of Brigadier General Stanwix, with his Lady and Family being loſt in their Paſſage from Ireland to England, is fully confirmed; and by whoſe Loſs a conſiderable Eſtate falls to a diſtant Relation:—And that the riotous Spirit ſo predominant in England, on Account of the Dearneſs of Proviſions, ſeems to ſubſide.——The Packet had a fine Paſſage, till ſhe came upon our Coaſt, where ſhe continued beating for near 3 Weeks before ſhe got in.

We hear from Woodbridge, that laſt Monday Evening a Chair-Houſe & Chair, with a Stable, and a good Quantity of Hay, were deſtroyed by Fire, by the Inadvertance of a Boy's going into the Stable with a Candle.

We are informed, there are now in this City, bought by one of our Butchers, from Connecticut, a Yoke of Oxen full 20 Hands high, and large in Proportion: 'Tis ſaid they coſt £. 100.

HARTFORD, February 23.

We hear from Middle-Haddam, that about 10 Days ago, One Miſs Spencer, a promiſing Young Woman, about 19 Years old, belonging to that Place, having been about four Miles from Home, to viſit her Siſter, and not returning ſo ſoon as was expected, a Meſſenger was ſent after her, who found her periſh'd, in the Ice, on a little River ſhe had to croſs, one of her Arms was out, by which, ſhe was found; ſhe had made her Viſit, and was coming Home. The Horſe ſhe rode, has not been found, and is ſuppoſed to have gone under the Ice.

(From the New-York Journal)

We hear from the Colony of Connecticut, that a certain Gentleman, fairly choſen to an Office of Importance, by the Governor and Council, was ſet aſide for no other Objection, but what was as well known at the Time of the Choice, as at the Time of his being ſet aſide.

JONATHAN BROWN, of Rye.

From the LONDON CHRONICLE.
To the CONJURER.

THOUGH No Body has taken upon him to defend himſelf from the crimes and miſdemeanors continually laid to his charge, and ſays every thing is imputed to him, which Every Body denies, Some Body begs leave to differ from him, and will venture to aſſert, that I am much oftener accuſed; and even of doing the miſchief which No Body owns.

From the greateſt crimes, to the ſmalleſt miſdemeanors, the accuſation is againſt me. If the great affairs of the nation are ill conducted, Some Body is at the bottom of all this. If a bad peace is concluded, Some Body was to blame greatly in that affair, and make no ſcruple to add Some Body is the richer for it. If Any Body gets a place, Some Body has got it for him, when perhaps it was given him, and No Body aſked it. If a houſe is ſet on fire, Some Body is immediately accuſed. If any miſchief is done in a private family, Some Body muſt have done it. If any thing is broken, and Every Body denies it, Some Body muſt have done it, though it may have fallen of itſelf, and No Body broke it. If any thing is out of its place, Some Body muſt know where it is, though perhaps No Body can tell. If Any Body is married, Some Body made this match. In ſhort, nothing is done, that is not laid to my charge. And then I am expected to be a mere drudge, and to do every thing that is Any Body's buſineſs. If any ſcheme is to be propoſed, Every Body wiſhes Some Body would do it. If any thing is wanted to be done, it is wiſhed that Some Body would ſet about it. If Any Body wants any trifling thing, to ride or walk, or go any where, they cry, will Some Body come with me, when perhaps No Body is inclined. Every Body always ſays, will Some Body do this, or go there, or come here, when Any Body may do it, or perhaps No Body ought to do it. Will Some Body call a Servant; will Some Body ſtir the fire; or if it is out, Some Body muſt light it again. If Any Body comes to make a viſit, and Every Body is buſy, Some Body muſt go down, and then to tell him No Body can come to him.

Thus, Sir, am I accuſed of doing every piece of miſchief, and expected to do every piece of buſineſs. I think therefore, Some Body has more reaſon to complain than No Body, for when No Body is accuſed, I don't think Any Body can take it ill; but when Some Body is ſaid to be certainly the tranſgreſſor, Every Body may take it to himſelf. I do not mean to ſay that I never do any thing wrong, but Every Body does wrong too ſometimes; and ſometimes No Body ought to be accuſed ſo ſeverely, of what Any Body may do. But I have ſaid enough to prove the ſituation I am in; and though No Body finds fault with your paper, and Every Body commends it, and Any Body may have it, yet none finds himſelf more amuſed by it, and thinks it more pleaſing than,

Yours, SOMEBODY.

THE
AND THE
WEEKLY ADVERTISER.

Mr. GREEN,

SIR.

The following is from One who is willing to throw in a Caveat againſt whatever is inconſiſtent with Liberty, or that may prejudice it, even in the moſt diſtant Manner; and as the Preſs is open, he hopes that if the Obſervations are not juſt, they may be publickly confuted.

Fas eſt ab Hoſte doceri.

THERE is a Law in France, which forbids Father and on to be at the ſame Time Memers of the King's Council, or of arliament. This is ſaid to be a ery ancient Statute, and how far garded by the late Monarchs, or [illegible] Tyrants of that Kingdom, n unable to ſay; but thus much e may infer, that the French, ow diſpiſed by us as Slaves, were nce a free People, and entertaind ſo high a Senſe of Liberty, as o be peculiarly cautious of admiting any Cuſtom or Uſage which might in the leaſt prejudice the perpetuating ſo invaluable a Bleſing.——

The good Policy of this Law is ery evident in thus wiſely guarding againſt an undue influence in ublic Councils, which is in its elf deſtructive of Liberty, and trikes at the very Root of commuative Juſtice. The Authority and Influence of a Father over a Son; the natural Dependance, and Duty f the latter to, and on the former, ogether with their Family Connections, which are to be ſtrengthened, their Intereſt to be promoted, and private Views ſerved, make it highly dangerous to the Public, that they ſhould ſit in the ſame Council, as the Voice of one will too naturally be the Voice of both: it is in Effect giving one Man two Voices in a Debate, and thereby enabling him by Degrees to gain ſuch an Aſcendant in Council, as may be extremely dangerous, if not fatal to public Liberty. This Danger increaſes, in Proportion as the Number of Councillors in any State are but few. And I can aſſure the Public from very good Authority, that at the Time of enacting this wholeſome Law in France, the Number of Councillors exceeded Fourteen ſeveral Times over.

And further our own Hiſtory informs us that until the inglorious and unhappy Reign of Charles the Firſt, it was unprecedented in England, for the King to call any Man into the Houſe of Lords, during the Life, and Sitting there of his Father.

FREEMAN.

February 17th, 1767.

Mr. GREEN,

Sir,

As you have lately inserted in your Paper, a ſcurrilous Piece, ſigned Plaind Facts, calculated, and no Doubt intended to ſtir up Strife and Animoſity in the Government; and to diſturb the late happy Eſtabliſhment; (unleſs you will ſhew your ſelf a Friend to a ſmall diſcontented Party) muſt inſiſt on your giving the following Remarks a Place in your Next.

Your's, &c. A. Z.

WHEN the late deteſted stamp-act was repeal'd, and the Government ſo happily put into the hands of wiſe and faithful men, I was ready to hope, that every one would be eaſy, and we ſhould have no further ſtrife & animoſity among us; but was ſurpris'd (on reading in one of your late papers, a piece ſign'd Plaind Facts) to find we had ſtill ſome who were deſirous of diſturbing our preſent happy eſtabliſhment, and raiſing up a party, againſt thoſe worthy Gentlemen who ſo deſervedly fill the chief ſeats in the Government. However, as I conſidered it might be the ſudden ſtart of ſome low born genius, who wanted to ſhow his wit and talent at ſatire. I determined to treat it with that contempt and neglect it diſſerved, but on reading your laſt week's paper, I find we are to be favoured with more of the ſame kind. Therefore beg leave to obſerve, that the obvious deſign of this ſeditious writer, is to ſtir up a ſpirit of ſtrife, among the people in the weſtern parts of the colony, againſt thoſe in the eaſtern, becauſe the greater number of the principal authority hapen to reſide there, as tho' the Governor and Counſellors were to be choſen by acres of land, or according to the amount of pounds, ſhillings and pence in the public liſt. And to inflame the people ſtill more, he reckons the towns of Windſor, Hartford and Middletown, as tho' they were on the weſt; whereas a conſiderable part of thoſe towns lie on the eaſt ſide of Connecticut River; he does indeed remind us, that Windſor hath two, Hartford one, and Middletown two pariſhes on the eaſt ſide of the river; had the author meant to tell us facts truly, he would have informed, that Windſor and Middletown have each of them three pariſhes eaſt of ſaid river. This I mention only as an inſtance of his unfair and deceitful conduct.——But to be ſerious, can this Gentleman believe that the preſent authorities living in the eaſtern counties can be any juſt objection againſt them? I admit, that in a popular government, tis beſt, generally ſpeaking, that the rulers be equally diſperſed all over the community, as near as may be; but yet the beſt men are to be choſen, let them live where they will; and the freemen are under a ſolemn oath to vote for ſuch. If therefore Providence hath placed the beſt men in the eaſtern parts, (and the late united votes of the freemen evidences this) let us without favor or affection vote for ſuch, as we are in duty bound to do. If the ſcale ſhould hereafter turn, and more ſuitable or better men can be found to the weſtward, we in this part of the colony ſhall be content that they be called to the government, but till ſuch an event take place, we think that every one ſhould be eaſy with their preſent rulers.

Time has been, when the ge-vernor and four of the council lived in the county of Hartford, and the deputy governor and four more in the county of New-Haven. When governor Law preſided in the ſuperior court, he and three of aſſiſtant judges lived in New-Haven county; was the government fill'd with clamours on that account? No, we were content that the fiteſt men ſhould be promoted, tho' the two eaſtern counties had then but little ſhare in the adminiſtration——Why ſhould not the ſame peaceable, quiet temper prevail in other parts that hath heretofore influenced us? 'Tis certainly our wiſdom, now we are delivered from thoſe apprehenſions that have of late ſo juſtly alarmed us, and are ſo happily ſettled, to be eaſy, and ſuffer things quietly to return into their old channel—and tis hard for any man to act a worſe part than this writer hath done, in ſtriving to ſtir up and perpetuate a ſpirit of faction and party in one part of the government againſt the other.

From Your's, &c. A. Z.

CHAP. 1ſt.

The Subject of this Chapter relates Wholly to the blowing up Hartford Scool Hous laſt May, which fill'd the whole Collony with So much Greef & Conſarn.

1ſt. ON Account of the Poor Unhappy Sufferers.

2dly, on Account of the loſs of the Scool Hous which was made all of Brix.

3dly, becauſe Some Peepel ſaid it was Done, by Carrying into Execution the orders of the Genneral Aſſembly.

4thly, and laſtly if that was in Reallity the Caſe, it was Probbabel the Goverment muſt finally pay for it. having heard Harford Peepel had hove in A Petiſhon to our Aſſembly about the Scool Hous, as ſoon as I Heard our Debbete was Come Home from October Cort, I went to ſee him, and it ſo Hapned, our Minniſter had got in juſt before me, after biding the Decon Welcom home, I told him I was come to know the Sartainty of the Reports ſpread about the Country, for ſome Peepel ſaid, the general Aſſembly had made A large Treat laſt May, on the Appeal of the Stamp-Act, and ordered mony out of the treſury to Pay for it, and that by that Means, the Scool Hous was blown up, and Now the Collony muſt pay for it, while ſome others ſaid, that they had Heard Some of the Members of the Cort Say, the Aſſembly Did Nothing about it, I Deſired him to let me Know the truth of them Matters, the Decon ſeemd a good Deal Stumpt at the Queres, and tryd to Put me of; at laſt our Minniſter Spoke, and told him, he thought I had A right to be informed, our Debbete then ſaid to me, I have been hitherto Wholly ſilent about that Affare, but as there now ſeems to be A Call upon me, to relate how the Matter was, I will do it truly, You muſt then know Surgent Facts Said the Decon, that Matter was firſt Mov'd by the Onnorabel upper Hous, who Apoynted Coll, E——t D—r and W——m P——n, junr. Eſq; A Committee, to joyn Such gentlemen as the lower Hous Shoud Appoint, to Contrive how to Demonſtrate our Joy on the Appeal of the Stamp-Act, you ought allſo to know, that it is A Cuſtum of both Houſes, to Appoint thoſe Gentlemen upon Committees, who Seem Moſt Eger to bring about any Affare bro't upon the Board, and the lower Hous Accordingly Appointed J——n L——a, Eſq; Coll, C——t, Coll, P——n, Maj. D——te, Mr. B——p, and Mr. F——d, and one or two more who he Said he had forgot, to Join with thoſe Onnorabel Gentelmen furſt Named, who reported to the Hous as folloes vidliſit, that it would be Proper that an Entertainment ſhould be made, at Some Sutabel Place, for the Onnorabel upper Hous by themſelves, 2dly, that an Entertanement Should be made in the lower Part of the ſtate Hous, for the Hous of Repreſentatives, and for ſuch others as ſhould ſee Cauſe to Partake with um. 3dly that Powder ſhould be deliver'd out of the Collony Stores, to fire the great Guns, 4thly that the State Hous ſhould be Luminated. 5thly, that the Cheef Officers of the Regiment of the County of Hartford, ſhould have libertee to Call together, ſo many of the Military Companies of that Regiment, as they ſhould think Proper. 6ly, that Suitabel Proviſion ſhould be made for um, 7ly, & laſtly, that Decency and order Should be Maintained, this Report if Carried into Execution, We foreſaw would Coſt the Collony A great Deal of Mony, and was accordingly Negativ'd in the lower Hous, but that Dident Suit all the Members of Onnorabel Cort, Some of Whome were Very glad upon Some other Accounts, as well as the Appeal of the Stamp-Act. Accordingly it was thought beſt not to try to have ſo larg A Treat and it was next ſtarted in the lower Houſe, one Morning, only to Luminate the Cort Houſe from top to bottom with Candles, and that Powder ſhould be Deliver'd out of the Collony Stores, to fire the Great Guns, and ſo that the Sogers might have ſome to Shoot, and that the Boys might make Squibs & Crackers, and that a proper Quantity of Wine & good Lemmun Punch ſhould be Provided for the Peepel, on that Joyful Occaſion, but then Sargent ſaid the Decon, there was no Vote ritten about theſe laſt Propoſals, but the Minds of the lower Houſ was taken, and two Worthy Members were ſent to Carry the News to the Upper Houſ who Readely Comply'd, and the Mony was Accordingly Drawn out of the treſury, by an order of the Clerk of the lower Hous, and by that Means, that Dredfull Kataſtrofe was bro't about, So that there is no fear, that the Collony will be obliged to Pay Harford Peeple for the Scool Houſ, for it cant Appear from the Records, that Ever the Aſſembly Did anithing about it; Our Minniſter ſet all this time as ſilent as A mouſe for he is A Warry Man, but when this come out I ſee the Cooler come in his face but he Dident ſay one Word.

Here endeth the furſt Chaptur.

Extract of a letter from Rome, date October 18

"Notwithſtanding the above Literary Notitia, I can well imagine you will hardly be ſatisfied without having ſomething o your old friends the Jeſuits. Why truly I can only repeat what I told you in my laſt, that the paper war is carried on with as much vehemence as ever between them and their adverſaries, which laſt, believe me, are neither weak nor deſpicable; and moreover that his Holineſs and his court are under no ſmall trepidation for the intereſts of his dear children in Spain, leſt that court ſhould follow the examples of the courts of France and Portugal; for 'tis certain ſome unlucky ſteps are already taken in Spain, which carry very much that appearance: And as to the young Chevalier Le St. George, whom I have mentioned in ſome of my former letters, ſince my arrival here, his chief reſidence is ſtill at Albano, where he takes the diverſions of the ſeaſon, which are hunting and ſhooting: His family, we are aſſured, conſiſts of three Britiſh gentlemen, and his ſecretary, all proteſtants, which, I preſume will afford the bigots here but little pleaſure, nor will it ſtrengthen his intereſt in the pope's court, which 'tis believed he has ſenſe enough to deſpiſe: though it is generally tho't his finances are low enough."

It is ſaid that the Right Hon. Lord H—— has given it as opinion, that the moſt proper method of treating with Portugal, on the ſubject of our trade with that crown would be to add dignity to the negotiation, by having a ſmall Engliſh ſquadron in the Tagus.

It is now known that the Memorials relative to our Portugueſe trade, lately publiſhed, were laid before the public by the direction, and under the immediate inſpection of one of our preſent miniſters, as a neceſſary ſtep, previous to that important object's coming under the conſideration of the Legiſlature.

The Truth is, on the Importunity of ſaid Roberts (for 12 Months paſt) to ſupply him with Beaver to work on Wages, ſaying he was not able to purchaſe Stock;—at length I complied, he received the Beaver according to the Hatter's Rule, as he ſaid, 2 lb for each Hatt, but more was allowed him—He engaged to make them in the beſt Manner, and when he delivered them, ſaid they were ſo. Now let the Curious judge, whether the Intereſt of the Hatter being ſo at Stake, when Hatts are ſold below his Price, is not the Cauſe of theſe Conteſts. CALEB BULL.

AND THE
WEEKLY ADVERTISER.

Mr. GREEN,

By inſerting the following Lines, you will undoubtedly gratify the Body of your Readers, and give no Cauſe of Offence to any.

UNHAPPY have been the Tumults of late, in Great-Britain and her Colonies, ariſing from the Affair of the famous Stamp-Act. The Difference of Sentiments that has appeared among the Hon. Gentlemen of the Council Board, in this Colony, has been a Source of Lamentation and Sorrow, as it has occaſioned a conſiderable Alteration, as to our Senators, diſmiſſing from the Board at once, no leſs than Five wiſe, learned, and judicious Rulers, who have, in Time paſt, done worthily for their Country: Their Places are indeed excellently well filled; but yet it is truly alarming, that there ſhould ariſe any Cauſe for ſo great a Change. Executive Courts have likewiſe felt the Shock: Yet (Thanks to Heaven) we ſee the Vacancies made in them well ſupplied. The Gentlemen in Retirement, have conſtantly profeſſed Oppoſition to the Stamp-Act, but the Way in which they thought fit to ſeek a Repeal of it, is well known to be in moſt Regards, directly oppoſite to the Method choſen by thoſe now in the Council; the Event fairly determines which were in the Right; the Means that have been uſed, have had glorious Succeſs: then certainly we may infer, the contrary Means would not—Contraries will not terminate in the ſame Thing. Tho' a Matter may ſeem dubious after many Reaſonings, yet, when Facts appear, every modeſt Man will yield to their Force: I have therefore been aſtoniſhed, that thoſe great and wiſe Gentlemen, who were for Submiſſion to the Act, in order to obtain a Repeal of it, have not, ſince they have ſeen the joyful Iſſue of a contrary Courſe of Action, freely confeſſed their Miſtake, and that in a public Way, Humanum eſt Errare; and it is no Diſparagement to the greateſt Man living, to own he has for once miſ-judged, be ſure when the Error appears by glaring Facts. The Honorable Gentlemen retired, we greatly revere; and with what Alacrity could we replace them at the Head of Government, were it not for the Reaſons following.

1. It will ſet the Freemen of the Colony in a ſhocking Light, to promote thoſe to the prime Seat of Government, who but a Year ſince were adjudged by the ſaid Freemen to be in ſuch an Error, as contained in it perpetual Bondage and Slavery to the whole Land, ſtill firmly maintaining the ſame Opinion for which they were then diſmiſſed their Seats—The Body of the People continue to think as they did laſt Year: Happy Succeſs juſtifies their Conduct, conſidered as a Body, in their Treatment of the Stamp-Act: The wiſe and good Gentlemen in Retirement think (for ought appears) juſt as they did laſt Year; and how can the Freemen conſiſtent with Honeſty, and with their Oaths give them different Treatment.

2. It is the ready Way to faſten upon our Necks the Yoke we have but juſt ſhook off.—Would not a Politician of G---lle's Turn of Mind, plead thus, "The Coloniſt's are now ready to receive the Stamps, they ſee their Miſtake, they are heartily ſorry they ever made any Reſiſtance, the Act will now go down ſmooth enough, for behold they are ſo univerſally come about, as to promote thoſe Gentlemen who vigorouſly oppoſed the Methods they took, which obtained the Repeal——Thoſe now in Place among them have long ago, as good as ſworn, they will put it in Execution; now Britains is your Time! faſten the Yoke now, and they are your Slaves forever!"

3. What Barbarity would it be to ſo many of the Honorable Council Board, as muſt neceſſarily go out upon their coming in? What have they done that they muſt be lift up and caſt down with ſuch a Vengeance? do they not acquit themſelves honorably in their Places? are they not as fit to rule another Year as they were when choſen? it is utterly impolitic and very barbarous to neglect a worthy Senator, who was once fit to be choſen, & is now as fit as he was then, and more ſo in Proportion to the Experience he has gained.—

4. Great Confuſion and long Party-Rage would likely enſue. If we were all agreed that there was not ſufficient Reaſon for the Change that was made at our laſt Election, yet certainly we muſt own that there is leſs Reaſon to make as great a Chage now upon the Back of it; and ſhould this be done what might we expect but Shufflings, Party Rage, Animoſity, and Confuſion for Days to come.

5. It would much threaten our Charter, to diſcover ſuch an unſtable Diſpoſition; if we cannot be content with our own Doings while all the Reaſons upon which we have acted remain good, it ſeems high Time that others more capable ſhould chooſe for us, who may hold the Reins of Government with a more ſteady Hand.—

Many of us here in the Weſtern Part of the Colony as well as moſt of our Brethern in the Eaſt are heartily deſirous of theſe two Things. Firſt that we may ſee thoſe honorable and worthy Gentlemen who have lately left their Seats ingeniouſly manifeſting a Senſe of their late Miſtake, and then reſtored to their former Dignities as faſt as Room is made for them, without an ungrateful Neglect of any now in Place.

To finiſh this Scroll, I have one Word to ſay upon a late Piece of affected Drollery, which appeared in your Paper, ſigned Plaind Facts; the Author, it ſeems makes a Point of Conſcience of it, to have the Rulers of the Colony, ſtand like Apple-Trees ſet in an Orchard, at equal Diſtance from each other; or if not, beſure the Magiſtrates muſt be thickeſt where there is moſt Money. If the good People of the Colony ſhould take his Hint and practice upon it, this at leaſt is a plain Fact, viz. That we ſhall ſtand no more Chance to enjoy the Liberties of our Charter, or to get the fitteſt Men for Rulers, than any nominal Ticket, in a Lottery does to draw the grand Prize.

I am, Mr. Green, your very good Friend,

SENEX QUONDAM SENATORIUS.

Mr. GREEN,

Pleaſe to give the Public an Opportunity to anſwer the following Queries, viz.

Query 1. HAS the Deputy Governor of the Colony of Connecticut, a Right by Charter to act at the Council Board, in the Preſence of the Governor?

2. If, by Permiſſion, the Deputy Governor, does act in the Preſence of the Governor, by nominating and voting, and an Election and Appointment to Office, is made conſequent thereon, is it legal?

3. Is it in Character, and conſtitutional for the Governor, or any of the Council, to be neuter in Matters that properly come within their Sphere?

4. If Men promiſe, and deſignedly do not perform, if they act, and for the ſame Reaſon counteract, is a Community ſafe in putting the Reins of Government into their Hands?

5. If a Man to gratify an intereſted Clergyman, ſhould by his crafty Influence ſubvert the Doings of a whole Houſe, does it diſcover a Mind proper for a Station of great Importance?

ICHABOD.

Mr. GREEN,

By inſerting the following, you will oblige, I hope, every honeſt Man—and your humble Servant in particular.

WHEN the Continent was alarm'd by the Impoſition of the Stamp-Act, and were unanimous in oppoſing it, I was among the Foremoſt to venture my Life and Intereſt, and when the Plan was on Foot for the Meetings of the Sons of Liberty, I was alſo one of the Foremoſt, and continued ſo, til the grand Meeting at Hartford, in March laſt, at which I was preſent; where I ſoon perchived the leading Members of the Meeting, were not ſo anxious to get rid of the Stamp-Act, as to get a Change of the Government—this Plan was laid, and it had their deſired Effect; at this Meeting many well meaning, honeſt People, were deluded and deceived; but as there is an appointed Time for all Things under the Sun; ſo among other Things, there is a Time to open the Eyes of the Blind—which Time I hope is fully come.—And I can't but think, the Public are more indebted to Plaind Facts, for the Light, he by his juſt Calculations, has conveyed to them, than they are to any Man living; and though that Gentleman ſeems to ſtrive to hide himſelf under the Mask of bad Spelling, and to appear illiterate; yet he can't conceal himſelf from the more penetrating, and Sagacious——be that as it will, Mr. A. Z. ſeems to differ from me in Sentiments, with a great Share of Warmth and Mettle—he bruſtels up—calls it "A ſcurrilous Piece, calculated and intended no Doubt to ſtir up Strife and Animoſity in the Government, and to diſturb the late happy Eſtabliſhment." This brings to Mind an old Proverb, "Touch a gall'd Horſe, and he'll winch;"—but then he goes on with a pretty great Share of Scurrility, "But was ſurpriz'd on Reading one of your late Paper's, ſign'd, Plaind Facts, to find we had ſtill ſome, who were deſirous of diſturbing our preſent happy Eſtabliſhment, and raiſing up a Party againſt thoſe worthy Gentlemen who ſo diſervedly fill the chief Seats in the Government—however, as I conſidered it might be the ſudden Start of ſome low Born Genius, who wanted to ſhow his Wit and Talent at Satire, I determined to treat him with that Contempt and Neglect it deſerved—" It ſeems a great Pity that the Gentleman, for his own Credit had not kept his Reſolution, for I am very ſure he has not in his whole Piece Affected the Character of that Reſpectable Gentleman: but what ſeems to grieve him moſt of all, and forces him to appear in Public, is, that that Truth is come to Light that he always intended ſhould be hid; and while theſe Facts were conceal'd, he and his Party might continue to ravage the Government, by pretended Principles of Liberty, till they had got every Aſſiſtant upon their Side of the Water.—He pretends to charge that Gentleman with a Piece of Deception, becauſe he made a ſmall Miſtake in calculating the Pariſhes on the Eaſt-Side of Middletown, and Windſor——pray Mr. Infallibility, did you never make a Miſtake in your Calculations?—I think you have, a pretty large One——but yet the Gentleman is right in one Thing, and if he had but ſo acted, as well as preach'd, it had been well, i. e. "but yet the beſt Men are to be choſen, let them live where they will,—and the Freemen are under a SOLEMN OATH, to vote for ſuch."—Now, Sir, let me aſk you, have you done ſo, have you regarded this ſolemn Oath? have you & your Party voted for ſuch, & only ſuch, as you tho't in your Conſciences (all Things conſidered) were moſt ſuitable?—I mean now to make a ſolemn Appeal to Conſcience——But, be aſtoniſhed, oh Heavens, and be horribly afraid——Was it for one Fault, or many, that the late honourable Gentlemen were drop'd by you?—was it an Error in Judgement, or was it a Deſign to involve the Government?—I never could get one Man among you to ſuppoſe the latter.—Then what have you done—turn'd the Government up-ſide down for an Error in Judgment—and are you ſure, that your preſent happy Eſtabliſhment is infallible? but not content, here you muſt go on, to put out Two of the hon. Sup. Judges—Have you fill'd their Places?—I don't here mean to reflect on any Gentleman, by no Means—but would humbly give my Opinion without Diſparagement to any: Our Eaſtern Brethren have not mended the Government—Who can believe without bluſhing, that a certain principal County Town, when they ſent in the Votes to the Aſſembly, laſt May, (and where they have, I believe Three Hundred Voters or upwards) when the Sheriff call'd to bring in the Votes for a late Magiſtrate, whoſe Character ſtood as fair as ever Man's did—there was found in this County Town one Vote, (i. e.) one honeſt Man, not ſo many as was found in Sodom.—Can it be ſuppoſed, in the Nature of Things, that all theſe Men voted according to their Conſcience; that they all tho't exactly alike; that theſe good Gentlemen for Error in Judgment, or rather for Acting their own Sentiments, and not the Populace, ſhould be ſet aſide, and untried, unexperienced Ones ſubſtituted in their Room;—it will hardly admit a Poſſibility. But you will perhaps ſay, ſome of our Weſtern Brethern join'd with you; tis true, they were deluded, as were ſome very honeſt Men on your Side; who I hope will both of them for the future, ſee with their own Eyes, and not their Neighbours. Upon the Whole, my Deſign here was not at firſt ſetting out to animadvert on A. Z. for I ſuppoſed it needed no Reply, nor was it to tell the Public, that the Weſtern Part of the Government intended to follow the Example of their Eaſtern Brethren (altho' we have quite as many real Sons of Liberty) in Meetings to change the Government, altho they will never be eaſy till the whole Government (when they have taken a wrong Step) learn experimentally, that good old Military Word of Command.—To the Right about as you were——And when A. Z. ſees fit to join us, to let us have our Officers as at the firſt, and our Judges as at the Beginning of theſe Tumults, we may be eaſy; otherwiſe we may follow their Example, and inſiſt upon having all the Authority upon this Side the Water. I am very loath to come to ſuch a Party Strife, but I ſee no Way to avoid it, unleſs we tamely yield our Privileges, more than Two to One, and wear without murmuring any Yoke that a factious Few are diſpoſed to put upon us.

But my Deſign at preſent, is to aſſiſt Mr. Plaind Facts in his firſt Piece, and offer the following Calculations to the Public, whereby it will appear clear to a Demonſtration, that Two Thirds of the Honorable Upper-Houſe, ought by a Rule of Juſtice to be on the Weſt-Side of the River, if as good Men can be found; which I think cannot be diſputed—The Calculation runs from 1754, to 1766; with an Account what each County has gain'd; if A. Z. won't be oblig'd to me, I flatter myſelf the Public will.

Hartford County Anno 1754, was,	350,381- 2-2	in 1766,	423,539-14-11	Gained	73,148-12- 9
New-Haven,	225,620- 9-8	—	241,565- 4- 3	—	15,944-14- 7
New-London,	236,231-14-3	—	239,765- 4- 1	—	3,533- 9-10
Fairfield,	218,748-19-2	—	270,087-13- 7	—	51,338-14- 5
Windham,	208,054-15-2	—	225,371- 6- 5	—	17,316-11- 3
Litchfield,	58,907- 7-3	—	178,215-19- 9	—	119,308-12- 6
					280,590-15- 4

By the above Calculation, the Publick may ſee that in Twelve Years the Two Eaſtern Counties have gained and pay into the public Treaſury, upon the public Liſt, the Sum of £. 20,850- 1- 1

The 4 Weſtern Counties in the ſame Time, have gained & pay likewiſe into the public Treaſury, 259,740-14- 3

£. 280,590-15- 4

Now if we han't a Right upon every Account (if we have ſuitable Men upon the Weſt-Side of the River, which cannot be diſpuſed) to more than double Share of the Honorable Upper-Houſe, I ſubmit to the Candor and Impartiallity of the Public. And am Your's, &c.

March 4th, 1767. JUSTICE.

To Mr. GREEN, Printer at HARTFORD.

SIR,

I Have taken Notice that a Spirit of groſs Miſrepreſentation, Calumny, & Lying is gone out into the Land: and particularly has manifeſted itſelf in ſome (perhaps the Epithets villainous and execrable, may found too harſh; therefore I ſay) ſcurrilous Pieces lately publiſhed in your Paper, ſubſcribed Plaind Facts (ſaid to be a noted Incendiary in K——) tending to inflame Men's Minds, and ſtir up Fewds and Factions, Mutinies and Seditions, among the People of this Colony, where Peace and Quiet has ſo happily obtain'd of late; and as we are given to expect more of the like Kind; I think it might be of Uſe to inſert the following Paſſages out of an ancient Statute-Book, to which perhaps this Author is a Stranger, or at leaſt has not lately conſulted, viz. "Thou ſhalt not revile the God's, nor curſe the Ruler of thy People," Exod. 22. 28. "Put them in Mind to be ſubject to Principalities and Powers; to obey Magiſtrates—to ſpeak Evil of no Man." Tit. 3. 1. "They deſpiſe Government, preſumptious are they, ſelf-willed; they are not afraid to ſpeak Evil of Dignities." 2 Pet. 2, 10. "Render to every One their Dues—Fear to whom Fear to whom Fear, Honor to whom Honor" Rom. 13. 7. "Love worketh no Ill to his Neighbour." V. 10. —"Frowardneſs is in his Heart, and he deviſeth Miſchief continually; he ſoweth Diſcord—he ſpeaketh Lies, he ſoweth Diſcord among Brethren." Prov. 6. 14. 19. "—thou ſhalt not raiſe a falſe Report." Exod. 23. 1. "—putting away Lying, ſpeak the Truth." Eph. 4. 25. "—and all Lyars" the worſt Sort of which are Slanderers, "ſhall have their Portion," &c. Rev. 21. 8. "The Workers of Iniquity whet their Tongues like a Sword, and bend their Bows to ſhoot their Arrows, even bitter Words; that they may ſhoot them in Secret at the Perfect; they commune of laying Snares privily," &c. Pſal. 64. 3, 5, and 52. begining. "Why boaſteſt thou thyſelf in Miſchief: thy Tongue deviſeth Miſchief, like a ſharp Razor, working deceitfully: thou loveſt Evil more Good, and Lying rather than Righteouſneſs, &c. Many more might be cited, but let theſe be firſt conſider'd and digeſted. And as the Spirit of this Author, appears ſo ſpiteful and malicious; and his Aim is ſo apparent; tis to be hoped the Freemen will be on their Guard, nor ſuffer themſelves to be impoſed on, & led aſtray, or blown into that Ferment which he deſigns againſt their next Meeting.——I conclude with two Queries,

1. Whether the Expenſive Treat at New-Haven, when King GEORGE was proclaimed, made at the public Charge, by Governor Fitch, and his Counſel alone, without any Act of Aſſembly, was ever complained of, even by the very Men, that raiſe ſuch an Out-cry, about the much leſs coſtly Treat at Hartford, ordered by the whole General Aſſembly, on an Occaſion by far the moſt important that New-England ever knew.——I ſay nothing of the falſe and invidious Light in which Mr. Plaind Facts has ſet that School-Houſe Affair.

2. Whether Zeal for Liberty, or a View to ſerve a Turn, dictated the Pen of the other Writer, who has given a broad Slaunt at Two of the beſt Men in the Colony's ſitting together in Council, becauſe they happen to ſuſtain the Relation of Father and Son. Inſtances of which Kind have been frequently among us; and were never till now objected to.—But I forbear—

Your conſtant Cuſtomer,

That hopes for an equal Privilege, with One that never was, nor will be your Cuſtomer, viz. To have the above publiſhed in your Courant.

By the Author of the Death of Abel.

"ATTEND, O Jonathan! to my Speech, and let my Requeſt, have large Room in thy Breaſt. Thou art a ſtrong Man, even very great, the Eyes of the People are on thee, and around thine Arm are twiſted the Sinnews of Government. Speak powerfully, yea ſpeak influentially to the Great and Noble and the Wiſe, and get the Attention of their Ear, to the Voice of thy Mouth. Behold, O Jonathan! behold and conſider MY SON, whoſe Merchandize fails, whoſe Coffers are empty, and who in the Ballance is found Wanting, behold him! and alarm and call on to the Stage all thy wonted Invention, let no Artifice be neglected nor Cunning unimprov'd; but brace thyſelf with all thy Strength, and advance in his Cauſe, and let neither Mountains nor Oceans oppoſe your Paſſage—for lo! at a Diſtance, on yonder Riſe, opens to View, a beautiful Field, a fruitful Garden; there by thy Manuduction may he enter; ſo ſhall his Wealth increaſe and his Name become great, yea even there ſhall he ſpread himſelf and flouriſh like a Cedar tranſplanted from LEBANON.

"O, SOLOMON! unargu'd, I comply."

By Order of the Hon.

ROBERT WALKER, and ROGER SHERMAN, Eſqrs. two of the Judges of the Superior Court in this Colony, Notice is hereby given, to the Creditors of Nathaniel Jocelin of Guilford, an Inſolvent Debtor, to appear before the ſaid Judges at the Court-Houſe in Hartford, on the 12th Day of Inſtant, March, at Two of the Clock in the Afternoon, to ſhew Cauſe (if any they have) why an Aſſignment of ſaid Jocelin's Eſtate ſhould not be made to Truſtees; and the Perſon of ſaid Jocelin diſcharged, agreeable to a Statute of this Colony, entituled "An Act for preventing Fraud in Debtors," &c. He having, together with the Major Part, in Number and Value of his Creditors, exhibited his Petion to the ſaid Judges, praying for the Relief provided in and by ſaid Act.

March 2d 1767.

All Perſons Indebted to Meſs'rs SAMUEL ROSE, and JAMES CORNWEL, by Book, are deſired immediately to ſettle the ſame by their Notes of Hand, to prevent further Trouble; and Thoſe that have any Demands on ſaid Roſe & Cornwell, are requeſted to exhibit their Accounts, that they may be diſcharged. Conſtant Attendance will be given for the Settlement of the above Accounts.

N. B. As ſaid Partnerſhip has been long diſſolved, and their Accounts cannot be adjuſted between themſelves untill their Books are clos'd, and as the Caſh for the Ballances is not now demanded, only a Settlement, 'tis expected that thoſe who have Accounts with us will not be backward in ſettling them. 15

Mr. GREEN,

I Obſerve in your laſt Paper, Mr. Caleb Bull, charges me of a known Falſhood in ſaying my ſpecial Orders were to put 7 Ounces in a Hat, and that I had received the Beaver according to the Hatter's Rule, Two Pounds for each Hatt, and that more was allowed me, &c. I received of Mr. Bull, by his own Weight 41lb ½. of Beaver, but when weighed exact by two Men, at my Shop, was but 40lb. ½ (and bad Fur as obſerv'd before) out of which Beaver Mr. Bull inſiſted upon having Nineteen Beaver Hatts, for he ſaid he could not afford to loſe more than one Hatt (as the common Rule is 2 lb of good Beaver to a Hatt) accordingly I cut all the Beaver, without any Separation, and the Fur was weighed by two Men that worked with me, and was but 134 Ounces, which divided by 19 gives 7 oz. to a Hatt, & 1 oz. to be divided among the 19 Hatts, which 19 Hatts I made in the beſt Manner I could, according to the Quantity and Quality of the Fur, and told Mr. Bull ſo, when he found Fault with the Hatts as thin & poor. Now let the Curious judge, the Difference of making the Hatts by the above Orders, or making them by his ſpecial Orders, with 7oz. in a Hatt? and whether ſaid Bull's advertiſing the Hatts as of the beſt Quality, when he knew they were poor, is not of a Piece with all the reſt of his flattering Advertiſements?

N. B. As ſaid Bull hath repreſented me as poor and wanting to work on Wages, he is deſired ſpeedily to pay me for the making the ſaid Hatts.

JONATHAN ROBERTS.

LONDON, December 4.

To the Printer of the Whitehall Evening-Poſt.

SIR,

BEING in company laſt Thurſday evening where that article in the morning Paper was read, which mentions, that on the 4th inſtant there were preſent in Paris three Noblemen, who had been ſucceſſively Ambaſſadors at the Court of France ſince the acceſſion of his Majeſty to the crown, it was remarked, that there are now living five who are or have been Firſt Lords of the Treaſury, and ten who are or have been Secretaries of State during that ſpace of time; and theſe are their names:

Lords of the Treaſury (all alive;) Duke of Newcaſtle, Lord Bute, Mr. G. Grenville, Marquiſs of Rockingham, Duke of Grafton.

Secretaries of State (all alive;) Lord Holderneſs, Lord Chatham, Lord Bute, Mr. G. Grenville, Lord Hallifax, Lord Sandwich, Duke of Grafton, Mr. Conway, Duke of Richmond, Lord Shelburne; beſides Lord Egremont, who died while he was Secretary of State.

As this ſeems a very ſingular phenomenon in the hiſtory of placemen I think you will do well to tranſmit it to poſterity. P. K.

Letters from Bruſſels mention the death of Count Cavenagh, a native of Ireland, aged 98 years, who had been an officer in the Queen of Hungary's ſervice upwards of 50 years.

One Magdelain Riſtori died a few days ago, at the village of Empoli, aged 110 years: She was very poor, and ſeemed to be of a very weekly conſtution, and had often been attacked with dangerous diſtempers.

It is ſaid, the attention of the preſent Miniſtry will be employed principally this Seſſion, in regulating, for the future, the price of corn and proviſions, and for preventing monopolizing and engroſſing thoſe neceſſaries of life.

BOSTON, March 5.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in LONDON, dated December 13. 1767.

"There is a Spirit riſing in P-rl-m-nt very different from that which prevailed during the late Seſſion.—It was then made the Shibboleth of Party to ſupport all the American Claims, and Mr. P—t's extreme Animoſity againſt his Brother, led him to condemn every Thing he had done, merely becauſe it was his doing—He now ſeems to be recovering himſelf, and one of the firſt Offers L—d C———m made in his Negociations the other Day with the D. of B—f—d, was to maintain the King's Authority in all his Dominions.—Yeſterday he ſpoke a Language of the ſame ſort in the Houſe of Lords. —The rioting againſt the Cuſtom Officers in your Province were mentioned in the Houſe of Commons early in the Seſſion, when the C———r of the E——r declared in the ſtrongeſt Terms that ſo long as he was in Office he would not ſuffer the Authority of the King's Laws to be trampled upon, and that he thought it the higheſt injury to the Nation to ſuffer the Acts of the parliment to be broken with impunity——And the whole Houſe ſeemed to be animated with the ſame Spirit——So that if your Aſſ——y will ſuffer themſelves to be led by that very abſurd, ignorant Firebrand, he may bring them into a worſe ſcrape than they can imagine."

In a Debate in a very reſpectable Aſſembly laſt Friday, an Extract of an anonimous Letter ſaid to be written in England, was read, which concluded with the following Words, "So that if your Aſſembly will "ſuffer themſelves to be led by that very "abſurd, ignorant Fireband, he may bring "them into a worſe ſcrape than they can imagine." Upon which it was Reſolved, That the Words were an high aſſult, and in a breach of Privilege; and that the Perſon who wrote them was an Enemy to this Province.

HARTFORD, March 9.

A few Days ago, the Wife of one Flint of Windham, was delivered of four living Female Children, at one Birth, but they all expired within Twenty-Four Hours.

A few Days ago, a Dwelling-Houſe, belonging to One Waterous of Marlboro' was conſumed by Fire, together with a great Part of the Furniture.

WEEKLY ADVERTISER.

Thus Scripture is by either Sect applied,
And all without Reſerve, are damned beſide.

APplying the beſt Things, and thoſe held in the higheſt Veneration by Mankind in general, to the moſt partial and vile Purpoſes, is a Trick which has been played to great Succeſs by deſigning Men in all Ages of the World, conſidering this, I am the leſs ſurpriſed at a very remarkable Piece which laſt Week made its Appearance in the public Papers. The Author is pleaſed to introduce his motly Performance, by informing the World, that a Spirit of Lying, &c. is gone out into the Land, &c. and then having in the moſt ſcurrilous Manner treated a Perſon of his own Creating, with all the harſh and ungentleman-like Epithets, &c. which Satire could afford; proceeds to thunder the Artillery of the ſacred Canon upon him, as though Heaven, and he were of a Party, and the Scriptures delivered, not to publiſh the glad Tidings of Peace, but for the Inſtruments of private Faction, and civil Diſcord I can't but think, however frequent ſuch Practices have been in the World, that ſuch an Uſe of the ſacred Scriptures, is an Impiety much above the common Size, at leaſt it is perverting the Senſe, Spirit, Deſign, and End of thoſe Sacred Oracles, and however ſecurely the Author may think himſelf intrenched behind ſuch a Breaſt Work of Quotations, he will in the End find it of leſs Avail, tho' of the ſame impious Intention as a Pope's Bull, publiſhed on ſuch an Occaſion would be. Having made the above Obſervations, I ſcarce need remind the Reader, this Man of Importance, after his Preamble, has not dared, even He has not dared to charge Plain Facts with one Falſhood, in particular, but in general is pleaſed to call him a ſeditious Writer, which in plain Engliſh is, ſome public Facts are dangerous to be ſpoke of in Public: he cloſes by hoping the Freemen will be on their Guard againſt Ferments, &c. in their next Meeting; and I ſhall cloſe my Remarks, on this Part of his Performance, by asking this worthy Gentleman, where he was laſt March? and what he was about at that remarkable Period of Calmneſs, Reverence for Rulers as God's, and what not, that we heard nothing of him then? I hope and think the Public have a Right to expect, that this ſcriptural and ſacerdotal Writer will make it appear by ſomething more convincing, than his bare Word for it, that Plain Facts has been guilty of one Falſhood in that there School-Houſe Affair, as he calls it.

I come now to his Queries, the firſt of which is, Whether the more coſtly Treat at New-Haven, on Occaſion of the King's Proclamation, ordered by Governor Fitch, and his Council, was ever faulted, &c. On this I beg Leave to obſerve, that the Treat at New-Haven, as he calls it, was in Purſuance of expreſs Orders from Home; and though Governor Fitch was not blamed for yielding Obedience to thoſe Orders, yet he and his Council were faulted by Many, for not calling the whole General Aſſembly together, as had been uſual on former Occaſions of that Kind; which was prudently omitted on Account of the heavy Expences, then lying on the Colony, by Reaſon of the War.

I come now to his ſecond Query, he aſks if Zeal for Liberty, or a View to ſerve a Turn, dictated the Pen of the other Writer, (viz. Freeman) who has given a broad Slaunt at two of the beſt Men in the Colony ſitting together in Council, becauſe they happen, (a ſtrange Accident!) to ſuſtain the Relation of Father and Son. Inſtances of which Kind have been (he ſays) frequently among us, and were never till now, objected to. Freeman is not obliged to that Writer that he has ſpared his Epithets on him; and need only ſay, that his Cenſoriouſneſs, with Regard to his Intention, ſhews in a ſtriking Light, the Character of this ſcribbling Retailer. Not one Fact FREEMAN aſſerted, is denied, not one Reaſon he gave is ſo much as conſidered, which was expreſsly in the ſaid Piece deſired of the Perſon who ſhould ſee fit to anſwer it. But with an uncommon Degree of Effrontery, tells the Public, That a certain Father and Son, are the Two beſt Men in the Colony, and that Inſtances of Father and Son, ſitting in our Councils, have been frequent, and never objected to. On reading this Piece, I applied to the Record for Intelligence in this Matter, which are falſe, or this Writer is ſo——for no ſuch Thing appears on them, to have been in the Colony, as Father and Son, to be in the Council of this Government, at the ſame Time, before the laſt Election——————When the Honorable Governor Wolcott, was at the Head of this Government, his worthy Son, ſince deceaſed, was in the Nomination, a Gentleman univerſally known, and univerſally eſteemed, loved and admired by the Freemen of this Colony, yet they omitted advancing him into the Council, until the Diſmiſſion of his honored Father, and that, as many of them have ſince, and at that Time told me, for the very Reaſons aſſigned in my laſt. To conclude, it ſeems as though this doughty Gentleman, by charging Plain Facts as ſcurrilous and execrable, without proving one Word he ſays, and muſtering together in Battallia, all the Texts againſt Slander and Lying, his Concordance could direct him to, imagines he is himſelf exempt, and has a Patent at large, to lye, miſrepreſent, and vilify at Pleaſure.

PHILADELPHIA, February 26.
Extract of a Letter from LONDON, Nov. 25, 1766.

"In an auguſt aſſembly, the oppoſition (that is, thoſe who are out of place) headed by G. G---v--le, found much fault with the great ſtretch of the royal prerogative, in putting a ſtop to the exportation of corn, contrary to ſeveral expreſs acts of parliament, without calling the parliament together, which they inſiſted upon might eaſily be done, at any time, upon a fortnight's notice, inſtead of which, at the very period when the ſcarcity of corn appeared to be certain and inevitable, it was prorogued (September 10) for an unuſual length of time, 61 days, inſtead of 40, the common period of prorogation; that if they ſuffered this to paſs unnoticed, future miniſters would be tempted to venture on like exertions of the prerogative, on occaſions dangerous to the liberty of the ſubjects, &c. &c. I have not indeed patience, even to repeat all the nonſenſe that was thrown out by G——; who ſpoke evidently from a ſpirit of faction and reſentment, and who ſets out this ſeſſion, preciſely as he did the laſt, in a virulent oppoſition to all the operations of miniſtry, without reaſon, ſenſe, or argument. Were I his maſter, no motive whatever ſhould induce me to take him into my ſervice again, be his abilities (and they are but ſecond rate) what they will.—He was anſwered very pertinently by S—— C——y, on behalf of the miniſtry, that this exertion of the prerogative, was made for the moſt ſalutary and neceſſary purpoſes, no leſs than to prevent a general ſcarcity; that he owned he was one that adviſed it; that he knew when he did ſo, he became anſwerable to parliament for ſuch advice; that he ſubmitted it to them, whether this was a proper exertion of prerogative, or whether it tended, in the remoteſt degree, to infringe the liberty of the ſubject; that the honourable gentleman who ſpoke laſt (Mr. G——v——le) muſt have certainly received ſome new lights of late, who had himſelf laſt year ſtrenuouſly argued in behalf of general warrants; an exertion of prerogative which moſt nearly affected the liberty of the ſubject, and which could not be vindicated by the plea of neceſſity, as in the preſent caſe; that calling the parliament together in the ſummer ſeaſon, when many members were very variouſly and widely diſperſed, would, be apprehended, have given too great an alarm to the nation; that there was neceſſity of it; and that as to calling them together at any time, at ſo ſhort a notice as 12 or 14 days, he appealed to the houſe, whether this would not be a moſt dangerous precedent, as a miniſter; by that means would be able to ſurpriſe the houſe into any pernicious ſcheme he might be diſpoſed to carry.—He concluded with ſaying that theſe gentlemen was uniform enough; for when in place they wanted to deprive the people of their liberty (referring to general warrants) and now they wanted to deprive them of their food.—Mr. G—v—le then propoſed (in my opinion moſt abſurdly) that for the preſent relief of the poor, they ſhould addreſs his Majeſty to adminiſter to their neceſſities in ſuch manner, as to his royal wiſdom ſhould ſeem meet; aſſuring him, that they would make good the ſame out of the firſt aids granted by parliament.—To this it was objected, that it was impoſſible to diſtribute ſuch relief in a proper manner; that if it were poſſible, it would be highly improper, as it would ſeem to allow, there were no means left to relieve them but a diſtribution of the publick money, which at beſt would be very inſufficient, and would appear, as if they bribed them to be quiet; that the evil ought to be proved to the bottom, and the real cauſes of our preſent ſituation ought to be explored, and ſuch remedies applied as were more adequate to the neceſſities of the poor, than any temporary relief could be.—To this G--v--le replied, that he having endeavoured to make our colonies in America contribute to the ſupport of government, they had bribed them to be quiet, by a total repeal of that law; and that it was very ſtrange, they would not do that for the relief of their poor at home, which they did for the Americans, who were well able to bear the tax. —G——v—le, as he well deſerved was totally deſerted; for he was but poorly ſeconded.—You ſee this is only another wicked effort, to embarraſs our councils, and to divert the parliament from the neceſſary buſineſs of the nation.—For my own part, I wiſh well to the ſaid general, whoever has the management of affairs, and therefore I want to ſee a permanent, able and honeſt miniſtry, [illegible] with faction, in good earneſt ſet about a thorough enquiry into the real cauſe of our preſent diſtreſſes and diſcontent and every man who attempts to divert the miniſtry for the time being from doing this, I conſider as an enemy to his country.—I ſhould have told you, by the bye, that S—— C——y behaved both with modeſty and ſpirit.—In anſwer to a charge of ignorance, that had been thrown out by G—v—le, in the debate about the proclamation for preventing the exportation of corn; he ſaid he pretended not to be very expert in the duties of his office but that as he acted with the pureſt intention for the good of his ſovereign, and his country, and was conſcious of the integrity of his heart, for this reaſon he thought he, in ſome meaſure, deſerved the place he held, tho' he was ready, with cheerfulneſs, to reſign it, whenever his majeſty thought proper to fill it with one [illegible] [illegible].—In the other houſe, lord T——p——, I am told, acted much the ſame part with Mr. G——v——le, and with the ſame ſucceſs.

"Upon the whole, I think it may be fairly concluded, that the oppoſition have at preſent ſo very little to find fault with, as the nation in general, are quite tired with oppoſition to men only, without regarding meaſures; as the ſtate of the nation requires immediate attention; and as the parliament is drawing near its concluſion, the preſent members will be induced to recommend themſelves to their electors, by exerting themſelves this ſeſſion, in doing ſomething for the people.

"One important piece of buſineſs will certainly come before them ſoon, that is, the affairs of the Eaſt India company, as it is certainly neceſſary for the permanent ſecurity of our great acquiſitions and conqueſt in that part of the world, that they ſhould be taken more immediately under the protection of the government, and therefore I do not think the company have any thing to apprehend from this enquiry that can be detrimental to their intereſt."

Extract of a Letter from London, dated December 16, 1766.

"The Parliament has adjourned for the Holidays. As ſoon as it meets again, it is expected that the Repeal of the Act, reſtraining the Colonies from iſſuing Bills of Credit as lawful Tender, will be taken under Conſideration.

Extract of another Letter from London, of the ſame Date.

"There have been more Changes at Court—But Lord Chatham and Shelburne, the Duke of Grafton and Mr. Townſend, ſeem to ſtand firm yet—Lord Bute does not act with them, but gives no Oppoſition; which is a great Point."

To Mr. GREEN, Printer at HARTFORD.

SIR,

At a Time of ſuch univerſal ingathering, am deſirous to caſt my Mite into your grand Treaſury of News, Politicks, &c. &c. (if you pleaſe) that the following, being thrown into your Cannikin, may with,

"Drown'd Puppies, ſtinking Sprats, all (drench'd in Mud
"Dead Cats, and Turnip-Tops, come (tumbling down the Flood." O.N.

WHEREAS I have taken Notice that a Spirit of groſs Miſrepreſentation, Calumny, & Lying is gone out into the Land: tending to inflame Men's Minds and ſtir up Fewds and Factions, and Mutinies, and Seditions, and Diſcords, and Riots, and Tumultes, and Uproars among the People of this Colony, and has of late ſo unhappily diſturbed the Peace and Quiet thereof; and as we have ſome Reaſon to expect more of the like Kind, therefore it may be of Uſe to inſert the following Paſſages out of an antient Statute Book, (to which perhaps Many are Strangers, or at leaſt have not lately conſulted with due Care and Attention) and at the ſame Time, annex to them a few Topicks for political diſquiſition; which if they do not ſeem exactly ſuited to the Text, will require the greateſt Ability to handle them properly, viz. "Thou ſhalt not revile the Gods, nor curſe the Ruler of thy People," Exod. 22. 28.—or—"Put them in Mind to be ſubject to Principalities and Powers; to obey Magiſtrates—to ſpeak Evil of no Man." Tit. 3. 1.—

—NEW-LONDON-SOCIETY—

"They deſpiſe Government, preſumptious are they, ſelf-willed; they are not afraid to ſpeak Evil of Dignities." 2 Pet. 2, 10.—

—OLD-TENOR—

"Render to every One their Dues—Fear to whom Fear, Honor to whom Honor." Rom. 13. 7.

—SPANISH-MONEY—

"Frowardneſs is in his Heart, and he deviſeth Miſchief continually; he ſoweth Diſcord—he ſpeaketh Lies; he ſoweth Diſcord among Brethren." Prov. 6. 14. 19.—or—"thou ſhalt not raiſe a falſe Report" Exod. 23. 1. &—put away Lying: ſpeak the Truth." Eph. 4. 25. "—and all Lyars" the worſt Sort of which are Slanderers, "ſhall have their Portion," &c. Rev. 21. 8.

—SUSQUEHANNAH—

"The Workers of Iniquity whet their Tongues like a Sword, and bend their Bows to ſhoot their Arrows, even bitter Words; that they may ſhoot them in Secret at the Perfect; they commune of laying Snares privily," &c. Pſal. 64. 3. 5.

The late memorable STALKING-HORSE—

Many more Texts might be cited, and many more Subjects propoſed, but let theſe be firſt conſidered—and as this Spirit appears ſo ſpightful and malicious, and its Aim is ſo apparent; tis to be hoped that the Freemen will be on their Guard, nor ſuffer themſelves to be impoſed on and led aſtray, or kept in a Ferment till their next Meeting.—I conclude with two Queries,

1. Whether it is not (perhaps the Epithet, execrable, may ſound too harſh; therefore I ſay) ſcandalous, to proſtitute the Scripture to every Purpoſe.

2d. Whether Zeal for Liberty, or a View to ſerve a Turn, dictated the Pen of many Writers, who have given broad Slaunts--Inſtances of which Kind have been frequently among us—but I forbear—Compared by, from the Beginning, to wit. One that hopes to ſhare (with Another, that has not produced a better Claim) the Privilege of appearing in your Courant.

Mr. GREEN,

Pleaſe to inſert the following brief Anſwers, to ſeveral Queries propoſed in your laſt Paper, viz.

1. THE Deputy-Governor's acting at the Council Board in the Preſence of the Governor, is no Way inconſiſtent with, or contrary to Charter.

2. Suppoſing it to be contrary to Charter, his ſo acting, can't affect the Legality of an Election, or Appointment to Office, made by a full Vote, or a great Majority of the Council, without counting his Vote.

3. There may doubtleſs be ſufficient Reaſons for the Governor, or one of the Council's not acting; or particular Caſes, wherein it is quite proper they ſhould not act, in Matters that in ordinary Circumſtances, would properly lie before them; in which any One may inſtance.

4. Men may promiſe, and ſee ſufficient Grounds afterwards not to fulfil; they may act, and upon further Light and good Reaſon, manifeſt a Senſe of their Miſtake, by counteracting: And it is the Part of a wiſe and faithful Man to do ſo; and a Community can't be ſafe in putting the Reins of Government into the Hands of Thoſe that pertinaciouſly adhere to a former wrong Step, when convinced of it, on Account of a Bribe, or otherwiſe.

5. The laſt Query, as 'tis plainly pointed, contains in it (as I have certain Information) Matter of vileſt Calumny and Slander, and inſinuates a notorious and infamous Falſhood, which is all the Anſwer it deſerves.

The like may be reply'd to the Piece, called Solomon's Addreſs to Jonathan; that I am pretty well aſſured, it is full of groundleſs, unmanly and injurious Reflection, & contains an infamous Slander on the Perſons deſigned, both by Solomon, Jonathan, and alſo his Son: And the unparallel'd baſeneſs and calumniating Spirit of the Author merits the ſevereſt Animadverſion.——I would alſo add a Word reſpecting the Piece, ſigned Juſtice, and aſk with what Juſtice, Honeſty and Conſcience, he made his Calculations; particularly in repreſenting Hartford County as one of the Weſtern Counties, when 'tis well known, that a great, and I ſuppoſe much the bigger Part of it is on the Eaſt-ſide of Connecticut River. If this be a Miſtake of his, I think tis a pretty large One, as he tells A. Z. who I leave to give him a proper Anſwer in his own Time and Way.

And as mention was lately made of the expenſive Treat at New-Haven, I would a little aſſiſt that Writer, by obſerving, that I am credibly informed, that coſt the Government between Three and Four Hundred Pounds, but that at Hartford, not half a Quarter that Sum. I am Sir, Your's, &c.

Mr. GREEN,

IT is uncertain how far the Public are oblig'd to Mr. Quotation, for ſupplying them with a Concordance, favouring ſtrongly of Paſſive Obedience and Non-Reſiſtance; but this is certain, he ought to have avoided that Crime, which is the Subſtance of his motly Mixture, to condemn in Others, viz. Falſhood, and if he had, we ſhould not have heard him aſſert, that the Inſtances of Father and Son ſitting together in Council have been frequent among us, ſince there never w s One in the Colony till now.

And M Senex quondam Senatorius when he ſays, What Barbarity would it be, to lift up, and with a Vengeance caſt down Gentlemen of the Honorable Council Board, who ſince their Appointment have done Nothing which deſerves ſuch a [illegible] would have appear'd [illegible] judiced, if in Addition he had told the Public, that [illegible] Gentlemen themſelves have ſet the Example.

Mr. GREEN,

I Obſerve in your laſt Paper, Mr. Caleb Bull, charges me of a known Falſhood in ſaying my ſpecial Orders were to put 7 Ounces in a Hat, and that I had received the Beaver according to the Hatter's Rule, Two Pounds for each Hatt, and that more was allowed me, &c. I received of Mr. Bull, by his own Weight 41lb ¾. of Beaver, but when weighed exact by two Men, at my Shop, was but 40lb. ¼ (and bad Fur as obſerv'd before) out of which Beaver Mr. Bull inſiſted upon having Nineteen Beaver Hatts, for he ſaid he could not afford to loſe more than one Hatt (as the common Rule is 2 lb of good Beaver to a Hatt) accordingly I cut all the Beaver, without any Separation, and the Fur was weighed by two Men that worked with me, and was but 134 Ounces, which divided by 19 gives 7 oz. to a Hatt, & 1 oz. to be divided among the 19 Hatts, which 19 Hatts I made in the beſt Manner I could, according to the Quantity and Quality of the Fur, and told Mr. Bull ſo, when he found Fault with the Hatts as thin & poor. Now let the Curious judge, the Difference of making the Hatts by the above Orders, or making them by his ſpecial Orders, with 7oz. in a Hatt? and whether ſaid Bull's advertiſing the Hatts as of the beſt Quality, when he knew they were poor, is not of a Piece with all the reſt of his flattering Advertiſements?

To Mr. PLAIN TRUTH.

SIR,

I Am ſurprized you ſhould infer, from the late Advertiſement, publiſhed by Mr. Plain Facts, "That he propoſes to entertain the Public with certain Facts, relating to ſome Affairs," for certain [illegible] in his Advertiſement, [illegible] the [illegible] you [illegible] inference, you intend [illegible] not diſpleaſed with [illegible] of my Facts, that tend to [illegible] the public Intereſt, by [illegible] or opening the Eyes of the [illegible] but in the next Breath you ſay, "This Scheme may be productive of Miſchief, rather than a Benefit to the Public." In the Name of Wonder, Sir, tell me in plain Engliſh Words, will the Miſchief ariſe from the Facts [illegible] Truth of them [illegible] likely become [illegible] Eyes are [illegible] ed by that [illegible] of conciliatory Advice of yours [illegible] in haſte, viz. "Beware of [illegible] Party Spirit, to an [illegible] that they have hitherto [illegible] or Evils [illegible] gual Diviſion of [illegible] and Magiſtr[illegible] different Parts of the Colony?" By this [illegible] tence, I think, you fully conceed, [illegible] there were Factions ſubſiſting in the C[illegible]ny, before the Author you complain[illegible] publiſh'd any of his Obſervations; in th[illegible] Sir, I fully agree with you, and which eve[illegible] judicious and conſiderate Freeman, [illegible] Doubt laments, of this Party Spirit, the[illegible]fore I truſt you will not think, Mr. Fa[illegible] the Author: Indeed I have heard hi[illegible] often lament it, with great Seriouſneſs and Concern. You next tell us, "You plainly perceive, that Eleven Chapers more, wrote in the ſame Spirit (if not duly reſtrain'd) will tend to make ſome very odious Diſtinctions in the Colony." Do you in Reality mean, by thoſe Words, to reſtrain the Liberty of the Preſs? or, do you mean thoſe Facts or Truths (call them which you will) muſt be reſtrain'd or ſuppreſſed? pray inform us, in your next, whether it is the Truth of the Facts related, or the droll, ſarcaſtic Stile in which they were wrote, will produce ſuch bad Conſequences? I preſume you will not care to confeſs, that it is the Truth of the Facts related, that you ſo much fear; and I hope you have more Modeſty than to ſay, that ſo intelligent and judicious Set of Men as the Body of the Freemen of this Colony, will be thrown into a Faction, merely by a droll, ſarcaſtic Stile, if the Facts related have no Foundation in Truth. You in the next Place very ſeriouſly acquaint your Readers, that, "God knows we have had Diſtinctions enough already——and that Colour[illegible] and [illegible] have for ſeveral Years, loſt their [illegible]ical Meaning."——Very true, my Fr[illegible]——of this we are duly ſenſible; and [illegible] would tell you, that ſame Omni[illegible] Being knows who were the Authors and [illegible] of thoſe unhappy religious Diſtinctions made to ſerve political Purpoſes; and th[illegible] have abundant Reaſon to lament before Him, that the great and important Doctrines of our Holy Religion [illegible] made ſubſervi[illegible], call it [illegible] ſay, "It [illegible] claſp'd, [illegible] Bounds," but becauſe Mr. Plain Facts has informed the Public, that the Liſts of the ſeveral Towns on the Weſt Side the River are almoſt double to thoſe on the Eaſt, and that there is 90 Towns on the Weſt Side of the River, in which there is not one Magiſtrate or Aſſiſtant Judge. This you ſay, "makes the Great River the Boundary, a Situation much more deplorable."——What much more deplorable than to have the great and important Doctrines of our moſt holy Religion made ſubſervient to a Party! My Blood [illegible] from my [illegible]

In the next Paragraph, you ſeem to give Place to the ſofter Paſſions, and firſt ſay, "If the Weſt Side of the River, exceeding the Eaſt, in Wealth and Numbers, [illegible] afford its Proportion of Men qualified [illegible] important Stations of public Truſt, [illegible]ry—And if they can afford their [illegible] and Faction has determined [illegible]erwiſe, you are ſorry."——[illegible] to ſubjoin and ſay (for [illegible] derogating from the real [illegible] of our Honorable Gover[illegible] Counſellors) that the [illegible] Colony of Connecticut, to [illegible] of an Act of Parliament [illegible] may be eſteem'd ſub[illegible] Rights and Privileges of [illegible] by mere Force of Faction [illegible] incited by a few deſigning Men, [illegible] be hurried into ſuch Meaſures, [illegible] make a Sacrifice of five of the principal Magiſtrates of the Colony, of ſpotleſs Characters, who have long diſcharged the ſeveral Truſts committed to them, with Integrity, Fidelity and Honor, for no other Reaſon, than becauſe they could not in Conſcience, conſiſtent with the Truſt committed to them, for the Preſervation of our Charter Privileges, come into thoſe Meaſures to evade the Operation of that Act which ſeem'd moſt fitting to Colonel P——n, Major D——e, Capt. L——h and Capt. H——h L——y, they ſhould be diſcarded, as Enemies to the Conſtitution of the Government——I am ſorry, very ſorry, and I believe I may add, that by this Time, two third Parts of the more judicious Freemen of the Colony are alſo very ſorry: and having thus expreſs'd your Sorrow and wip'd off thoſe two ſingle Drops of Tears, ſhed on each Cheek, you unwarily drop the Maſk aſſum'd, and ſhew your Sting in the Tail of your Performance, when you ſay, "I ſee your Genius leads you ſo much to Sarcaſm and Radicule, though it may divert ſome, it may ſo far nettle others, as that it is eaſy to foreſee, while Revenge and Envy, and ſeveral other fruitful Seeds of Reſentment have a Place in the human Breaſt, the Conſequences may be rather bad than good."

Mr. Plain Truth, Sergeant Facts, deſires me to preſent his Compliments to you, and to thank you for your prophetic and conciliatory Advice, to let you know he calmly enjoys himſelf, and is now buſily employ'd in preparing a ſecond Chapter of Facts, and regulating his Spelling, by a new Spelling Book he has lately bought, and that ſince the Stamp-Act is repealed, and the Regiment for pulling down Houſes diſbanded, he is under no great Concern for his Houſe, as he is not the Owner of One, and he thinks it will puzzle your Politicks foreſeeing as you think yourſelf, to find even that of his Landlords, and if found, he is under no Anxiety for any Thing but his Halberd and even that he is ready to reſign, whenever the Commanding Officers ſhall require it. Mr. Plain Truth, I am,

Sir, your moſt Humble Servant,

A FREEMAN.

Mr. GREEN,

SIR,

I HAVE obſerv'd ſeveral Pieces of late in your Papers; one ſigned Plain Facts, another Plain Truth; another A. Z. another ſign'd in Latin; another ſign'd Juſtice; another a Conſtant Cuſtomer, &c. ſome crying one Thing, and ſome another: For my Part, I was willing to be an idle Spectator, and ſee where the Whole would end—But it ſeems the Spirit of Oppoſition grows thicker and faſter; and I am really afraid, if Prudence and Moderation is not uſed on both ſides, we ſhall get into as bad a Jumble as the Stamp-Act could have brought us into; though I doubt not but both Eaſt and Weſt, to a Man, would rather have ſpilt their Blood, than have ſubmitted to it. And though I hope Things will never be carry'd to that Extremity that they are in a n--gh----g G-v---m--t, who are indulg'd with Charter Privileges, as well as we—where we ſee Offices of the higheſt Power and Truſt, bought at the Expence of C-n----e (but I hope better Things of you, though I thus ſpeak) yet we have great Reaſon to fear it, if ſome Mediator don't ſtep in, and propoſe ſome ſuitable Terms of Accommodation; which all Sides ought to be willing to liſten to, and have Peace, Harmony, and good Agreement reſtor'd as it was at firſt.——

With Regard to Mr. Plain Facts, it muſt be confeſs'd that his Calculation in Subſtance is right; and if he had not turn'd ſo much upon Satire in his firſt Place, it had been as well——If Plain Facts had been Plain Facts, without any Dreſs, either good or bad, it might have anſwer'd the End quite as well. However, much Light has been convey'd to the Public by it, for which we muſt be obliged.——With Regard to the Second Piece of [illegible] man, reſpecting the School H[illegible] think it might as well have been [illegible] for though an awful and humbling Providence attended the Proviſion the Aſſembly made; yet the Occaſion of Rejoicing was really great, and they had the Precedence of other Aſſemblies for their Conduct, and, for my Part, I can ſee Nothing criminal in it.

With Regard to what Mr. Plain Truth has wrote, I think Nothing can be objected to it: The Gentleman ſeems to write with a Spirit of Moderation and Candor; and (in my Opinion) deſerves the Thanks of the Public.

With Regard to what Mr. A. Z. has wrote, I muſt confeſs I think him to Blame for his harſh Treatment of Mr. Plain Facts, accuſing him with many Things that I can't find in his firſt Piece. And his Antagoniſt, Mr. Juſtice, for his Rapertee, and Want of Moderation, in Reply to Mr. A. Z. although I think his Calculation uſeful, and what every Freeman ought to be acquainted with.

With Regard to our Latin Author, he begins his Piece with Candor and Moderation; but how hard is it to retain that good Spirit long!—He has with a Share of Rhetoric, entertain'd the Public with five Particulars or Reaſons why the good Gentlemen laid aſide laſt Year, ought not to be re-elected this; the Subſtance of which I will take a ſhort View of.

1 Becauſe it will ſet the Freemen in a ſhocking Light,—that the Body of the Freemen continue to think as they did laſt Year, and ſo do the Gentlemen in Retirement for aught appears, and how can the Freemen conſiſtant with Honeſty and their Oath give them different Treatment——To which I anſwer: The Freemen will appear (in my Opinion) in the moſt favorable Light; as I believe many acted then from heated Zeal, and a ſuppoſed Injury received from thoſe Gentlemen, who you ſo revere in their more cool Thoughts and ſtrict Examination into Matters of Fact they find the Gentlemen honeſt, and nothing has appeared ſince to convince the Contrary but that their Plan of getting rid of the Stamp-Act was the moſt ſafe, Eaſy and ſure. Witneſs the writing of our beſt Friends in England, &c. then if they don't think as you do, we cannot juſtly blame them, much leſs ſhould we with-hold our Vote for them.

2dly. You ſay, It is the ready Way to faſten upon our Necks, the Yoke we have but juſt ſhook off, &c. This I think may fairly be denied, for if you did but conſult State Affairs at Home in England, as much as you ſeem to here, you would know that G——ſe and his Party are ſmall and out of Place—they have loſt Ground and cannot make a-head, and that we have the ſtrongeſt Aſſurances that we ſhall never be yoked up again, while we behave well—Does not all your Friends in England write you that the grand Objection to the Repeal was the tumultous Behavior of the Colonies.

3dly. What Barbarity would it be to ſo many of the Honorable Council Board, as muſt neceſſarily go out, at their coming in, and what have they done, that they muſt be lift up, and caſt down with ſuch a Vengeance, &c. To which I reply, that theſe Gentlemen are (no Doubt) wiſe Men, diſcerning the Times; and if Men of Diſcernment, they ſaw at their coming in, that they would in all Probability hold their Places no longer than the Populace did their Heat; and though we revere them and ſhall gladly bring them in again, as Opportunity offers; yet I am perſuaded they will not think it hard or cruel; but will chearfully reſign, to make Room for the Four Aſſiſtants now in Retirement, to take their Places.

4thly. You ſay, Great Confuſion and long Party Rage would enſue, &c. To [illegible]ch I anſwer, this [illegible] of ſome deſigning [illegible] to Friends to the Government. If you, on your Side of the River, (which I take to be the Eaſt) wiſely follow the Things that make for Peace—all Confuſion, Animoſity and Party Rage would ceaſe for Time to come. And there certainly is as much greater Reaſon for a Change (perhaps not ſo great) the next Election than there was the Laſt—for the worthy Gentlemen now retir'd were turn'd out for no Fault at all; and I dare challange (tho' this is what I did not deſign) that you have not ought to object againſt they four Aſſiſtants drop'd, but only this, they adviſ'd the Governor to take the Oath provided by Parliament. And you upon your Side have often told me that you did not intend to keep them out, but one Year; and that to ſhew your Reſentment of their Miſtake—this you have done. Now be but honeſt, and aſſiſt us in the Weſt, in bringing them in again, and all will be well, all Things will likely take a happy Turn, and be eaſy.

5thly, and laſtly. You ſay, It would much threaten our Charter, to diſcover ſuch an unſtable Diſpoſition.——The Way to avoid this Threatning, would be to join us, and put in the four retired Aſſiſtants who I doubt not will hold the Reins of Government with a ſteady Hand.——But Brother, SENATOR, or whatever elſe you are pleaſed to call yourſelf, I don't like ſo much Deception, in calling yourſelf of the Weſt, when (if I know you, and I think I do well) you are of the Eaſt—nor your harſh Reflection on Mr. Plaind Facts, as tho' he would repreſent the Rulers ſhould ſtand like Apple-Trees in an Orchard at an equal Diſtance, or the Magiſtrates muſt be thickeſt where there is moſt Money—no, he does not mean ſo, nor you, nor no honeſt Man can fairly take him ſo; but he means, (and every honeſt Man will ſay that he is perfectly reaſonable and juſt) that we ſhould have our Rulers where we pay our Money for them, if ſuitable Men can be found—this is plain beyond a Contradiction—You will pleaſe Sir, to remember, that I don't here mean to afront you, only to ſet you right and rectify ſome Miſtakes—and ſhall be much oblig'd to you, when you will perform the the ſame kind Office to me. With Regard to your Conſtant Cuſtomer, who obſerves, that a Spirit of groſs Miſrepreſentation, Calumny and Lying is [illegible] into the Land—Some ſay this Gentleman is a C--gym-n, if ſo, I am ſorry [illegible] baſely foul'd his Coat—for [illegible] beſt, found too harſh.—Spe[illegible] nom and Clamour) out of C[illegible] C--gym-n againſt Mr. Plaind [illegible] quotes ſome Paſſages out [illegible] State-Book (as he calls it) [illegible] Mr. Plaind Facts is a Stranger [illegible] at leaſt has not lately conſulted [illegible] to me a great Pity, that this Gentleman, if he be of the Cloth, had not preached theſe Doctrines, or quoted theſe Texts a Year ago, which might have prevented all this Calumny and Confuſion—and if he be not of the C—gy, I am apt to think he has but juſt found this famous Statute Book, and hope now he has found it, he will make a good uſe of it—and it will teach him Gentleneſs, Meekneſs, Patience, Brotherly Love and Charity (which ſeems to be too much wanting in him) it will alſo teach him to put away all Wrath, Clamor, and Evil Speaking, &c.—But I hope the Gentleman will excuſe me—I do but ſpeak my Opinion.

Upon the whole, I think, if the Eaſt will join us, to reſtore the four Gentlemen in Retirement, and generouſly give them their Votes next Freeman's-Meeting, and bring them freely into the Upper-Houſe, it is likely to me, and ſeems the only Expedient to reſtore our Tranquility, and make us once more a flouriſhing, happy People.

I am, Sir, your Humble Servant,

HARTFORD, March 23.

Laſt Wedneſday, to the univerſal Surprize and Grief of the Town, after a ſhort Illneſs, departed this Life, THOMAS SEYMOUR, Eſq; He was for many Years, one of the moſt eminent Practitioners in Law, in this Government. His Conduct was a Proof, that Integrity may be maintained in any Statio[illegible] however expoſed to Temptation. His public Character was unblemiſhed; and in private Life he was moſt amiable. The inconſolable Grief of his bereaved Widow and Children, proclaim him a moſt affectionate Huſband, and the tendereſt of Fathers. And the univerſal Gloom which overſpreads the Countenances of his Acquaintance, evidence him One of the moſt obliging and faithful Friends. He was indeed a rich Bleſſing, in every Part of ſocial Life.—But what diffuſed the greateſt Glory round his Character, was his ſincere and unaffected Piety; in Conſequence of which, he was while he lived, a Father to the Poor,; a ſincere Friend to every true Chriſtian; and highly honored the zealous Promoters of the Redeemer's Cauſe; a conſtant Attendant on divine Worſhip, both in Public & Private; and walked in all the Commandments and Ordinances of the LORD Blameleſs. And when he came to take his Leave of Time, did it with Compoſure, and chearfully ſubmitted to the Will of Heaven.

Sic nobis contingat vivere, ſicque mori.

[illegible] Penſive, o'ercome, the Muſe hung down her Head,
And heard the fatal News, the Friend is dead!
He's dead—O vaſt, unutterable Woe!
Gone, gone forever, from theſe Seats below:
Ah! fainting, pale, ebbs out his quiv'ring breath,
Seymour the Great, & Good, deſcends to Death.
But in gay Bow'rs, that crown th' eternal Hills
His ſpotleſs Soul in deathleſs Pleaſure dwells.
He viſits now no more this dull Abode,
But talks with Angels, and beholds his GOD.
Now ceaſe, the flowing Tears, the fun'ral
Strains,
Let joyful Sounds revive the vocal Plains.
What tho' the Body in the Tomb be laid,
Ghoſtly and Breathleſs in the awful Shade?
Mean Time the heav'nly Muſe embalms his Name
And gives him up, conſign'd to endleſs Fame:
Theſe faithful Lines, his Abſence ſtill bemoan,
And this Inſcription grace his mould'ring Stone.

Beneath this Stone, confin'd reduc'd to Duſt,
Lies what was once religious, wiſe and juſt.
Steady and warm, in Liberty's Defence,
True to his Country, loyal to his Prince:
In Friendſhip faithful, gen'rous to deſert,
A head enlighten'd and a glowing Heart."

Capt. Captain Miller from St. Euſtatia, adviſes, that a ſmall, coaſting ſchooner, of and from New-London for Boſton, loaded with pork, rye, &c. having been blown off the coaſt, was arrived at that iſland; where the Captain diſpoſed of his cargo, took in a load of Melaſſes, and had ſailed again for N. ¶ Mr. Moderation's Piece is in the laſt Page.

TO THE PRINTER.

The Following was written by a Lover of good Order and good Men, immediately upon the Appearance of the Piece to which it refers; but the Writer, on ſecond Thought hoped the Author of Plaind Facts, would on his own Reflection be convinced that the Tendency of his Performance was not to promote the Cauſe of Truth and Virtue, and would therefore be ſtill; and deſigned never to have made it public, but the contrary having happened, if you pleaſe to inſert it in your next, it will oblige (I can't ſay more than) One of your conſtant Readers, and am as confident it will do the Public no Harm, as that it will do that Author no Good, to whom I wiſh no greater Ill, than a better Temper, and leſs Zeal, ſave in a good Cauſe.

And am, Sir, your Humble Servant,

THOMAS MODERATION.

A Piece appear'd in your Paper laſt Week, ſign'd, Plaind Facts, obviouſly tending to divert the good People of this Colony from an upright and ſteady Attention to the Principles which ought ever to govern their Conduct, in the important Tranſaction of electing their Rulers viz. A ſacred Regard to the Abilities, Integrity and Merit of the Elected in Infinite Preference to any other Conſiderations. Theſe Principles have hitherto prevailed, and their Conſequences been happy beyond Deſcription. The Privileges and Liberties we enjoy faithfully and wiſely exerciſed, are of incomparable Worth and ineſtimable Value. The Felicity which has hitherto attended the virtuous Improvement of them, contraſted with the ſmall Degree or Shadow of Liberty, that almoſt any of the Children of Men enjoy, the abject Slavery under which almoſt the whole World groans, and the infinite Evils and complicated Wretchedneſs inſeparably connected with it, ſhows their Importance in the moſt ſtrong and irreſiſtable Light. Our Liberties have many and potent Enemies abroad, and too many not very remote (alaſs! the Cruelty of our Countrymen who would deſtroy them! they know not what Spirit they are of) our ſteady and virtuous Uſe of which are almoſt the only likely Means to preſerve them; and as a late Writer obſerves, The Stability and Property of a Government muſt primarily depend upon Freedom and the Security of Freedom can only be in public Virtue. With what Concern then ſhould we look upon every Thing that tends to undermine public Virtue, and ſuch undoubtedly is the Piece above refered to; tho' I do not believe the Gentleman, whoever was the Author intended, or that his Heart meant this: But as no One is always wiſe, I doubt not, it inadvertently eſcaped him. Much might be ſaid of the Danger of ſuch like Things, and of the Heighth to which ſmall Beginnings often grow, but truſt it is needleſs. I am not prejudiced, have no Party Deſign to ſerve; I love my Country, I love its Intereſt, its Peace and Liberties, with all my Soul. If there is Danger from Attempts unduly to influence the free People of this Colony, &c. I beg their Attention to the Voice of Truth, and their Caution againſt ſuch ill Deſigns, and earneſtly exhort the Attempters to leave of Faction & Cabal before 'tis medled with. It is greatly to be wiſhed that no One would publicly or privately purſue a Plan pregnant with ſuch fatal Miſchief to ourſelves, and all Poſterity; but ſhould ſuch a Thing be further attempted, I truſt and hope the ſteadfaſt Virtue, Integrity and Senſe of the People will abhor the foul Deſign, avoid the treacherous Baits, and ſhame the Author into Repentance and Amendment. Believe me, my Friends, Bleſſing and Curſing are before us, Happineſs and Miſery are in our own Power, a ſteadfaſt Adherence to, and Perſeverence in Integrity and Virtue is our political Salvation. If we forget theſe Foundation Principles, if we let go this Anchor, or loſe Sight of theſe glorious Luminaries, e'er we are aware, we ſhall have nothing but Caprice, Fancy, Prejudice and wandring Stars to guide our moſt important Tranſactions of a public Nature, and on which our Safety depends; and with ſuch Pilots, Ten Thouſand to One, but our Bark is overſet in this ſtormy Seaſon. No Kingdom or State was ever undone till it loſt its Virtue; none ever did, or will long ſurvive that Loſs, and none did ever loſe it, but by Degrees, obſta Principiis, reſiſt Beginnings, is a cautionary Maxim of Truth and vaſt Importance. We have thus far got happily along while we have acted unbiaſed and unprejudiced, without plotting and deſign, the Dictates of Reaſon, Judgment and Conſcience. Ceaſe then ye who would attempt to lead, decoy or divert us from the Principles which have hitherto guided to Happineſs; as ſuch Attempts muſt proceed from the real, if not intentional Enemies of their Country, and will be in the Eſteem of all who love it, big with fatal Diſeaſe and endleſs Miſchief.

To the PRINTER.

SIR,

I Lately took Notice of a Piece in your Paper, deſigned as a Caution againſt Calumny and Miſrepreſentation, which (in the Writer's and other's Opinion) had of late, flagrantly appeared, in ſeveral Inſtances.———I looked upon ſaid Piece as harmleſs and innocent, and what might do Good, if duly attended to: But, by your laſt, I find it has raiſed no ſmall Uproar, and is violently attacked by three or four Pens of Bravo's, conceited Wits, &c. at once, which occaſioned ſome Wonder in me, till upon thinking a little what ſhould be the Cauſe, I found it's being ſcriptural and ſacerdotal, (Things very terrible to ſome Men) was what ſeemed to give the moſt Offence, and brought on the Writer ſuch a Load of malicious Reſentment and Satyre, &c. And 'tis well the ſacred Oracles, from whence his Quotations are made, eſcaped ſo well. I would adviſe him, for the Future, to be more ſparing, in caſting Pearls before Swine. I apprehend he made a Miſtake in the Matter, which engaged Mr. FREEMAN to ſearch the Records, into which he was probably led, thro' Miſinformation, as I myſelf had been (et humanum eſt Errare) though his Words among us don't neceſſarily imply in this Colony, but may be extended to the Country in general, in which, perhaps ſome ſuch Inſtances might be found, if not in France, of which Country Mr. F. ſeems ſo fond; and from whence 'tis poſſible he might collect his Intelligence, that the grand Treat at New-Haven, was by Special Order from Home; as though that was neceſſarily connected with proclaiming the King. But it may be, if he ſearch the Engliſh Records again, he will find, that either they are Falſe, or he is ſo. I am indeed far from faulting that Tranſaction; but wonder with what Front ſuch Men as partook and approve of that, can ſet themſelves to paint, in ſuch hideous Colours, the trifling Expence at Hartford, in celebrating the Repeal of the Stamp-Act, by Order of the General Aſſembly, though the Deſign is too apparent to be concealed. I think Mr. FREEMAN has little Ground to accuſe the Writer before referred to of Cenſoriouſneſs, in querying after his Motive, or puſhing him on, conſidering whether it was what he profeſſed, when the Contrary, ſeems ſo manifeſt, through his Whole Magiſterial [a Word that may ſuit better than ſacerdotal or motly] Performance.—For has he much Reaſon for his haughty chalenging him, upon his intimating that the Hartford Treat, and School-Houſe Affair was ſet in a falſe and invidious Light by Plaind Facts, when 'tis evident to all Eyes, that had Facts been plainly related, without any laboured Colourings, &c. the Matter would have appeared in a quite different Light——But I wiſh for an End to theſe Conteſts, and that Swords may be beat into Plowſhares, &c.

And am,
Your Friend, &c.
H. L.

Mr. GREEN,

I AM ſurprized to hear an Objection againſt the Freedom of your Preſs, ſince 'tis but a Vehicle neceſſary to convey to the Public, thoſe Things which every free Subject has Right to—Being capable of ſpeaking, writing and printing, ſhall we ſilently, with the Finger in the Mouth, take for granted, what a few, (and perhaps deſigning) Men ſhall ſecretly ſuggeſt to be the fundamental Principles of Government, and tamely ſubmit to paſſive Obedience and Non-reſiſtance! Or, ſhall we with an open Frankneſs, place in public View, the Conduct of certain Candidates, that all with their own Eyes may ſee, and judge for themſelves, in Matters in which each Individual, being Part of the Whole, muſt neceſſarily be concerned? I don't mean to ſignify, that a common News-paper is to be made Uſe of for People to ſpit their Malice & Venom at one another; but that if any One therein can inform the Ignorant, open the Eyes of the Blind, awake the inconſiderate and ſtupid, in a diſpaſſionate and humane Manner, it muſt not only be allowable, but beſt.—For Inſtance, How ſhall three Quarters of the Freemen in this Colony, know who are the moſt proper Perſons for civil Rulers, not having any perſonal Acquaintance? Muſt it not be by Information?—But how ſhall they be informed? privately or publicly? If privately, what a pretty Opening for Prejudice, undiſcover'd, to exert itſelf in! But if publicly, then every Reader has an Opportunity to expoſe any Falſhoods made Uſe of.——The more true and unprejudiced the Repreſentation of Men thought of, or nominated for Poſts of Conſequence is, the greater the Probability that a Choice made out of them, will be for the Intereſt of the Whole. The better the Phyſician is inform'd of the Conſtitution of his Patient, and the Nature of the Diſeaſe, the more likely he is to adminiſter to Advantage.—Strange! that any One ſhould deſire to make Dupes of his own Species, and to turn Free Agents into Machines, and thereby ſubvert even moral Government, and that which renders a Man capable of Rewards, and denominates him Praiſe-worthy.———Ought the Authors of Plain Facts, Juſtice, A. Z. Five Queries, Solomon's Addreſs, Freeman, &c. to be loaded with hard Names, for exhibiting to the Public, thoſe [illegible] which their Antagoniſts have [illegible] Right and Opportunity to confute.——If the Suggeſtions of thoſe Gentlemen are true, what Harm is done? And if they are falſe, why is it not made manifeſt? Invention appears to have been racked; and we find no Production but Aſſertions, hard Words, Texts of Scripture and Anathemas: If an after Birth can be more to the Purpoſe, the Public would be glad to know it.

PACIFICUS.

To the PRINTER.

SIR,

Pleaſe to inſert in your next Paper, the following Queſtions, and you will doubtleſs gratify a Number of your conſtant Readers.

Queſt. 1. WAS it not rational, juſt and right for Connecticut, and this North-America, upon the Knowledge of the Stamp-Act, to wake up to Purpoſe, and take all lawful and juſt Meaſures to ſecure their natural and civil Rights, Liberties and Privileges?

Q. 2. Is it not of greater Weight and Importance (as ſacred Rights are more worth than civil) for this Colony to wake up to Purpoſe, to know, underſtand and ſecure, by all ſcriptural Meaſures, their ſacred Liberties, and juſt Rights of Conſcience, if invaded or denyed?

Q. 3. Is the Laws in this Colony called Eccleſiaſtical; which dictate and preſcribe in Matters of Conſcience——as may be ſeen in the Colony Law Book Page 139, 16[illegible]66, 169, 232: a Denial or Abridgment of the ſacred Rights of Conſcience in thoſe Things that reſpects divine Worſhip, which belong to God, and the Conſcience only?

Q. 4. Has Civil Rulers, as ſuch (who are God's Miniſters in the Civil Kingdom) any Right to enact penal Laws in religious Matters, that hurts no Man's Civil Property?

Q. 5. Ought not all Caſes to be judged according to their own Nature? And in Order thereto, muſt not civil Rulers change their civil Conſtitution, and ſet as a ſpiritual Court, in Order to enact and ſay who is qualified to vote in chooſing a Miniſter, (which is, or ſhould be a ſpiritual Man) or who ſhall be a Church of Chriſt, and who not; or who ſhall be a Miniſter of Chriſt, and who not; and where they ſhall have Preaching, and where not; or meet to worſhip God, or where not?

Q. 6. Is it poſſible for One that is a true Proteſtant or Chriſtian, who holds the free Liberty of Conſcience, to remain conſiſtent with himſelf, and yet hold to a religious Conſtitution eſtabliſhed by penal Laws?

Q. 7. Was it not to eſcape a religious Conſtitution, and to enjoy the free Liberty of Conſcience, in religious Matters, that our Forefathers came into, and planted this Land and Colony?

Theſe Queſtions doubtleſs ought to take the cloſe Attention of all that are rightly concerned for the beſt Good, Peace and Tranquility of this Colony: And whoever is ſo diſpoſed to enter upon a Solution of theſe Queſtions, according to Scripture and Reaſon, will oblige Your's to ſerve,

Who ſubſcribes himſelf,

A True Lover of Liberty, Civil and Sacred, and a Hater of Tyranny of every Kind.

March 25th, 1767.

Mr. GREEN,

SIR,

I Obſerved in your COURANT, of the 9th Inſtant, a Number of Queries, propoſed for public Conſideration, and was in Hopes ſome able Hand would have favoured us with an Anſwer; but was diſappointed on reading yours of the 16th. to find an Attempt of this Kind, without one Reaſon being hinted at to ſhew on what the Author founded his Opinion. I think the Matters contained in thoſe Queries really deſerve a further Conſideration; and therefore deſire the following Anſwers may be inſerted in your next. Yours, &c.

QUERY 1. HATH the Deputy Governor of the Colony of Connecticut, a Right by Charter, to act in the Aſſembly, in the Preſence of the Governor?

Anſwer. 'Tis on many Accounts convenient that the Deputy Governor attend our General Aſſemblies, that he may underſtand the State of public Affairs, and be ready to conduct them, in Caſe of the Governor's Abſence by Sickneſs or otherwiſe; 'tis alſo a Duty for him to give his Advice or Opinion, when there, if aſked, he hath a Sallary of £. 100 per Annum for this Purpoſe. But I humbly conceive he hath no Right to vote or act as a Member of Aſſembly. It muſt be owned, that it hath been uſual for Deputy Governors to claim this Right—all Men are fond of Power—But whoever looks into the Charter will find it to be a Cuſtom againſt Law and ſo void of Courſe. On examining the Charter, I find it expreſsly declared, that the Governor, or in his Abſence the D. Governor, and Six Aſſiſtants, at leaſt; together with ſuch of the Freemen, who ſhall be elected, or deputed thereunto, not exceeding Two from each Place, Town or City, are the General Aſſembly; and have Power to erect Courts, appoint Officers, and enact ſuch Laws, Orders, &c. as they judge neceſſary, for the well-ordering of the Company. The D. Governor not being here mentioned, as a Member of Aſſembly, ſave only in the Abſence of the Governor, can have no Right to act there, while the Commander in Chief is preſent: The Charter doth indeed empower the D. Governor, to call the Aſſembly together in Caſe either of the Governor's Abſence by Reaſon of Sickneſs, or otherwiſe, by his Leave or Permiſſion, but it doth not enable him to act in the Aſſembly, when met, unleſs the Governor be abſent. The Governor, Ex officio, is ſtanding Moderator in the Aſſembly, and he cannot delegate his Authority to Another. 'Tis a ſacred Betruſtment, the Law hath committed unto him. When I look over the Charter, & obſerve that there is not one Syllable in it that empowers the D. Governor to act, the Governor being preſent; I have often wondered how ſuch a Cuſtom ever happened to be introduced. He is not a Councillor, becauſe never choſen to that Office; beſides the Freemen always chuſe Twelve without him; and no Man will venture to ſay that the Aſſembly have a Right to appoint a Thirteenth. I do indeed find, that in the laſt Debenture for the Council, the D. Governor's Name is to be found, and that notwithſtanding his Sallary, he hath drawn Money out of the public Treaſury with Others; but this is an Innovation never heard of before in this Colony. Upon the Whole, I am clearly of Opinion that the D. Governor, hath no legal Right to act as a Member of the Aſſembly, and our admitting of him to do it can never be juſtified by the Charter. And I ſubmit it to the public Conſideration, whether we ought not (at leaſt in Part) to follow the Example of a reſpectable neighbouring Province, who by the Vote of both Houſes have determined that the D. Governor hath no Right to a Place at the Council Board. It may be objected that we need the Counſel and Voice of the D. Governor, and eſpecially at this difficult Day—be it ſo—his Advice we may have, without his acting, but if he muſt act, let him be elected a Councillor, as other Members of that Honourable Board are.

Query 2. If by Permiſſion, the D. Governor does act in the Preſence of the Governor, by voting in the Appointment of any Man to an important Office, is the Appointment void?

I anſwer, if in this Caſe the Deputy Governor give the caſting Voice, the Appointment is undoubtedly void. But if there be a Majority of Votes, without counting his, the Caſe is not quite ſo clear; on this latter Suppoſition, I will only ſay, that if our County or Superior Court ſhould call in any Perſon, not appointed or authoriſed by Law, to act with them in their Judicial Capacity, we have a Set of Gentlemen at the Bar, who would move in Arreſt of Judgment and aſſign this as a Reaſon.

With Regard to the 3d Query, Viz. Whether the Governor, or any of the Council have Right to be neuter in Matters that properly come within their Sphere?

I anſwer, That as the Governor and Councillors have taken upon themſelves a ſacred Betruſtment, and are under the Obligation of a ſolemn Oath, at all Times to act for the beſt Good of the Government; it hath always heretofore been held, that they were ſtrictly bound to act in all Matters that properly come before them; nor hath it ever (unleſs of late) been deemed a ſufficient Excuſe for doing a Duty, that poſſibly they might thereby expoſe themſelves to the Reſentment of a Party. Sed tempora mutantur, &c.

With regard to the 4th and 5th Queries, it muſt be admitted, that 'tis a very vile Thing indeed, if Men promiſe, and deſignedly do not perform; or if by their crafty Influence they ſtrive to ſubvert any proper Meaſures of Government, for the Sake of pleaſing a Friend; but I truſt we have never yet been curſed with Men in Places of public Authority and Truſt who are capable of acting ſuch a wicked Part as this.

If theſe Anſwers are not ſatisfactory, I hope ſome abler Hand will favour us with better. I am Yours, &c.

The Earl of Shelburne and Egmont are to be created Dukes of Ireland which is the Reaſon that induced the Marquis of Kildare to accept of that Dignity, that he might preſerve the precedency of his family as premier Duke.

An almoſt total Change in the preſent Adminiſtration is expected to take place after the holidays.

Nine of the unhappy wretches [illegible] were confined in Glouceſter [illegible] for riots, have received ſentence of Death. And it was a moſt lamentable ſpectacle to hear and ſee the lamentations and diſtracted behaviour of their miſerable families, who flocked round the judges carriages when they were leaving the city.

A new treaty of commerce is on the carpet between the court of London and Liſbon, by which 'tis ſaid much greater privileges will be granted to the Subjects of Great-Britain than they enjoyed in conſequence of any former treaty.

They write from Berlin, that the Pruſſian miniſter at the court of Warſaw, has received orders from the King his maſter, to act in the affair of the Proteſtants in Poland in ſtrict concert with the Ruſſian miniſter.

January 1. Governor Palliſer has preſented to the miniſtry a plan for building a new town on the Iſle of Bois, on the Labradore coaſt, which it is thought will be carried into execution the enſuing year.

The new arrangement is ſettled; the Earl of Northington retires; the Earl of Chatham as miniſter, takes the preſidentſhip of the council, which will reſtore that board to its conſtitutional importance; Earl Gower is to be Lord Privy Seal; Earl of Hillſborough to be firſt Lord of the Admiralty; Sir Edward Hawke to be created a Peer; Lord Weymouth to be joint poſt-maſter; General Conway goes to the military line; Charles Townſhend, Eſq; to be Secretary of State; Lord North to be Chancellor of the Exchequer; and Richard Rigby, Eſq; to be joint Paymaſter. This will eſtabliſh a firm, able, and laſting Adminiſtration.

It is ſaid that the honorable Eaſt India Company will be required to pay four Millions for renewing their Charter, and for granting and confirming to them the entire property of their late conqueſts in the Eaſt-Indies, in order to make good the vaſt expence the government has been at, in aſſiſting them with men, ſhips of war, &c.

NEW-YORK, March 26.

Captain David Maſterton arrived here laſt Thurſday Night in ten Weeks from the Streights: He ſays moſt of the Ports there, have been well ſupplied with Wheat, &c. from the Baltic, and that not one Veſſel had arrived in the Streights from America that he knew of, when he left that Place; the higheſt Price for the beſt Wheat being from 4s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. Sterl. per Buſhel.

Capt. Lawrence arrived here on Monday laſt in nine Weeks and three Days from Cowes: He brings no News; has been ſome Time on the Coaſt, and on the 10th inſt. ſpoke with a Sloop, Capt. Ventris, from Granada for New-Haven.

Laſt Thurſday Morning, the Pole erected as ſacred to LIBERTY, on the City Parade, by a great Number of the principal Inhabitants of this City, and called the LIBERTY POLE, was found cut down by ſome evil-minded Perſons unknown, whereupon another was immediately erected in its Stead, and caſed below with iron, to prevent ſuch another Action; on which ſeveral Attempts is ſaid to have been made ſince; but on Monday Evening laſt, a Number of the Soldiers armed, were ſeen around it, 'tis ſaid with a Ladder, to fell it above the Iron Work: When many of the Sons of Liberty to[illegible] the Alarm; and it is more than probable if ſome of the Military Officers had not appeared, and commanded off the Soldiers, there would have been bloody Work.——This Pole has been cut down ſeveral Times before, by Perſons who could never be diſcovered, and who could not have the leaſt Temptation to ſuch a malicious Job, their being neither Pleaſure, Profit nor Honor in doing it, and can be done only by ſuch as are actuated by an infernal Diſpoſition, and are quite Volunteers to Satan, to ſerve him without Fee or Reward. As Mankind were made for Society, every Perſon who wilfully annoys or diſturbs that Society without any Pretence, but purely Evil, ought to be held in the utmoſt Deteſtation, as a common Enemy: And as in the preſent Caſe, the cutting this Poſt down, can only be done with a Deſign to affront all the Sons of Liberty in this Place, the Perpetrators would do well to conſider the Conſequences, let their Motives for doing it be what it may: for they may know that ſuch a Body of People who would not yield to be enſlaved by the moſt auguſt Body on Earth, will not tamely ſubmit to ſuch a mean, low-liv'd Inſult on their Liberty as this is:—and if ever the Perpetrator is diſcovered, he may be almoſt aſſured New-York will be too hot to hold him long.

By Capt. Richardſon who arrived here Yeſterday, in 33 Days from the Grenades, we hear that the rebellious Negroes who had fled to the Mountains in that Iſland, were entirely ſuppreſſed; the Ringleaders puniſhed, and the others properly diſpoſed of.—He informs us of a very remarkable Trial in that Place, wherein a French Gentleman and his Son had been tried for the Death of a Cooper, ſuppoſed to be murdered on board a Veſſel, but that they were both acquitted. The Cooper had, it is ſaid, diſcovered ſome Smuggling of the Frenchmen, by which as it was imagined he loſt his Life. This may induce Smugglers to be a little more free and bold, but at the ſame Time it may not be amiſs to obſerve, that they may have a higher Tribunal to appear before hereafter, eſpecially when Murder is the Conſequences of their illegal Attachments.

On Friday laſt two Proclamations were iſſued by his Excellency Sir Henry Moore, Bart. our Governor; notifying His Majeſty's Royal Proclamations of the 7th of October 1763. One of which is ſtrictly forbidding all Perſons whatſoever, from purchaſing any Lands from the Indians within this Colony without Licence firſt had and obtained for that Purpoſe:—The other ſtrictly forbidding all Perſons from trading with the Indians without Licence for that Purpoſe: which Licences would be granted on proper Application:—And all Perſons infringing thoſe His Majeſty's Royal Proclamations, may expect to anſwer it at their Peril, with the utmoſt Rigour of the Law.

Burns, of the 52d Regiment, walking into Town, with a large Club in his Hand; upon his meeting Mr. Malcom he ſtruck his Horſe, and overſet his Cariole; Mr. Malcom aſk'd him what he meant by ſuch Uſage, to which Mr. Burns made anſwer, that he would Finiſh him, and immediately ſtruck Mr. Malcom in the Head, and by the Stroak broke his Club; but notwithſtanding Mr. Malcom and his Daughter's aſking him his Reaſons for ſo barbarous an Aſſault, he ſtruck him a ſecond Time, which knock'd Mr. Malcom down, and Mr. Burns continued knocking at Mr. Malcom, with the Remains of the Club, until he ſaw two Men come up, upon which he immediately went away.

From Felix Farley's BRISTOL JOURNAL, October 18.

SIR,

I flatter myſelf, that the following Extract from "An Account of the Giants lately diſcovered, in a Letter to a Friend," will be entertaining to your Readers; and by inſerting it, you will oblige, Your's, &c. S. G.

AFTER humourouſly reciting the particular Reports of Captain Byron's Diſcovery of the Patagonians, the Author proceeds to conſider what political Advantages may accrue from it to the Britiſh Nation:

"You will be impatient, ſays his Correſpondent, to know if Capt. Byron took Poſſeſſion of the Country for the Crown of England, and to have his Majeſty's Stile run, GEORGE the Third, by the Grace of GOD, King of Great Britain, France, Ireland, and the Giants! You will aſk why ſome of their Women were not brought away to mend our Breed, which all good Patriots aſſert has been dwindling for ſome Hundreds of Years: and whether there is any Gold or Diamonds in the Country?

As ſoon as they are properly Civilized, that is ENSLAVED, due Care will undoubtedly be taken to ſpecify in their Charter, that theſe Giants ſhall be ſubject to the Parliament of Great-Britain, and ſhall not wear a Sheep Skin that is not legally Stampt. A Riot of Giants would be very unpleaſant in an Infant Colony. But Experience, I hope, will teach us, that the invaluable Liberties of Engliſhmen are not to be wantonly ſcattered all over the Globe. Let us enjoy them ourſelves, but they are too ſacred to be communicated. If Giants once get an Idea of Freedom, they will ſoon be our Maſters inſtead of our Slaves. But what Pretenſions can they have to Freedom? They are as diſtinct from the common Species as Blacks, and by being larger, may be more uſeful. I would adviſe our prudent Merchants to employ them in the Sugar Trade; they are capable of more Labour, but even then they muſt be worſe treated, if poſſible, than our black Slaves are; they muſt be lamed and maimed, and have their Spirits well broken, or they may become dangerous. This too will give a little Reſpite to Africa, where we have half exhauſted the human, I mean, the Black Breed by that wiſe Maxim of our Planters, that if a Slave lives four Years, he has earned his Purchaſe-money, conſequently you may afford to work him to Death in that Time.

The Mother Country is not the firſt, but ought to be the ſole Object of our political Conſiderations. If we once begin to extend the Idea of the Love of our Country, it will embrace the Univerſe, and conſequently annihilate all Notion of our Country. The Romans, ſo much the Object of modern Admiration, were with Difficulty perſwaded to admit even the Reſt of Italy to be their Countrymen. The true Patriots never regarded any Thing without the Walls of Rome except their own Villas, as their Country. Every Thing was done for immortal Rome, and it was immortal Rome that did every Thing. Conquered Nations, which to them anſwered to diſcovered Nations with us, for they conquered as faſt as they diſcovered, were always treated accordingly: and it is remarkable that two Men, equally famous for their Eloquence, have been the only Two that ever had the Weakneſs to think, that conquered Countries were entitled to all the Bleſſings of the Mother-Country. Cicero treated Sicily and Cilicia as tenderly as the Diſtrict of Arpinum, and I doubt it was the Folly of that Example that miſled his too exact Imitator on a late Occaſion. However, the Giants muſt be impreſſed with other Ideas - Bleſs us, if like that Pigmy Old Oliver, they ſhould come to think the Speaker's Mace a Bauble!

What have we to do with America, but to conquer, enſlave, and make it tend to the Advantage of our Commerce? Shall the nobleſt Rivers in the World roll for Savages? Shall Mines teem with Gold for the Natives of the Soil? And ſhall the World produce any Thing but for England, France & Spain? It is enough that the Overflowings of Riches in thoſe three Countries are every ten Years waſted in Germany.

Still, my political Friend, I am not for occupying Patagonia, as we did Carolina, Virginia, &c. Such might be the Politics of Queen Elizabeth's Days. But modern Improvements are wiſer. If the Giants in Queſtion are Maſters of a rich and flouriſhing Empire, I think they ought to be put under their Majeſties, a Weſt-Indian Company; the Directors of which may retail out a ſmall Portion of their imperial Revenues to the Proprietors, under the Name of a Dividend. This is an excellent Scheme of Government totally unknown to the Ancients. I can but think how poor Livy or Tacitus would have been hampered in giving an Account of ſuch an Imperium in Imperio. Caſimirus Alius Caunus (for they latiniz'd every proper Name, inſtead of delivering it as uncouthly pronounced by their Soldiers and Sailors) would have ſounded well enough: But Dividends, Diſcounts, India Bonds, &c. were not made for the Majeſty of Hiſtory. But I am wandering from my Subject; tho' while I am talking of the Stocks and Funds, I could chalk out a very pretty new South-Sea Scheme, a propos to the Patagonians. It would not ruin above half the Nation, and would make the Fortunes of ſuch induſtrious Gentlemen as during the Want of a War in Germany, cannot turn Commiſſaries."

This Writer proceeds further to remark, that many perhaps will think, that this Race of Giants (peaceable and harmleſs as they are ſaid to be) ſhould be exterminated, and their Country Colonized; but he rather adviſes us to let them live, becauſe of the great Uſe we may make of them as Slaves, and has no Objection to our importing ſome few of them for the Sake of mending our Breed; but he would by no Means come into any Project where Propagation is not concerned. For "Ireland, ſays he, is already kept in a State of Humiliation. We check their Trade, and do not allow them to avail themſelves of the beſt ſituated Harbours in the World. Matrimony is their only Branch of Commerce unreſtricted, and it would be a moſt crying Injuſtice to reſtrict that too.

In Truth, we are not ſufficiently acquainted with theſe Goliahs to decide peremptorily on their Properties. No Account of them has been yet tranſmitted to the Royal Society: But it would be exceedingly adviſeable that a Jury of Matrons ſhould be ſent in the next Embarkation to make a Report; and old Women for old Women, I would truſt to the Analyſis of the Matrons, in Preference to that of the Philoſophers."

He concludes with the following merry Conjecture concerning the Poetry of ſuch great Men: "Their Poetry, ſays he, will be another Object of Inquiry, & if their Minds are at all in Proportion to their Bodies, muſt abound in the moſt lofty Images, in the true Sublime. Oh! if we could come at an Heroic Poem, penned by a Giant! we ſhould ſee other Images than our puny Writers of Romance have conceived; and a little different from the cold Tale of a late notable Author, who did not know better what to do with his Giant than to make him grow till he ſhook his own Caſtle about his own Ears."

SUPPLIMENT to the Connecticut Courant, No. 118.

BOSTON, March 19.

TUESDAY laſt His Excellency the Governor, by and with the Advice of his Majeſty's Council, was pleaſed to iſſue a Proclamation, appointing Thurſday the Ninth of April next, to be obſerved as a Day of general Faſting and Prayer throughout this Province.

We hear that the General aſſembly laſt Week made Choice of his Honor Lieutenant Governor Hutchinſon, the Honorable William Beattie, Eſq; and Captain Edward Sheaffe, Commiſſaries on the Part of this Government, to ſettle the Line with the Commiſſaries from New-York, between the two Provinces.

We alſo hear that they have made Choice of Dennis Deberdt, Eſq; of London, as a proper Perſon to whom the Report of the Committee and the Papers accompanying the ſame, reſpecting the Boundary between the Province of Maine and New-Hampſhire, may be ſent.

Tueſday laſt being the Anniverſary of the Feaſt of St. PATRICK, an elegant Entertainment was prepared at the Houſe of Moſes Bennet, Eſq; for a large Number of Gentlemen, who met on that Occaſion to celebrate the Day; among a Variety of Toaſts, expreſſive of Loyalty and a juſt Senſe of our happy Conſtitution, were the following, viz.

The King, may his Reign be long and happy—The Queen and Royal Family—The Sons of St. Patrick wheresoever diſperſed—The Mother of St. Patrick, and of all other Saints—Old Ireland and Proſperity to it—The Friends of Ireland—The immortal Memory of the glorious King William—The Revolution in 1688—The firſt of July 1691—The firſt of Auguſt 1714—The 16th of April 1746—May we never want a Williamite to kick the A—e of a Jacobite.—The Memory of our brave Country Men who ſo gallantly defended Derry againſt King James, preferring the worſt of Deaths (Famine) to a Popiſh Stuart, Braſs Money, and Wooden Shoes.—The Memory of the Iniſkilliners who preferred Death in Jack Boots to Slavery in wooden Shoes——The 17th of December 1753—The Land we live in, and Proſperity to it—Duke of Grafton—Lord Chancellor—Marquis of Rockingham—The five diſſenting Lords——May this Country ever ſtand diſtinguiſhed for Loyalty to the preſent Family on the Throne, and a firm Attachment to our ineſtimable Conſtitution—May the Enemies of America never eat the Bread, drink the Drink, or kiſs the Fair Ladies of it—The Friends of America in the Britiſh Parliament—Lord Chatham—Mr. Conway—Col. Barre—The 18th of March 1766—May Great-Britain and her Colonies ever be united in Friendſhip as they are in Intereſt—More Induſtry and leſs Pride to the Colonies—Liberty to thoſe who dare contend for it—May Liberty never want Friends to ſupport it—May every Attempt on the Liberties of the People of America, prove abortive, and a Halter the Reward of the Projector—The glorious Excluſioners, Lord Ruſſell at their Head—The Memory of the five excluded Members, Hampden, Pim, Hollis, Haſelrig and Stroud May his Majeſty's Virtues deſcend with his Crown to the lateſt Poſterity.

The whole was conducted with great Mirth, Decency, and good Order.

We hear from Harpſwell, in Caſco Bay, that on the 26th of February laſt as two Women and two Lads were endeavouring to croſs a River in a Canoe, the Wind being high, and the Tide rapid, the Canoe overſet, whereby they were all drowned.—A Perſon nigh on Shore endeavoured to relieve them, though without Effect, and much Danger eſcaped ſuffering the ſame Cataſtrophe. No Man knows his Time. One of the Lads was Son to one of the Women, and what adds to the Affliction, the ſame Woman has left ſeven Children, one a ſucking Infant.

Laſt Thurſday a Child about 18 Months old, Daughter to one Jackſon, at the South Part of the Town, being left near the Chimney, its Cloaths catch'd on Fire, and burnt the Child in ſuch a terrible Manner, that it died next Day.

We hear from Newport that laſt Week a Negro Woman was tried there for the Murder of her Baſtard Child, of which ſhe plead guilty, and received Sentence of Death.

One Year has now elapſed ſince our moſt gracious Sovereign was pleaſed to ſign the Bill which had paſſed both Houſes of Parliament, for repealing an Act of Parliament laying a Stamp Duty in the American Colonies, and Yeſterday being the Anniverſary of that happy Event, the ſame was celebrated by the free and loyal People the Inhabitants of this Metropolis: In the Morning that venerable Elm the TREE OF LIBERTY, was ornamented with a Variety of Colors, as were alſo the Tops of ſeveral Houſes: The firing of Guns continued moſt of the Forenoon: In the Afternoon, in Conſequence of a Vote of the Town, the Select Men made Proviſion for an Entertainment, and a great Number of the principal Gentlemen met at Faneuil Hall, where the Toaſts as follows were drank with loud Acclamations at each Toaſt: Before Sun-ſet the Company retired, and the Hall was handſomely illuminated in the Evening, as was alſo the Bunch of Grapes Tavern, and ſeveral other Houſes, but eſpecially the Tree of Liberty ſhone with great Splendor and Brilliancy, being adorned with 108 Lanthorns, beautifully placed: This drew as great a Concourſe of People in the Streets as ſcarce ever was ſeen; who all appeared gay and chearful, and every Demonſtration of Joy was diſcovered on this Occaſion.

1. The King—2. The Queen and Royal Family—3. The Parliament of Great-Britain—4. His Majeſty's Miniſtry—5. Earl Chatham——6. The Lord Chancellor—7. General Conway—8. Duke of Grafton—9. Marquis of Rockingham—10. The Chancellor of the Exchequer—11. General Howard—12. The Five Diſſenting Lords——13. Colonel Barre—14. The Patrons of the Britiſh Colonies—15. The Lords of Trade—16. Sir William Meredith—17. The Lords of the Admiralty—18. The Navy and Army—19 The Extention of Trade and Commerce—20. The united and inſeparable Intereſts of Great Btitain and her Colonies—21. May the true Intereſts of Great Britain and her Colonies be never hidden from their Eyes—22. Proſperity to the Province———23. May the 18th of March the Day the Stamp Act was repealed be ever had in Memory by all true Britons and Americans.—24. Proſperity to the Sons of Liberty—25. Proſperity to the Town of Boſton.

THE Connecticut COURANT; AND THE WEEKLY ADVERTISER.

March 26th, 1767.

Mr. GREEN,
SIR,

In Hopes of doing ſome Good to the Public, in my Day and Generation, I have here caſt in my Mite—And as I cannot but hope it may anſwer ſome good Purpoſes, at leaſt; muſt deſire you to give the annexed Piece (though but poorly compoſed) a Place in your next Paper, which will oblige at leaſt ſome of your Cuſtomers, as well as your humble Servant,

BELLANDER.

To the FREEMEN of CONNECTICUT.

GENTLEMEN,

AS I am not a conſtant Reader of this Paper, I may be miſtaken——but, among the various Pieces which have been lately publiſhed, relative to the Choice of our Rulers, I do not remember to have noticed any Thing in Regard to the Freeman's Oath—One Paragraph whereof I beg Leave to inſert, which is in the following Words, viz.

——"And whenſoever you ſhall give "your Vote, or Suffrage, touching any "Matter which concerns this Colony, being called thereto, you will give it as in "your CONSCIENCE you ſhall judge may "conduce to the beſt Good of the Same, "without Reſpect of Perſons, or Favor of "any Man, &c."

Now if any Regard is to be had to this Part of ſaid Oath, of what Significance is the Paper War which ſeems to be commenced between Mr. Plaind Facts and his Antagoniſts? Might it not be prudent for them to come to a Capitulation, without any more Expence of Powder? But if no Regard is to be paid to the above-mentioned Paragraph; if CONSCIENCE has Nothing to do in theſe Matters, pray let them go on:—Let the brave Combatants exert their ultimum poſſe to increaſe the Number of their Forces on either Side; nay, let us all be alert; let us briſkly fall in, upon one Side or the other, and ſhew ourſelves Heroes in the Cauſe. If this be conſiſtent with good Policy, at once let us accept the Challenge!—ſet the Battle in Array!—Eaſt* Side againſt Weſt Side; Weſt Side againſt Eaſt Side!—Let every Thing paſs Muſter, that can hold up a Hand that can count One, and then try who ſhall gain the Victory.

In the Freeman's Meeting, let ſome unſuſpected Pimp, with his Pockets loaden with Votes, go round—Let ſome party-ſpirited Zealot, careful watch the Votes, and if he ſee poor, honeſt, ſimple Jonathan, about to caſt in his Vote for a Man that is not of our Party, catch him by the Sleeve, tell him he's diſtracted to vote for that Man, and at once furniſh him with a better Vote.

But for all theſe Things, may we not expect to be called to an Account! Is this the proper Uſe of the glorious Privileges of our Charter? Is this the Way in which we have any Reaſon to expect to retain thoſe Privileges? Is this conſiſtent with good Policy? Is it conſiſtent with chriſtian Morality and a good CONSCIENCE? Beyond all Diſpute, methinks it is not.—Undoubtedly every Freeman, when about to give in his Vote, ought ſeriouſly to conſider, that he has, with his Hand lifted towards Heaven, ſolemnly Sworn, by the ever-living GOD, that when he gives his Vote touching any Matter which concerns this Colony, he will give it as in his CONSCIENCE he ſhall judge may conduce to the beſt Good of the ſame, without RESPECT of Perſons, or FAVOR of any Man.—But do we give it thus?—do we act conſiſtent with this Oath, when we give our Vote for our particular Friend?—becauſe he lives at Ramoth Gilead, or Eaſt or Weſt of the great River?—Or becauſe he is of our Party; or of this, that, or the other Denomination?—or becauſe we imagine ourſelves wronged out of our juſt Proportion, according to the Rules laid down by Mr. Plaind Facts?—or becauſe we think, that altho' a Blunder has been committed, yet to rectify the ſame, would only be to make another Blunder?—Methinks the Rule of Three Reverſe will hardly anſwer in the preſent Caſe. I rather think the Dictates of CONSCIENCE to be by far the better Rule. This, if well followed, will not lead us into any Hot-headed, Party-ſpirited Meaſures, nor ſuffer us to be prejudiced in Favor of either Side of the River. I cannot think our Colony too large for one entire Government as yet——what it may be, Time only will diſcover: But, at preſent methinks it ought not to be divided. Union is Daughter of Heaven, the Miſtreſs of Power, the Mother of Peace, the Siſter of Harmony and good Order, and the Band of Society. O! that this darling Object of my Affections, might once more be found Reſident among the Inhabitants of this happy, thrice happy Colony! and that all Party-ſpirit, that Bane of Society, might be forever baniſhed from among us.

May we never more make light of the Oath that binds us; but conſider it as being of too ſacred a Nature to be trifled with. May we all follow the Dictates of Conſcience, in the Choice of our Rulers, together with the beſt Intelligence we can get, if in any Caſe we happen to be deſtitute of perſonal Acquaintance with the Man for whom we give our Vote. And that we may ſtill be favoured with good Rulers, is the great Deſire.

BELLANDER.

To every honeſt Freeman of the Colony of Connecticut.

GENTLEMEN,

AS your Meeting for the Choice of your Rulers is at Hand, I cannot but put you in Mind of the terrible Exceſs moſt of us run into laſt Year, by the Influence of a heated Zeal and Party-Spirit, raiſed and excited by a few factious Men, under pretended Principles of Liberty. They have carried their Point, and now we feel the bad Effects of it, by having the main Strength of the Authority in the Eaſt. So that ſome of the principal trading Towns are left without an Aſſiſtant, where generally ſpeaking they are moſt wanted. And if we ſuffer our Brethren in the Eaſt thus to carry all before them, the State is in eminent Danger, and there is no knowing where they will ſtop. For my Part I honor and revere ſome Gentlemen in Authority in the Eaſt; and would by no Means have them put out of Place. Yet I am determined they ſhan't one of them have my Vote this Year, becauſe I ſhall only increaſe the Number of their Votes to an enormous Bulk, as we inadvertently did laſt Year, and did them no Good, but ourſelves inconceivable Damage; becauſe the more we increaſed them, the more we ſunk and depreſſed ourſelves, and put down the Gentlemen we gladly would have ſupported. And then again, if we don't vote for the eaſtern Aſſiſtants, they will come in by their own Votes. And all this we can do ſafely, conſiſtent with our Freemen's Oath and a good Conſcience. You will find Nothing in the Laws to counteract this. Wherefore my Advice in the firſt Place is, for every Town ſo far to follow the Example of the Eaſt Side, as to make every Man within the ſame qualified for a Freeman, free of the Corporation. But would not (to gain theſe Points) adviſe them to make any under age, or otherwiſe diſqualified, Free.—Then next I would adviſe them to vote for whom they chuſe for Governor and Deputy-Governor. Then next for that wiſe and good Man who was ſo baſely and ungratefully neglected laſt Year, and who, has ever filled his Place with ſo much true Greatneſs and Honor, The Honorable E—r S—l—n, Eſq; for your firſt Aſſiſtant; unleſs you ſhall think beſt to vote for him whom you chooſe your Governor, for your firſt Aſſiſtant, to ſecure him in the Upper Houſe, if he ſhould miſs the Chair, which I think to be moſt ſafe and prudent.——The next for the Honorable J—n C—ſ—r, Eſq; Next the Honorable B—n Hall. Next the Honorable J. H—m—n, who have all filled their Places in the Upper Houſe with ſo much Honor and Fidelity to the Government, that it would be a Piece of perfect Phrenſy to hope to mend the Government by a Change.——If the Freemen ſhould think beſt to change any, I would let our eaſtern Brethren know that I would by no Means follow their Example, and make the River the Boundary of good Men. But would nominate two of the preſent Judges of the H—tf—d C—ty C—rt on that Side the River, who I think as fit Men to ſit in Council, as any in the Lower Houſe without Exception, only the four late Aſſiſtants. I think it would be prudent to let our Brethren in the Eaſt ſee that we reſent their Conduct; and tho' we may ſhow it this Year only in withholding our Votes for their Aſſiſtants; yet it would be well to let them know, that if ever they attempt to involve the Government another Year, they muſt expect to be anſwerable to the Weſt for the Conſequences; as it is evidently demonſtrable that we are vaſtly ſuperior to them in Numbers, Wealth and Lands (not to ſay wiſe Men, that's obvious.)—And the beſt Way, in my Opinion, to ſhow our Reſentment, will be to have the Weſt-Side join in this Plan ſo

Man; vote only for 5 or 6 Aſſiſtants, or 7 or 8, including the Governor, &c. as aforeſaid.——I mean the four Gentlemen laſt Year drop'd, and two or three others, and vote for no more. And don't think your Votes loſt if you vote but for 6 or 8, when you are allowed to vote for 12. The Eaſtern Brethren are numerous enough to make their Part good; and they will bend their whole Effort, Influence and Power as they did laſt Year, to make you believe they are for Liberty, &c. when their plain Deſign is to enſlave the Colony; therefore be ſtrong!—quit yourſelves like Men!—be courageous, and play the Man for your City; and hold faſt your Privileges; and let no Man take your Crown. See that you have your equal Proportion of Aſſiſtants, which is more than 8 to 4, if as good Men can be found, which we cannot heſitate a moment about.——It appears plain, from a late juſt Calculation, that in the twelve laſt Years the four weſtern Counties have gained on the public Liſt, and pay into the Colony Treaſury,

The two Eaſtern Counties have gain'd in the ſame Time, and pay into the public Treaſury but £. 20,850 1 1

Ballance in our Favor £. 238,890 13 2

Then would it not be perfectly juſt and right for us to inſiſt upon having at leaſt 8 Aſſiſtants upon our Side the River to their 4, or at leaſt to have as we had laſt Year, I mean, Governor, D. Governor, &c. which is the moſt favourable for them that they can expect. And great Reſpect ſhould be had to the Gentlemen we appoint our Deputies to ſend to the Aſſembly. We ſhould ſee to it, that they are Men of Truth, fearing God and hating Covetouſneſs, and Friends to the Gentlemen ſo ungratefully neglected laſt Year; who, if they are honeſt Men, I am ſure will be Friends to them,—that we may have a Majority in the Aſſembly to reſtore thoſe two upright and juſt Judges (who ever dared to give a Cauſe againſt the Great and Mighty when it appeared juſt and relieved the Oppreſſed) by their Seats in the Superior Court. And we may juſtly hope for the Aſſiſtance of many or all of our honeſt Brethren in the Eaſt who have not bowed the Knee to Baal.—I think we have a Call in Providence, and it is our Duty as Chriſtians to ſtir up ourſelves againſt every Thing that appears publicly injurious——and I wiſh ſome able Hand would aſſiſt me, and clear the rough Path that I have but juſt ſtruck out.—I am the Public's humble Servant, always ready, with the utmoſt of my poor Ability, to ſerve them when they command.

GENERAL PLAN.

March 18th, 1767.

Mr. GREEN,

Pleaſe to give theſe a Place in your Paper, and it may be of ſome Uſe to the Public.

I Have taken Notice of what Plaind Facts has put into the Prints at one Time and another, and was afraid, upon my firſt ſeeing it, that it would be a Means to ſtir up Strife and Contention; and I ſee it has that Effect; for one and another, have ſince (with too much Warmth, in my Opinion, for the Benefit of their own Cauſe) made Obſervations on it. But not to mention any Particulars on either Side, I would obſerve, that where Strife and Contention are, there is every evil Work; and when any Community get into Contention, they become in ſome Meaſure like the Builders of Babel——A City divided againſt itſelf cannot ſtand: For One to ſay I am for the Weſtern Parts, and another to ſay I am for the Eaſtern Part does it not tend to deſtroy the Whole? Yea, if we get into Parties, and make our Choice out of Strife, do we not abuſe our Privileges? And will not that bring us into Danger of loſing them? Is not the Colony one entire Body? Is not our Intereſt as a Colony, all the ſame? Does it not concern every Freeman, when he comes to act in Choice for Governor, &c. to uſe his Privilege well, and to chooſe for that Man, who, upon the Whole, he really believes in his Conſcience is beſt or moſt fit? Our Privileges are great, and it may be as great as any People in the World—then let us be careful leſt we abuſe them. Honeſt Freemen! [illegible] when we come to chooſe, let us lay aſide all that Plaind Facts has ſaid; and all that has been ſaid on the other Side; and every Man vote without any Party-Spirit; and we need not fear but we ſhall have a good Choice. And if you or I miſs of ſome particular Votes, yet in ſuch a Choice, we ſhall all reſt content.

March 24th, 1767.

Mr. PRINTER,

SIR,

Pleaſe to inſert the following in your next, and you will oblige us.

THE FREEMEN OF THE CORPORATION.

WE obſerve there ſeems to be a great War in your Paper about the next Election, & would be much obliged to you if you would let them Warriors know that, we have heard many excellent Diſcourſes upon the Choice of our Rulers, the which we have not yet forgot; and particularly that Addreſs to us by the Rev'd THOMAS BUCKINGHAM, formerly of Hartford, in the Year 1728, in his Sermon before the Aſſembly, entitled, Moſes and Aaron, p. 38.

" Uſe 3. Let me in a few Words remind the Freemen of this Colony of their Privilege and Duty. The Liberty of electing your own Leaders in Church and State, is certainly a choice Privilege to thoſe who know how to prize and improve it. It is great Pity it ſhould be neglected or abuſed by any that enjoy it. As you are indulged ſuch a Privilege, be exhorted to ſet a due Eſtimate, and make a good Uſe of it. It is Matter of Indignation to obſerve how careleſs and remiſs ſome are in this Thing. Tho' chuſing of Rulers be one of the weightieſt Occaſions upon which a People annually meet together, yet how little do many ſeem to regard the Buſineſs about which they pretend to convene: and with what Indifference do they behave in it. This is bad enough, however it is worſe, when this Privilege is baſely proſtituted, and improved to ſerve a Turn, and vile Men are exalted, to the Prejudice of the Public. Do the guilty conſider that they are Accountable to God and Men for all the ill Conſequences that ariſe from ſuch Neglects and Abuſes? Be perſuaded then to do your Duty, and to do it in ſuch a Manner as may commend you to the Conſciences of Men, and to Him who is Lord of them. Do Nothing thro' Prejudice or Partiality, in this Affair: Have a juſt Regard to the Qualifications of Men. What they are, you have been often told from this Place. They ſhould be the chief of the Tribes, famous in the Congregation; Men of Renown, if not for their Parentage, yet for their perſonal Accompliſhments. They ſhould be Men of approved Probity, Prudence and of a public Spirit; Lovers of their Country; Friendly to the Conſtitution in Church and State, Deut. 1. 13. Exod. 18. 21. Moreover, ſuch as have the Fear of God ruling in their Hearts. This will be the beſt Security you can have for a faithful Diſcharge of the Truſt you put in them, Neh. 7. 2."

And they muſt alſo know we are under ſolemn Oath and muſt vote as we ſhall judge ſhall conduce to the beſt Good of the Colony, and perhaps they may ceaſe their War. Sir, Your's.

Mr. GREEN,

SIR,

If the incloſ'd may merit a Place in your next Paper, I beg the Favor of its being inſerted.

I am your's, PACIFICUS.

I HAVE obſerv'd, with much Anxiety and Concern, that Factions have been gradually gaining Ground in this Colony for more than thirty Years: and if not timely ſuppreſs'd, I fear will not only deſtroy the Peace we have long enjoyed, but ſooner or later put a Period to our Charter Privileges. It will be as unneceſſary to point out the Riſe and Progreſs of theſe Factions, as it would be diſagreeable to name the Authors and Conductors of them, both being too well underſtood, to render either the One or the Other in the leaſt neceſſary; and therefore I would purpoſely omit both, as my Deſign is not to augment but to propoſe a Method to calm and ſuppreſs them, and to requeſt the Freemen of this Colony, in whatever Inſtances they have (by being miſ-guided by artful and deſigning Men) done Juſtice to any of the Magiſtrates of this Colony, by diſmiſſing them from the ſeveral Places of public Truſt, in which they have conducted with Integrity and Honor, to embrace the earlieſt Opportunity to make them the only Reparation in their Power; which can be effected in no other Way and Manner, than by reſtoring them to the ſeveral Places of Truſt from which they have been removed. This I take to be not only agreeable to the Laws of the Religion we pretend to profeſs, but conſiſtent with good Policy: For can it reaſonably be expected that any Gentleman of Ability and Capacity to hold the Reins of Government, will be perſwaded to accept of any Place of public Truſt, when they may be removed at Pleaſure by a few, deſigning Men, who have Craſt and Addreſs ſufficient to divide and diſtract the Freemen, who have themſelves, too much Integrity to ſuſpect, and too little Expence to detect the fraudulent Arts of ſuch Men, who make the ſtrongeſt Proteſtations of Love to their Country, and Zeal for the Liberties of Mankind, beſure I can never perſwade myſelf that any Man of real Worth and Merit, will be willing to be made the Tennis Ball to a Faction.

Frequent and various have been the Attempts made to remove ſome of the principal Magiſtrates of this Colony, but they have ever prov'd unſucceſsful, until the memorable Affair of the Spaniſh Ship.—When the Freemen were impos'd upon by ſlanderous Reports, and made to belive many Things to the Diſadvantage of our then honored Governor, and One of our moſt reſpectable Counſellors, who were, in Conſequence of thoſe Jealouſies, diſmiſs'd from their reſpective important Places of public Truſt: which Affair, when it was look'd into by the Legiſlature of this Colony, appeared to have been conducted with the ſtricteſt Integrity and Honor. But this Attempt being paſſed over, without vindicating the injured Characters of thoſe Perſons thus treated, has encouraged ambitious and deſigning Men, with many other honeſt Perſons, who have been unwarily drawn in by the Stamp-Act, to make a more vigorous Attempt, and, at one Puſh, to thruſt out the late Governor Fitch and Four of our moſt reſpectable Counſellors—The Governor for taking an Oath enjoyn'd upon him by Act of Parliament, upon the Forfeiture of £. 1000 Sterling, his Commiſſion to be vacated, and he forever rendered incapable of any Commiſſion under the Crown; which Oath was enjoyn'd upon and actually taken by every Governor on the Continent of N. America. And the four Counſellors for adminiſtring that Oath, thus enjoined, by Virtue of a Commiſſion, by which, another Oath had been adminiſtred, by the Council of this Government, to every Governor choſen ſince King William was advanced to the Throne of Great-Britain, obliging them to conform to all thoſe Acts of Parliament reſpecting the Trade of the British Colonies.

This I take to be the Crime of our late Governor and the four Counſellors diſmiſſed from public Employment; and therefore would beg Leave to aſk the pretended Guardians of our Liberties, the following Queries:

1. Was there any one Man in the Colony of Connecticut, on the firſt Day of November, 1765, who could infallibly foretell that the Parliament of Great Britain, would paſs an Act of Indemnification for the non-Obſervance of the Stamp-Act, and in the next Place repeal it.

2. What would have been the Conſequence of its not being repealed, would it not have been attended with a Declaration of a Forfeiture of our Charter Privileges, as by our own Act we ſhould have appeared to have been without a Governor, from the firſt of November, 1765, to the Election in May 1766, unleſs the Aſſembly on ſuch Refuſal had made Choice of Another.

3. In that Caſe would not the ſame Dificulty have accrued, had Governor Fitch refuſed to have taken the Oath, and would not his Succeſſor (if one was appointed or choſen) been immediately laid under the ſame Forfeitures and Penalties, in Caſe of a Refuſal or non-Compliance with the Act.

4. Who would have been the Judges of this Forfeiture, the Parliament of Great-Britain, the General Aſſembly of the Colony of Connecticut, or the pretended Sons of Liberty of the County of Windham.

5. Is there one Man on the Continent of North-America (the Canadians only excepted) who would be willing to be thrown out of the Care and Protection of our Mother Country ſuppoſing that the only Puniſhment they were able to inflict?

6. Has the Authority of the Parliament of Great Britain ever been called in Queſtion, which requires the ſeveral Governors to take an Oath, to obſerve all the Laws reſpecting Trade, and has not every Governor ſince King William, taken that Oath, enjoined by Act of Parliament, before he enters on the Execution of his Office, and was any Governor ever faulted, for yielding Obedience thereto?

7. Doth the Laws of Trade require the Governor to do any one Thing to carry thoſe Laws into Execution in his own Perſon? I preſume not.

8. Did the Stamp-Act require the Governors, as Governors of the Colonies, to carry that Act into Execution? certain I am, it doth not; and therefore the Governor's taking the Oath is required (I am of the Opinion) in both Caſes, only as he was the chief Magiſtrate.

9. Did Governor Fitch after taking that Oath, move one Finger to put that Act into Execution, if he did not, I would aſk what Miſchief has his taking the Oath done?—it may very probably ſave our Charter Privileges—but certain I am, no Evil has enſued, except his being remov'd from his Office, for doing that, which if he had not done, our Charter Privileges would have been endangered.

10. Was there any eſſential Difference between the Oath taken by Governor Fitch on the Firſt of November, 1765, and the Oath taken by Governor Pitkin, in May 1766, if there was, wherein did that difference conſiſt, for certain I am, it was ſo worded that Governor Pitkin intended to ſcreen himſelf by it, in Caſe the Act had not been repealed.

11. Have any of the Counſellors diſmiſſed, ever diſcovered themſelves unfriendly to the Conſtitution of this Government, Civil or Religious; and in this very Caſe, did they not diſcover the greateſt Affection and Love for their Country, when they evidently foreſaw their Fate, and the Snare laid for them, rather chooſe to fall a Sacrifice themſelves, than to expoſe the Charter Privileges of this Colony?

12. As every Governor on the Continent (Rhode-Iſland not excepted, if any Credit may be given to the prevailing Reports) took the Oath enjoined by Act of Parliament; it is evident the general Opoſition of the Body of the People co-operated with that more weighty Argument, viz. the Intereſt of the Merchants and Manufacturers of Great Britain, to procure a Repeal of the Stamp-Act; therefore it is evident that the ſeveral Governors taking the Oath did not prevent a Repeal; and conſequently would it not have been the greateſt Madneſs to have hazarded the Charter Privileges of this Colony, upon ſo uncertain an Event?

When theſe Queries can be anſwered, ſo as to render the Character of thoſe Honorable Perſons deſerving the Contempt that has been thrown on them, I will readily join in keeping them out, but untill then, I ſhall think it my indiſpenſable Duty, to do every Thing in my Power to have them reſtored: And not only to do Juſtice to Governor Fitch, and the four Counſellors laſt removed, but to Governor Woolcot, who if by Reaſon of his advanced Age, he is rendered incapable of further Service, I think myſelf bound, by the Laws both of Religion and Honor to teſtify my Regard to his Poſterity, and alſo to the other Counſellor diſmiſſed at the ſame Time, on the like ſlanderous Reports, who is highly deſerving on Account of his own Merit, as well as on Account of his honorable Anceſtors. If any aſk what muſt be done for thoſe who muſt neceſſarily be diſmiſſed, I anſwer as Mr. Senex Quondam Senatorious has done before me, let them wait for further Improvement, until ſuch Times as Vacancies be made for them; and I would beg leave to ſay, if ſome ſuch healing Meaſures are not purſued, the Conſequence I fear will be unhappy; for I cannot be of the Opinion, that 40 Towns on the Weſt Side of Connecticut River, will acquieſce to have not one Aſſiſtant, while on the Eaſt-Side, they are planted (to uſe the Expreſſion of the ſame Author) like Apple-Trees, and almoſt as near together. Neither can I perſuade myſelf, that the Friends of thoſe five worthy Magiſtrates, will be eaſily perſuaded, to have them all ſacrificed to the Ambition of a few Deſigning Men; but rather that they will unite in one common Cauſe—if they ſhould not be reſtored, and as it is too frequent in ſuch Caſes to carry their Reſentments to too great Lengths.——For my own Part, I diſapprov'd of the Stamp-Act, and highly approv'd of the Meaſures purſued by the True Sons of Liberty, to prevent its Operation. But at the ſame Time, I ever did & now do, applaud Governor Fitch, more eſpecially for taking the Qualification, by the Act required, as this Colony had great and invaluable Privileges to loſe, in Caſe the Act had not been repealed; and cannot be convinced but that the Counſellors manifeſted great Fortitude of Mind in adminiſtring the Oath, when they doubtleſs foreſaw their Fate; and rather choſe to give up their Poſts of Honor to others, than forfeit the Charter Privileges of the Colony: And I have the fulleſt Aſſurance, that when the Freemen of this Colony come to ſee theſe Things in their true and juſt Light, we ſhall again ſoon have our Judges as at the Firſt, and our Rulers as at the Beginning—And may our Officers be Peace, and our Exactors Righteouſneſs to all Generations.

SIR,

" WIth Regard to the Queſtion you propoſe in your's, viz. Whether the late Governor Fitch, and the four Counſellors, will, with us, be re-elected? I anſwer, it is Doubtful; unleſs the Spirit diſcovered laſt April, be much altered. For in the Town of P——n, to my Knowledge, a certain Number of Freemen were determined to vote for Governor Fitch, and the Four Counſellors; but no ſooner was one Vote diſcovered to be given in for Governor Fitch, than 5l. was immediately offered to any Perſon who ſhould diſcover who put in that Vote. This ſo intimidated the Perſon who voted, and thoſe others who were determined, when they came to the Meeting, to vote for thoſe five Gentlemen, that they gave in no more Votes for them. This is capable of being proved, and you may ſpeak freely of it. But ſhould not the ſame Spirit riſe ſo high, I doubt very much whether they will again be elected, while you in the weſtern Parts of the Colony conduct in your Meetings in the Manner I am informed you do, viz. That you all think yourſelves bound in Duty to vote for twelve Perſons, out of the Twenty in the Nomination; whereas we vote only for thoſe Perſons we fully approve, let the Number be 6, 8, or 10; but more eſpecially, at a Time of any general Strife; and indeed, this alone gives us the Advantage, and produces ſo many more Votes for the Aſſiſtants on this Side the River; and until you come into this Plan, your Endeavours will be Fruitleſs beſure, in this preſent Caſe; For if One of our Aſſiſtants has not a Majority of Votes on the Eaſt Side of the River, when your Votes come to be thrown into the Scale, it raiſes them above yours, who are the fulleſt voted for with you: And indeed I do not ſee why this Method is not ſtrictly juſt; for if I cannot vote for a Perſon to ſtand in the Nomination, I do not ſee how I can give him my Vote for an Aſſiſtant when he is in, &c."—

1. HOW the ſitting of Father and Son together, in Council, may be prevented, ſince allowing, it is apparently without Precedent, and inconſiſtant with the Nature and Deſign of Civil Government?

2. How Money drawn out of the Treaſury by a Thirteenth Counſellor, can be recovered, without ſubſtracting it from his 200l. annual Sallary?

3. If a Man, (tho' promoted) while Sheriff of a County, had exacted of about One Hundred of his Deputies, Notes of Twenty Shillings Lawful Money, free from all Coſts for each Suit commenced againſt him on Account of Delinquency, could he recover them by Law?

Mr. Green,

Sir,

Pleaſe to give the following brief Hints a Place in your Courant. From your's, &c.

SENEX.

'TIS well known to the good People of this Colony, that almoſt all the public Commotions that have ever happened among us ſince Governor Winthrop's Adminiſtration to this Day, have originated in the Eaſt, and many have been the Attempts from Time to Time, to make Changes in the Government. Every One knows this to be true, who remembers the Diſputes about the New-London Society, Old Tenor, Spaniſh Money, &c. &c. &c.—— The late unhappy Commotions that occaſioned ſuch a general Change the laſt Year, began in the ſame Quarter, and were puſhed forward by very much the ſame Men, who have been moſt active heretofore. Some have been ready to attribute this to their Vicinity to a neighbouring Colony, noted for Contention. Poſſibly this may have its Influence——but 'tis no Doubt principally to be aſcribed to that unhappy Law-Suit, in which the Government hath been involved with Maſon and the Mohegan Indians. This is a Controverſy of long Continuance, and even at this Day the Colony is at the Expence of a ſpecial Agent at Great Britain, to defend itſelf——'Tis well known, that many Gentlemen in the Eaſt are deeply concerned in the Succeſs of that Cauſe, and conſequently are diſpoſed from Principles of Intereſt to oppoſe ſuch Men's being in the Adminiſtration, as they ſuppoſe unfriendly to them, or [illegible] able to defend againſt their Claims. 'Tis alſo well known that many of the moſt active of thoſe Men who buſ'l about the late Changes, and now ſet themſelves the moſt violently to prevent Things returning to their own Channels, [illegible] perſonally concerned in Mr. Maſon's Succeſs. Conſidering human Nature as it is, the [illegible] of theſe Men's Conduct is evident even to a Demonſtration; they dread the Return of thoſe Men to Power, leſt it ſhould prejudice their [illegible]. As theſe Men muſt, from Principle [illegible] be unfriendly to the Government, [illegible] are now endeavouring to [illegible] all they can, in the Court of [illegible] it would be idle to impute [illegible] to a patriotic Spirit. A more [illegible] Principle hath undoubtedly influenced them. I am far from ſuppoſing that this was univerſally the Caſe; and doubt not but that many among the People really thought they were ſerving their Country in what they did. But our Charity muſt be [illegible] than the Sea, ever to believe that thoſe who are lending all the Help they can to Maſon and his Indians, ſhould at the ſame Time be ſo mightily concerned to ſave the Privileges of the Colony—the late Governor's taking the Oath required by the Stamp-Act did indeed afford them a plauſible Handle to raiſe a popular Outcry againſt him and ſome others; but ſince Things are more calmly conſidered, I believe the judicious are generally ſatisfied it was a Meaſure abſolutely neceſſary to ſave the Privileges of the Colony from a legal Forfeiture.——But be that as it will—at leaſt it muſt be owned that theſe Gentlemen have given a noble Evidence of their Integrity and Firmneſs, by daring in ſuch a Day to act according to their Conſciences.——However, as that obnoxious Act is repealed, we can be in no Danger from that Quarter. And if thoſe worthy Magiſtrates were miſtaken in that Step, yet, from the conſtant Tenor of their Converſation, and their Letters to Gentlemen in Great-Britain, they may juſtly claim to have born as noble Teſtimony againſt the Stamp-Act as any Men in America. And 'tis really very hard to condemn and cut them off for a Meaſure that every Governor in the Plantations (not excepting Rhode-Iſland) hath gone into. Your's, &c. SENEX.

Mr. Sergeant Plain Facts.

SIR,

FROM the Time the Matter & Manner of your Performances, and your principal Admires. It appears a Fact ſufficiently plain to many, that one Deſign you have in view is to perſwade the Freemen as much as you can to reſtore thoſe Gentlemen to the upper Houſe whom they dropt laſt Spring. Now let me aſk you if you, and your Friends, did not greatly reſent and cry out againſt the Sons of Liberty for attempting to influence the Freemen about a twelvemonth ago? How comes it about that you with all your Simplicity fall into the very Practice which you have been ſo forward to condemn? If it was wrong in them, can it be right in you? Will not an Attempt of this Kind tend to diſturb the public Peace of the Government as much now as it did then?

It is not likely the Gentlemen, you deſire reſtored, employed you to make the Attempt, or that they would be glad if you ſucceed in it. For they know that a very great Part of the Government are zealouſly ſet againſt them; and that their Reſtoration would revive a Remembrance of ſundry parts of their Conduct, ſuch as whether they did not in ſome Reſpects countenance and abet the Stamp Act! And admiting their Ability and Uprightneſs whether they were not miſtaken for once being but falliable Men? And if all the Gentlemen throughout the whole Britiſh Colonies had been as greatly miſtaken as they were, and oppoſed the Stamp Act no more than they did, whether there is not the higheſt Probability if it not a certainty that the Samp Act would have taken Place? In that Caſe could the immortal Mr. Pitt have declared that he was glad America had reſiſted?

When I conſider theſe Things it is doubtful whether you are not at Bottom one of their greateſt Enemies and long to have an opportunity to vent your Spleen againſt them; or at leaſt to provoke others to do ſo. At beſt you can be looked on only as an imprudent Friend, whoſe Zeal prevents you from ſeeing you are expoſing them to the Reſentment of a People who really think they have been injured by them. True it is the People may be greatly miſtaken; but ſince they really think ſo at leaſt many of them this Miſtake will have as great an Influence as if it was the greateſt Reality. If you would oblige your Friends, and the Public, you ſhould clearly ſhew that thoſe worthy Gentlemen were not miſtaken but acted what was beſt for the public Good. This is the great Point that labours, and not that they live weſt of Connecticut River which no Body ever diſputed.

Your Reaſon if it be valid will prove a great Deal too much. For it will prove that Norwalk and Fairfield have had more than their Shares of the upper Houſe, ſince of late years theſe two towns ſent one Governor and two aſſiſtants. And why ſhould they ſend more than their proportion? where will the end of ſuch kind of Reaſonings be? what weight is in them? If they are a hundred Towns and the whole Council make but fourteen in Number the greater Number of Towns cannot have their Proportion in the Upper Houſe. And what follows from this upon your Reſoning unleſs that the Council ſhould be enlarged or that there ſhould be none? For unleſs one or other of theſe take Place there muſt always be a great Deal of that Diſproportion, you have taken ſo much Pains to exhibit to the public by the great Strength and Force of Miſſpelling.

I Was ſorry to find that the Bill which was bro't into the General Court the laſt Seſſion, for the prohibiting the African Slave Trade, had miſcarried for the preſent; for the preſent, I ſay, as I truſt the Houſe, in ſome future Period will not fail to reſume the Conſideration of ſo important a Subject. The Pamphlet you publiſhed the other Day, upon this Trade was well calculated to anſwer the End deſigned; to give the Public a proper Idea of this Buſineſs; and tho' the very deſireable Act which was in Agitation has not been obtained, yet ſuch Publications will I doubt not leſſen the future Importation of Negroes. And as I imagine the following Extract of a Letter will conduce to the ſame good Deſign, you are at Liberty to publiſh it if you pleaſe.

"The moſt popular and plauſible Excuſe for the Slave Trade is, that the Africans are bro't from a Land of Darkneſs, to a Land of Goſpel-Light. They who advance this in Juſtification of this Buſineſs are guilty of the moſt abominable Hypocriſy, in making a religious Concern for the Salvation of immortal Souls, a Cloak for the baſeſt Perfidy, Avarice and Barbarity. Shew me the Merchant or Captain, whoſe Conſcience in a ſerious Hour tells him that he ever undertook a Voyage to Africa, with a benevolent Deſire or Deſign of bringing poor Negroes to the Knowledge of Chriſtianity. Is it conſiſtent with ſuch a Deſign to uſe the moſt inhuman, unchriſtian, infernal Methods of getting them away from their native Land? Is it conſiſtent with ſuch a Deſire, to crowd ſo many Hundreds together in a Ship, that a great Part muſt inevitably periſh on the Voyage, and when they are brought to Port, to diſpoſe of them in ſuch a Manner as to put them under as great Diſadvantage on Account of Religion, as before they came from their own Country? Suppoſe a Ship-load of immortal Souls bro't to Market, one of them appears ſuperior to the reſt, and equally attracts the Liking of two Men who appear to purchaſe; that one of theſe is a ſober, religious Man, and known to be ſo, he offers £. 20. The other is a notorious, profligate, abandoned Wretch, he offers £ 24.—Now Mr. Conſcience, under which of theſe two Maſters is the poor Soul likely to gain that divine Knowledge, the Love of which was the moving Cauſe of thy ſending to Africa, that theſe poor Creatures might obtain it equally with thee? And which of theſe ſhall be the Purchaſer? Can there be the leaſt Struggle between Intereſt & Religion? I cannot help recollecting a Line or two I have ſomewhere met with,

Spain in America had two Deſigns,
To ſpread Religion, and to ſeize the Mines,
For where there is no ſure ſupply of Wealth,
Mens Souls are never worth the Charge of (Health.

If theſe Men have any ſincere Deſire that the Africans ſhould be benefited by the Goſpel, why do they not take the neareſt and moſt effectual Method to accompliſh this End? Why don't they either ſend Engliſh Miſſionaries among them, or elſe inſtruct thoſe Negroes who are already here, and ſend them back on this benevolent Errand? The Truth is, this Plea of benefiting their Souls is nothing but a vile, deteſtable, hypocritical Artifice to ſmooth over their antichriſtian, diabolical Covetouſneſs, Cruelty and Murder: for that they are guilty of theſe Sins is glaringly evident to the View of all Mankind; and why they ſhould eſcape the Gallows, is beyond the Power of the moſt able Civilian to prove conſiſtent with our natural Ideas of Juſtice."

LONDON, January 3.

Letters from Guernſey adviſe, that the French are making extraordinary preparations in all the ſea-ports, in fitting out a great number of ſhips, to be early in the ſeaſon for the fiſhery at Newfoundland.

It is reported, that large Grants of Land in both Floridas are preparing to be made out for their Royal Highneſſes the Dukes of York, Glouceſter, and Cumberland.

'Tis confidently ſaid, that the Earl of Chatham has now under Conſideration a general Plan for improving and increaſing the Value of our Poſſeſſions and Acquiſitions in North-America. To this End Eaſt and Weſt Florida will be immediately cleared, cultivated, and fully peopled. The Iſlands of St. John and Anticoſta, in the Gulph of St. Lawrence, are alſo formed into regular Governments, divided into Pariſhes, and parcelled into Lots, which are to be given to ſuch Families of Officers as ſignalized themſelves in the late War, and ſuch foreign Proteſtants as are capable of improving them. The extenſive Country of Labrador, upon the Continent of the ſame Gulph, will be fertilized and inhabited; ſeveral Coloniſts having already engaged for this as well as the other near ſettlements. In a Word, it is believed by all impartial Men, who are acquainted with the Conduct of the preſent Miniſtry, that the Adminiſtration of Mr. Pitt, will not eclipſe that of the Earl of Chatham.

It is ſaid the Crown of Britain has ſo intereſted itſelf in Favour of the Proteſtants, to the Satisfaction of the ſeveral Royal Powers who take Part as Gaurantees of the Treaty of Olivia, that an Engliſh Squadron will be ſent into the Baltic next Spring, to enforce the Obſervation of that famous Treaty.

We hear that Dennys Rolle, Eſq; of Devonſhire, has lately been offered near 50,000l. over and above the expences he has already been at, for his new ſettlements in Eaſt-Florida.

January 6. Laſt Week ſix ſhips from Hamburgh, and three from Holland, arrived in the River, deeply laden with Corn.

It is reported, that an eminent Gentleman of the Law is preparing a Bill, which he intends to bring in this Seſſion, as the moſt real and effectual Means to prevent Bribery and Corruption in the Election of Members to ſerve in Parliament.

Private Advices from Hamburgh mention, that a Northern Potentate is now meditating a Project of importance, which it was apprehended would greatly affect the Tranquility of the Italian States.

January 8. Monday Evening a Expreſs was ſent to Lord Chatham at Bath; and it was expected he will arrive in Town this Day at his Houſe in Bond-Street, ſome Buſineſs of importance requiring his Preſence.

We hear fifty Tons of Engliſh Halfpence and Farthings are to be ſtruck at the Tower, for Exportation to New-York, Boſton and Philadelphia, where Copper Currency is extremely wanted.

Yeſterday was held a grand Council at St. James's, at which the Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor, the two Secretaries of State, and moſt of the great Officers aſſiſted.

Laſt night we had a moſt remarkable ſtorm of lightning, attended with thunder, which continued from nine in the evening till morning. At the ſame time there was a very high wind, the conſequences are much to be dreaded. The wind has continued high moſt of the day, attended with heavy ſnow, which ſtill continues.

From the neighbourhood of the city, the accounts of the lightning, and thunder are moſt remarkable. The ſky, for minutes at a time appeared covered with fire; and a fiery meteor of a round ſhape, was ſeen for a conſiderable time, running from North to South with a prodigious velocity.

CONNECTICUT COURANT.

Printed by THOMAS GREEN, in HARTFORD.

NEW-YORK, April 16.

LAST Tueſday Evening arrived the Ship New-York, Capt. Lawrence from London; He ſailed the 4th of March from the Downs, in Company with the Hope, Capt. Davis, and the Britanina, Capt. Richards, both bound for this place, and a large number of other Veſſels for Philadelphia, Boſton, the Streights and the Weſt-Indies: but after parting with two of the Philadelphia Veſſels, ſaw none on his Paſſage, till laſt Sunday ſpoke Capt. Clark, from this Place about 25 Leagues from the Hook: He left in the Downs 10 Sail of Outward-bound Eaſt-Indiamen; and juſt before he ſailed, heard of the Loſs of the Lord Clive Indiaman, that ſail'd before them. By theſe Veſſels we hear, the Britiſh Troops that ar[illegible] be ſent to America, are to conſiſt [illegible] 13,000 Men, & that they all are to be quartered in the Provinces of New-York, Connecticut and Maſſachuſetts. It is alſo ſaid, that the Affairs of America were under Inſpection of the Parliament, and might have been greatly to their Advantage, before they ſent their laſt Remonſtrance, which was called libellous: Some of the Lords were greatly incenſed againſt them; Lord Shelbourne and Mr. Conway, told the Committee of Merchants that waited on them, that they were ſorry the Americans behaved ſo refractory, particularly the People of New-York; and that if they had behaved as they ſhould have done, the Duties on Sugar and Molaſſes would have been eaſed, and their Trade in general enlarged; but now the Tables were turned againſt them; for they think the Americans want England to treat with them as an equal Power, by their pretending in their late Remonſtrance to Parliament, to comply only with ſuch Laws & Taxes as they pleaſed, and thought moſt convenient for the good of themſelves. The New-Yorkers Friends were alſo againſt them in general; for they had behaved ungrateful to the Committee, in not returning them Thanks for what they did, in getting the Stamp-Act repealed, tho' it coſt them £. 500, to complete it; but that, on the contrary, they ſeem to inſiſt upon their doing more for them; They have had the Thanks of Quebec, and the little Colony of Rhode-Iſland, but no more; and the laſt Remonſtrance to them was voted to be burnt, unopened: Theſe Threats to a well-wiſher of America, when in England, goes down hard.—The 21ſt of February Mr. Pitt was ſent for from Bath to Court, on very particular Buſineſs; on his Journey, at Marlborough, the Ceiling of the Room fell in upon him when at Dinner, occaſioned by a Workman's falling through the ſame:— 'Tis ſaid he will uſe his Endeavors this Parliament to break the India Company's Charter, if they do not pay all the Expences attending the laſt War in India; the Company ſeems to foreſee the Event, as they have more Ships out now than ever. The Parliament does not break up till the 14th of May, by which Time Mr. Pitt will likewiſe endeavour to have the Manilla Ranſom paid, which is £. 350,000.

We further hear, that the Spaniards are fitting out a very large fleet in all their ports; and it is looked upon, as if they intended an attack on Gibraltar or Mahon, to make up for their late Loſſes. Admiral Broderick is going with a large fleet to Gibraltar, and orders are gone before him, to get proper booms fixed, and every thing for defence ready at thoſe places: Many ſhips are taken up in the River Thames, for Store-Ships and Tranſports.——Theſe preparations have given ſome Grounds to the Enemies of America, to think theſe Preparations were againſt them.—Numbers of Carpenters, and other Tradeſmen, are gone to Spain; the Engliſh Ambaſſador has Orders to demand them, ſeeing the Diſadvantage of ſuch Men leaving their native Country. ———

Numbers of Tradeſmen have engaged to go and ſettle in Eaſt and Weſt-Florida, as the Poor in England are very much diſtreſſed by the Taxes, & Proviſions exceſſive dear.

"Such a Cloud appears gathering over your Province, ſince the Arrival of your Aſſembly's Reſolutions, that we fear your public Affairs may be in a State of Confuſion, and although we cannot ſay with any Certainty what Meaſurs will be purſued, it ſeems generally agreed, that 8 or 9 Regiments, with ſome Draughts from the Artillery, are deſtined for your Province;

We therefore thought it would be very imprudent to riſk our Friends or our own Property, at ſuch a critical Juncture; and for that Reaſon purpoſe ſhipping their Goods to Philadelphia, per the Phœbe, Capt. Daviſon, who will depart in about a Week. We hope our Friends will approve this Meaſure, and the more ſo, as we have taken the extraordinary Charge on ourſelves, to prevent their Diſappointment. We ſhall be exceedingly obliged to you, Sir, for your Sentiments on the State of your public Affairs, and your Opinion how far it is probable Commerce may receive any interruption; together with any other Information, by the earlieſt Opportunity."

Many private Letters from London are filled with Conjectures about the great Armaments preparing in England, and the 13,000 Men ſaid to be coming to New-York: Some of them corroborate the above Intelligence of a dark Cloud's hanging over the Heads of us North-Americans; whilſt others, with a greater Degree of Reaſon, ſay, that New-York is made the Pretence for the Armaments, but verily believe it is chiefly deſigned either to defend Gibralter, if attack'd by the Spaniards as there was ſome Apprehenſion of; or to enforce the Payment of the Manilla Ranſom by the Spaniards, or elſe to bring the Portugueſe to Reaſon: But as theſe are Conjectures only, Time alone muſt aſcertain what would be the real Intention and Iſſue hereof.

The Jury's Verdict was, He fell from the Horſe into the Brook, and was Drowned in the Water.

N. B. This Man was Born in Britain, appeared to be upwards of Seventy years of Age. He had a Gallon Bottle full of Cyder to carry to the Miller faſtned to his Hand and Swiming in the Water, when he was found.

21 JOSHUA PORTER,
Juſtice of the Peace.

CHARLES-TOWN, (S. Carolina) March 2.

Capt. Stephen Blundel, of the ſhip Ranger who arrived here from Oporto, has giving us the following account of his extraordinary inhuman treatment there*; which may ſerve (among many other inſtances) to ſhew how thoſe allies of Britain reward her for her protection and friendſhip, to which they owe ſo much.— Here follows the narrative in his own words; remarks are left to the reader. —

"I Stephen Blundell, one of his Britannic Majeſty's ſubjects maſter and part owner of the ſhip Ranger, of Pool, arrived at Oporto the 4th of November 1766, from Newfoundland, with a cargo of fiſh which I was to ſell at the maſt, remit the proceeds home, and then proceed for South-Carolina, where I was chartered to load. November 18th, I hawled my ſhip to the kay, and took the booms on board, in order to begin landing my cargo on Monday the 20th. But at midnight on the 19th, the watch on deck alarmed me with the cry, for "all hands below to jump up, "there being thiefs on board, robbing "the veſſel." Among the reſt, I went up, without dreſſing myſelf, and found my people taking a thief in over the bow, who had already cut away my fore clew garnet, and reef takle fall, and with them jumpt into a boat he had under the bow, with an accomplice, into which the watch had followed and taken him out with the clew-garnet. The accomplice immediately puſhed off in the boat with the takle-fall. I then ordered the thief to be taken care of till day light, in order to know who he was, deliver him up, and obtain juſtice, and would put him in the ſteerage, but he drew his knife, and became ſo unruly, that I was obliged to order him to be tird to the mizen-maſt, whence he ſoon cut himſelf looſe, when I ordered his arms to be tied; but no perſon offered to ſtrike or otherways ill uſe him. He proved to be a Portugueſe ſoldier, belonging to the garriſon. His accomplice had called other ſoldiers his comrades, and about 2 in the morning (very dark) a number of them came down to the ſhip, upon whoſe firſt appearance I cauſed the Planks on the ſtage to be hawl'd in, to prevent their getting on board, and murdering us all. They aſked for the thief; I anſwered, that I intended to deliver him up in the morning: Finding they could not get on board they replied "it was very well," and "went off. Had I ſeen an officer, or an order to deliver the fellow up, or known of any guards upon the wall, I would have gladly got rid of him. The 20th, a little before ſun riſe, twelve Portugueſe ſoldiers came along ſide in a boat, with their muſkets, and bayonets fixed; I received them on board, neither ſuſpecting, or expecting to meet with any ill treatment ſhewed them the thief, and what he had done; they took him away without any order, or even an officer above a ſerjeant; after which, to my great aſtoniſhment they ſeized me, my boatſwain, and a man belonging to another Engliſh veſſel, who happened to be on my deck, dragg'd us along like dogs, and tumbled us, head foremoſt into their boat. I made ſome reſiſtance, by holding faſt to the enſign-ſtaff but a ſoldier attempting to run me thro' the back with his bayonet (which was happily beat off) I was obliged to ſubmit. As ſoon as they had tumbled us into the boat we were moſt unmercifully beat and bruiſed with the but ends of their muſkets, myſelf in particular ſo much that I never recovered the beating while I remained at Oporto, after then tied our hands together and thus led and guarded as the worſt malefactors to priſon, where my unfortunate companions were again ſeverely beaten, till I paid two new crowns to the villians there to deſiſt. From hence we were ſoon after carried, our hands again tied, to the common goal. In this confinement we remained till the 15th, when my merchant Mr. Thomas Stafford, by paying the head priſon-keeper five moidores, repreſenting to the governor my ill ſtate of health thro' the beating, and petitioning for my being releaſed, obtained leave to remove me to his houſe for my recovery. The 24th the goal-keeper (I ſuppoſe expected more money) ſent to demand me back from my private to the public priſon, whither I was forced to go ill as I was: The ſame day however, upon the Conſul and Mr. Stafford's again petitioning the governor, leave was obtained for my return to my private priſon; where I remained, without daring to ſtir out, or ſee after my ſhip or buſineſs till the 5th of December; when upon a new petition to the governor, ſetting forth that my ſhip was unloaded, and ready to proceed upon a charter-party to South-Carolina, I was at laſt releaſed from my private priſon, and my boatſwain and the other men from the common goal, upon the moderate terms of paying every charge they thought proper to bring againſt me and them, and without any other ſatiſfaction for the inſults, injuries, and ill-uſage we had received."

January 12. Orders are ſent to Hanover, for ſeveral hundred perſons to be engaged in that Electorate, who are to be ſhipt over, at the government's expence, for both Floridas.

They write from Hamburgh, that two veſſels are now lying in the Elbe, taking in Palatine paſſengers for Eaſt-Florida.

Thurſday the tide ran higher at Deal than was ever known in the memory of any perſon there, attended with a prodigious ſea, which has damaged ſome works next to it, to the amount of ſeveral hundred pounds.

The damages done by the high wind and tide on Friday laſt, in the river Thames, are very great, amounting, as it is ſaid, to upwards of 50,000l. by goods being ſpoiled and damaged in cellars and warehouſes, on both ſides of the river. Several boats were overſet, and we are told that 27 perſons loſt their lives.

They write from Malaga, that two regiments were arrived there from the camp of St. Roche, near Gibraltar, to be embarked for the Spaniſh garriſon of Ceuta, on the coaſt of Barbary, threatened by the Moors.

A new Treaty of Commerce and Friendſhip, it is ſaid is upon the carpet between the Courts of England, Sweden, Denmark and Pruſſia.

Some complaints are ſaid to have lately been ſent home from ſome Engliſh merchants of Mobille, in Weſt Florida, againſt the conduct of the Spaniſh Governor of New-Orleans, for ſearching Britiſh traders in the Gulf of Mexico.

Private letters from Liſbon mention, that the Hon. Edward Hay, Eſq; his Britannic Majeſty's Envoy Extraordinary, preſented a memorial on the 21ſt ult. to the King of Portugal, which had occaſioned the holding five ſucceſſive councils.*

A few days ago ſome extra officers belonging to the cuſtoms, on board one of the ſhips in the river, made ſome ſlip in a copper ſaucepan, the tinning of which was worn off: after which they were all violently ſeized: one of them died that night, another the next day, and a third is in great danger, notwithſtanding a phyſician was ſent for. This was owing to the verdigreaſe in the pan, of which people ought to be very cautious, and keep veſſels properly tinned.—This puts us in mind of an order of his Pruſſian Majeſty at the beginning of the late war, who gave orders for laying aſide all copper veſſels in the camp, and ſubſtituting thoſe of iron only.

Yeſterday there was the fulleſt market at Smithfield for oxen, ſheep, &c. that has been for three months paſt; a great part of which have lately been bought up at the country fairs. The prices were greatly abated to what they have been for ſome months paſt.

They write from Gibraltar, that two Spaniſh camps have lately been formed near that place.

We are aſſured, that ſeveral men of war will be ſpeedily put in commiſſion, as well to relieve thoſe upon the North-American ſtation, as to augment thoſe in the Mediterranean.

We hear from Geneva, by letters of the 24th of December, that every thing wears there a very gloomy aſpect; trade and circulation being entirely ſtagnated. The citizens have applied to the Magiſtrates, inviting them to treat amicably together, and giving them the ſtrongeſt aſſurances that the citizens never intended, as it had been ſtrongly reported, to alter the form of government, but that, on the contrary, all their endeavours were to preſerve the conſtitution. The Magiſtrates declined entering into any treaty, declaring it was not in their power, becauſe the mediators were to be judges between both parties. The citizens applying to the French Miniſters, were not admitted into his preſence. They were told, he was offended at their applying to their Magiſtrates, whilſt they had in their town OTHER MASTERS, viz. The Mediators Miniſters.

The negatives, affecting to be afraid of aſſaſſination, &c. have taken refuge in the upper part of the town; and ſome are even gone out of the town.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE CONNECTICUT COURANT. No. 121

Extract from a Book lately published, entitled, Interesting historical Events, relative to the Provinces of Bengal, and the Empire of Indostan, by I. Z. Holwell, Esq.

AMONG other historical facts, Mr. Holwell gives the following circumſtantial account of the burning of a Gentoo lady with her huſband's body. [The cuſtom of widows burning themſelves with their deceaſed Huſbands, is reported to have taken riſe on the following occaſion. The crime of poiſoning their huſbands was become ſo common among the women in that country that upon the death of every huſband, his widow was ſuſpected of having poiſoned him. In order to clear herſelf from this ſuſpicion, and to ſhow her love of her deceaſed huſband, a widow of high quality, probably ſtimulated by the bramins (prieſts) and her relations, who were to ſhare her riches, offer'd to burn with her huſband, obtain'd permiſſion for it of the government, and actually burnt herſelf with him.--The honors done her by the government, and the applauſes beſtow'd by all ranks of people, raiſed a ſpirit of emulation in other ladies to follow the example: it was encouraged by the government, as it effectually put a ſtop to the crime of huſband-poiſoning, till at length it became ſo common that no woman of [illegible] would ſurvive her huſband. For tho' ſhe was not by the laws to be forced to burn, yet if ſhe refuſed, ſhe was treated with all manner of contempt, inſult and deteſtation, by her friends and the world; degraded from her rank, diſown'd by her relations, look'd upon as her huſbands murderer, a deſpiſed loath'd vagabond, and made ſo wretched that her life was worſe than death. So powerful is the operation of cuſtom, that the government at laſt found it neceſſary to interpoſe in order to prevent the deſtruction of the human ſpecies, and a law was made which is ſtill in force, that no woman ſhall have liberty to burn her ſelf with her dead huſband's body, without permiſſion from a great officer of ſtate. However it is a favor that is ſeldom refuſed to great ladies, when they reſolutely inſiſt upon it.]

"AT five of the clock in the morning, of the 4th of February, 1742-3 died Rhaam Chund Pundit, of the Mahahrattor tribe, aged twenty-eight years; his widow (for he had but one wife) aged between ſeventeen and eighteen, as ſoon as he expired, diſdaining to wait the term allowed her for reflection, immediately declared to the bramins and witneſſes preſent, her reſolution to burn; as the family was of no ſmall conſideration, all the merchants of Coſſimbuzar, and her relations left no arguments unaſſayed to diſſuade her from it. Lady Ruſſel, with the tendereſt humanity, ſent her ſeveral meſſages to the ſame purpoſe; the infant ſtate of her children (two girls and a boy, the eldeſt not 4 years of age) and the terrors and pains of the death ſhe ſought, were painted to her in the ſtrongeſt and moſt lively coloring; ſhe was deaf to all--ſhe gratefully thanked Lady Ruſſel, and ſent her word, ſhe had now nothing to live for, but recommended her children to her protection.--When the torments of burning were urged interrorem to her, ſhe, with a reſolved and calm countenance, put her finger into the fire, and held it there a conſiderable time; ſhe then with one hand, put fire in the palm of the other, ſprinkled incenſe on it, and fumigated the bramins. The conſideration of her children left deſtitute of a parent, was again urged to her. She replied, he that made them would take care of them.--She was at laſt given to underſtand ſhe ſhould not be permitted to burn*; this, for a ſhort ſpace, ſeemed to give her a deep reflection, but ſoon recollecting herſelf, ſhe told them, death was in her power, and that if ſhe was not allowed to burn, according to the principles of her caſt, ſhe would ſtarve herſelf.--Her friends finding her peremptory and reſolved, were obliged at laſt to aſſent.

The body of the deceaſed was carried down to the water ſide, early the following morning; the widow followed accompanied by three very principal bramins her children, parents, and relations, and a numerous concourſe of people. The order of leave for her burning did not arrive from Hoſſein Khan, Fouzdaar of Morſhedabad, untill after one, and it was then brought by one of the Soubah's own officers, who had orders to ſee that ſhe burnt voluntarily. The time they waited for the order employed in praying with the bramins, and waſhing in the Ganges. As ſoon as it arrived, ſhe retired and ſtayed for the ſpace of half an hour in the midſt of her female relations, amongſt whom was her mother; ſhe then deveſted herſelf of her bracelets, and other ornaments, and tied them in a cloth which hung like an apron before her, and was conducted by her female relations to one corner of the pile; on the pile was an arched arbour, formed of dry ſticks, boughs and leaves, open only at one end to admit her entrance. In this the body of the deceaſed was depoſited, his head at the end oppoſite the opening. At the corner of the pile, to which ſhe had been conducted the bramin had made a ſmall fire, round which ſhe and the 3 bramins ſat for ſome minute, one of them gave into her hand a leaf of the bale tree (the wood commonly conſecrated to form part of the funeral pile) with ſundry things on it, which ſhe threw into the fire; one of the others gave her a ſecond leaf, which ſhe held over the flame whilſt he dropped 3 times ſome ghee on it, which melted, and fell into the fire (theſe two operations were preparatory ſymbols of her approaching deſolution by fire) and whilſt they were performing this the third bramin read to her ſome portions of the Aughtorrah Bhade*, and aſked her ſome queſtions, to which ſhe anſwered with a ſteady and ſerene countenance; but the noiſe was ſo great we could not underſtand what ſhe ſaid, altough we were within a yard of her. Theſe over, ſhe was led with great ſolemnity three times round the pile, the bramins reading before her; when ſhe came the third time to the ſmall fire, ſhe ſtopped, took her rings off her toes and fingers, and put them to her other ornaments; here ſhe took a ſolemn majeſtic leave of her children, parents and relations; after which one of the bramins dipt a large wick of cotton in ſome ghee, and gave it, ready lighted, into her hand, and led her to the open ſide of the arbor; there all the bramins fell at her feet:--After ſhe had bleſſed them, they retired weeping;--by two ſteps ſhe aſcended the pile, and entered the arbor. On her entrance ſhe made a profound reverence at the feet of the deceaſed, and advanced and ſeated herſelf by his head; ſhe looked, in ſilent meditation on his face, for the ſpace of a minute, then ſet fire to the arbor, in three places; obſerving that ſhe had ſet fire to leeward, and that the flames blew from her, inſtantly ſeeing her error, ſhe roſe, and ſet fire to the windward, and reſumed her ſtation. Enſign Daniel, with his cane, ſeparated the graſs and leaves on the windward ſide, by which means we had a diſtinct view of her as ſhe ſat. With what dignity and undaunted countenance ſhe ſet fire to the pile the laſt time, and aſſumed her ſeat, can only be conceived; for words cannot convey a juſt idea of her. The pile being of combuſtible matters, the ſupporters of the roof were preſently conſumed, and it fell in upon her."

EXTRACT of a LETTER from LONDON, January 10, 1767.

DURING the preſent receſs of Parliament, and the conſequent ſtagnation in politicks, I cannot better entertain you by this packet, than by giving you the beſt account I am able of the famous debate in an auguſt aſſembly, the 10th of laſt month, on reading the indemnity bill.

After the motion was made for committing it, the Duke of R———d ſtood up and expreſſed his approbation of the bill, as he did of the meaſure which occaſioned it; but that as the law was thereby violated, & the conſtitution wounded, it was neceſſary and proper to apply this remedy, to indemniſy the perſons who had acted under the proclamation, and to prevent ſuch a proceeding from being drawn into a precedent; and he approved of it the more, as upon a former day's debate certain Lords high in office, and ſome of them remarkable for their knowledge in the law had advanced very extraordinary doctrines and given their poſitive opinions, that this was a legal meaſure; doctrines which he could not approve, and opinions he could not adopt; that they appeared to him to unhinge the conſtitution, and bind us with the chains of tyranny and ſlavery.——That theſe Lords had now a fair opportunity of boldly avowing theſe principles and ſupporting them with the arguments which they themſelves were convinced with, or of doing that which great and generous minds were at all times ready to do, retract their erroneous opinions, and confeſs their ignorance and miſtake.

Lord N———n ſpoke next. He ſaid, no man ever gave his opinion more boldly than himſelf, and he always gave it from the conviction of his own heart, founded upon any little knowledge he had from reading, experience and obſervation; that he was ſorry he had reaſon to complain to their Lordſhips, that any opinion he gave in a former debate, ſhould have been uſed was ſo much freedom in another houſe, as well as in moſt public companies, and diſtorted, to throw reflections upon his character and principles;—that he had then ſaid what he now repeated, that he tho't the embargo was a legal act. He then proceeded to give his definition of the word legal, which he endeavoured to perſwade their Lordſhips, was not to be taken in that confined and limitted ſenſe, in which it was underſtood in the petty courts of law.

Lord C—n then got up. He ſaid, he roſe thus early in the debate, to clear himſelf from thoſe impreſſions, which a miſapprehenſion of his ſentiments, upon a former days debate, may have made upon their Lordſhips, and which the noble Duke who firſt ſpoke ſeemed to throw out;——that, for his part, he never entertained any doubt of the legality of the meaſure under conſideration, and that he flattered himſelf his arguments, which coincided very much with the noble Lord's who ſpoke before him, would render it as clear to their Lordſhips.—In a queſtion of this kind, he ſaid, he could by no means confine himſelf to the ſtrict, narrow, circumſcribed meaning, generally put upon the word legal, that limited idea affixed to it in Weſtminſter-Hall:——He then proceeded to give his meaning and conſtruction of it, which he made a Jus Naturæ; quoted Mr. Locke, and other writers, upon government, and entered very deeply into a logical and ſcholaſtical diſcuſſion of the point.

Lord M———d next ſtood up and made the beſt ſpeech he ever made before. He ſaid he paid no regard to whatever might be advanced in the works of ſuch authors; neither did he think that writers on government in general, were always to be relied on, or a blind obedience given to every poſition they advanced;——that they were talking of facts, as applicable to their own conſtitution, which he had always conſidered, and ſpoken of, as a government by law; that no perſon, or ſett of men, were ſuperior to the law; that the crown is ſettled by and under the law, and is veſted with no prerogative that is not fixed and determined either by the common or ſtatute law;—that by the common law he meant cuſtom and preſcription;—and that in no caſe whatever can any neceſſity be ſet up, or pleaded, to extend the king's prerogative.—— He then proceeded, in a manner the moſt elegant, forcible and convincing, to trace the nature of our conſtitution from its firſt dawn to the preſent time, and ſhewed that the great ſtruggle of the people had always been to prevent any pretended neceſſity of the crown, and pointed out many of the ſtatutes in favor of the people, wherein the crown had always inſiſted to have a clauſe, ſaving the neceſſity of the crown, which was generally made uſe of as a colour for oppreſſion.———That ſometimes indeed, the commons had been bold enough to throw out theſe clauſes, but in all caſes where they had been by influence carried through, theſe laws never had had any effect.———He then went through all the arguments for and againſt ſhip-money, and ſhewed, that in the great debates upon that ſubject, it was not the ſum aſked that was objected to, but the doctrine by which it was demanded.——He next inſtanced a caſe from the States of Normandy, who complaining that many grievous contributions were raiſed upon them, an arret was publiſhed in their favour, and forbid levying any ſums not ordered by law, ſaving the neceſſity of the great Dukes, &c. which deſtroyed the whole, for there was never wanting a pretence of neceſſity.——He then recapitulated all the arguments that had been urged on the oppoſite ſide, and anſwered them, one by one, with that ſolidity of reaſoning, the reſult of true knowledge, which never fails to carry conviction along with it.

Lord C———m anſwered him, but the bent of his ſpeech ſeemed rather deſigned to find fault with the arguments, on which Lord M———d built his opinion, than to declare his own. His ſpeech was in truth ſo prolix, that it was impoſſible to retain it. He ſpoke much of liberty, neceſſity, expediency, dearth, famine, the miſeries of want, &c. and gave many aſſurances of his own integrity and diſintereſtedneſs.

Lord M———d replied, and with great eloquence, confuted every thing Lord C—m had advanced; and concluded, that he, unpentioned, unplaced, without reward or reverſionary grant, had, on every occaſion to the beſt of his abilities, aſſiſted his royal maſter in every act of adminiſtration, and that, from affection to his perſon, and love to his government, as well as from the zeal he had for the honor of the Britiſh crown, he would always do his utmoſt to ſupport it with that dignity, which he hoped to ſee it ever maintain.

Lord C———m ſtood up again, and replied to him, but ſtill kept off entering directly into the merits of the caſe.

The Duke of R——d roſe up again.— He ſaid he had liſtened with attention to the noble Lord who ſpoke laſt, in both the harrangues he had delivered to their Lordſhips, and yet he could form no judgment of his opinion.—That the laſt Time this queſtion had been agitated, he declared boldly to their Lordſhips, that the embargo was a legal act, but now he declined to uſe the word, nor had he once this day declared whether he thought it legal or illegal.———That he conſidered it as a rock threatening much danger; of which, like a careful pilot, he wiſhed to ſteer clear.— That if he ſtill continued of his former opinion, why did he not declare it? if he is convinced that he was then in the wrong was he aſhamed to own it? at preſent, ſays he, he is neither black nor white; he neither ſays yes or no.

Lord C——m replied, That he was always ready to give his opinion at all times and in all places; that he deſpiſed quibbling, of which he was at preſent accuſed; —that had the noble Duke attended to him, he would eaſily have learned his opinion, which ſays he, I here repeat in my place, That the embargo was an illegal meaſure. He concluded his ſpeech with ſaying, that he wiſhed to conciliate the minds of all ranks and degrees of men; but while he continued a M—r, he would act for the public good, to the beſt of his abilities, and boldly look the proudeſt connections of this kingdom in the face.

The Duke of R———d ſtood up again. He ſaid, that, like a ſlave put to the torture, he had at laſt confeſſed what he before ſeemed to evade. When he came to anſwer the laſt part of Lord C———m's ſpeech, he repeated the words conciliate— conciliate, my Lords, he may wiſh it, but alas! it is a taſk he never can perform; for by his inſolence, and imperious behaviour he has alienated———

Here he was called to order;—and after a ſhort pauſe, he proceeded.——Theſe, my Lords, are harſh words, perhaps they are improper ones; if they are ſo, I humbly aſk pardon of this houſe; I might have conveyed my idea as ſtrong by a circumlocution, but truth muſt not be ſpoke at all times ——Here he was called to order again.

Lord C——m then ſtood up, and ſaid, This attack from the noble Duke is as unprecedented, as it is unexpected; but any man who vaguely accuſes another of inſolence, without ſpecifying any particular inſtance, is the only perſon who can be ſaid to be guilty of inſolence; that with reſpect to himſelf, it was falſe, and he dared any man to ſay he had ever treated him ſo.

The Duke of R——d replied, inſtances per time and place; but I could give your Lordſhips ſuch inſtances.——Here he was called to order.

And M——t then ſtood up, and ſaid, he thought both were in fault; but that they ſhould be enjoined to paſs their words of honor that nothing more ſhould follow from this.

Here there was a long pauſe.

The Duke of R——d then ſaid, that he had already aſked pardon of that houſe for ſome improper, and perhaps indecent expreſſions;—that he here did ſo again, and begged leave to retract them; but added, that he could by no means retract the ſentiment,—and concluded with giving his word of honor to the houſe, and to the noble Lord, that nothing ſhould follow upon this from him.

Lord C——m did the ſame.

LONDON, January 14.

Several important matters, with reſpect to the Weſt-India colonies and trade, we hear, will be fully ſettled before the diſſolution of the preſent Parliament.

Laſt Wedneſday two ſhips laden with corn from Holland arrived at Liverpool, which was the next day ſold to the poor at prime coſt.

A few days ago three ſharpers went to a public houſe, in Rocheſter, and ſent for a tradeſman, pretending they would be cuſtomers to him: In the courſe of converſation, one of them took occaſion to mention an affair which juſt happened where he had been, viz. That a perſon undertook, for a trifling wager, to repeat the words, "There he goes," for a quarter of an hour ſucceſſively, without moving from his ſeat, which, eaſy as it appeared, he could not perform. The unſuſpecting tradeſman caught the bait, and propoſed himſelf to repeat the ſame words for double the time. The ſharper took him at his word, and ten guineas were immediately ſtaked; whereupon he placed himſelf facing the dial; but leſt any tricks ſhould be play'd therewith, he pulled out his gold-watch and placed it on the table before him: Preliminaries now being ſettled he proceeded on the performance but ere he had made much progreſs, his opponents ſwept money and watch off the table, and walked out. The tradeſman ſuppoſing this to be only a ſcheme for him to looſe the wager, ſtill continued ſtedfaſt in repeating only the forementioned words, "There he goes." The landlord obſerving his companions walk out, went to acquaint him with his ſuſpicion; when he entered the room, he found his gueſt, as before deſcribed, (excepting only his want of watch and money) but could receive no anſwer from him but "There he goes." Apprehending he was delirous, it was now judged requiſite to ſend for ſome ſkilful perſon to aſſiſt him; an apothecary was thereupon provided, who when entered, found the tradeſman in the forementioned poſition, and ſaying, "There he goes." Arguments they found were in vain; they therefore were about to proceed to forcible means to attract his attention otherwiſe, but juſt as they were entering on their intended operation, the time expired, and the tradeſman, with an oath declared he had won the wager. This unexpected change ſurprized the viſitants, and we ſuppoſe the viſited was not leſs alarmed, when informed of the trick which had paſſed on him; and to heighten his vexation, he cannot now ſhew his face without being inſulted by the boys, with "There he goes."

His Excelency M. Mellode Caſtro, envoy Extraordinary from Portugal, has had a conferance of ſome hours with the two ſecretaries on the grievances complained of to Portugal. Theſe grievances are, 1. breach of treaties; 2. unjuſt ſeizures of money 3. unwarrantable monopolies; 4. illegal impoſitions; 5. detention of juſt debts; 6. reſtraints laid upon trade; 7 the moſt arbitrary deciſions in their courts of juſtice and 8 partialty in favour of other nations; inſomuch that the Britiſh merchants are now ſubject to the moſt unprecedented oppreſſions.

A number of Roman Catholicks, in Ireland, are, we hear, diſpoſing of their properties, with an intent of ſettling in the regions of America.

We hear, that within the courſe of this week, upwards of thirty ſhip carpenters have engaged themſelves for Spain, upon extraordinary encouragement, to be employed there in his Catholic Majeſty's dock-yards.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.

On Friday the 10th Inſtant, departed this Life, at Annapolis, after a ſhort Illneſs, greatly regretted, JONAS GREEN, Eſq; Printer to the Province of Maryland, and Publiſher of the Maryland Gazette, for upwards of Twenty-One Years paſt. His Son, we hear, ſucceeds him in his Buſineſs.

Extract of a Letter from London, Feb. 14.

"The Miſchiefs ariſing from the frequent Changes in the Miniſtry, are too obvious to require a Recital of them—It has for ſome Time paſt been generally hoped and believed, that the preſent Adminiſtration would be more permanent than the former; but now we have Reaſon to fear immediate and great Changes. The Reaſons which are hinted, as likely to occaſion them, are, That Lord C——'s frequent and long Indiſpoſitions, render him often incapable of Buſineſs; and his great Influence when he recovers his Health, enables him to overthrow any Meaſures entered into while he is ill, which occaſions great Delay in Parliamentary Affairs—This, it is ſaid, will render his Removal neceſſary; and ſhould that happen, very conſiderable Alterations will enſue. Some imagine the D. of B——d's and Mr. G——le's Parties will be re-admitted."

"The late Diſputes in New-York have again rouſed the revengeful Spirit of your Enemies, and have loſt the Colonies ſome, till now, very ſtaunch Friends, and who were moſt attached to their Intereſt, Mr. C——s T——d, &c.

"Lord Chatham was brought to Town a few Days ſince exceſſively Ill.—No public Buſineſs has been done this Winter for want of him: What a Situation is this! The Oppoſition to him, is amazingly powerful."——

SERJEANT FACTS, begs Leave thro' the Channel of your Paper, to preſent his Compliments to the Public, and to acquaint them, that having got all his Spelling-Book by Heart, and read the Dictionary quite thro' looks upon himſelf now, under much better Advantages to ſerve them, than heretofore, and would have tranſmitted another Chapter of Facts, before this Time, but at preſent labours under great Diſcouragements in his Undertaking, and finds experimentally, that Facts when made public, ſits very uneaſy on the Stomachs of many of his Majeſty's leige Subjects in this Colony, and has ſo enraged them, that they have called him many hard Names, charging him with groſs and willful Lying, for that he had willfully omitted in his firſt Calculations, a Pariſh on the Eaſt Side of the River, lying part in the Townſhip of Middletown, and part in the Town of Haddam, formerly called Swallow-All, but by the lateſt and beſt Authors, now term'd Middle-Haddam; which Miſtake aroſe merely from Miſinformation, and not the Effect of Malice propence; and is now determined, when he ſhall re-print all his Chapters in one intire Volumn, he will carefully correct that Error, and likewiſe that other Pariſh in Windſor, and hopes that his Chapters will, on Account of correct Spelling, for the future, be more acceptable to his politer Readers, and hopes to mend his plain Stile, which the agreiv'd Parties, are pleas'd to term drole and sarcaſtic, and in a little Time be able to write in the true ſublime. But what at preſent prevents the Publication of any more Chapters, is the Performance of an angry Writer, who ſtiles himſelf your Conſtant Cuſtomer; printed in your Paper, N°. 115, in which he has undertaken, to Curſe the Serjeant out of the Bible, who from a Child has been taught, to pay a ſacred Regard to the Canons of Scripture, and not to quote them with Levity, or in Anger to ſpit out his Venom againſt any One who bears the Image of GOD, in the Language of divine Inſpiration. But what moſt of all afflicts him is, that he is credibly inform'd this Gentleman, who appears to be ſo religiouſly ſpiteful, is a C——n, who by his Conduct appears to imagine himſelf, the Pontiff of thoſe Tribes, who were to ſtand upon Mount-Ebal, which on the other Side Jordon, viz. Reuben, Gad and Aſhur, Zebulon, Dan and Naphtali, and by Divine Command, authoriſed to Curſe the Serjeant from the 22d of Exodus, to the 21ſt of Rev. in which laſt Quotation, he is conſign'd as a Lyar to the Lake which burns with Fire and Brimſtone: Wherefore, he is determined not to publiſh another Chap. until he can lay his Caſe before the general Convention of our Clergy, and obtain their Opinion,

1. Whether it is lawful thus to apply the ſacred Scripture?

2. Whether Lay-Brethren may uſe it in like Manner; or whether it is claim'd only by Benefit of Clergy?

For if the Scriptures may be thus apply'd, he has already found ſeveral Texts, which may very properly be annexed to ſeveral of his Chapters; but ſhall not preſume to apply them in that Manner, until their Opinion thereon be obtain'd, or publiſh any more Chapters, unleſs ſome urgent Occaſion ſhould require it, leaſt this Writer ſhould proſtitute the ſacred Scriptures, to ſo wicked a Purpoſe, and thereby do diſhonor to Religion, and the ſacred Office he ſuſtains.

MONDAY, May 4, 1767. NUMBER 123.

Printed by THOMAS GREEN, in HARTFORD.

LONDON, Jan. 2.

THE tide roſe ſo high in the river Thames, that the damage done by it is eſtimated at Fifty Thouſand Pounds.

A Scotch ſhip bound to Leith was loſt in the mouth of the Humber, and 26 paſſengers and crew periſhed, and among the former were, Brig. Gen. John Hamilton, and Lieut. Crawford of the navy; with ſeveral others of note.

Jan. 6. The Lord Chamberlain, by his Majeſty's order, made the uſual offering at the Chapel Royal, but there was no gaming nor court at St. James's.

Jan. 7. The ſnow was ſo deep throughout the whole kingdom, that the like has not been remembered by the moſt oldeſt men living; many people have periſhed; cattle and horſes have been buried and dug out; the ſtage waggons have been delayed; the poſt boys have been bewildered, and ſome frozen to death; in ſhort, the ſeverity of the ſeaſon is univerſally felt, & the diſtreſſes of the poor in many places is inexpreſſible.

January 9. Three of the rioters condemn'd at Glouceſter were executed there; and the behaviour of one of the ſufferers was very affecting, and made a deep impreſſion on the ſpectators; of the other two little can be ſaid, one was ill, and the other very ignorant.

Jan. 12. Samuel Orton and Capt. Thornhill, for forgery, William Walker and William Johnſon for a highway robbery were executed at Tyburn.

From the 3d to the 14th inſtant it froze inceſſantly at Paris. The degrees of cold were very accurately obſerved at the royal College by four well regulated thermometors, and has been found to exceed that in 1740 by three degrees, and but 2 degrees and a half ſhort of that of 1709.

At the ſeſſions which began on Wedneſday laſt, three convicts received ſentence of death; Timothy Tredale, for robbing Gen. Elliot on the high-way; Willam Collinſon, for forging a draught on Sir Joſeph Hankey; and John Williamſon for the murder of his wife, by confining her in a moſt cruel manner, and ſtarving her to death.—The poor creature was a kind of ideot, who having a ſum of money left for her maintenance, Williamſon to poſſeſs himſelf of the money found means to marry her.

They were firſt aſk'd in Church, but the truſtee forbid the banes; the villain however, procured a licence, and about eight months ago they were married; ſince which the uſage the unhappy creature received has been one continued ſcene of cruelty. He had driven a ſtrong ſtaple into the wall of a cloſet in the room where they lodged, and to this ſtaple he daily tied her with a rope which he drew round her middle, her hands being faſtened behind her with iron handcuffs, and the little ſuſtenance ſhe received was laid upon a ſhelf, juſt within the reach of her mouth, ſo that if ſhe dropt any part of it ſhe could not again recover it; and ſo very barbarous was this inhuman villain, that he often tied her up ſo tight that her toes only reached the ground, and if his daughter attempted to alleviate her miſery by ſetting a ſtool for her to ſtand on, he uſed to beat her unmercifully. In this manner ſhe languiſhed till ſhe became a frightful ſkeleton, and when ſhe was ſo far reduced that her ſtomach loathed food, he releaſed her, let looſe her hands, and ſet courſe meat before her, and tempted her with tender words to eat, with a view to ſcreen himſelf from juſtice. In a day or two after this ſhe died a ſhocking ſight, no fleſh on her bones, and the ſkin that covered them, covered with vermin.

Jan. 16. The fall of ſnow has been ſo great in South Wales, that all communication there, except by the great poſt-roads, was cut off. Between the mountains the ſnow is ſuppoſed to be 40 fathom deep.

LONDON.

Jan. 16. It is ſaid a ſcheme is under conſideration for introducing the currency of Engliſh Bank notes, not to exceed five pounds each, in the American colonies.

The Earl of Chatham patronizes our cauſe with the Portugueſe, and has this week declared, that "The wrongs of our merchants trading to Portugal muſt be redreſſed."

It is ſaid the Iſland of St. John's at Newfoundland will be made a free port, and enjoy the ſame privileges as that of Dominica, in the Weſt-Indies.

Feb. 2. We hear that Admiral Palliſer's fleet, now fitting out is to occupy the following ſtations: one diviſion between point Riche and Cape Bonaviſte, a ſecond on the Labradore coaſt, and the third to cruize at Cape Breton, Bay of Fundy, and Streights of Belleiſle.

We hear all the men of war, now fitting out for different ſtations in America and the Weſt-Indies are to carry out their full complement of marines.

Feb. 3. We are told that ſeveral more ſloops of war are ordered to be fitted out at Chatham, ſuppoſed for American ſervice.

Orders are given for ſome thouſand ſtands of ſmall arms to be got ready at the Tower, to be ſhipped for North-America.

Feb. 6. Laſt week a great perſon, with four other eminent members of the church, were nominated, as truſtees for the money collected by the Indian preacher, among the Diſſenters through this kingdom, for propagating the goſpel in America, when they were pleaſed to accept the ſame.

Feb. 7. The ſquadron now fitting out is to conſiſt of twenty ſhips of the line, four frigates and two bomb ketches, beſides, tenders and hoſpital ſhips. They are to be furniſhed with all the implements of war neceſſary for ſieges; and large quantities of chain ſhot are already ſhipped on board.

Feb. 9. New inſtructions are ſaid now to be preparing to be ſent to our Governors in the Weſt Indies and North-America.

It is ſtrongly reported that the naval expedition, is intended for the Mediterranean.

Feb. 12. The preſent military preparations attract the attention of many people, and the knowing ones in St. James's ſtreet who pretend to be in the ſecret, have laid bets of three hundred guineas to one, that they are deſigned for North-America, and not to Portugal.

Feb. 19. Orders are diſpatched to Gibralter for the governor to fix a boom-chain acroſs that harbour, as information has been received that the Spaniards intend to attack that place.—Whether here is any truth in this alarming report, a ſhort time will probably diſcover.

It is ſaid that the troops in North-America will be drawn from the parts of the country, and quartered in the neighbourhood of Boſton and New-York.

Feb. 20. We hear that the whole military eſtabliſhment of the Britiſh colonies in North-America is to conſiſt of thirteen thouſand effective men, excluding five of their militia.

"Your Lordſhip may ſay what you will" (ſaid a perſon of diſtinction to a noble Earl at his table this week) "but though my Lord Chatham's opponents are very numerous, yet, take my word for it, that as ſoon as he comes to town, and makes perſonal appearance in the political and miniſterial world, his enemies will be glad to hide their heads where they can beſt conceal themſelves from his reſentment."

Extract of a Letter from Rome, Jan. 5.

—"It is talked here, that the king of Spain is taken up in carrying on a vigorous proceſs not only againſt the Jeſuits, but alſo againſt the Jeſuitical court of Rome that he has aſſembled a number of divines and other proper perſons, to conſider whether he might not lawfully prohibit all applications to Rome for diſpenſations, &c. and appropriate the whole management and deciſion of ſuch matters to his own biſhops: That this queſtion being determined in the negative, he had cauſed a book to be written and printed in the Spaniſh language, for a ſtanding proof and defence of his conduct on this occaſion; and being reſolved to ſatisfy others, as well as his own people, of the ſolidity of thoſe reaſons which have prevailed on him to do this, he has ordered that book to be tranſlated into Italian, whereby it will become more public to the world, and be read by thoſe whom it may more particularly concern, and by the generality, at leaſt, of the more ſouthern parts of Europe."

We hear that the affairs of the Eaſt-India Company with the miniſtry are (notwithſtanding all contrary reports) in the ſame unſettled ſituation as ever; and that as yet no man in the kingdom, one very high perſonage excepted, is acquainted with the Earl of C——'s views on the company.

It is now ſaid that general Monkton goes to North-America, as Governor of the provinces of New-York and Quebec, and commander in chief of the troops in North America.

The contradiction of the ſhips now fitting out being deſtined on ſome expedition is, we are told, a mere contradiction, for that a fleet is to be commanded by three Admirals (Pocock, Geary and Palliſer are ſaid to be the gentlemen) and will attend Mr. Littleton on the Tagus, whatever may be its after deſtination.

After having ſo many years ſhewn a total diſlike of the female ſex, all Europe are now attentive to the change in his majeſty of Pruſſia, who is cloſetted and ſups with two of the fineſt ladies in Germany.

A new plan for TAXING America is ſaid to be adopted by the miniſtry.

It is reported that eight regiments are nominated to go from Ireland to America in conſequence of ſome letters lately received from thence.

It is ſaid the fleet now fitting out will go to America, to ſtrengthen the troops to be ſent thither.

The report of the cuſtom houſe in New-York having been pulled down, is without foundation.

Friday the ſeveral agents for the American colonies had a conference with Secretary Conway on affairs of great importance.

17. We hear that this morning the Right Hon. the earl of Strathmore will be married to Miſs Bowes of Durham, the greateſt heireſs in Europe; her preſent fortune is one million, and 40,000l. beſides a large jointure on the death of her mother, and a large eſtate on the demiſe of an uncle.

It is ſaid that the troops in North America will be drawn from the different parts of the country, and quartered in the neighbourhood of Boſton and New York.

An evening paper of Saturday ſays, that upwards of nine hundred Spittalfield weavers, for want of employment here, have, within the courſe of a week engaged themſelves for Boſton, New York and Philadelphia. [It ſeems ſtrange what ſhould become of the great Number of Manufacturers which are ſo often ſaid to have engaged for [illegible], &c. as not one of them has ever yet arrived.]

Paramaribo, the capital of Surinam, is one of the fineſt towns in all America, and is a place of no defence.—Fort Zelandia, which is near it, was built by the Engliſh, when in poſſeſſion of that country. The Dutch are ſo afraid of the Engliſh taking Surinam from them, that they will not ſuffer any gold or ſilver mines to be opened.

'Tis ſaid that a ſpirited memorial has been ſent over to Holland in relation to the barbarous treatment which a Britiſh ſubject lately received on board a Dutch man of war.

Letters from Poland, of the 6th of February, ſay, that a report prevails there, that [illegible],000 Ruſſian troops more are to arrive as ſoon as the ſeaſon will permit, in [illegible] kingdom, and that the Poles are preparing to oppoſe them.

The houſe of commons ſat very late on Friday night, and was engaged upon buſineſs of ſuch conſequence, that the houſe was ordered to be cleared of all perſons who were not members.

As much has been lately ſaid concerning the province of Surinam, belonging to the Dutch, in America, we have inſerted the following brief account of its ſituation, &c. It lies in ſix degrees north of the line, and is certainly a very rich and fertile country; it is bounded to the north by the river Oronoque, and to the ſouth by the river Amazone; the Dutch yearly load about eighty large ſhips with its produce, being ſugar, coffee, cotton, drugs, wood, &c. The Dutch eſteem Surinam of the greateſt conſequence. It is almoſt as big as the kingdom of France.

"Yeſterday morning, about three o'Clock I was greatly alarmed by the cry of fire, and the tolling of the fire bell, when I aroſe out of my bed, which was not far from where the fire happened, the moſt ſhocking ſight preſented itſelf to me; the workhouſe in which all the poor of 11 pariſhes lived, to the amount of 200 boys and girls, beſides men and women, was entirely burnt to the ground, together with upwards of 60 children and about twelve men & five women, in all ſeventy-ſeven; the reſt were ſaved. It was about two o'Clock in the morning when the fire broke out, but it was ſuppoſed to have been burning all night; as about 20 children lie in one room, and its ſuppoſed they by ſome accident ſet fire to ſome cotton which the children ſpin, and which was owing to the negligence of one woman, by letting them go to bed by themſelves. It is impoſſible to expreſs the horror and diſtreſs the poor people were in, ſome of them running out naked, others jumping out of the windows and from the top of the building: In ſhort, it was the moſt ſhocking ſight that ever was ſeen. There are upwards of 30 men employed in digging out the bones and dead bodies, but there are none found as yet, and it is ſuppoſed they are all burnt to aſhes."

BOSTON, April 20.

We hear from Stoughton that a few days ſince died there Mrs. Mary Horton, aged 150 years: She was a native of Jamaica in the Weſt-Indies, and in the great earthquake at that Iſland about 60 years ſince, ſhe was taken up floating on the water, and brought hither by a veſſel belonging to this place: Her huſband was alſo taken up at the ſame time, and bro't hither by another veſſel, by which means they met together to their great ſurprize both imagining each other to have periſhed in that terrible cataſtrophe.

By the laſt Sips from London, we are agreeably informed of the Determination of a Cauſe before the houſe of Lords, between the City of London and the Diſſenters, reſpecting the Sheriffalty. The Caſe was as follows, Allen Evans, Eſq; a Diſſenting Gentleman was elected by the City of London one of the Sheriffs; he refuſed to ſerve in that Office, and plead that the City had not a right to chooſe him, nor he a right to officiate there, as by act of Parliament he was diſqualified; for that he had not within the Space of twelve months before his Election, partook of the ſacrament of the Lord's Supper, according to the Rights of the Church of England, which the Act of Parliament required all Perſons choſe into and ſerving in that Office ſhould do: That he could not conſcientiouſly comply with that requiſition, and therefore was not obliged to ſerve in that Office, nor was he ſubject to any Fine for not ſerving—Upon this, an Action was brought by the Chamberlin of the City againſt him for the Recovery of Six Hundred Pounds Sterling, ſuggeſted to be forfeited by his Refuſal; which, after various Trials, was at length unanimouſly determined in Favor of Mr. Evans, upon a Writ of Error in the Houſe of Lords. This having been a Caſe of great Expectation, and long conteſted, we have to gratify our Readers, obtained an Extract of a Letter upon this ſubject, wrote by a Gentleman of Diſtiction in London, to his Correſpondent in this Town, which is as follows,

London, February 10, 1767.

SIR,

I Should have acknowledged the Receipt of your Favors of October 14 paſt ſooner, but that my Time and Mind have been fully employed for Months paſt in a public Affair, which moſt nearly concern'd the civil and religious Intereſt of every Diſſenter in England. By the Force of Truth, which is always an Overmatch for Cunning, and by the Grace of God ſupporting at this Time, by his Providence, that glorious Cauſe, we found the whole Houſe of Lords, as it were born in a Day to countenance, and alſo to give Judgment as one Man in Favor of the Diſſenters, againſt that great Power the City of London, and all that Art we have conteſted with in the Sheriff's Cauſe for more than fourteen Years, and even in this laſt ſignal Defeat, to uſe their own Expreſſions, they died very hard. When the Council on both Sides had done, and the Judges who were ſummoned to attend had given their Opinions Seriatim on a Point of Law which was ſtarted, my Lord Mansfield in a moſt nervous and eloquent Speech, among other Things, declared, That the Mode of religious Worſhip, amongſt Proteſtant Diſſenters, was eſtabliſhed by Law. And further, That according to his Apprehenſion, it would be Sin in a conſcientious Diſſenter, to conform to the Church of England. He concluded by moving the Houſe that the Judgment be affirmed, which the Houſe agreed to immediately.

About a Month ſince was born at Gen. Winſlow's Farm Marſhfield, a daughter of John Fulterton, whoſe age is 73 years, his wife 47, the child being his 17th; he has two daughters that are grand mothers, the one has had two grand children, and the other three, the laſt mentioned was preſent at the birth of her ſiſter. Mr Fullerton has had 50 grand and great grand children, 4[illegible] of which are now living.

BOSTON, April 30.

By the February Packet arrived at New-York, a Letter has been receiv'd from Mr. De Berdt, directed to the Speaker of the late Houſe of Repreſentative, dated the 14th of February laſt.

The following Paragraphs are extracted therefrom.

SIR.

"Since my receiving your judicious, pertinent and decent Repreſentation of the Difficulties your Trade laboured under, I have had ſeveral Conferences with Lord Shelburne on the Subject of it, who has been ſo obliging as to direct to lay the Caſe before him, in form of a Memorial, with which his own Secretary will attend me to the Board of Trade, and has promis'd his Intereſt to ſerve you, which Memorial now lays before his Lordſhip.—The Reſtraint laid on the Fiſhery will be remov'd."

"The Government are about to call home the Troops from America and place others in their Room, the preparing for the embarking of which has occaſioned much Speculation here, and the Report runs that there are freſh Troops going to America, which has occaſioned my particular Application to Lord Shelburne on that Head, who was ſo condeſcending and obliging as to Aſſure me, I might ſatisfy all Friends that there was no Intention of augmenting the Forces in America, but a mere exchange."

We hear that Letters have been receiv'd in Town from London, which give an Account that John Williams, Eſq; Brother to Jonathan Williams, Eſq; of this Town, is appointed Receiver General of His Majeſty's Cuſtoms in North-America, and that he is to reſide in this Town.

Extract of a Letter from Surrinam, March 2d, 1767.

"Yeſterday arrived here a Dutch Guineaman, and brings an Account that the French have taken ſome of our Factories on the Coaſt of Africa; but how true I can't ſay, tho' its currently reported and credited here."

NEWPORT, April 20.

It is aſſerted in one of the laſt Connecticut Papers, that the Governor of Rhode-Iſland took the Oaths for executing the late Stamp-Act: The Author of that Aſſertion may be aſſured it is a Miſtake, as no ſuch Oath was ever taken by the Governor of this Colony, that Gentleman declaring publickly, that he would ſooner renounce his Office of Governor, than enter into an Engagement ſubverſive of the Rights & Privileges of his Country.

HARTFORD, May 4.

We hear from Rhode-Iſland, that the Hon. Stephen Hopkins, Eſq; has a Majority of 414 Votes in favor of his being choſe Governor of that Colony at the enſuing Election, in the Room of the Hon. Samuel Ward, Eſq; their preſent Governor;——and Joſeph Wanton, junr. Eſq; has a Majority for Dep. Governor, in the Room of the Hon. Eliſha Brown, their preſent Deputy Governor; and that there will be a general Change of their whole Upper-Houſe, at their enſuing Election.

The Troops which have been quartered in this Government, for ſome Months paſt, are gone by Water, to New-York.

LONDON, March 4.

The Addreſs of Thanks from the County of Bucks, to their Repreſentatives in Parliament.

WE the High Sheriff, Grand Jury, Gentlemen and Clergy of the county of Bucks, aſſembled at the aſſizes held at Ayleſbury the third day of March, 1767, take this earlieſt opportunity to return our ſincere and cordial thanks to ſuch of our Repreſentatives in Parliament ſerving this county, and the ſeveral boroughs within the ſame, as have contributed by their virtue and ſpirit to relieve us from part of the heavy burden of four ſhillings in the pound upon land; a burthen in its full extent become, in theſe times of diſtreſs and ſcarcity, inſupportable.

WE are alſo encouraged to expreſs our earneſt hopes and confidence, that by the continuance of their aſſiſtance, and by the wiſdom and juſtice of a truly Britiſh Parliament, the ſtricteſt œconomy may be enforced; and that his Majeſty's loyal and obedient ſubjects the landlords of this kingdom, will not be charged with an encreaſe of taxes, unknown in time of peace, in order to defray expences which have hitherto been conſtantly born by his Majeſty's colonies in America; and of which thoſe colonies have, by inſurrection and violence, refuſed to contribute any part for their own protection and defence, though required thereto by an act of the Britiſh legiſlature."

ANNAPOLIS, April 2.

Accounts of the Damages done by the heavy Freſhes the 6th and 7th of laſt Month in the Weſtern Parts, are indeed terrible. In one Part of Patowmack, the River aroſe to Forty Feet perpendicular higher then it is in the Summer, and vaſt deal higher than has been before known: by the Back-Water of Patowmack, the Mouth of Manockacy roſe about 20 Feet, and about 15 Feet in other Parts. Many Houſes, Cattle, Horſes, Hogs, &c. were by the Flood carried away and loſt. In the Sugar-Lands it made prodigious Havock; about 400 Hogſheads of Tobacco was carried away and loſt: One Mr. Douglaſs had his ſtock of 21 Head of Cattle, his working Horſes, and 37 Hogs entirely carried away. The Damages ſuſtained by this Inundation is beyond Deſcription; & ſuch a number of induſtrious honeſt people ſufferered thereby, that it is thought if their Creditors and Landlords have not Chriſtian Patience with them, that they will drive 3 or 4 hundred of theſe uſeful People out of the Province. An inſtance of the Generoſity of two young Dutchmen well deſerves recording: They had leas'd out two Tracts for about 15 or 20l. a Year, to two Tenants, and going to them ſoon after the Diſaſter, the Tenants told them, it was impoſſible for them to pay their Rents, and were afraid they muſt go and leave the Province: On which thoſe noble ſpirited Landlords, after converſing a little together in Dutch ſat down and wrote them a full Diſcharge for their Dues: Not forgetting that Part of their daily Prayer (Mat. vi. 12.) Forgive us our Debts, as we forgive our Debtors.

PROVIDENCE, April 11.

We have the following odd affair related to us by a Gentleman of this town who was an eye witneſs to it, viz. That on Monday the 16th of March laſt, the Rev. Mr. Barrett of Hopkinton, in this province, was walking in the highway in that town, near the houſe of Mr. John Abbe, with a great coat round his ſhoulders, but on a ſudden he miſſed it, and after looking ſome conſiderable time, he ſaw it at about one hundred yards from him hanging on a tree near thirty feet from the ground.—We muſt reaſonably ſuppoſe that it was taken off by ſome inviſible hand, as it was a very calm time, and not wind enough to blow off his hat.—The coat was taken down, and weighed by ſome gentlemen then preſent, and found to weigh above five pounds. Oh! ſtrange!

We hear from Springfield, that one day this week a young woman of that place died with grief, ſaid to be occaſioned by a diſappointment in a love affair.———The young man who is ſaid to be the occaſion of her death, was preſent a few hours before ſhe died, and then offered marriage to her, but it was then too late to preſerve her life.—It is ſaid the young man now lies at the point of death.——This may be a warning to young men not to make a practice of deceiving the fair ſex.

CONNECTICUT COURANT.

Printed by THOMAS GREEN, in HARTFORD.

Original Letter from the younger VILLIERS Duke of BUCKINGHAM, upon his death-Bed, to the Reverend Dr. W———

Dear DOCTOR,

I ALWAYS looked upon you as a man of true virtue and know you to be a perſon of ſound underſtanding; for however I may have acted in oppoſition to the principles of religion, or the dictates of reaſon, I can honeſtly aſſure you, I had always the higheſt veneration for both. The world and I may now ſhake hands, for I dare affirm we are heartily weary of one another. O Doctor, what a prodigal have I been of that moſt valuable of all poſſeſſions, Time! I have ſquandered it away with a profuſion unparallelled; and now that the enjoyment of a few days would be worth a hecatomb of worlds, I cannot flatter myſelf with a proſpect of half a dozen hours.

How diſpiſible, my dear friend, is that man, who never prays to his God but in time of diſtreſs!—In what manner can he ſupplicate that omnipotent being, in his affliction, with reverence, whom, in the tide of his proſperity, he never remembered with dread?—Don't brand me with infidelity, my dear Doctor, when I tell you, I am almoſt aſhamed to offer up my petitions at the throne of grace, or of imploring that divine mercy in the next world, which I have ſo ſcandalouſly abuſed in this! Shall ingratitude to man be looked upon as the blackeſt crimes, and not ingratitude to God? Shall an inſult offered to the king, be looked upon in the moſt offenſive light, and yet no notice be taken when the King of kings is treated with indignity and diſreſpect!

The companions of my former libertiniſm would ſcarcely believe their eyes, my dear Doctor, were you to ſhew them this epiſtle. They would laugh at me as a dreaming enthuſiaſt, and pity me as a timorous wretch, who was ſhocked at the appearance of futurity. But whoever laughs at me for being right, or pities me for being ſenſible of my errors, is more intitled to my compaſſion than by reſentment.——A future ſtate may very well ſtrike terror into any man who has not acted well in this life: and he muſt have an uncommon ſhare of courage indeed, who does not ſhrink at the preſence of his God.

You ſee, my dear Doctor, the apprehenſion of death will ſoon bring the moſt profligate to a proper uſe of their underſtanding.—To what a ſituation am I now reduced!—Is this odious little hut a ſuitable lodging for a prince? or this anxiety of my mind becoming the caracteriſtic of a Chriſtian? From my rank and fortune, I might have expected affluence to wait upon my life; from my religion and underſtanding, peace to ſmile upon my end; inſtead of which I am afflicted with poverty, and haunted with remorſe; deſpiſed by my country, and, I fear, forſaken by my God?———There is nothing ſo dangerous, my dear Doctor, as extraordinory abilities.—I cannot be acuſed of vanity now by being ſenſible I was once poſſeſſed of uncommon qualifications, more eſpecially as I ſincerely regret that I was ever bleſſed with any at all—My rank in life made theſe accompliſhments ſtill more conſpicious; and, faſcinated with the general applauſe which they procured, I never conſidered about the proper means by which they ſhould be diſplayed; hence to purchaſe a ſmile from a blockhead I deſpiſed, have I frequent treated the virtuous with diſreſpect; and ſported with the holy name of Heaven, to obtain a laugh from a parcel of fools who are entitled to nothing but my contempt.

Your men of wit, my dear Doctor, generally look upon themſelves as diſcharged from the duties of religion, and confine the doctrines of the goſpel to people of meaner underſtandings; it is a ſort of derogation in their opinion, to comply with the rules of Chriſtianity: and they reckon that man poſſeſſed of a narrow genius, who ſtudies to be good.—What a pity that the holy writings are not made the criterion of true judgement! or that any one ſhould paſs for a fine gentleman in this world, but he that ſeems ſolicitous about his happineſs in the next.

My dear Doctor, I am forſaken by all acquaintance, utterly neglected by the friends of my boſom, and the dependents of my bounty; but no matter.—I am not now fit to converſe with the firſt, & have no ability to ſerve the latter; let me not be caſt off wholly, however, by the good; favour me with a viſit, dear Doctor, as ſoon as poſſible; writing to you gives me ſome eaſe, eſpecially upon a ſubject I could talk of forever,—I am of opinion this is the the laſt viſit I ſhall ever ſolicit from you.—My diſtemper is powerful; come and pray for the departing ſpirit of the unhappy

BUCKINGHAM.

KINGSTON, (in Jamaica) January 31.

The 26th of January inſtant, came to anchor in this port, the ſloop George, Capt. Jeremiah Rogers, bound from Halifax to New-York, blown off the coaſt by ſtreſs of weather. Being obliged to put into Porto Rico the 15th inſtant, having only a few biſkets and gallons of water on board; upon ſending the boat on ſhore to get relief, no notice being taken of the ſignal made by the ſloop, the mate and ſailors in the boat were detained as priſoners, and the boat was ſent back by their own people, commanded by a Lieutenant of a Guarda Coſta, who boarded the veſſel and made the Captain and all on board priſoners with a ſtrong guard on deck: they then went into the cabbin, and opened trunks and boxes belonging to the paſſengers, and carried away ſundry effects and money belonging to them, as alſo goods belonging to the veſſel: In the afternoon of the 17th inſtant, being under way a Spaniſh frigate brought the ſloop to anchor, firſt firing a ſhot to leeward, and ſent the boat with 8 or 9 hands armed, commanded by a petty officer, who ordered the Captain and paſſengers to go on board the Spaniſh veſſel, which they were compelled to do; and during the time the Captain and paſſengers were on board the Spaniſh veſſel his people were committing many acts of piracy and barbarity on board the ſloop. A lady was ſo frightned, that ſhe fell down and was very much hurt; ſhe was turned out of the cabbin, till they had rifled and taken away many things; and would not even ſuffer any of the people belonging to the ſloop to hale the ſhip; and after complaining to the Captain of the frigate, no redreſs was obtained, but a peremtory demand was made to ſend on board his veſſel a barrel of mackrel as a paſs.

It is obſerved, that the Governor of St. Domingo was on board, who ſaid, "it was not in his power to give any relief, being only a paſſenger;" it was therefore tho't more prudent to leave ſuch an inhoſpitable coaſt, than make any further attemps for relief, having a periſhable cargo on board. The above account is taken from a copy of the Captain's proteſt.

On Thurſday morning, between one and two o'clock, a great earthquake was felt in many parts of this Iſland; But we don't hear of any damage being done.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.

"I am informed that the miniſtry do not intended to take into conſideration the ſupplying the colonies with a paper-currency, unleſs ſtrongly urged to it by the American merchants. They, indeed, in conſequence of the importunity of their friends and correſpondents in the colonies, have had ſeveral meetings and conſultations about it, which have ended in a very partial regard to their own ſecurity, without the leaſt conſideration of thoſe who reſide in the colonies, whoſe properties may be injured by the depreciation of paper-money. The repreſentation they agreed to make, and recommend to the miniſtry, was to this effect, viz. To repeal the late act of parliament of the fourth of his preſent Majeſty; but with the addition of a clauſe, by which it is declared, "That paper bills of credit ſhall not be a legal tender for the payment of any ſterling debts, or contracts whatſoever, already made, by or with, or in the name and behalf of any perſon or perſons reſiding in the kingdom of Great Britain;" with other reſtrictions, &c. From hence you may ſee, ſhould this ſcheme take place, that in ſome of the colonies, ſuch quantities of paper money might be iſſued, as would greatly depreciate its value, which they will have the liberty of doing, provided the Engliſh merchants are made ſecure of receiving the full value of their ſterling contracts, without the leaſt regard to debts of the ſame value contracted among ourſelves.

"With this propoſal a committee of merchants, a few days ſince, waited upon the miniſtry, to beſpeak their countenance for its paſſage through the Houſe; but I hear they met with but a cold reception, & were given to underſtand, that the government had little encouragement to extend its favors to America, conſidering the returns that had been made to the unexampled lenity that had been ſhewed them the laſt year in the affair of the ſtamps; alluding to the conduct of New-York, in refuſing to comply with the act of parliament reſpecting the quartering ſoldiers,&c. In ſhort the miniſtry threw cold water upon the propoſal for the preſent: and whether the merchants will renew their application, I know not, being themſelves much diſobliged at a petition from the New-York merchants, complaining of the arrangements lately made in the American trade, about which thoſe in England had laboured indefatigably, and with the beſt intentions in the world, to do them real ſervices.

"The addreſs of the New-York Aſſembly to their governor, has made a great noiſe & diſturbance throughout this kingdom, in all companies and converſation; inſomuch, that it is generally ſaid they are in a ſtate of rebellion, and are endeavouring to throw off their dependance, &c. I hear the miniſtry are in great and deep concern about it.---Moſt people are of opinion they will certainly enforce the execution of the act of parliament, and, to that end will ſend over troops, ſhips, &c. the conſequences of which I moſt ſincerely dread in every light in which they can be viewed, either as an infringement of the liberties of the people, or, in the caſe of reſiſtance, for the miſeries ſuch a conduct muſt neceſſarily be productive of. It is ſaid the miniſtry wait the arrival of Lord Chatham from Bath, where he has been long detained by the gout, in order to take a final reſolution with regard to this matter, and to concert meaſures for the execution.---God grant they may be favourable to the colonies. Our province, I ſhould tell you, has acquired reputation with the miniſtry for their behaviour upon this occaſion, and I hope they will continue to deſerve it upon all future ones that do not ſo immediately ſtrike at fundamentals as the ſtamp act did; and yet ſo infatuated are the people here, as to make no diſtinction between one colony and another, but to involve the whole continent in the miſcarriage of one very ſmall part of it."

"At preſent I have very little to ſay with regard to news; for though the Parliament hath been aſſembled a great while, yet they have done hardly any public buſineſs, Lord Chatham being ſtill confined to Bath by his illneſs. C------s T-------d, it is ſaid, has given a great Miniſter ſomuch offence, that it is imagined he will be ſoon diſplaced, and ſucceeded by Lord N----th, as Chancellor of the Exchequer------But there is no ſpeaking poſitively of the matters, every thing being at preſent at a full ſtop, till Lord Chatham's return from Bath which has been daily expected for this month paſt. The land tax bill, which commonly was paſſed on their firſt aſſembling, is not yet brought in, but is thought will be voted next Wedneſday, whether he comes or not.——The affairs of the Eaſt-India company alſo remain unſettled with the government. The queſtion is, Whether the territory ceded to the company in India, ſhall be deemed their property, or that of the Crown; or whether they ſhall pay an annual revenue in lieu of that, and of the charges the Government have incurred in defending their ſettlements? In the mean time their ſtock hath riſen, within theſe twelve months, from 170 to 240.

"Taxing the Colonies in ſome ſhape or other, begins again to be talked of, but I hope and believe without foundation. Probably this may be occaſioned by ſomewhat C——s T——d threw out one day in the houſe of commons to that purpoſe; for I think nothing of this nature will be ſoon attempted.——The aſſembly of New-York refuſing to comply with the act regarding the quartering of ſoldiers, ſeems to give ſome alarm, as if it indicated their throwing off their dependance on the mother country. I am really ſorry for theſe repeated miſunderſtandings, of which I ſee no end. This act, however, which was made only for two years, expires next month, when, perhaps, it may be revived in a leſs exceptionable way. I wiſh things in general, were put upon a more ſolid and permanent footing between us; for I am certain a continuance of theſe ſquabbles will tend to the advantage of neither ſide, but will be very agreeable to our common enemies, who will, in due time, find their account in it.

"A very reſpectable fleet is now fitting out in our ports, the deſtination of which is variouſly talked of. Some think it is intended to bring the Portugueſe to reaſon, in reſpect to our trade with them; ſome, to enforce the payment of the Manilla ranſom from the Spaniards; ſome, to defend our Newfoundland fiſhery from the encroachments of the French; and ſome, to overawe the colonies, and to maintain the ſupremacy of Britain over them.——Perhaps it may have ſome regard to all theſe ſervices, but this time can only diſcloſe."

We hear from Salem, in New-Jerſey, that on the night of the 12th inſtant a perſon who had undertaken to officiate as a Schoolmaſter near that place, and was to have opened his ſchool the next day, as a ſpecimen of his learning and ability, broke open the ſtore of Meſſrs. Teſt and Johnſton, and ſtole from thence about 100l. in caſh. This capital performance being diſcovered, he was conducted to proper lodgings, and will receive his trial at the next aſſizes, when no doubt his merit will be properly conſidered.——This may ſerve as a caution againſt admitting perſons to form the morals of our youth, without having a true knowledge of their principles and character.

From Piles-grove in the ſame county, we learn, that on the 17th inſt. a new log houſe took fire there, in the abſence of the family, and was entirely conſumed, with all the furniture and wearing apparel therein, to a conſiderable amount.

A Good Farm of Land to be ſold at Litchfield, in Connecticut; containing two hundred and eighty Acres, with a good Houſe and Barn and Orchard on the ſame, with many other good Conveniencies, handy for Schooling, and it is expected will ſoon be near the Center of a Society.——Said Farm hath two hundred and fifty Acres within good Fence, and is well watered, and well timbered, and hath no waſte Land on it—is likewiſe extraordinary good for Grain, Meadow and Paſturing.——Said Farm lies all together, except a Road that runs through it, and is about four Miles from the State-Houſe.—The Farm is owned by a Man living in York Government, but is to be ſold by Nathan Garnſey, now on the Premiſes, by Way of Vendue, on the firſt Tueſday of November next, except ſome Perſon buys it at private Sale before the Day appointed——and ſaid Garnſey will procure a good Warrantee Deed, and the Owner of ſaid Farm will allow two or three Years to make Payment in, for Intereſt; and it is deſired that any Perſon or Perſons that incline to buy, would come and ſee the Produce this Summer.

BOSTON, May 7.

LONDON, March 6.

YESTERDAY there was a numerous Court at St. James's, but Lord Chatham was not preſent.—Yeſterday was held a full Board of Trade and Plantations, at which were preſented ſeveral Petitions from the colony Agents.

March 7. The council, held one day this week in Bond-ſtreet, broke up very abruptly, and, indeed, almoſt in confuſion, by reaſon of the animoſities among the Great; and it is particularly aſſured, that ſome late proceedings of two high officers of the ſtate, were moſt ſeverely animadverted upon by the E. of C.

It is ſaid, the following alterations will ſpeedily take place in the Miniſtry.

Lord Barrington, or Lord North, to be Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the room of C. Townſhend, Eſq, who reſigns.

Hans Stanley, Eſq; Secretary of State, in the room of Mr. Conway, who returns to the army.

T. Townſhend Eſq; junr. to be Cofferer in the room of Mr. Stanley.

G. Onſlow, Eſq; to be Secretary of war, in the room of Lord Barrington.

C. Townſhend, Eſq; of Yarmouth, and Roſe Fuller, Eſq; to ſucceed Mr. Onſlow, and Mr. T. Townſhend, in the Treaſury.

The Earl of Briſtol to go to Ireland.

It is ſaid, in order to carry his plan of operation into execution with greater effect, that the E. of C. will be appointed firſt Lord of the Treaſury.—Others again ſay, that he will reſign in a few days.

It is ſaid that America is to be taxed to make the deficiency of the 500,000l. taken of the land tax.

[illegible] India company is to pay the million wanted to make good the deficiency of the Civil Liſt and the ſettlement on the Royal Brothers.

March 9. The papers of Saturday evening agree with our account of that day, concerning a change in the Miniſtry; one of which ſays, the E. of B. will go to Portugal, in the room of William-Henry Littleton, Eſq; and that the Duke of Northumberland will again go to Ireland.

Another paper ſays alſo, that the Right Hon. Charles Townſend, Eſq; Chancellor of the Exchequer, reſigned that day.

March 14. It is the reigning report, at the weſt end of the town, that we ſhall ſhortly ſee a new war break out in Germany!—between two powerful royal Houſes.

It is now ſaid that the Earl of Briſtol certainly goes to Ireland as Lord Lieutenant of that Kingdom.

It is now poſitively ſaid that the E. I. C. as the baſis of their negociation, have demanded a renewal of their charter for 25 years.

A late great failure in the city, it is feared will too ſoon be followed with farther conſequent bankruptcies, through the great commercial connexions of the Houſe which has ſo ſuddenly ſtopped payment.

March 13. We are told, that a letter was very lately written by a high Perſonage to a certain patriot Nobleman, declarative of ſuch confidence and ſupport as to have ſilenced oppoſition, brought about a tranquility among the Great, which was thought to be impracticable.

Yeſterday the Earl of Chatham had a numerous levee, at his Lordſhip's houſe in Bond-ſtreet.

We hear the Earl of Chatham has had the honor, ſince his arrival in town, of three private conferences with his Majeſty at the Queen's Palace.

Oxford, March 9. The Degree of Doctor of Civil Law, by Diploma, is given to the Rev'd Mr. Miles Cooper, Fellow of Queen's College, and Preſident of the College at New-York.

LONDON, March 16.

Letters from Florence inform that the cargoes of ſome Engliſh ſhips, lately arrived there with American corn, have been ſo much heated by the length of the paſſage, as to be deemed unfit for uſe.

It is ſaid a committee of the principal merchants trading to Portugal, will in a few days attend the levee of a great perſonage, on affairs of importance relative to the preſent ſtate of the Britiſh commerce in that kingdom.

The creditors of the great merchant who went off laſt week have wrote a preſſing letter to him to return; the face of his affairs appearing to be much more favorable than was at firſt imagined.

Several ingenious engravers have within theſe few days been engaged to go and ſettle at New-York.

It is talked that the Earl of Chatham, having happily compleated the important buſineſs which demanded his Lordſhips preſence in town, will, in a few days, ſet out for Bath, for the benefit of his health.

It is ſaid that Sir Edward Hawke, and ſome more of the Lord's Commiſſioners of the Admiralty, will ſet out early this ſummer to make the ſurvey of all the men of war at Portſmouth any Plymouth; together with the Marine Arſenals and Royal Dockyards.

To the PUBLIC.

THE Subſcriber having acquired the uſeful Knowledge of curing the Cancer, Polypus, Wen, &c. of the famous Frenchman, Doct. Landr[illegible] who has great Succeſs in that Buſineſs——Theſe may give Intelligence to any who are troubled with thoſe Difficulties, that they may have Relief by applying to their Humble Servant,

Extract of a Letter from London, Feb. 2.

"As to Buſineſs yet done in Parliament, there is nothing very material.—An Alteration has been made in the late Act, reſpecting the Exportation from Dominica to the Ports, North of Cape Finiſterre, whereby Ireland is excepted, as well as Great Britain.—A Motion was made laſt Week in the Houſe of Commons, on the Supplies of the Army, that the Revenues ariſing, and to ariſe, in America, be applied toward ſubſiſting the Troops now there, and thoſe other Regiments which it is propoſed to ſend. Mr. Townſend, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, among other Things, urged the Propriety of more Troops being ſent to America, and of their being quartered in the large Towns—That he had a Plan preparing, which he would lay before the Houſe, for the raiſing Supplies in America.—That the Legiſlative Authority here, extended to every Colony, in every Particular.—That the Diſtinction of internal and external Taxes was Nonſenſe—and that he voted for the Repeal of the Stamp-Act, not becauſe it was not a good Act, but becauſe at that Time, there appeared a Propriety in repealing it.—He added, that "he repeated the Sentence, that "the Galleries might bear him; and that "after that, he did not expect to have his "Statute erected in America." Mr. Grenville joined him fully—what they will do with us in the End, I cannot ſay."

Captain Davidſon, from New Providence, adviſes, that a French Sloop, from the Miſſiſippi for Cape Francois, was caſt away on ſome of the Keys, whoſe Crew afterwards murdered the Captain for the Sake of the Caſh on board, three of whom were bro't to Providence, to take their Trials.

Extract of a Letter from New-Providence, April 6, 1767.

"All the ſmall Veſſels here are employed in looking for the Spaniſh Ship, caſt away ſome time ſince on the Bahama Bank, with one Million of Dollars on board; ſeveral Parts of the Ship have been drifted on the Keys, from which they had got about Five Thouſand Dollars, and ſome Pieces of Plate."

Sunday laſt Capt. Harper arrived here from Antigua, who adviſes, that the crops there were likely to ſuffer very much for want of rain, having had none for 3 weeks before he ſailed; and the Mills were ſtanding ſtill for want of wind, ſo that the canes were merely parched up by the Drought.

NEW-YORK, May 7.

On Sunday Night laſt, Capt. Kipp arrived here in Schooner, from Jamaica, in 42 Days: He ſailed from thence in Company with the Active Frigate for England, having Caſh on board on Account of the Merchants, to the Amount of £. 200,000. About 25 Days ſince Capt. Kipp left at Aneaga, the Sloop Induſtry, of Boſton, & the Black Prince, belonging to Rhode-Iſland, both well.

Laſt Tueſday Capt. Malony arrived here in 8 Weeks from Cadiz, by whom we learn that there is not the leaſt Appearance of any Attack making by the Spaniards on Gibralter, but that a quiet friendly Intercourſe continued as uſual between the Spaniards, and that Garriſon: On the 16th of April he ſpoke with a Brig from South Carolina, bound for St. Kitts, but the Wind blowing freſh, did not learn the Maſter's Name:—The 19th in Lat. 28, ſaw a Ship ſtanding E. N. E. but could not ſpeak to her.——He ſays the Gale of Wind laſt Monday Morning was very violent off the Coaſt, but happily he had Sea-Room ſufficient for the Time it laſted.

On a Conſultation of four PHYSICIANS.

RIding one night to ſee a friend,
Who lay extremely ill;
Soon as I reach'd my journey's end,
Two Dons were at my heels.
I made enquiry who they were,
With aſpect ſo demure;
"These, ſaid the ſervant, Doctors are,
"My maſter come to cure."
No ſooner ſaid, than in there came,
A third, and then a fourth;
"Theſe by profeſſion are the ſame,
"All men of mickle worth."
Pitying my friend's unhappy caſe,
I ſigh'd and ſhook my head:
I ſent next morning to the place,
To know if he was dead.
The anſwer's brought; "He's ſtill alive."
"'Tis ſtrange, ſays I, but civil,
"Few two Phyſicians can ſurvive,
"But four would kill the Devil."

NEW-YORK, May 7.

Capt. Simonton, mentioned in our laſt, who with his Mate and ſeveral of his Crew came here Paſſengers with Capt. Houſton, gives the following Account, viz. That being in a Ship bound from the Weſtern-Iſlands for Caſco-Bay, on his Voyage home, off Cape-Breton, in the Month of February laſt, loſt his Maſt, by Means of which his Decks were ſo prodigiouſly rent, that he took in much Water, and his Rudder giving Way at the ſame Time, was reduced to the greateſt Extremity, and lived for 27 Days on Cod Fiſh alone; but were happily relieved, by meeting with Capt. Chriſtopher Miller, of this Port, bound for Dublin, who treated him with great Humanity, and where, on his Arrival he and his People were ſupplied by the Merchants with both Caſh and Neceſſaries for their Voyage to North-America.

On Thurſday laſt ſailed from this Port the Earl of Halifax Packet, Capt. Jefferies, with whom went Paſſenger Captain James De Lancey, Eſq;

On Sunday laſt ſailed for London, the Ship Edward, Captain Lawrence, with whom went Paſſengers Mr. Seaton and his Lady, and Mr. Houlton, Merchant; and Yeſterday ſailed alſo for London, the Hope, Capt. Davis, with whom went Paſſengers Maj. Cary & his Lady, and ſeveral others.

From the New Daily Advertiſer of February 21, 1767.

To the PRINTER.

A General ſurprize has within theſe few days been occaſioned by a certain memorial, ſaid to be received from one of our colonies, relative to the liberation of the American commerce; this memorial, 'tis ſaid, is fraught with new requeſts to the mother country; and a number of gentlemen who ſhould know infinitely better, imagine, becauſe the Americans have lately been redreſſed, in ſome particulars, that it is extremely preſumptuous to ſolicit a farther removal of grievances; and that becauſe we on this ſide the Atlantic, laſt winter corrected an unfortunate miſtake, 'tis a derogation from our conſequence to give any additional proofs, either of juſtice or underſtaning.

Every man of real knowledge, before he pronounces upon matters of importance, will ſeriouſly weigh the cauſe upon which he is to decide, and form his judgment by the ſtandard of unprejudiced reaſon, not by the criterion of popular partiality; on this account, before we condemn, we ought attentively to weigh the nature of its contents; if the Americans are aggrieved, is it not natural for them to complain, and is it not proper for us to redreſs? Oh, but we have within a few months redreſſed ſome of their moſt eſſential complaints? What does that ſignify? we are bound in juſtice to redreſs them all, and they have conſequently a much greater cauſe to be offended at our backwardneſs to indulge them, than we have to be nettled at their requeſt.

When I ſpeak of the American complaints, I by no means intend that we ſhould repeal any law to favor our colonies, if the repeal has a tendency to injure ourſelves; a ſolicitation of that nature from the coloniſts would be equally bold and rediculous, and deſerve to be treated both with indignation and contempt: the only grievances which I want to have removed from the ſhoulders of our Americans, are ſuch as plunge them into difficulties without doing the mother country the leaſt good; and ſtrip them of that equal claim to protection, which an Engliſhman ſhould enjoy while he ſubmits himſelf to the laws, in every part of the Britiſh dominions; by the fundamental principles of the Britiſh conſtitution, the whole body of Britiſh ſubjects is intitled to an equal ſhare of juſtice and the principles of our conſtitution muſt be violated in the tendereſt of all parts, if we inſtitute any laws but ſuch as are calculated for the general good of the community; partiality always is injuſtice; and we ſhould never impoſe a greater load upon others, than we ourſelves would be ready to bear in a reverſe of ſituations.

That the inhabitants of the North American colonies are at preſent [illegible] by a number of laws upon their trade, which are not only [illegible] with advantage to the mother country, but even abſolutely prejudicial to her intereſt, every perſon converſant with commerce muſt immediately admit. Is it criminal therefore, in the northern colonies to ſolicit a repeal of ſuch laws as plunge them in poverty, and even diſtreſs Great-Britain itſelf? Is it preſumptious to beg that theſe laws may be ſeriouſly conſidered; or arrogant to point out the dangers which muſt inevitably reſult from continuing them any longer in force? if theſe are crimes, the nature of juſtice muſt be ſtrangely altered in this country, and poſſibly in a few years the plunderer profeſſed, or the rebel on record, may be ſet down as the moſt upright Miniſter, or the moſt faithful ſubject to the kingdom.

The vaſt importance of conſulting the good of our colonies was never more apparent than from the beginning of Mr. G's adminiſtration, when the chief cauſes of the American murmurs unhappily took place: Mr. —G—, I have no doubt acted with a patriotic intention during his continuance in office; but experience fatally convinced the whole kingdom, that he was no way maſterly as a politician however reſpectable he might be as a man; before the fatal æra of his influence, the prodigious ſums of money which were conſtantly ſent into this kingdom by the colonies, kept all our manufacturers employed, raiſed the value of lands, and diffuſed a univerſal ſpirit of chearfulneſs over every part of our iſland, but the moment we ſhackled them with coercive laws, we laid a foundation for our own deſtruction; the Americans no longer in a capacity to purchaſe Britiſh manufactures, began to cultivate the various neceſſary arts among themſelves; and the Engliſh mechanic, in a very little time became lamentably unemployed; diſcontent and diſtreſs now appear in every face which was ſo lately fluſhed with the generous glow of abundance; poverty, in its moſt ghaſtly form ſtalked publickly thro' our ſtreets, & whole profeſſions roſe up as one man, almoſt threatning the auguſt aſſembly of the nation, if they were not inſtantly furniſhed with bread.

Yet notwithſtanding theſe evils apparently reſulted from the reſtraints which we had thrown upon the American commerce, and notwithſtanding we reformed nothing beyond what we were bound to by the ſtricteſt principles of equity, we are become ſtrangely jealous of our American fellow ſubjects; we exult with the appelation of generoſity what is only an act of prudence in ourſelves. I am not willing to find fault, yet if I had an inclination how infinitely more ſevere could I be on the inhabitants of the mother country, than the mother country can poſſibly be on the poor Americans; the mother country has expended millions of money and oceans of blood, to eſtabliſh her colonies in opulent ſecurity; yet, aſtoniſhing infatuation! the moment the colonies became either opulent or ſecure, that moment the people of Great-Britain endeavoured to counteract the moſt elaborate ſchemes which had been planned by themſelves; the people of England ſquandered their money and their lives to make the Britiſh colonies powerful; of conſequence nothing can be more injudicious than to ſubvert their own intentions; we ſurely cannot want colonies to make them either wretched or contemptable; if they ever were worthy our conſideration, they are worthy our conſideration now; on which accounts, till colonization, is conſtantly proved diſadvantageous to Great Britain, I muſt earneſtly contend for the liberation of the American commerce, as nothing elſe can neither add ſo efficaciouſly to the intereſt of the colonies, or ſo eſſentially add to the intereſt of England. Your humble Servant. J. H.

BOSTON, May 18.

The public Prints from the latter End of March to April 4, contain very little Intelligence.—No change in the miniſtry. The Dauphineſs of France died the latter End of March.—The 31ſt was held a Board of Trade and Plantations, relating to ſome Diſpatches received from the colonies.—Several agents from the colonies preſented petitions to the board of trade, relative to the trade and fiſheries of North-America. A report prevailed in London, that a congreſs was to be held at New-York in May, by deputies from the ſeveral provinces and colonies in America; upon which it was ſaid that orders were ſent to Sir Henry Moore, Governor of New-York, to put a ſtop thereto: The latter end of March a ſhip was loſt off Bologne on the coaſt of France; at firſt it was ſaid to be the Thomas, Davis from London for Boſton; but ſeveral boxes of ſperma ceti candles, and ſome papers on being found, it appeared to be the John Galley from Boſton.—We know of but two veſſels of that name, that has ſailed lately from this port, one of which was capt. Blake, who was bound to the Weſt-Indies; The other capt. Hulme for South-Carolina and Europe; and as the latter ſailed from South-Carolina in February laſt, it is probable to be the veſſel which met with the diſaſter.—The Lord Hyde Packet arrived at Falmouth in 23 days from New-York.

Hon. Stephen Hopkins, Eſq; Governor.
Hon. Joſeph Wanton, Eſq; Dep. Governor.
Henry Ward, Eſq; Secretary.

Sudden deaths have been frequent of late, we have heard of the following within ten days paſt.

Mr. Thomas Johnſon, of this town, japanner and Engraver.—Mrs. Ballard, Wife of Mr. John Ballard, Wharfinger.—Mrs. Elizabeth Gordon, daughter of James Gordon, Eſq;—Mrs. Gray, Wife of Mr. Gray, Taylor.—Mrs. Coolidge, Wife of capt. Amos Coolidge, of Sherburne.

Yeſterday Joſeph Andrews, who has been confined in Charleſtown-Goal, for ſome time paſt, for the murder of the captain, mate and boy belonging to a New-York veſſel, in the Weſt-Indies; was put on board a ſloop bound to New-York: Two conſtables of the town, went as a Guard to him.

NEW-YORK, May 14.

Both by private Letters and the London Prints, we have Intimations of the Failure in London, of Hagan & Comp. and another great houſe there, who were the chief contractors for moſt of the ſhip-loads of wheat that have gone lately from Philadelphia, Maryland and this city; by reaſon of which we are aſſured many merchants in theſe parts will probably be great ſufferers, eſpecially if the markets ſhould turn out but low, which by all appearance will be really the caſe.—For,

Sunday laſt capt. Richards arrived here in a ſloop from Leghorn, which Port he left the 5th of March laſt, and by him we have advice, that ſeveral veſſels from Maryland, Philadelphia, and this Place were arrived there with wheat, among which were the captains Smith and Robinſon from this Port; that the Price of wheat was very low, and Proviſions cheaper and plentier there than in New-York, capt. Richards himſelf being conſtrained to ſell his flour at 11s per C.——That many of the ſhips would be obliged to carry their proviſions back to England, there being no market in the Mediterranean but what was overſtock'd and the appearance of a plentiful crop ſoon coming in.

Thurſday laſt died in an advanced age, on Pipon's Iſland, St. George Talbot, a Gentleman noted for more things than one in his lifetime;—and we are aſſured his laſt will and teſtament will come under as odd a deſcription; ſome Extracts and ſtrictures on which 'tis ſaid, will hereafter be made public.

Extract of a letter from London, dated March 21, 1767.

"We have had ſeveral meetings about a paper currency, both among ourſelves as a committee for that purpoſe, and with the ſeveral agents of the province, and in my opinion, inſtead of getting forward, we rather have the retrograde proſpect, & I doubt there will be no act for a currency this year, as a legal tender. As to American buſineſs, I obſerve through the whole great langor and dejection, every one looks on his concern thither with a heavy heart; what will be the iſſue time muſt divulge."

HARTFORD, May 18.

Laſt Wedneſday Morning departed this Life at Glaſtenbury, in the 75th Year of his Age, of an apoplectick Diſorder, the Honorable THOMAS WELLES, Eſq; formerly for many Years One of the Aſſiſtants of this Colony.

The ſame Morning died in this Town, after a few Days Illneſs, in the XVth Year of her Age, a very promiſing Daughter of Hon. William Pitkin, junr.

And, Yeſterday Afternoon, died at Windſor, in the Eighty-ninth Year of his Age, the Honorable ROGER WOLCOTT, Eſq; who was for ſeveral Years Governor of this Colony.

LONDON, March 14.

SO many contradictory reports are every day circulated in regard to the proceedings of the miniſtry, that little or no dependance is to be placed upon the moſt probable, ſince the very paper which to day raiſes our ſpirits, ſhall to-morrow plunge us into the deepeſt abyſs of deſpair, and raviſh even the glimmering of hope from the eye of our moſt ſanguine expectation. It is not but a few days ago that we were told, that the Manilla ranſom was to be punctually paid in March; we are now however, aſſured, that this report is wholly without foundation, and that matters are ſituated juſt as they were upon the acceſſion of the miniſtry, utterly declining and utterly diſregarded.

In a caſe of ſuch palpable uncertainty, which ſide of the queſtion ſhall we honor with a belief? In affairs of conſequence, we may not decide upon mere conjecture, nor build the goodneſs of a miniſtry upon the ſurmiſes of ſpeculation; facts, and facts only muſt determine, and till theſe are produced, every thing elſe is emptineſs and air.

Yet though the good people of Great-Britain have no foundation at preſent to judge of national affairs, it requires but little penetration to ſee what our miniſters ought to do; and aſk but an inconſiderable ſhare of experience to point out that courſe which muſt be moſt advantageous to the public; all the nations of Europe are ſufficiently prepared to reſpect us, if we keep up but a proper degree of regard for ourſelves, and we ſhall never be liable to inſult ſo long as we manifeſt a proper ſpirit to reſent.

Whether a peremptory demand has or has not been made of the Manilla ranſom, I ſhall not take upon me to decide; thus far I know however, that it is highly neceſſary to make that demand; the Spaniards know our power, but they play upon the eaſineſs of our tempers; they know that when we are provoked we can eaſily make them tremble, but they are alſo ſenſible that it is a difficult matter to provoke us; hence, though they ſecretly dread us, they nevertheleſs treat us with contempt from a conſcientiouſneſs that when matters are carried to extremities a juſt performance of treaties on their part, will in a moment get the better of our anger, and reduce us to an immediate ſtate of the moſt placable tranquility. On theſe accounts therefore, nothing would be more proper in a miniſter, than a ſpirited conduct with regard to the people of Spain. A reſolute behavior may redreſs our wrongs but cannot poſſibly increaſe them; the Spaniards know their own weakneſs too well to think of contending with us ſeriouſly; ſo that the very inſtant they find us determined to be trifled with no longer, they will find it adviſeable to fulfil their engagements; and we may be certain of having our juſt dues immediately paid, whenever we can muſter up a ſufficient degree of courage to demand them.

But in fact, it is no way ſurprizing that the Spaniards ſhould think themſelves at liberty to evade the performace of their engagements, when we every day put up with ſuch infamous violations of treaty from the Portugueſe; the abſolute creatures of our own hand; whom we can reduce to their primitive ſtate of nothingneſs with a breath; and who, in fact, muſt ceaſe to exiſt whenever we think proper to withdraw the ſhadow of our protection; as long as this nation can trample upon us with impunity, ſo long every other kingdom will think itſelf entitled to trample on us too; and ſo long we ſhall continue in the circumſtances of ſome cowardly individual who having once overlooked an inſult from a man more inſignificant than himſelf; for the mere ſake of avoiding one quarrel, becomes expoſed to the neceſſity of ſtanding a thouſand; and draws innumerable indignities on his head, from a ſcandalous diſinclination to reſent the firſt affront.

When popularity is ſo immediately neceſſary in Great-Britain for every miniſter who would willingly enjoy any reputable continuance in office, it is not a little extraordinary, that our miniſters will not ſtrive by a ſpirited mode of action to recommend themſelves to the good opinion of the people; the Engliſh, as a nation, are no leſs remarkable for their courage than their generoſity; they ſcorn to take an injury themſelves as much as they diſdain to offer an inſult to any other country; and are never more happy than when a miniſter calls upon them for money to chaſtiſe the inſolence of their neighbours. Yet notwithſtanding the well known juſtice of this characteriſtic, our miniſters are always more ready to overlook an outrage than to reſent it; and though they are ſenſible, perfectly ſenſible, that they can riſk nothing by demanding a reparation, we find them conſtantly abſorbed in one lifeleſs round of timidity; unable or unwilling to do any thing for the credit of their country, or the honor of themſelves.

There are few periods in the hiſtory of this kingdom, wherein the ſtate was more diſtracted, than during the time of Oliver Cromwell; Nevertheleſs, our annals cannot boaſt of any period that reflected a greater glory upon the people of England: Deteſted as this wonderful man was by moſt parties, and ſuſpected as he was by all, yet all chearfully concurred in ſupporting him whereves he demanded ſatisfaction for an injury from his neighbours; they admired his ſpirit though they hated or feared his principles; and forgot every impulſe of reſentment and ſuſpicion, when ſet in oppoſition with the honor of their country: By this means the friendſhip of England was every where courted, her laws holden in univerſal reverence, and as Oliver himſelf, in the honeſt pride of his heart, very frequentlly boaſted, by this means the name of an Engliſhman became as formidable through the world, as the name of a Roman in the moſt celebrated periods of antiquity: The ſame cauſe will always produce the ſame effects; we ſtill have the courage of our anceſtors, beſides this capital circumſtance in our favor, of having ten times their ability, to call our enemies to account: In theſe days of unanimity, therefore, what have we to apprehend? We have given the world very recent proofs of our power and magnanimity; and we need only be ſeriouſly angry, to terrify the boldeſt of thoſe nations who are now treating us with ridicule, into an inſtant acquieſcence with the tenor of their engagements.

March 18. This Day being the anniverſary of the Repeal of the American Stamp-Act, we hear that many of the real Friends of this Kingdom, and of the Colonies, intend to commemorate the ſame.

Middletown, May, 1767.

GAZETTEER, March 5, 1767.

RIGHT, WRONG, and REASONABLE, according to AMERICAN IDEAS, and the genuine Meaning of certain MANUSCRIPTS lately imported.

RIGHT.

IT is RIGHT, O ye Britons! that you ſhould diſcourage the importation of raw materials from every Country, but America, and therefore you have done wiſely in laying heavy duties upon iron, hemp, wood, pitch and tar, and all naval ſtores, if imported from foreign countries; alſo upon pot-aſh, pearl-aſh, raw ſilk, cotton wool, and ſeveral other articles neceſſary for your manufactures. For you ought NOT to buy theſe things at the beſt and cheapeſt hand, but of the worſt and deareſt, that is of us.

2d, It is RIGHT, O ye Britons! that you ſhould give more for ſome of our American produce, than it is really worth, by paying an additional price called A BOUNTY. And your Gentle Shepherd diſplayed his knowledge of our GRATEFUL tempers, by augmenting theſe bounties, and by adding to the number of them in the articles of hemp, flax and timber; to whom therefore, we the American part of his maſter's flock, have made a ſuitable return.

3d. It is RIGHT, O ye Britons! to get indulgencies, and to extend our privileges every day: for the more favors you grant, the more clamorous we ſhall grow in demanding greater. The Gentle Shepherd put us in poſſeſſion of an extenſive whale fiſhery, by giving us a great advantage over you; by which means we have employed 300 ſail already: Therefore we now demand the entire poſſeſſion of all your fiſheries. The Gentle Shepherd alſo relaxed the reſtraints laid upon rice, by requiring no advance of duty for the rice intended to be exported; and he granted us ſeveral other great encouragements; but we (ſo far from being thankful for thoſe conceſſions) now demand a liberty, as matters of RIGHT, to carry every thing elſe, as well as rice, directly to a foreign market. Once more your patriotic miniſters repeal the ſtamp act in the hurry of a few weeks, after the plan had been digeſted under cool deliberation, upwards of a year; we therefore having this glaring proof of your great weakneſs and inconſiſtency, do now demand a repeal of every other act, if not conformable to American politics.

4th, It is RIGHT, O ye Britons! to go to war with the French at our requeſt; for when you were ſpending ſo many millions, and reducing yourſelves to beggary for our ſakes, at that very juncture we were receiving a great part of thoſe millions, getting immenſly rich; when you were fighting with the enemy in all quarters of the globe; then we were trading with them in the moſt profound harmony & concord; when you fooliſhly imagined that we were afraid of being over-run by them, though in fact we ourſelves had told you that we were 20 to one, and conſequently could not be afraid, unleſs we had been the moſt daſtardly cowards on earth, that was the very time when (to ſhew our fear) we were ſupplying them with plenty of proviſions; nay, with amunition, with ſhips to be converted into privateers, and with all ſorts of warlike ſtores, to fight againſt you, our dear protectors and defenders; and when you were endeavouring to bring this ruinous war to a ſpeedy concluſion, we were aiming to protract it as long as poſſible, in order to drain you the drier, and to take advantage of your extreme folly and credulity.

5th, It will be RIGHT, O ye Britons! to go to war again with the French, with the Spaniards, or with ſome other nation, when we ſhall find it our intereſt to require you ſo to do; for when you have ſpent another 80 millions in our ſervice (and we will take care that you ſhall not ſpend leſs, if we or our friends ſhall have the conducting of the war) then you will inevitably become a bankrupt nation; then you will be forced to remove the ſeat of government, whether you will chooſe it or not; and your iſland of Great-Britain muſt become a petty province of our mighty empire in America. This favourite point, viz. of making your paultry little kingdom in Europe, become a province of our vaſt empire in America, is a meaſure which the ableſt of our politicians have frequently ſuggeſted in many of their writings, as well as laboured to recommend by private converſation; and it is a point which we hope will be accompliſhed within the compaſs of a few years.

WRONG.

FIRST, from the above ſtate of the caſe, it is WRONG, O ye Britons! to expect any real aſſiſtance or obedience from us, in return for your manifold favors and bounties, your vaſt expences and daily protection; for we will give you no aſſiſtance whatever, unleſs it may be ſuch aſſiſtance as may lead you into another ruinous war, nor will we obey any of your acts of parliament, thoſe only excepted, which may be calculated for impoveriſhing you, and enriching us.

2d, It is WRONG, O ye Britons! to imagine, that we will give your dirty iſland the preference in the ſale of any of our commodities, becauſe, for ſooth, you ſtupidly give the preference to America. We never intend to give you any preference but one, viz. The preference of being our creditors; and in that indeed we will make choice of you before any people upon earth; for whilſt we pay vaſt ſums of ready money to other nations, particularly your enemies the French, FOR SMUGGLED GOODS, we chuſe to run in debt with you; and then we complain of our want of caſh, and make theſe very debts the plea of our poverty, and the weapon to bully you into a compliance with all our demands.

3d, It is WRONG, O ye Britons! to expect a reciprocation of good offices between us and you; for our ſtanding maxim is, to put every burthen upon YOU, and to take all the benefit to OURSELVES. We know no other end of [illegible] but this, nor will we acknowledge any other connexions, dependance or ſubordination, but ſuch as theſe. And theſe dear ties we will acknowledge as much and as long as you pleaſe; even till you yourſelves ſhall be tired of them. This much as to the American ideas of RIGHT and WRONG.

BOSTON, May 11.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in London to his Friend in Boſton, that came in Capt. Freeman.

'SIR,

'I Have now the Pleaſure to aſſure you that the Miniſtry are well ſatiſfied with your late conduct. Your Province was Yeſterday ſpoken of in the Houſe of Commons with great Reſpect, and your Conduct commended. They will attend to no Altercations of old Affairs.

'I adviſed you as one of the Committee, that Malcomb's Affair was not adopted by the Government, nor do I believe it has left any bad Impreſſions on their Minds.

'I adviſed the Speaker of the Reception of the Houſe's Repreſentation of their Grievances, which was pertinent, decent and modeſt, and am in Hopes of good Effects from it. The ſending Votes of Thanks to the ſeveral Perſons who appeared in your favor on the late Repeal, was a well-judged Meaſure, doubtleſs was of Service to your Intereſt here. You do me Juſtice in believing me to be a Friend to America and to Liberty. That darling Favorire and important Cauſe will ever lay near the Heart of your real Friend and humble Servant.'

BOSTON, May 18.

Yeſterday a Snow arrived here from Liverpool, John Midford Maſter; by whom we have Prints of the 10th of April, which contain two or three London Articles later than we have before received, viz.

LONDON, April 7.

We hear bills of Exchange to the amount of 70,000l. ſterling have within theſe few days been remitted to two capital houſes in the city from Paris, for the uſe of ſeveral foreign noblemen lately arrived in England.

This day the election of a member for the county of Bedford, in the room of the late Marquis of Taviſtock, came on at Bedford, when the Right Hononorable the Earl of Upper Oſſory was choſen without oppoſition.

Among other plans for the improvement of commerce, we hear there is one to make the iſland of Bermuda a free port, in conſequence of ſome late petitions laid before the Board of Trade and Plantations.

It is reported that the hon. Mr. Hay, our Envoy Extraordinary at the Court of Liſbon, has received orders to inſiſt, in the moſt ſtrenuous manner, on the immediate performance of every article lately ſent in a memorial to the King of Portugal.

Another report is, that Rear Admiral Lord Colville is to take the command of a ſquadron to be ſent to the Tagus; and that his Lordſhip will alſo be inveſted with a commiſſion of a very important nature to the court of Liſbon.

We hear that new inſtructions have lately been ſent over to his Majeſty's Governors, and naval Commanders in the Weſt-Indies, in conſequence of the French having excluded his Majeſty's ſubjects from carrying on certain branches of trade to any of their iſlands.

A few days ſince a tranſport ſhip of three hundred tons ſailed from the river Liffey, with 170 Iriſh labourers and fiſhermen, who have been engaged to ſettle this ſummer at St. John's and Placentia, Newfoundland.

It is rumoured that the ſcheme for paying off the national debt, by the repeal of the marriage act, will certainly take place, at the requeſt of all the Old Maids and Batchelors in the three kingdoms, which, it is ſaid, will raiſe an enormous tax.

Salem May 15. By Capt. Thomas Lee who arrived here Yeſterday in [illegible] Days from Cadiz, we are informed of the following remarkable Event, viz. That about the Begining of April laſt, a few Days before he ſailed, the whole Fraternity of Jeſuits there, by an Order from Court, expelled that City, in the following Manner. Parties of Soldiers were, without any previous Notice, placed before the Doors of all the Houſes, Convents, &c. where any of that Society were ſuppoſed to be, in the Dead of Night, and continued there till the next Night, when it was ſaid the City was cleared of them. It is thought they were ſhipped to Italy. The common Report at Cadiz was that all the Effects of theſe Fathers were confiſcated, and that the above-mentioned Orders were to be executed throughout the Kingdoms of Old and New-Spain, the ſame Night.

In capt. Smith came a fine picture of the right hon. Henry Seymour Conway, Eſq; one of his Majeſty's Principal Secretaries of State, which is to be placed in Faneuil-Hall, agreeable to a Vote of the Town paſs'd in September 1765, as a ſtanding monument of our gratitude to him for his noble and patriotic ſpeeches in parliament, in favour of the colonies, their rights and privileges.

The detachment of the royal train of artillery, which have been at Caſtle-William the winter paſt, are embark'd [illegible] board a ſnow bound to Quebec, the p[illegible] of their deſtination.

We hear from Worceſter, that on Monday laſt the houſe of Mr. Barber of that town was entirely conſumed by fire, together with all his houſhoold goods. The fire was occaſioned by a defect in the chimney.

We hear from Louiſbourg, that the winter paſt was extremely ſevere there, and ſo intenſely cold that boiling water placed in the open air, was frozen to ſolid Ice in 25 ſeconds.

The following account of a moſt extraordinary phænomenon was ſent by a gentleman of reputation which together with the evidences of ſeveral other perſons of undoubted veracity, who were witneſſes to the fact, that there was no deception, are reaſons ſufficient to give it a place in this paper.

A Woman at Walpole one day laſt Week made two Loaves of Bread, conſiſting wholly of Indian Meal, Mixed with clear Water; when ſhe took them out the Oven, one of them was as red or of a deeper red than if it was tinged with Blood, except one Streak through the Middle of it was white as natural; and the other Loaf all of natural colour, except a Streak in the Middle as red as any of the other Loaf; which was very affecting to the Baker and many others to behold.

NEWPORT, May 18.

We hear that the French Settlers at St. Lucia, manufactered laſt Year 4000 Hogſheads of Muſcovado Sugar, 5000 Hogſheads of Molaſſes, and 1100 Hogſheads of Rum, the latter chiefly exported to Africa, for the purchaſe of Slaves, where it is ſaid, the French carry on a very conſiderable Trade.

From ſeveral parts of the African Coaſt we learn that trade is very dull, and the price of ſlaves high.

The only perſon ſaved out of the ſhip Peggy, capt. Feke, of this place, bound to London, whoſe loſs we lately mentioned, came to town laſt week, and informs, that a few days before the ſhip was loſt, they took up 4 or 5 men in a boat, who belonged to a veſſel that foundered: That in a very few minutes after the Peggy ſtruck, which was off Portland, ſhe beat to pieces; and that he (our informant) with two others, the ſea running prodigious high, held to the mainmaſt, but only himſelf was able to get aſhore: and that a conſiderable part of the cargo and alſo a large ſum of money, belonging to the crown, remitted home from his Majeſty's cuſtom-houſe in this place, were ſaved.

NEW-YORK, May 21.

By Capt. Thompſon arrived here in 20 Days from Monto-Chriſto, we have Advice, that the Trade between that Place and the French on Hiſpaniola, has lately had a ſevere Check put to it, from a Proclamation iſſued by the French General, prohibiting all Communication or Trade with the Mount: Capt. Thompſon left Forty Engliſh Veſſels there, many of whom would be obliged to leave that Place without getting their Load, only two of which belonged to New-York, Capt. Mercer and another.

By Capt. Elder from St. Croix, we learn, that the Crop of Sugar this Seaſon falls much ſhort of Expectation at that Iſland, occaſioned by a great Drought, ſome Time before the Canes were ripe.

HARTFORD, May 25.

Lately arrived at New-Haven, from New-York, 13 Regulars, in Queſt of about the ſame Number, who deſerted from the Troops quartered in this Colony laſt Winter. Which occaſioned the Report of the 160 Troops, being arrived at New-Haven.

Our laſt Advices from Europe are, That Great-Britain, France, Spain, Portugal, Pruſſia, Ruſſia, and Holland, are making great Military Preparations, which indicates a Rupture among ſome of the European Powers---That it is expected by many that freſh Troubles will ariſe in Poland on Account of the proteſtants---That if the Affairs of Geneva are not amicably ſettled very ſpeedily, to mutual Satisfaction, which ſome think has already been done, ſome Proteſtant Powers will interpoſe in Behalf of the Liberties of that Republic---That the brave Corſicans continue inflexible in their Reſolution of freeing their Country from Genoeſe Tyrany---That there is a powerful French Faction in Portugal which impede a proper Adjuſtment of the Differences between that Court and Great-Britain; And that party Animoſities run very high among the Great in England, inſomuch that the true Intereſt of the nation ſeems to be almoſt forgot amidſt the general Struggles for Power and Place.

Omnia venalia Romæ. SALLUST.

THE effervеſcence of Party, like the motion of the ſea, is never entirely at reſt. Party, is a fever that robs the wretch under its influence, of common ſenſe, common decency, and ſometimes common honeſty; it ſubjects reaſon to the caprices of fancy, and miſrepreſents objects: The jaundic'd eye, which paints things yellow, does not more abuſe us in the quality of colours, than party in thoſe of moral ideas; we blame and pity bigotry and enthuſiaſm in religion; we juſtly cenſure the wild exceſſes and cruelties, injuſtice and murders they are guilty of; are party principles leſs reprehenſible, that in a worſe cauſe are apt to intoxicate and diſorder the brain, and pervert the underſtanding? they come to ſet a community at variance, father againſt ſon, and ſon againſt father; they diſſolve in a moment the ſolideſt friendſhips, and as ſoon create them, be the objects ever ſo unworthy; the vileſt ſcurrility and baſeſt practiſes, in favor of their cauſe, give the author a title to their heart, purſe and intereſt; the faireſt fame is rendered infernal, and the fouleſt angelic: that is called genius, which, without the magnifying medium of party, had never been ranked with common ſenſe; and genius, thro' the other end of the perſpective, appears remote, little, and to great diſadvantages.

Lying, and every inflexible vice become virtues; whilſt obſtinate truth and inflexible virtue in the oppoſition are vices, which may ruin, or render contemptible the conſcientious poſſeſſor. As men of honor (I had almoſt ſaid—Chriſtians, but that is unfaſhionable and obnoxious to ridicule) how can we practiſe illiberal methods, or exerciſe any mode of corruption, to purchaſe the wicked or weak, or make them ſo; by promiſe or menace, bribery or any art of deluſion, to unite them to a cauſe, whoſe only merit perhaps depends on our humor, and exiſts but during our reſentment. How great were the public ſpirit! how meritorious the atchievment! could ſome conjurer, clerical or lay, from the pulpit or the preſs, ſo effectually exert the voice of reaſon, as to break the charm diſpel the infatuation, and reſtore mankind to their ſenſes, ſaying,—ye are brethren, why ſhould ye hate and devour each other? I will now venture to treat you as Chriſtians,—how dare you, in that temper of mind, the ſpirit of malice and revenge, approach the altar of peace and brotherly love, or call for a curſe, while you make, in your petitions to the throne of grace, your own forgiveneſs of others a condition of your own pardon? 'forgive us our treſpaſſes, as we forgive them that treſpaſs againſt us' and can't we forgive a friend or a neighbour, that follows the dictates of conſcience? whom the laws of our country indulge with a privilege to act conſcientiouſly, if peaceable and conſtitutionally? and which they render ſacred by guarding it with penalties; we that would condemn an undue influence over ourſelves, as cruel, deſpotic and unjuſt, how can we think to deprive others of the like freedom? Force on the mind, in a political as well as religi[illegible] cauſe, liſts proſelytes, as it were by a preſs-warrant, whoſe deſertion may be hourly expected, on the firſt favorable opportunity: the heart is not convinced, the will is led captive; they may wear the appearance of ſervice, they may make, tho' ſpecious yet reluctant conceſſions, 'Their hands are guilty, yet their hearts are free.' And what is this but taking away the boaſted liberty of a Briton? rendering inſincerity familiar and habitual, & opening a door to a thouſand enormities, that may ſometime end in the ruin or ſlavery of this country; to the author of theſe reflections, ſome may object party motives; let ſuch conſider, that a wiſe man is glad to learn a hint, or find improvement even from an enemy: truth like wit is of no party or country, but a citizen of the world, and a general well-wiſher to mankind.

From the London Gazetteer, March 9, 1767.

American Ideas of what is REASONABLE, according to the genuine meaning of ſome late Pamphlets. [See our laſt for what is ſaid to be their Opinion of Right and Wrong, from the ſame Pen.]

UPON the ſtrength of the foregoing principles of right and wrong, we petition firſt of all, that we may be permitted to import foreign ſugars into North-America at a much leſs duty than at preſent which is 5s per cwt. (though, by the bye, you pay England even 6s 4d. per cwt. for Britiſh plantation ſugars) and then, as we buy the foreign ſugars, almoſt half the firſt coſt of yours, we ſhall be enabled to refine them much cheaper than you can refine yours; the conſequence of which is that we ſhall ſupply not only ourſelves in America with refined ſugars, to the excluſion of yours; but ſhall alſo underſel you in that commodity in every market in Europe. It is, therefore, reaſonable that you ſhould grant us this requeſt, elſe we ſhall not be able to pay our debts. As to that ſilly propoſal of ſome of your London ſugar-bakers, viz. "to permit us to "import foreign raw ſugars in North A-"merica, and to lodge them in a ware-"houſe there till they are re-exported "into England, where they are to pay a "duty of one third more than Britiſh "plantation ſugars." We do not reliſh this propoſal at all for as it is calculated the benefit of the mother country, for for the increaſe of her revenue, trade and navigation, it doth not anſwer the ends which we principally have in view

2 We petition, that no advantage be given to Great-Britain in the ſale of foreign logwood; but that we may be permitted to carry this logwood directly to whatever European market we ſhall pleaſe; and then, when we have enabled your rivals to dye their goods at a cheaper rate, we will take ſuch goods in exchange for our logwood, and will laugh at your laws of reſtraint and prohibition. This, therefore is another reaſonable requeſt, which we hope you will grant, otherwiſe we ſhall not be able to pay our debts.

3. We petition, that we may be permitted to import lumber, pot-aſh, proviſions, and flax-ſeed directly into Ireland, without touching at any port in England. But as this is an article, which you yourſelves ſeem willing to grant, under certain modifications, we will not concern ourſelves much about it.

4. For the ſame reaſon we ſhall be ſilent as to the importation of Madeira wines from America into England, drawing back the America duty.

5. But we petition moſt ſtrenuouſly having the fiſheries on the banks of Newfoundland, and on the coaſts of Labradore abſolutely free. For as we are much better ſituated for carrying on theſe fiſheries than you are, and as we have many advantages which you cannot poſſibly acquire, therefore we ſhould ſoon ruin you in the competition, and monopolize the whole trade to ourſelves, were we allowed to have any ſhare in theſe fiſheries; and then we would exchange ſuch fiſh with the French (as you know we have begun to do already) for their velvets, ſilk and laces; for their wines and brandies; for their cloths, linens and ſtuffs; for their teas, china, calicoes, and all ſorts of Eaſt-India goods; and what we could not diſ[illegible] in that [illegible] we would carry directly to the free ports of Spain and Italy, and there take in under a pretence of loading ſalt, all manner of manufactures, and all ſorts of goods, according as we ſhall think proper; nor would it be in the power of your Cuſtom-houſe officers on our coaſts to prevent us, if they were willing: But all the world knows, that their conſciences are no more ſcrupulous than our own; nay, we even now carry on as extenſive a ſmuggling trade with theſe free ports, where magazines are prepared for us, as we poſſibly can, under the colour of taking in ſalt. This therefore, as it ſtrikes at all your ſtrength by ſea, viz. your breed of ſailors (for as to our American ſailors, they will not enter on board your royal navy; and be it known unto you, that we will not permit them to be preſſed; and if you dare to attempt it, our American method is to FLOG the officer.) This requeſt, therefore, as it ſtrikes at your ſtrength by ſea, and as it would ſupplant your capital manufactures by land, and greatly injure your revenue in the duties on Eaſt-India goods, we muſt inſiſt upon to be the moſt reaſonable of any; and if you will not grant it, we tell you plainly that we will not pay our debts.

6. We petition that the free ports lately opened in the iſlands of Jamaica and Dominica ſhould be more ſubſervient to us, and leſs to you, than they now are; and we are at a loſs to find out the cauſe, how it comes to paſs, or who could unluckily put it into your heads, that you ſhould have any notion of preferring the intereſt of G. Britain, in this affair, to the intereſt of America, ſeeing that you have hardly ever done the like before. It is therefore, highly reaſonable to alter this part of your ſyſtem, ſo as to correſpond with the reſt; and that you ſhould reſolve never to liſten to ſuch bad advice for the future, otherwiſe we ſhall not pay our debts.

ther country ſuch only excepted as we can controul when we will, and modify how we pleaſe. The inſtitution of an admiralty juriſdiction—though ſimilar to the proceedings in your Court of Exchequer, and to [illegible] powers given to your Commiſſioners [illegible]ciſe, and to Juſtices of peace in England—is a juriſdiction intolerable to America. For we are a much more licentious peop[illegible]you, if that be poſſible but certain it [illegible] we will not bear to be ſubject to the ſame reſtraints. Beſides this Admiralty juriſdiction is a grievance in another view; for it is the chief, if not the only check, which you have upon our ſtaple trade of ſmuggling; nay, as it prevents a ſmuggler from being tried by his Peers, that is, by a jury of ſmugglers, and doth thereby promote the intereſt and the conſumption of the manufactures of the mother country, we muſt pronounce it to be the greateſt injuſtice, and the moſt ſhocking oppreſſion upon earth. But above all the authority of Great Britain immediately exerted over us, without the intervention of any officers of our own chuſing: ſo that whilſt this odious Court ſubſiſts, and is maintained with vigour, we never can be a truly ſovereign and independant people. It is therefore very reaſonable, that you ſhould aboliſh it, otherwiſe we will not pay our own debts.

But after what had been ſaid, if you will, gentle Sirs be ſo kind, and ſo good-natur'd as to grant us theſe few requeſts ſo very reaſonable, and ſo exceeding modeſt—then your humble petitioners, as in duty bound, ſhall ever pray, &c.

London, March 7.

It is ſaid that all the old ſixpences will ſhortly be called in, and that a 100,000 pounds worth of Silver will be coined into ſixpences, ſhillings, and half-crowns.

It is confidently reported, that his Majeſty has declared his intentions to ſupport a royal Academy for the encouragement of the polite arts.

The Romney man of war is commiſſioned, on board which ſhip Commodore Hood will hoiſt his broad pendant, and proceed as ſoon as poſſible to Halifax, in order to take upon him the command of all his Majeſty's ſhips in North-America. John Corner, Eſq; is appointed the commodore's captain.

Three more regiments of foot are ordered for North-America, to replace the garriſons that are to return. The tranſports to carry them will ſail for New-York under convoy of a man of war, towards the end of this month.

March 14. A ſhort time ago one Tedder, a poor man who lived at a village in Eſſex, bordering upon Suffolk, had a copyhold eſtate left him of about 30l. per annum; in conſequence of which he applied to the Steward of the Manor (the Lord of which is now at Paris) but not having money to pay the neceſſary fine, which amounted to one year's income, he was refuſed admiſſion; he declared he would go to Paris; his neighbours looked on this ſcheme as fooliſh and romantic, and diſſuaded him from it, but he perſiſted in his reſolution of proſecuting his journey; accordingly he muſtered up all he was worth, went forward on his expedition, and embarked with his ſon, about 12 years old at Dover. On his landing at Calais he had only a groat left, and underſtood not a word of the language of the country, but luckily meeting with a blackſmith who had formerly been priſoner of war in England, and could ſpeak Engliſh, he informed him of his Story; the blackſmith wrote a brief narrative of the caſe, and bid him apply to the houſes on the road and ſhow the paper, which was attended with very happy ſucceſs, being hoſpitably ſupplied with coarſe bread and ſoup, and permitted to lie at night in the outhouſes. After ſome days perigrination, he arrived at Paris, and ſoon found out his Lordſhip's hotel, where he applied, and being known by ſome of the ſervants, he had the honor of being introduced to his Lordſhip in his miſerable and ragged condition, having ſcarcely cloaths to his back or ſhoes to his feet. On telling the reaſon of his viſit, his Lordſhip, who remembered the man, could not help laughing heartily at the oddity of the ſcheme; he was afterwards introduced to her Ladyſhip, and by both their bounties he and his ſon were new cloathed, and generouſly relieved with money ſufficient to carry them home; his Lordſhip likewiſe forgave the fine, and gave him an inſtrument, ſigned by himſelf, in order to have admiſſion to the eſtate; the poor man was overwhelmed with gratitude, expreſſed his ſenſe of it in the beſt manner he was able, and on his return took poſſeſſion to the aſtoniſhment of his neighbours.

Lord Chamberlin's Office, March 26, 1767.

Orders for the Courts going in mourning on Sunday next the 29th inſtant, for her late Royal Highneſs the Dauphineſs of France, viz.

The ladies to wear ſilk, fringed or plain linen, white gloves, necklaces and earrings, black and white ſhoes, fans and tippets.

Undreſs. White or gray luteſtrings, tabbies or damaſks.

The men to wear black full trimmed fringed or plain linen, black ſwords and buckles.

Undreſs. Grey frocks.

On Tueſday a number of Gentlemen, agents for the Colonies, attended the Commiſſioners of the board of trade.

They write from Paris that, the Court had given orders for a number of large flat-bottom'd boats, laid up at Dunkirk, and Havre de Grace, together with thoſe at Breſt and Rochfort, to be immediately fitted up, and ſent to the ports of Merſelles and Toulon, from which it was reported that ſome expedition in the Mediterranean was intended.

The reſolution of the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly of Pennſylvania, relative to the quartering the military, and other ſpecial affairs, have been tranſmitted to his Majeſty's Secretaries of State, by the Hon. John Penn, Eſq; Gov. of Philadelphia, and are ſaid to be entirely conformable to his Majeſty's commands.

It is reported two powerful proteſtant princes have agreed to ſupport the Corſicans in their liberty and independance, by aſſiſting them with a numerous body of forces ſhould affairs ſo require.

They write from Gibraltar, that the Emperor of Morocco was making extraordinary warlike preparations in all his ports, being apprehenſive of an invaſion from a certain Chriſtian power.

We hear Com. Harriſon is to ſet out in a few days for Portſmouth, to take the command of ſome ſhips of war for the African ſtation, and will hoiſt his broad pendant on board his Majeſty's ſhip the Guernſey at Spithead.

Extract of a Letter from Durham, March 26.

"Laſt week a terrible accident happened at a colliery near Fatfield, in this county. The pits were 80 fathoms deep; and on Friday morning laſt, when all the hands were below at work, it went off with a great exploſion, by which 39 perſons loſt their lives. Moſt of their bodies are got up, but in ſuch a mangled manner as would ſhock any body: They have ſuch an uncommon ſtench, and ſome of their bones were cruſhed as if pounded in a mortar, yet had the ſkin not broke in any place. The owners are now giving 20l. premium per man, and ſo great is the the neceſſity of the poor, and the tempting bait, they are already nearly ſupplied. It's remarkable that the ſame colliery blew up between 30 and 40 Years ago; by which means about eighty perſons were killed."

April 1. Yeſterday there was a grand board of Treaſury, and alſo a board of Trade and Plantations, relating to ſome diſpatches received from the colonies.

It having been mentioned in one of the morning papers, that orders ſent to Sir Henry Moore, Governor of New-York, not to permit the meeting of the future congreſs ſaid to be intended to be held in that city, next May; we are deſired to inform the public, that no advice received from any part of America, makes the leaſt mention of any ſuch intended congreſs; and that there is the greateſt reaſon to believe that the report thereof is entirely without foundation, and an impoſition on the public.

April 2. We hear ſome Spaniſh agents are now very buſy in engaging Britiſh carpenters to go over to Cadiz, to be employed in the dock-yards of that kingdom.

We are informed that the Right Hon. the Earl Temple has, within theſe few days been offered a very conſiderable poſt under the government, which his Lordſhip declined accepting.

Thurſday night a little girl, the daughter of Mrs. Lambertſon, a Clear-ſtarcher, near the Minories, having a parcel of pins in her mouth, ſome of them unhappily fell acroſs her throat notwithſtanding every poſſible aſſiſtance ſhe died in a few hours after, the diſtracted mother was ſo affected at the circumſtance, that ſhe continued for a conſiderable time in fits, and died at nine o'clock yeſterday morning.

On monday two young fellows who were at the execution of Williamſon in Moorfields for the murder of his wife, on their return, home, chatting with each other, and making light of the pain which a criminal endured in hanging, one of them agreed to be hanged for two or three minutes, in order to judge with certainty; he accordingly pulled a cap over his face and ſwung himſelf off a chair, taking a handkerchief in his hand, which he was to drop whenever he wanted to be cut down; at firſt he plunged pretty much, but an interval of ſeveral minutes paſſing, and no handkerchief being dropped, his companion became uneaſy, and thought proper to cut him down; when to his inexpreſſible aſtoniſhment, he found him quite dead, and was ſo ſhocked at the circumſtances, that he loſt his ſenſes immediately, and is now tied down raving mad in his appartment.

NEWPORT, May 18.

Laſt Thurſday, about 12 o'clock, the Houſe of Mr. Jonathan Sowle of Tiverton took Fire and was conſumed. This Accident was occaſioned by the boiling (in one of the Chimnies) a large Pot of Turpentine, which catched on Fire, inſtantly ſpread over the Floor of the Houſe, and, by the Violence of the Exploſion, ſhook down Part of the Chimney: The Houſe was in Flames immediately; and ſo far from having Time to ſave the Effects which it contained, that Mr. Sowle had not an Oportunity of ſaving his Daughter, who lay ſick in one of the Chambers, otherwiſe than by dropping her from a Window upon a Bed, which he previouſly threw out for her Reception; by which Means ſhe was preſerved; he then, being conſiderably burnt, jumped out himſelf. The Houſe was conſumed in about 20 Minutes and, with the Loſs of a conſiderable Sum in Caſh a Quantity of Engliſh Goods, &c. Mr. Sowle has ſuffered to the Amount of at leaſt One thouſand Ponuds Lawful Money.

Extract of a Letter from Barbadoes, dated April 24, 1767.

"About ſeven o'clock this morning we had a ſhock of an earthquake, which laſted about a minute, but did no damage; about fifteen minutes after the ſea on a ſudden fell ſeveral feet (it being low water) and left the ground in the dock bare, and then roſe again ſeveral feet, ſo that the water would have come over the wharf, had not the tide been out; immediately after, it fell ſo low as to leave the boats dry on the ground, and directly the ſea came tumbling in again with great force, then ruſhed back with the ſame rapidity, and continued ebbing and flowing in this manner about half an hour. It is imagined, from theſe appearances, that a dreadful earthquake at Liſbon occaſioned the flux and reflux of the water here, though it was not attended with an earthquake."

Mr. GREEN,

SIR,

ONE who ſtiles himſelf A Son of Liberty, has lately by the Channel of your Courant, convey'd to the Public, an Inſinuation, that his Honor the D. G. has drawn Pay out of the Treaſury, in common with the Council, &c. You will doubtleſs be ſo juſt as to undeceive the Public, by placing that matter in its genuine and undiſguis'd Light, which, I am well inform'd, is this, viz. That hon. Gentleman, by ſpecial Requeſt of his Honor the Governor, attended in Council, at Hartford, in January laſt, to adviſe in the important Affair of billeting the Troops, &c. The General Aſſembly was ſoon after convened on the ſame Queſtion; at the Cloſe of which a Debenture was made, including the Attendance at the late Council, and the then Seſſion of Aſſembly; and without his previous Knowledge, Expectation, or Deſire, the D. G's Name was inſerted, only for the former of thoſe Services: And on queſtioning the Propriety of it, ſome Diſcourſe was had about the Practice in ſuch Caſes; but as the Council was ſo rarely conven'd, no Gentleman preſent was able to determine what had been the Uſage on ſuch Occaſions: it was however thought reaſonable, by the Hon. Council, and particularly remembered in one Inſtance, to have been the Opinion and Practice of the late Hon. Gov. Law, while in that Station. Whereupon the D. G. made no further Objections, and ſo was entitled to about twenty Shillings, for his Journey, Expences, and ſeveral Days Service of the Public, in the ſevere Seaſon of the Year. It has alſo been induſtriouſly ſpread (and is well known by whom) that the ſame Hon. Gentleman was a Maſon-Man, Maſon's Bondſman, and I know not what. His great and thorough Knowledge of the State of that Controverſy, his judicious Zeal and important Services, on the other Side of that Queſtion, are ſo well known, that it is really aſtoniſhing, that any Perſon ſhould dare to invent or utter ſo black a Falſhood. It is hoped the Authors of theſe & other late critical and well tim'd Attempts to wound ſome of the moſt reſpectable Characters, will be ſham'd into Repentance & Amendment.

Mr. GREEN,

As publiſhing the Accounts of numerous Families, is but a juſt Acknowledgment of the Kindneſs of divine Providence, pleaſe to inſert the following.

THE 10th of May Inſt. died at Litchfield, in Connecticut, Mr. Benjamin Gibbs, in the 93d Year of his Age; who, altho' he was a Batchelor of 32 Years of Age when married to his only Wife, who departed this Life aged exactly 80 Years, upon the 20th of January laſt. They enjoyed great Harmony in the marriage State the whole Time thereof, which was above 58 Years. They had 10 Sons, and four Daughters, 11 of which ſurvive. Mr. Gibbs has left a numerous and induſtrious Offspring from his own Loyns, which, altho' it is not yet extended beyond Great Grand-Children, conſiſts of 112 Perſons now living, beſides 30 that have died, 142 in all. His eldeſt Son is Capt. Benjamin Gibbs of Litchfield, who could muſter a conſiderable Band of good Soldiers, out of ſaid Family, for the Defence of our Country, ſhould the ſame be invaded by foreign Enemies, or domeſtic Traitors.

Yeſterday a Number of Boys from the North-End going in a Boat on a Frolick, to one of the Iſlands in this Harbour, they carried a Drum and ſeveral Guns to divert themſelves; before they reached the Place where they deſigned, one of the Guns that was loaded went off accidentally, and ſhot Michael Bennet, Son to Capt. William Bennet, about 13 Years of Age, and wounded him ſo much that he died in leſs than an Hour after: It is ſaid the Boy went againſt the Orders of his Parents, which affected him greatly, he expired, ſaying, "This I have got by being diſobedient to my Parents, and coming away againſt their Conſent."

We hear from Bridgwater that laſt Wedneſday ſe'nnight, three Children, Sons of the Rev. Mr. Porter of that Place, having got into a Chaiſe which was ſtanding at his Door, the Horſe ſuddenly took Fright, and running over ſome Rocks, threw them all out, by which unhappy Accident one of them, a very promiſing Youth of about 8 Years of Age, had one of his Legs broke in ſuch a terrible Manner that it was obliged to be cut off the ſame Night, and notwithſtanding all other poſſible Aſſiſtance he was ſoon after ſeized with a violent Fever, and died the Monday following to the great Grief of his Parents.——The other Children, 'tis ſaid were very much bruiſed.

We hear from Littleton, That laſt Sunday Se'nnight a young Man driving a one Horſe Cart, loaded with Shad, the Horſe ſuddenly ſtarted and the young Man was thrown under the Wheel, which going over his Breaſt, bruiſed him ſo much that he died in an Hour.

Some Time in the Month of March laſt, Miſs Levina Lyon, Daughter of Captain Nehemiah Lyon, and Miſs Molly Ledoyt, both of this Town, in one Day, carded and ſpun 22 Skaines of good Tow Yarn; and a few Days after, Miſs Martha Lyon, Siſter to the ſaid Levina, and the ſaid Molly, ſpun 194 Knots of good Linen Yarn in one Day—they begun about ſix in the Morning, and left off about nine at Night. An Example well worthy of Imitation, & which may be rely'd on for Truth, EDINBURGH, Feb. 7. Monday laſt an extraordinary accident happened at Cupar in Fiſe. Some ſervants belonging to a brewery drawing water from a well about 30 feet deep, one of the buckets dropt into the well, which at that time was almoſt entirely drained of water; a labourer, who was by, offered to go down and bring it up. This happened about ten in the forenoon. He accordingly was let down; but when he had reached the bottom, probably by his ſhifting a ſtone, the foundation of the building which was very old, gave way, and the whole ſuperſtructure, with a vaſt quantity of earth, tumbled over him. As there was not the moſt diſtant proſpect of the man's being alive, a number of labourers were immediately employed to dig out the ſtones and rubbiſh to come to the body, in which employment they continued till dark, and then gave over. Next morning with the ſame view the workmen again ſet about clearing away the ſtones and rubbiſh. About the middle of the day, one of the workmen in the well heard a cry, upon which the reſt, with additional hands under the inſpection of the magiſtrates, redoubled their labour. In a little time after, they ſaw his head, and, after that, were able to hand him ſome wine and biſcuit. From this time it coſt the ſevere labour of above a dozen workmen for about ſix hours to dig him out when after digging away about 30 or 40 cart-load of big ſtones and rubbiſh, they bro't him up. When brought out, upon examination, not a bone was broke, and he was found to have only a ſlight bruiſe on one leg. He complained only of cold, and a numbneſs over his whole body occaſioned by remaining 36 hours in water. He ſaid, that during his ſtay below, he had eat a bannock of bread, which he had in his pocket. By applying what was needful for his numbneſs, it is hoped in a few days the poor man will be able to go about his work.

Houſe of Aſſembly, Friday, 3d of April, 1767.

Report of a committee of the whole houſe appointed to take the preſent ſtate of the government of this province into conſideration.

1ſt. Reſolved,

THAT the houſe will on all occaſions ſupport and maintain his Honor the Lieut. Governor's adminiſtration, in conformity to his Majeſty's intentions, and that they will, as far as in them lies, endeavour to render them eaſy, happy and honorable to him; and that they will at all times maintain the juſt prerogative of the crown, as well as the rights and liberties of the people.

2d. Reſolved, That the pretending or attempting to exerciſe the government of the people of this province, or the iſſuing proclamations or orders in the name of the Governor, without the advice and conſent of his Majeſty's Council, is contrary to his moſt gracious Majeſty's royal inſtructions, and a dangerous unwarrantable innovation in the conſtitution.

3d. Reſolved, That the obliging the members of the Aſſembly to meet at the expiration of every prorogation, when the public buſineſs does not require it, is attended with many inconveniencies, beſides giving unneceſſary trouble to the Members.

4th. Reſolved, That theſe irregularities ſeem to proceed from his Honor the Lieut. Governor's being adviſed thereto by ſome weak or evil diſpoſed perſons.

5th. Reſolved, That whatever perſon or perſons have adviſed his Honor the Lieut. Governor to exerciſe the civil government of this province, without the aid, advice, and aſſiſtance of his Majeſty's council, are enemies to his Majeſty, to his Honor the Lieutenant Governor, to the Conſtitution, and to the laws and liberties of the people.

6th. Reſolved, That ſuch perſons are endeavouring to innovate and alter the civil conſtitution eſtabliſhed by his Majeſty in this province, to alienate the minds of the people from his Honor's adminiſtration, to deſtroy public peace and harmony amongſt us, and throw every thing into anarchy and confuſion.

7th. Reſolved, That his honor the Lieut. Governor be humbly requeſted to remove ſuch perſons from his preſence, and that in conformity to his Majeſty's inſtructions, he make choice of ſuch able and diſcreet perſons to fill up the vacancies in his Majeſty's council as are moſt capable to aid and aſſiſt him in his adminiſtration.

By Order of the Committee,
ALEXANDER MOORE, Chairman.

LONDON, April 4.

It is propoſed to the conſideration of the uſeful ſociety for promoting Agriculture, &c. whether it would not be ſerviceable, as the ſtock of cattle in this kingdom is at preſent greatly deficient, and to which the dearneſs of meat, butter and cheeſe is in a great meaſure to be attributed, to offer premiums to perſons who ſhall rear, within a limitted time, the greateſt number of calves, and lambs, which, beſides contributing to lower the prices of meat, butter and cheeſe, would be of great ſervice to our manufactures of wool and leather, by furniſhing greater quantities of materials to be wro't, and at a cheaper rate than they can now be procured for.

It is ſaid that our governors in America, are ordered for the future to ſend over (annually) the ſtate and condition of the provinces over which they preſide.

Monday morning the 22d ult. the following extraordinary affair happened at Ferrybridge: the wife of Thomas Benſon, of that place being ſuddenly taken ill, ſhe to all appearance expired, and continued without any ſymptoms of life the whole day, and every proper requiſite was ordered for her funeral; but the huſband hoping for ſome conſolation in his diſtreſs, by ſome money which he had reaſon to believe ſhe had ſecreted from him in her life-time, began to ſearch for it on Tueſday morning, and found ſeven pounds ten ſhillings in crown pieces, concealed in her box; tho' upon his attempting to take it away, he was ſurprized by his wife, who was juſt then recovered, met him, & terribly frightened him by appearing as if nothing had happened, and continued ſeemingly in health till Thurſday noon, when ſhe actually expired.

Cork, March 3. Monday laſt at Mallow Fair, a man choaked himſelf by exceſs of eating. He had laid a bet with his companion that he would eat three-penny worth of new bread and two pounds of cheeſe, while the other could ſup two quarts of ale with a table ſpoon; and while the deceaſed was taking the laſt bit, he declared he had never before got ſuch a delicious feaſt, of the kind, but he was afraid it would ſpoil his meal on pancakes the next day.

'A couple have been married here within theſe few days, whoſe adventures do make a great deal of noiſe. A gentleman of fortune in London, was in love with a young lady, under age, whoſe father would not conſent to their marriage, and it was at length agreed between the parties that the gentleman's valet de chambre ſhould carry off the young lady in a poſt-chaſe, which was to be met a few miles out of the town by the lover.——By ſome accident he miſſed of the poſt-chaiſe, and the young lady, as well as her conducter (who by this time became her moſt ardent lover,) thinking it no way adviſable ſhe ſhould return without their errand, ſhe was perſwaded to accept of his hand inſtead of his maſter's. The marriage has been accordingly ſolemnized; but the moſt ſingular part of the hiſtory is that the young lady's father is likely to be reconciled to the match, as the bridegroom turns out to be a young man of ſome family and good morals; and in all probability he never would have acknowledged his intented ſon-in-law."

Shelburne, January 12. A melancholy affair happened laſt Tueſday night in the pariſh of Lelant, Cornwall, and is thus related: A young man of the ſame pariſh, a tinner, ſome time ſince inliſted himſelf a ſoldier, and very lately (his regiment lying at Plymouth) he obtained a furlow to go home and viſit his friends at Lelant, but having tarried too long, took a reſolution not to return to his company. However, a part of the regiment being at Penzance, received information of the ſaid deſerter, and accordingly the informer with ſeveral ſoldiers, went to his father's houſe in the night, and complained of being in great want of a light; when out of good nature to ſupply him, he lighted a candle and gave admittance into the houſe; no ſooner was the door opened, but they all ruſhed into the houſe, and immediately a piſtol was fired, and murder cried. The family conſiſting of the deſerter, his father, mother, and brother took to what weapons they had; the brother was cut down dead in the ſpot; the father & mother are ſtabbed with a bayonet in ſuch a manner that tis thought they cannot recover. After the death of his brother, the deſerter fled out of the houſe at a back window, naked, ran to a tin-mine, and went down to the bottom by the rope. When he came down, the miners at work perceived that his entrails were coming out, and immediately had him taken up and put to a houſe. It is thought that this affair will be the death of the whole family, conſiſting of four perſons. But it is hoped that juſtice will be executed on the perpetrators.

BRISTOL, Feb. 12. Laſt week a tradeſman of London, who in the courſe of many years induſtry, had accumulated together upwards of eleven hundred pounds, & being willing to ſpend the remainder of his days in that country, Ireland, took a place in one of the machines for this city in order to ſail from hence the firſt opportunity, leaving his wife behind him with caſh and notes to the above amount, which ſhe was to pack up in ſome of her baggage and meet him here the ſame week; but unhappily for him, after waiting many days with the moſt anxious impatience for her arrival, he received a letter from a friend in London, with the melancholly information that his wife had picked up a gallant and made off with his property.

NEWCASTLE, February 21. From Felford we hear, that a young fellow, a blackſmith, having courted the daughter of a widow, who keeps a farm at Beal, near Haggarſton, going one day to her houſe to aſk for his ſweet heart, found none at home but the old woman, who on his aſking for her daughter, told him ſhe was not at home; but aſked him to what purpoſe was his courting her daughter, for ſhe could not bring him above twenty pounds, and if he would pleaſe her, ſhe would wiſh him to one with 500l.————On which he replied, he would ever with gratitude acknowledge the favour. "Then I am the perſon, (ſays ſhe) if you'll accept the offer." On which a bargain was ſtruck immediately, and on Tueſday ſe'nnight they were married at Kilo. The bridegroom is only 18 years of age, and the bride 64.

A remarkable experiment in Huſbandry was tried laſt Spring, by one Mr. Carpenter of Cheltenham. In the beginning of March he ſowed about ſix acres with wheat which turned out a very good crop, and was fit to reap within nine days of that ſowed at the uſual time. The land was a light ſandy ſoil, and had been laid down with turnips, which were fed off with ſheep during the winter.

Extract of a letter from Hamburg, Jan. 1.

"A courier arrived here this morning in a very extraordinary dreſs, ſaid to be a Corſican expreſs, with diſpatches from General Paoli to my Lord Mariſchal of Scotland, and Sir Andrew Mitchell, his Britannic Majeſty's Ambaſſador's at the Court of Pruſſia. We hear that this courier was immediately carried to the Stadthouſe, and examined for the ſpace of two hours; but nothing yet has tranſpired. It was with ſome difficulty that our Magiſtrates let him paſs, under convoy of the city guards who were to attend him ſeveral leagues, and take care that he was not followed by any of our ſailors, who had gathered about him in great crowds on his firſt arrival. Our Magiſtrates had alſo the precaution to ſtop the departure of the poſt for ſome hours, in order that an account of this ſingular affair might be tranſmitted to Potſdam by a ſpecial meſſenger, before the letters of our idle politicians ſhould make the news of it reſound through Brandenburgh, and to Paris and Vienna. This Corſican courier had plenty of money about him: and by his air and manner, it was ſtrongly ſuſpected that he is a man of more deſtinction than he chooſes ſhould be known."

We hear that a very curious little ſhip of 64 guns, compleatly rigged, and but four inches long, executed by an officer in the navy, was introduced to his royal Highneſs the Duke of York, with which his Royal Highneſs was ſo well pleaſed, from its ſingular minuteneſs, the ſtructure and elegance in which it is highly finiſhed, as to recommend it to his Majeſty; and his Majeſty has been moſt graciouſly pleaſed to accept of it, eſteeming it worthy of being placed in his royal cabinet of curioſities. The materials of which it is compoſed are gold, ſilver, ſteel, braſs, copper, ebony, ivory, hair, &c. the hull, maſts, yards, booms, &c, being ivory; the guns, anchors, blocks, dead eyes, &c. ſilver; the 64 guns weighing but 50 grains; the colours, viz. royal ſtandard, admiralty and union flags, the jack and enſign, are alſo ivory. It is executed on a ſcale of forty feet to an inch.

Feb. 18. By letters from the lower Elbe there is advice that an incredible number of horſes have been bought up in Holſtein, for the ſervice of the King of Pruſſia, and that the levies for his troops are alſo carrying on with great ardor.

Briſtol, Feb. 7. The following ſad cataſtrophe happened a few days ſince in the county of Glouceſter: A gentlewoman ſome time ago on viſiting the neighbouring town where ſhe lived, purchaſed (as ſhe imagined) a little cream of tartar, to give to ſome of her family. Sunday laſt was the unhappy day of adminiſtering it, which ſhe did very innocently to two of her daughters, and the ſervant maid. They had not taken it two hours, before the effects of poiſon were too viſible in them; and notwithſtanding all poſſible aſſiſtance was immediately called in, they all three expired that evening in the greateſt agonies.

March 20. Tueſday laſt thirty tranſports were taken up by the goverment, in order, it is ſaid, to carry troops to North America.

March 21. The ſtruggles between the Ins and Outs continue as violent as ever, but muſt be finally determined in a few days; both parties having aſſiduouſly called in all their forces, in order to decide the diſpute.

'Tis now ſaid the Earl of B--- [not the Earl of Bute] is reſolved to have no further connections with this adminiſtration, and that the Marquis of R---m has given a poſitive refuſal to a recent application for his Lordſhip to join them on his own terms.

They write from Paris, that a Jew merchant had diſcovered a method of embalming dead bodies, in a manner unknown to the moderns, and was thought to be a true method practiſed by the antient Egyptians.

It is ſaid that on wedneſday an expreſs was diſpatched to our embaſſador at Madrid, upon ſome weighty matters, ſaid to be now in high diſpute between the courts of Spain, Portugal and France.

A few days ſince died at her houſe near Enfield the notorious Mother Wel.., who many years kept a houſe of infamy for the reception of highway gentlemen and highway ladies. It is amazing ſhe died a natural death, having been ſeveral times impriſoned for vile offences, and once branded in the hand, for detaining in her houſe in conjunction Mrs. Squires the Gypſy, the celebrated Miſs Betty Canning. The good old lady, deceaſed, was burind on wedneſday laſt in Enfield Church-Yard; and purſuant to her dying requeſt, the bearers were treated with a Pennyworth of bear each at every publick houſe in the way, which is near two miles.

Two ſhips are now fitting out in the river by a company of merchant adventures for carrying on a trade with the Northern Indians in the ſtreights of Belleiſle in North-America.

The Jaſon man of war we hear, is to be ſheathed with copper, and ſent out on a ſecond expedition to the South Seas.

They write from Breſt, That The Chimere and Topaz frigates of war were ſailed for the Iſles of St. Peter and Miquelon, to ſuperintend the French cod fiſhery this ſummer at Newfoundland; they were three parts laden on the merchant's account.

NEW-YORK, May 28.

On Tueſday, laſt Week, was held our Annual Commencement at St. Paul's-Chapel, in this City. His Excellency the Governor, the Members of his Majeſty's Council, the Clergy of the City and neighbouring Governments, and a very numerous and ſplended Audience, honored the Day with their preſence.

On Monday laſt, arrived in the Schooner Phæbe, Capt. Provooſt, from Antigua, in 17 Days; with whom came Paſſenger the Hon. Joſiah Martin, Eſq; and his Family; Capt. Provooſt, ſays, that Capt. Scott, was to ſail a Day or two after him, with whom is coming Paſſenger, Col. Martin, of the 68th Regiment, with all his Family. That about 12 or 14 Days before he ſailed, a Snow from Africa, took Fire, and was conſumed. One Slave was burnt, and ſeveral hung by the Ropes, in the Water, till they were releaved by the Ships Boats in the Harbour, all the reſt of the Slaves were ſaved.—Admiral Pye was obliged to ſlip his Cables, and get under ſail to avoid the Fire from the Snow. The Doctor was much hurt (and no other Perſon) but was in a fair Way of Recovery.

On Tueſday laſt came to Town from Boſton, ſtrongly ironed and guarded, the wretched Joſeph Andrews, charged with being one of the Murderers of Capt. Duryee, his Company and Paſſengers.

NEW-YORK, June 4.

The Engliſh Prints received by the packet up to the 12th of April, are barren, and contain little or nothing relative to American ſtate affairs; but by ſome private Letters we learn, that a late Act paſſed in Boſton, called the Indemnity Act, has given much Diſguſt to the Inhabitants of Great-Britain, and to the houſe of Lords in particular; who, we are told, immediately voted that every minute relative to that Matter ſhould be ordered to be erraſed out of the Journal of the Proceedings of the Houſe of Aſſembly of the Province of Maſſachuſets-Bay, : That little or nothing had been done by parliament, with Regard to America, but that the 24th of April was fixed upon to begin with our Affairs; and that it was generally ſuppoſed we ſhould have Permiſſion granted for the emitting Paper money as legal Tender: That three Ships of 74 Guns, were getting ready for America, and were to take on board the 16th (G[illegible]'s.) and the 26th (Scott's,) Regiments for New-York; the 18th (Sir John Seybright's,) for Philadelphia; and the 10th, (Stratford's late Pool's) for Quebec; and that three Regiments now in America would be ſent home in the ſame Ships.

Wedneſday laſt Week, arrived here Capt. Webb, in 23 Days from Penſacola, by him and private Letters from thence, we learn, that General Haldiman was very buſily employed in new-modelling, enlarging and repairing the Fortifications of the Place, and that all the Troops in the Garriſon were daily employed for that Purpoſe, that Proviſions were very dear there, Flour being 10 Dollars per Barrel, Turkeys 24s. each, Geeſe 16s. and common Dunghill Fowls one Dollar a Piece.

The Mail for Falmouth, to go with the Lord Hyde Packet will be cloſed at the Poſt-Office, on Saturday Evening, the 13th Inſtant, and the Veſſel to ſail the next Day.

Yeſterday Captain Wallace, in a Brig, arrived here in 6 Weeks from Liverpool, but brings no later Prints than we have by the Packet.

The SMUGGLED SCOTCHMAN.
An ANECDOTE.

A Nobleman at Paris aſked lady R——why it was in general remarked abroad by foreigners, that the Scotch, who travelled, were men of Parts and learning, while the Engliſh were generally wanting in both? Her ladyſhip, with her uſual vivacity replied that only fools went out of England, but as for Scotland none but fools would ſtay in it. A Scotch nobleman, neither famous for parts or learning, Lord---, obſerved her ladyſhip was right with regard to the Scotch; for, ſays he, there are offices eſtabliſhed in Scotland where every Scotchman muſt apply for a paſſport ere he can leave the country, & previous to the granting thereof, be examined with regard to his intellects and education, which ſhould they not arrive to the ſtandard fixed for each, no paſſport is granted, but he is ſent back for improvement; on a ſecond application, the ſame form is obſerved; but ſhould he apply a third time, and then be found wanting, he is remanded back for life. By this, ſays his lordſhip, your ladyſhip will plainly ſee none but men of ſence and learning can legally leave this country. "Then, replied her ladyſhip, " I'm ſure your lordſhip was ſmuggled.

Incidents in the Life of EUGENIO.

THE ſelfiſh man has greatly the advantage of him who acts on principles more enlarged; generoſity and diſintereſtedneſs will expoſe the one to ſuch irregularities as the cold virtue of the world has no idea of, while caution, cloſeneſs, and reſerve, guard the heart of the other, and diſtinguiſh what the world calls a man of prudence.

While Eugenio was a boy at ſchool, his good qualities began to plague him. A neighbouring orchard being robbed, the ſcholars were blamed, and a complaint lodged with the maſter; who being a man of great ſeverity, the poor culprit diſcovered the affair to Eugenio, and begged him to go to the farmer to make up the matter for him. Gladly did Eugenio fly to execute the commiſſion; when the vigilent maſter, watching about the place to try if he could not catch the thief at a repetition of the robery, unperceived by Eugenio, diſcovered him coming out of the yard. Pleaſed with the ſuppoſed diſcovery, home he went; and Euginio, as pleaſed as he, went to inform his friend of the ſucceſs of his embaſſy. Next morning the farmer went to the ſchool, told the maſter he had found the thief and was ſorry he had wrongfully blamed his ſcholars. The maſter then diſmiſſed the farmer with a ſmile, called out poor Eugenio, and told him tho' he had ſatisfied the farmer he had not ſatisfied the laws of the ſchool; and, before he knew his imputed fault, had him taken up and flogged.

The next accident was ſoon after he went to the college; when a carpenter, fitting up ſome book caſes for him; had the misfortune to chop off one of his fingers. The poor man by this accident being for ſome weeks prevented from working, Eugenio one day called at his houſe, and left a trifle with his wife towards the ſupport, of a family which he ſuppoſed ſubſiſted wholly on the poor man's labour. He was unluckily met coming out of the houſe by a gay acquaintance, who knew the character both of the houſe and the woman much better than Eugenio did; and was from henceforward ſtigmatized as a ſly rake.

Some time after that, Eugenio's window being next to the ſtreet, he was alarmed with a noiſe at it about midnight; when he diſcovered a fellow collegian, who deſired he would get a ladder, and aſſiſt him in getting over the walls, or he ſhould certainly be expelled for pronoctation. Up gets Egenio, ſcales the wall, and was juſt handing down the ladder to his friend on the other ſide, when, by the glimmering light of a lamp, he was diſcovered by one of the ſenior fellows; and, in conſequence of it, ſummoned before a meeting of the Preſident and fellows next morning, and there accuſed of ſcaling the walls. From which grevous charge ſeemingly ſo juſt, it was with great difficulty he eſcaped ruſtication.

From college he went to town, where the ſame goodneſs of heart plunged him into ſimilar inconveniences. One day, at a tavern, a gentleman propoſed a collection for an unhappy girl, that was juſt come out of the hoſpital, and tired of a bad courſe of life wanted a few clothes, and a little money to bear her expences home. Every one contributed; and Eugenio, finding her friends lived not thirty miles from his own houſe, with more temerity than prudence propoſed, as he was going down into the country, to take her as far as he went, in his own chaiſe. He did ſo, and left her at a private houſe, where he quitted the great road, until ſhe might find conveniencies that would carry her home. Unluckily Eugenio, however, was ſeen on the road; and was waggiſhly aſked as ſoon as he got home, why he had left his lady behind him. He knew it was in vain to tell the ſtory in all its real circumſtances, and therefore ſat down with the cenſure.

It happened while he was in the coutry that a friend of his had had an unfortunate affair with a young girl, for whom he deſired Eugenio to inquire out a lodging, until he ſhould be able to make up the affair with her friends. This matter Eugenio undertook, and managed; and, as it was natural to ſuppoſe a man of his good heart would do, called two or three times to know how the poor girl did. And as he was very careleſs about privacy, he was by an acquaintance once met on the road leading to the houſe where he had lodged this favourite of his friend. The honeſt man ready to burſt with the ſecret he fancied he had diſcovered, proclaimed where ever he went that the kind keeper of this fair incognito was poor Eugenio. What could Eugenio do? he muſt either betray his friend or bear the falſe ſurmiſe. He choſe the latter, and did it with that calmneſs and diſdain which nothing but a ſatisfied conſcience could inſpire.

But finding at laſt, by repeated experience, that a heart beating with the warmeſt principles of benevolence was inſufficient to guard againſt the prejudices, peeviſhneſs and petulance, of an ill-judging, half-judging world, he reſolved to ſequeſt himſelf from it; and now detached from mankind, he lends the happy life of a virtuous recluſe.

CANDIDE.

LONDON, March 19.

MONDAY a curious Plough, with which one man, can plough, harrow, and ſow corn, all at once, was depoſited for the inſpection of the Society of Arts, &c. at their exhibition room in the Strand. We hear it is the invention of a very ingenious clergyman, living at Henley on Thames.

March 24. By the Liſbon mail, which arrived laſt week, it is ſaid that the Portugal Merchants of this city, received commiſſions for goods and merchandize to the value of 120,000l. ſterling.

Wedneſday morning a chairman having pulled ſome money out of his pocket at the Lion and Goat alehouſe in Lower Groſvenor-ſtreet, a guinea, and ſome ſilver ſlipp'd out of his hand on the floor, and rolled under the ſeats; upon which a woman who ſtood by pretended to help him to find it again, but made a ſhift to ſwallow the guinea, and notwithſtanding her being obſerved ſo to do, ſhe poſitively denied it. The man being told, that as he had not found it upon her he could do nothing to her, he ſuffered her to eſcape.—Quere, Did not his Lawyer deſerve a fee?

In the Dublin papers received by yeſterday's mail, the following extract of a letter from Bourdeaux (without a date) is inſerted. "There have been ſtrange proceedings here for ſome time paſt, the England merchants were ordered to patrole every night which they refuſed, and wrote to Paris about it, whereupon the Earl of Rochford procured a promiſe from the Duke de Choiſeul, on his word and honor, that he would ſend orders to ſtop ſuch proceedings, but this was neglected, or the order was defeated, for in a few days after, the Duke of Richelieu ordered the whole factory to be impriſoned, which was accordingly done. They have ſent a memorial to the Ambaſſador at Paris, to endeavour to obtain redreſs, but the iſſue is not yet known."

March, 26. We hear a certain great perſon in a few days, will make known the long expected plan of operations for this year, which, for the boldneſs and extenſiveneſs of its ſcope, we are informed, will alarm and aſtoniſh all Europe.

We are told that a great man was heard to ſay laſt ſunday at St. James's, that he would rather be a general of the Corſicans than the firſt Potentate in Europe.

Saturday ſome gentlemen of fortune arrived in town from Guernſey, to ſollicit the grants of tracts of land in Eaſt-Florida, with intention to be ſettled with French Proteſtant families of Normandy.

Some letters from Leghorn mention, that his Sardinian Majeſty had offered his mediation to reconcile the preſent differences between the Republic of Genoa and the Corſicans by a partition treaty, in which both powers ſhould be conſidered as free & independant of each other.

By a gentleman arrived in town laſt week from Breſt, we learn that a rear admiral was to ſail from that port, in a few days with three ſhips of 73 guns, two 60, and three of 40 each; but that their deſtination was a profound ſecret.

March 28. It is ſaid a bounty of forty ſhillings per ton will be granted on ſhips fitted out from the American colonies, for carrying on a whale fiſhery in Hudſon's-Bay, as is now paid on ſhips ſent to Greenland.

March 31. On Friday Capt M'Bride, who is lately returned from Falkland's Iſlands, was preſented to his Majeſty by Sir Edward Hawke, firſt Lord of the Admiralty.

April 2. By authentic advices from Copenhagen we are informed that the coronation of their Daniſh Majeſties is fixed for the firſt of next month.

Yeſterday arrived at the houſe of his Excellency the French Ambaſſador, in Soho-Square, from France, the Marquis du Chatley, the Count de Conflans, ſon to the Marquis of that name, ſo well known in the late war, with another French nobleman, and two more are expected tomorrow. There are now in England three Dukes of France, and twenty nine other noblemen of that Kingdom, beſides ſeveral others ſoon expected.

They write from Leghorn, that four bomb veſſels, Daniſh built, laden with naval ſtores from the Baltic, and navigated by foreign ſailors, were arrived at Centuri in the Iſland of Corſica.

It was currently reported Yeſterday, that orders are given, to ſtop the further exportation of naval or military ſtores to Portugal; but we mention it only as a report.

It is ſaid, that orders will ſoon be iſſued out for coining a large quantity of ſhillings and ſixpences. None has been coined in his preſent Majeſty's reign, and nothing is almoſt harder to get than change.

We hear that a grand and curious equeſtrain' ſtatue of his late royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland, will be erected before the expiration of the enſuing ſummer in Berkely-ſquare, at the ſole expence, it is ſaid of the inhabitants in and about the ſame.

Extract of a letter from Dorcheſter March 10.

" Our attention has been engaged about the Murder of Richard Williamſon, hoſtler of the Antilope inn, here. Thurſday, the 12th inſtant, about eight at night Robert Rymes, a man belonging to Blandford, but who has been long a vagabond, came into the kitchen of the inn, and demanded to have a nip of beer, which Mr. Birch, the maſter, refuſed him, as he appeared to have been drinking, on which he became very troubleſ me; Mr. Birch, therefore took him by the arm, and bade him go about his Buſineſs; on this Rymes held up his ſtick, ſhortning it in his hand as if going to ſtrike. A dragoon in the kitchen laid hold of the fellow to turn him out. The hoſtler coming in, his maſter ordered him to turn that fellow out of the yard; but Rymes ſtruggled very hard, & ſtruck the hoſtler ſeveral blows with his ſtick: The hoſtler then took up a wet mop and put it againſt Rymes's face, in order to puſh him out. That effort not ſucceeding, taking him by the ſhoulders, he forced him out of the yard; during which Rymes ſtruck him ſeveral times on the legs and they both fell down together in the ſtreet. The hoſtler had a ſtick in his hand (ſuppoſed to be Rymes's) and Rymes a knife, with which he advanced towards the hoſtler, and demanded his ſtick, which the hoſtler refuſed, ſaying, 'If I part with it, you will knock me down. After repeated refuſals, Rymes ſwore he would ſtab him.— The hoſtler defended himſelf with the ſtick, and then ran from Rymes, who purſued him about an hundred yards, overtook him and gave him a mortal wound in his breaſt of which he died two days after. The trial laſted five hours, and the jury brought in their verdict Wilful Murder; and in conſequence Rymes was executed here laſt Saturday. A more ſtupid, hardned wretch was ſeldom heard of; for he died without the leaſt remorſe, ſaying he was guilty of no crime, and would never forgive his proſecutors, for what he did was only in his own defence, and refuſed joining the Clergyman that attended him in prayer, or even to kneel with him. He was afterwards hung in chains near the weſtern road as no Surgeon here would accept of the body.

April 4. Several extraordinary expreſſes have this week been diſpatched to the Courts of France and Spain.

Thurſday ſeveral merchants in the Portugal trade attended the Lords Commiſſioners of the treaſury on affairs of importance.

LONDON, April 9.

Tueſday a great number of colony agents attended with petitions to the board of trade.

Tueſday two government tranſports fell down the river to Woolwich, to embark a large quantity of artillery and ſtores for Halifax in Nova-Scotia.

10. The number of changes in the ſuperior officers and departments in the ſtate, ſince the acceſſion of his preſent Majeſty, amount to no leſs than two hundred an forty five.

It is whiſpered, that a certain foreign miniſter has been told his preſence is no farther neceſſary at this Court.

11. They write from Jerſey, that the French have, this ſeaſon, fitted out ſo many veſſels for the Newfoundland cod fiſhery, as will employ between 15 and 16,000 ſeamen.

13. It is ſaid that a rich diamond ſtomacher, is making by an eminent jeweller at the Weſt end of the town, for the Counteſs of Strathmore, the capital ſtone of which is worth 8000*l. the whole ſtomacher is valued at* 60,000*l.*

A very great trader who lately went abroad and is ſaid to have had goods and effects, &c. to the amount of 50,000*l. on board ſeveral ſhips, is arreſted, by leave of the French Court in a town near Dunkirk, in company with a lady, and put into priſon.*

On the 16*th inſt. died at Mancheſter, Mrs. Revington, wife of Mr. James Revington of New-York.*

An almoſt total change in the miniſtry, it is ſaid, will certainly take place in a few days; and it is aſſerted, with the greateſt confidence, that the hon. George Grenville will have a very conſiderable poſt in the new adminiſtration.

The Earl of Chatham has not been able to attend any Council, nor the Houſe of Peers, for ſome time paſt.

15. His Majeſty goes to the Houſe of Peers this day in order to give the royal aſſent to ſuch bills as are ready: after which both houſes will adjourn for the holidays.

16. On Monday next Commodore Palliſer ſets out for Portſmouth to take upon him the command of the fleet there, deſtined for Newfoundland, to protect the fiſhery.

In a few days Alexander Hood, Eſq; will ſail for Hallifax, to take upon him the command of his Majeſty's fleet there, in the room of Admiral Durel, deceaſed.

Admiral Palliſer is ſaid to have received ſtrict orders, which are to be communicated to all the captains and officers under his command, to ſuffer neither Frenchmen of war nor merchantmen of war to proceed to the weſtward of Anticoſte iſle, in the gulph, of St. Lawrence, or within Fifteen leagues of the iſle of Cape Briton, otherwiſe they are to be ſeized, and condemned as legal prizes.

17. We hear ſeveral petitions have lately been preſented to the boards of the Treaſury and Plantations for opening a trade to the Iſland of Corſica.

Yeſterday the Honorable Houſe of Commons adjourned to the 28th Inſt.

Yeſterday there was a full Board of Trade held at the Plantations, Office, where many of the American merchants attended with their petitions.

We are aſſured, from good Authority, that on monday laſt the petitions and complaints againſt his Excellency Major general Murray Governor of the province of Quebec, were diſmiſſed by an Honorable Board, as groundleſs, ſcandelous, and derogatory to the honour of that gentleman.

It is ſaid that our governors in America are ordered for the future, to ſend over (annually) the ſtate and condition of the colonies over which they preſide.

NEW-YORK, May 25.

Extract of a Letter from London, date April 7, 1767.

"MUCH has lately been ſaid of a virtual repreſentation, which the colonies are ſuppoſed to have here. Of that I underſtand nothing. But I know what kind of actual repreſentation, or rather miſrepreſentation, is continually made of them, by thoſe from whom miniſters chiefly have their information. Governors, and other officers of the Crown, even the little officers of the revenue ſent from hence, have all of them at times ſome account to give of their own loyal and faithful conduct, with which they mix ſome contrary character of the people that tends to place that conduct in a more advantageous light. Every good thing done there in the aſſemblies, for promoting his Majeſty's ſervice, was obtained by the Governor's influence: He propoſed, he urged ſtrongly, he managed parties;—there was a great oppoſition;—the aſſembly were refractory and diſaffected;—but his zeal and dexterity overcame all difficulties. And if through his own imprudence or real want of capacity, any thing goes wrong, he is never in fault; the aſſembly and the people are to bear all the blame—they are factious, they are turbulent, diſloyal, impatient of government, diſreſpectful to his Majeſty's repreſentative.——The Cuſtom-houſe officer repreſents the people as all inclined to ſmuggling. Dutch and French goods (by his account) ſwarm in the country; nothing would be uſed if it were not for his extream vigilence; which, indeed, as it takes up all his time, he hopes will be conſidered in the allowance of a larger ſallary.—Even the Miſſionary Clergy, to whom all credit is due, cannot forbear acquainting the Biſhops, and their other ſuperiors here from whom they receive their ſtipends, that they are indeed very diligent in their reſpective miſſions; but that they meet with great difficulties from the adverſe diſpoſition of the people: Quakers oppoſe them in one place, Preſbyterians in another: this country ſwarms with thwarting hereticks; the other with malevolent ſectaries: Infidelity gains ground here, Popery is encouraged there. The unwearied endeavours which are never wanting, ſcarce ſuffice to prevent the coloniſts being overwhelmed with vice, irreligion, ignorance, and gentiliſm! Then the Military Officer, who has ſerved in the colonies, repreſents them as abounding in wealth; the profuſe tables they uſed to ſpread for him in their hoſpitable entertainments convinced him of it; for theſe he ſaw daily when he din'd from houſe to houſe, and therefore he had reaſon to imagine it was their common way of living. But opulent as he ſuppoſes them, they muſt, in his opinion, be the meaneſt of mortals to grudge the payment of a trifling tax, eſpecially as it is to maintain ſoldiers. Thus REPRESENTED, how can it be otherwiſe, but that the governing people in Britain ſhould conceive the moſt unfavorable idea of the Americans, as unworthy the name of Engliſhmen, and fit only to be ſubdu'd, curb'd, ſhackled and plunder'd.——

P. S. The bare letter of a Governor of one of our provinces, accuſing his people of rebellious intentions, is by many here tho't ſufficient ground for inflicting penalties on ſuch province, unheard, without further evidence, and without knowing what it may have to ſay in its juſtification."

HARTFORD, June 15.

Yeſterday, juſt as divine Service was concluded, in the Afternoon, came up a Storm of Rain, attended with Thunder & Lightning, which ſtruck the Steeple of the North Meeting-Houſe in this Town, ſhatter'd all the top Works to Pieces, carried away the Weathercock, Spindle, and ſundry of the large Timbers.—At the Bottom of the Spindle it divided, a Branch of the Lightning ran down one of the main Poſts of the Steeple, and ſplit it from Top to Bottom; another Branch run acroſs the fore Part of the Steeple, and then turned down by the Meeting-Houſe, ſhattering the Glaſs, Clapboards and every Thing that came in its Way, till near the Ground, where it turned ſhort, & entered the Houſe, wounded one or two Perſons, and killed a young Woman (viz. Sarah Larkum) almoſt outright. As the Conſternation among the People was very great, every one apprehending the Houſe to be on Fire, or ready to fall upon them, great Numbers ran to the Doors and Windows, to make their Eſcape; in this Hurry and Confuſion, one Woman had her Ankle badly broke, and ſome Others were ſlightly hurt, but as the Steeple was not ſet on Fire, no other Miſchief enſued. The Exploſion, when it ſtruck, ſeemed very much like the Report of a heavy Canon, only it was more ſharp. In the midſt of this awful Calamity, the Goodneſs of God was very remarkably ſeen—no One that knew what Numbers of People were in the Houſe, would have expected that ſo many could have eſcaped unhurt. Had the Shock happened at any other Time, many more would have been expoſed, as, that Part of the Meeting-Houſe, where the Lightning entered, was fuller of People than common; as the Congregation was diſmiſs'd, all were crouding to the Doors, and the Steeple filled with People waiting for an Opportunity to go home, when the Rain abated: But as there appeared to be no Probability of its abating quickly, they were deſired every One to return to their Seats, and join in ſinging a Pſalm to the Praiſe of Almighty GOD. This cleared the Steeple of People, and doubtleſs proved the Means of preſerving Many.

——" Let us ſing of Mercy as well as Judgment, and praiſe thy Name, O God." And may this awful Providence remind all of the Uncertainty of Life, and the Neceſſity of being always ready for Death.— " Teach us, Lord, ſo to number our Days, that we may apply our Hearts to true Wiſdom.

GOSHEN, (in Litchfield County) June 7, 1767.

YESTERDAY about Six o'Clock Afternoon, a Storm of Rain, attended with uncommon, ſevere Thunder and Lightning—roſe taking its Direction from the Northweſt to the Southeaſt; the Flaſhes were extreme ſharp, and frequent, chiefly pointing towards the Earth; and repeatedly ſtruck both Trees and Cattle in the Neighbourhood.—— With us, the moſt melancholy Accident to be conceived,— a very valuable Houſe, belonging to the Eſtate of Mr. Joſeph Webb, late of Wethersfield, was ſtruck with the Lightning; there were Seven Perſons in the Houſe, Two of whom, Martin Wilcox and James Royce, were killed inſtantly, a Woman, the Wife of John Carrington, appeared to be in the ſame Condition, but her Huſband, who was one of them in the Houſe, being but little hurt, happily had the Preſence of Mind to take her up in his Arms, and carry her out to the Barn, where ſhe revived, and though much burn't and ſeverely ſhock'd, is likely to recover. The other Perſons in the Houſe eſcaped with little Damage, excepting the ſevere Shock and Surpriſe.—The Houſe was inſtantly in Flames, and together with the Furniture of two Familes, to whom it was leaſed, and a conſiderable Part of Another's, who formerly hired, was conſumed.—The Bodies of the two Men were with great Dificulty taken out of the Houſe, while in Flames, but ſo far burn't, as to be at once a Spectacle of the moſt exquiſite Pity and Horror.—Their Remains have this Day been decently inter'd in one Grave.— Thoſe who eſcaped, ſay, that immediately on the Flaſh, the two Men appeared to be dead and turn'd very black, and the Houſe all on Fire.

Extract of a Letter from a Merchant in London, April 11.

" We have been very buſy about the Paper Money Affair. The Merchants are to wait on Lord Clare with their Opinion in Favor of it in a Day or two. After receiving Dr. F's Remarks on the Report of the Board of Trade, they have drawn up a new Repreſentation on the Subject, which they have ſigned, and Dr. F's Paper is to be given in by itſelf. Mr. Garth for So. Carolina, Mr. Montague for Virginia, Dr. Franklin for Pennſylvania, Mr. Charles for New-York, Mr. Sherwood for Rhode-Iſland, and Mr. Deberdt for Maſſachuſetts, have attended the Meetings of the Merchants on this Occaſion. The Strength of the Oppoſition, the daily Expectations of new Changes in the Miniſtry, and the preſent Reſentment againſt America, keep Minds ſo agitated that there can be very little Progreſs made in American Affairs."

Extract of another Letter from London, dated April 11, 1767.

" I attended a late Debate in the Houſe of Lords, and it gave me great Uneaſineſs to find much Reſentment againſt the Colonies in the Diſputants. The Word REBELLION was frequently uſed. Lords T——t, T——e, S——h, and others were againſt you, and Lord Sh———e, the Duke of G———n, and Lord C———n, your Friends. They ſaid what they dared to paliate the Warmth ſhewn by their Opponents againſt America. Indeed your Friends can do nothing elſe but paliate a little, and delay coming to Reſolutions againſt America, as they would, at this Time, be very violent ones.

It is ſaid, that it is agreed on all Sides, that Meaſures ſhall be taken (what they will be Time muſt diſcover) effectually to enforce the Authority of Parliament, and to carry it into actual Execution. The Act of Indemnity paſſed by the Boſton Aſſembly, will undoubtedly be repealed, and there is a great Probability that a ſevere Cenſure on the Aſſembly will attend it.—This Act is looked on as an Infringement of the King's Prerogative. It was mentioned by ſeveral in the Debate, that Acts of Indemnity never originate in either of the Houſes, but always are ſent down from the King complete and ſigned, and is accepted and agreed to below.

It is alſo reported, and I fear the Report is true, a Project is on Foot, to render all the Governors and Magiſtrates in America, independant of the annual Support they receive of their ſeveral Aſſemblies.

NEW-YORK, June 8.

An Essay; by a young Lady not ſixteen.

TRUE wiſdom is equally as unattainable as perfect happineſs, and we formed in ſuch a manner as to be imcapable of poſſeſſing one independant of the other. We muſt confine ourſelves, therefore, to that degree of wiſdom which the human mind is capable of reaching. It is impoſſible to diveſt nature of thoſe various paſſions, appetites, and deſires, which ſhe ſeems to have placed, if I may ſay ſo, as barriers to our reaſon, over which the aſpiring ſoul is not permitted to leap.——

——————The affections of the heart borrow their ſenſibility from the refinements of the ſoul, which, like treach'rous ſervants, often point their ſharpeſt weapons againſt thoſe breaſts which have moſt cheriſhed and indulged them. The innumerable accidents and infirmities to which human life is continually expoſed, will deeply wound thoſe hearts that while they hardly ruffle vulgar minds, void of ſuch delicate ſenſations; yet theſe fine feelings, however painful to the poſſeſſor are the parents of compaſſion and benevolence, which humanize the heart, and are the beſt bonds of ſociety. Ignorance & inſenſibility are the two moſt powerful enemies of misfortune. The unpoliſhed ſoul of the peaſant is oppreſſed by no anxious ſollicitude, nor agitated by tumultuous paſſions. He is calm and ſerene amidſt every ſtorm, and ignorance ſeems to have given him that indifference which ſo many philoſophers have in vain laboured to acqire. He is indeed happy; but his happineſs is not ſuperior to that of the animal; like it he follows every impulſe, is actuated by the ſame principles of ſelf-indulgence, and feels no other emotions than thoſe arriſing from the gratification or diſappointment of his preſent appetite. Affliction in vain cries aloud for the tributary tear, and the voice of joy is equally diſregarded. He acts from no interior principle but cuſtom ſeems in him to have ſupplied the place of reaſon, and he forms his ideas of virtue and vice and good and evil, from the objects which happen to ſurround him, or from the eſtabliſhed opinion of the world. But knowledge is the ſun of the ſoul, whoſe penetrating rays diſcover many virtues, which would otherwiſe have languiſhed and died in obſcurity. It is that which enlarges the minds, and ſeems to prepare us to rank with an order of beings ſuperior to that of the vulgar.

From the LONDON CHRONICLE, April 9, 1767.

To the PRINTER.

Cinque gran nemici da pace, habitano con eſſo noi; cive l'avaritia, l'ambitione, l'invidia, l'ira, & la ſuperbia: ſe detti inimici ſi mandaſſero in eſilio, regeneribbe ſenza dubio tra noi pace perpetua.

Petrarch.

ATHENS had her orators. They did her ſometimes a great deal of good, at other times a great deal of harm; the latter particularly when they prevailed adviſing the Sicilian war, under the burthen and loſſes of which war that flouriſhing ſtate ſunk, and never again recovered itſelf.

To the haranguers of the populace among the ancients, ſucceed among the moderns your writers of political pamphlets and news-papers, and your coffe-houſe talkers.

It is remarkable that ſoldiers by profeſſion, men truly and unqeſtionably brave ſeldom adviſe war but in caſes of extreme neceſſity. While mere rhetoricans, tongue pads and ſcribes, timid by nature, or from their little bodily exerciſe, deficient in thoſe ſpirits that give real courage, are ever bawling for war on the moſt trifling occaſions, and ſeem the moſt blood-thirſty of mankind.

At this preſent juncture, when we have ſcarce had time to breathe, after a war the moſt general and the moſt expenſive both of blood and treaſure Europe was ever involved in, we have three ſets of orators, who are labouring, by exaſperating us in three new wars, viz. a war with Portugal, a war with Holland, and a war with our own colonies. As to the two firſt of theſe wars, I ſhall not diſpute the prudence or the juſtice of them. I ſuppoſe no Engliſhman can doubt, that if the Hollanders did our grandfathers an injury about 150 years ago, whatever friendſhip there has been between us ſince, we may, whenever we think fit, revenge it; and that if the Portugueſe buy cloth cheaper of the French than they can of us, we have a right to drub them till they are willing to give us the preference. Allowing then that we are ſtrong enough to beat both Holland and Portugal, cauſe or no cauſe, with all the friends and allies they can both muſter, & all the enemies ſuch a conduct may draw upon our hands, and that the Dutch too will probably lend us money enough to pay the expence, I would only ſubmit it to conſideration, whether there may not be ſome ſmall convenience in being the mean while at peace with ourſelves, and finding ſome other way of ſettling matters between our late miniſters and coloniſts than cutting of throats.

Every ſtep is now taking to eurage us againſt America. Pamphlets and news-papers fly about, and coffe houſes ring with lying reports of its being in rebellion. Force is called for. Fleets and troops ſhould be ſent. Thoſe already there ſhould be called from the diſtant poſts and quartered on the capital towns. The principal people ſhould be brought here and hanged, &c.—And why?

Why!—Do you aſk why?

Yes. I beg leave to aſk why?

Why they are going to throw off the goverament of this country, and ſet up themſelves.

Pray how does that appear?

Why, are they not all in arms?

No. They are all in peace.

Have they not refuſed to make the compenſation to the ſufferers by the late riots, that was required of them by government here?

No. They have made ample ſatisfaction. Which, by the way, has not been done here to the ſufferrers by your own riots.

Have they not burnt the cuſtom-houſe?

No. That ſtory is an abſolute invented lie without the leaſt foundation.

Have they not refuſed to comply with an act of parliament for quartering of troops? and have they not ſent a petition to government for taking off the reſtraint on their trade, and ſo overthrow the navigation act?

Allowing that the aſſembly of one colony New-York has refuſed to comply with that act, and that ſome merchants of that one colony have dared to petition, and that refuſing and petitioning are high treaſon: are five and twenty colonies to be puniſhed for the crime of one?

But let us conſider coolly the nature of this act, or this refuſal, and of this petition.

The act was a production of the ſame adminiſtration that made the ſtamp-act, & was probably intended to facilitate the awing the colones into a ſubmiſſion to it. For that purpoſe there was in the bill, when firſt bro't in, a clauſe to empower the officers of the army to quarter ſoldiers on private houſes in America. This clauſe being ſtrongly oppoſed, was omitted; and the act only required the hiring of empty houſes, barns, &c. for the troops where they were to be furniſhed with firing, candles, bedding, utenſils to dreſs victuals, five pints of ſmall beer or cyder, or a half a pint of rum per man per diem, and ſome other articles, without paying any thing for the ſame, but the expence to be borne by the province.

There is no other way to raiſe money in a province, but by the aſſembly's making an act or law for that purpoſe. This is therefore to be conſidered as a law made here, directing that the aſſembly in America ſhould make another law. The propriety of this proceeding has by ſome been doubted, they having been of opinion that an aſſembly is a kind of little parliament in America, not an executive officer of government, and as ſuch obliged to obey and execute orders; that it is in its nature a deliberate body; its members are to conſider ſuch maters as come before them; and when a law is propoſed, they are to weigh well its utility, neceſſity, propriety, poſſibility or practicability, and determine on the whole according to their judgments. If they were obliged to make laws right or wrong, in obedience to a law made by a ſuperior legiſlature, they would be of no uſe as a parliament, their nature would be changed, their conſtitution deſtroyed. Indeed the act of parliament itſelf ſeems ſenſible of this;—for in other acts where a duty is enjoined to be performed by any perſon, it has always been uſual to appoint a penalty on neglect or refuſal, and direct the mode of recovering inflicting that penalty. But nothing this kind is, or indeed well could be, this act of parliament, with reſpect to wh is required of the aſſemblies. It was therefore looked upon in America merely as requiſition, which the aſſemblies were to conſider and comply with or decline, in the whole or in part, as might happen to ſuit the different circumſtances and abilities of different colonies. Accordingly Pennſylvania, where but few troops generally are complied readily with the whole. But New-York, through which all the troops uſually paſs and repaſs, between Britain and the French conqueſts, conceived the burthen of the whole would be too great for them, and therefore complied only with a part of the requiſition, & in an addreſs to their governor gave their reaſons couched in the moſt decent and reſpectful terms.

To many perſons, indeed, the principle of the act ſeems wrong. It it hard, ſay they, to aſſign a good reaſon why ſoldiers ſhould, in any part of the King's dominions, be furniſhed with any thing for nothing. There is always a pay-maſter with them. Why would they not pay for all they have? 'Tis otherwiſe a partial burthen on the places where they happen to be, and therefore unjuſt. In Britain this burthen is only thrown on inn-keepers, & may be conſidered as a tax on that employment, which they however can exonerate themſelves of, by higher bills on their cuſtomers and ſo ſpread the tax more equally. But one colony, that happens to be ſo oppreſt, has no means of laying part of their burthen on another colony, that from its ſituation is generally exempted.

Our coffe-houſe orators, however, would have it declared, that this refuſal of full compliance with the act, is Rebellion, and to be puniſhed accordingly. A rare proceeding this would be, to make a law requiring ſomething to be done that is new, not expreſſing what the offence ſhould be of refuſing to comply with it, or what the puniſhment; and after the offence is committed, then to name the one, and declare the other! The firſt inſtance, I believe of this kind, in legiſlation; and would look not ſo much like making of laws, as making of traps for the ſubject. This is beſides a new kind of Rebellion. It is uſed to be thought that Rebellion conſiſted in doing ſomething; but this is a Rebellion that conſiſts in not doing ſomething, or in doing nothing. If every man who neglects or refuſes to comply with an act of parliament is a rebel, I am afraid we have many more rebels among us than we were aware. Among others they that have not regiſtered the weight of their plate, and paid the duty, are all rebels; and theſe, I think, are not a few: To whom may be added the acting rebels that wear French ſilks & cambricks.

As to the petitions mentioned above, it is, I have been informed, from a number of private perſons, Merchants of New-York ſtating their opinion, that ſeveral reſtraints in the Acts of Trade laid on the Commerce of the colonies, are not only prejudicial to the Colonies, but to the Mother Country. They give their reaſons for this opinion. Thoſe reaſons are to be judged of here. If they are found to be good and well ſupported by facts, one would think that inſtead of cenſure thoſe Merchants might deſerve thanks. If otherwiſe, the petition may be laid aſide. Petitioning is not rebellion. The very nature of a petition acknowledges the power it petitions to, and the ſubjection of the petitioner.

But, in party views, mole-hills are often magnified to mountains. And when the wolfe is determined to quarrel with the lamb, up ſtream or down ſtream 'tis all one; pretences are eaſily found or made, reaſon and juſtice are out of the queſtion.

A Friend to both Countries.

GENOA, March 14.

THE republic has received advice that the convoy which was lately ſent to Capraja, under the command of the Sieuer Pinelly, arrived the 7th inſt. before that Iſland, but could not ſucceed in throwing ſuccours into the fortreſs, on account of the precautions which the Corſicans had taken to hinder the Genoeſe from landing. We have ſince learnt, that the commandant has been forced by bad weather to run into the gulph of Spezzia, from whence he will ſail again for Capraja when the wind ſerves both to endeavour to get ſuccours into the fortreſs, and to intercept thoſe which the maleconients ſend from Corſica. Letters from Boniſacio ſay, that thoſe Iſlanders are advanced within a mile of the fortreſs, and by their diſpoſitions, it is apprehended, that they intend to block up the place.

PARIS, March 27. We have received advice, by an expreſs, that the Spaniſh flote from the Indies arrived at Cadiz on the 13th inſt. conſiſting of 3 men of war, a Swediſh flute laden on the King of Spain's account, and 5 Spaniſh merchant ſhips, all under the command of Don. Auguſtin d' Ydiaquez.——The Treaſure and effects brought home are eſtimated at 19,149,461 piaſtres.

TOULON, March 9. The prince of Brunſwick, in his way to Genoa, ſtaid with us four & twenty hours, in which time he was waited on by the Conſuls and military officers, viſited the arſenal, and dined with Mr. Bompar, the naval commander in this port. His Serene Highneſs likewiſe met with an officer, whoſe life he had ſaved laſt war. The officer had been wounded by two huſſars of the allied army, and was partly ſtripped of his cloathes, when the Prince paſſed by; but the officer who was almoſt expiring, having requeſted of the Prince that his life might be given him, his Highneſs gave orders to the huſſars to deſiſt from what they were about, and commanded the officer to be taken care of.

HAMBURGH, March 31. The laſt letters from Thorn, Elbing, and other places in Royal Pruſſia, bring the important news that the Diſſidents of that province, as well as thoſe of Little and Great Poland, had, after ſeveral deliberations, agreed to enter into a confederacy at Thorn, and had unanimouſly elected Lieut. Gen. de Goltz their Marſhal. In conſequence of this union, the Diſſidents all ſigned a manifeſto, which they cauſed to be printed, ſetting forth their motives for taking ſuch a ſtep.

The Magiſtrates of Thorn, Elbing, and Dantzick, have entered into the confederacy.

CADIZ, March 10. They write from Spaniſh America, that the Queen's regiment revolted at Pamana in September laſt, ſoon after their arrival from France, on what account is not known. The advices only ſay, that the Governor of the town, officers of the garriſon, and the Colonel and officers of the regiment, had been arreſted by the ſoldiers of that corps, who had choſen a commander of their own. This inſurrection, however, was happily quelled in a few days.

LEGHORN, March 12. Paſchal Paoli keeps a body of malecontents ready to ſend to Capraja, in caſe the Genoeſe ſhould be able to throw any ſuccours therein.

LONDON, April 4.

At the court of the proprietors of Eaſt-India ſtock held yeſterday at Merchant-Taylors hall, a motion was made, by one of the nine proprietors who called the court, That it ſhould be reſolved, as the general ſenſe of the meeting, that in the preſent ſituation of the company's affairs, it was proper to come to an equitable accommodation with the legiſlature with reſpect to their late territorial acquiſitions. This motion notwithſtanding ſome frivolous objections tediouſly inſiſted on, was at laſt unanimouſly agreed to. The reports of the directors on Mr. Sullivan's propoſitions was then called for, and read. This proved to be an elaborate attempt to throw diſcredit upon thoſe propoſitions, and tended to demonſtrate that the company would be loſers by every advantage which they had acquired in India; and, in ſhort, that no propoſition from that quarter could poſſibly tend to the benefit of the company. A debate enſued upon this report, and ſeveral gentlemen clearly demonſtrated the erroneous principles upon which it proceeded, and the proprietors ſeemed clearly convinced, 'that the company could not be the poorer, nor their 'trade in danger of ruin, by having acquired more than two millions per ann. 'in India.' As the directors offered no new propoſitions on their part, but contented themſelves with attacking Mr. Sullivan's, it was moved, that a ballot ſhould be taken, upon this queſtion, 'That the 'propoſitions offered by Mr. Sullivan as 'the baſis of accommodation were equitable and proper.' After a long debate, it was ſuggeſted, that before coming to a ballot, any other propoſitions in the poſſeſſion of the directors, or other proprietors, ſhould be laid before the court: this was agreed to, provided a ſhort day for dicuſſing the whole was appointed; and it was inſiſted that the proprietors ſhould meet the next day for that purpoſe. The directors and their friends ſtrenuouſly inſiſted, that the court ſhould not meet till Monday; but on a diviſion it was carried againſt the directors, 158 to 151, and the proprietors were accordingly to meet the next day (Friday) at ten o'clock.

They write from Paris, that an Engliſhman of ſome figure was lately obliged to make a precipitate retreat from that city, on account of ſome innocent familiarities which he took through the grate of a convent with a young lady, whoſe brother was his intimate acquaintance.

The Lords of the Admiralty have been pleaſed to appoint John Elliot, Eſq; to be vice-admiral of the province of Weſt-Florida, in the room of George Johnſton, Eſq;

It is ſaid that conſiderable alterations in the miniſtry are in agitation, and that Lord Halifax's return to a ſhare in the government is as good as concluded upon.

We hear that mr. Wilkes was lately a whole week incog. at Dover, but that expreſſes which were ſent to him from town carrying no ſatisfactory intelligence he again returned to France.

Yeſterday ſome diſpatches arrived in town from the hon. Edward Hay, Eſq; his Majeſty's ambaſſador at the court of Liſbon, which were immediately carried to the ſecretary of ſtate.

This week ſome workmen were engaged for New-York, to be employed in the eſtabliſhment of a plate glaſs manufactory in that city.

It is whiſpered, that a certain foreign miniſter has been told his preſence is no farther neceſſary at this court.

It is currently reported, now, that the government would not approve of the propoſals of a certain great company: & it is ſaid there have been ſome overtures made within theſe few days by ſome men of great opulence in the city for laying the trade open, which are likely to meet with a favorable reception.

Letters from Warſaw aſſure, that the biſhops of that kingdom are aſſembled to draw up a memorial, in anſwer to that publiſhed by the Empreſs of Ruſſia, in favour of the diſſenters.

Laſt Sunday morning a footman was obſerved riding, for the benefit of the air, in St. James's Park, with a lap dog before him, wrapp'd up in flannels, which he carried very gently along, having particular orders not to trot the horſe, leſt he ſhould make the dear creature ſick. This ſtory is fact.

A correſpondent at Warſaw writes thus: "The proteſtants, after having ineffectually tried all the ways of repreſentation, have at length taken the reſolution to join the confederacy. They have at their head ſome very illuſtrious generals; and will be ſupported by a reſpectable army in caſe of neceſſity; but it is hoped that their antagoniſts will not make a religious affair of what is merely a matter of ſtate: There is no deſign to ſtrike at the Catholic religion, nor to deminiſh the lawful rights of its clergy; but only to reſtore an agrieved part of the Poliſh nation to the enjoyment of the privileges which they have always had ſince the reformation, and of which they are unjuſtly deprived. A corps of 15,000 Ruſſians under the command of General Numbers, another of equal force under General Saltikow, and a third of 10,000 troops of the ſame nation, will ſerve to bridle thoſe who might otherwiſe, thro' their great blindneſs and obſtinacy, be guilty of ſome exceſſes, and contribute to put things in Poland on a ſolid and ſtable footing for the preſervation of the fundamental laws of the republic in general."

"A very melancholly affair happened here lately. An officer on the recruting ſervice, a young man of moſt engaging manners, and who was ſaid to be eldeſt ſon of a gentleman of conſiderable family and fortune in the weſt of England, made his addreſſes to a young lady of this town, who conſented to marry him. The morning after the marriage, the Capt. ſeemed all on a ſudden, to be in great emotion. He looked at his young wife with eyes flaming with indignation, calling out,—"What my dear, you have black hair, have you? I'll ſoon cure that:" and immediately drawing his ſword, he ſtabbed her three times in a moſt barbarous manner, ſo that ſhe expired in a few minutes.—The family alarmed by the noiſe, came into the room, and found the unhappy gentleman tearing his hair, and crying over the body of his wife. He was inſtantly put under confinement and has continued raving mad ever ſince."

LONDON, April 5.

It is generally thought, that the Conſequence of the reduction of the land-tax muſt be, that either North-America muſt pay ſomething towards the ſupport of its own civil and military eſtabliſhments, or muſt be declared to be independant of us. And neither of theſe alternatives would be ſo bad as the preſent connection between us and them; for at preſent, we have all the burdens, and they all the profits. Would you believe it? At this very juncture, when theſe people are complaining of the want of caſh to pay their old debts, they have ſent over orders; yes, and money with their orders, for greater quantities of nails of all kinds for building, than was ever known before: And it is impoſſible to execute the orders that have been ſent for many months to come. Now, preparations for buildings are ſigns of wealth in Europe; but it ſeems they are the ſigns of poverty, or want of caſh, in America. However, as we make nails cheaper than any other nation upon earth, they condeſcend to be our cuſtomers upon that account. But as to other articles, ſuch as ſilks, velvets, thread laces, gold and ſilver laces, ſilk ſtockings, &c. &c. They deal with the French ſo much for ready money, that they can and ſometimes do, import ſuch goods cheaper here, from America, than they can be made in England. This may be depended on as a Fact. [A lying Incendiary!]

April 7. We learn from Genoa, that the Regency of that Republic has ordered all the Monks born in Sardinia, to quit their territories, and that they are preparing to iſſue the like orders to the Monks of other nations, reſiding in that country. His Sardinian Majeſty has ordered, on his ſide, the ſuperiors of the ſeveral religious orders in his dominions to ſend him an exact liſt of all the Monks in his Kingdom, and the country where born.

We are informed from the Weſt of England, that the poor employed in the clothing manufactory, are at this time in the greateſt diſtreſs for want of work, moſt of the manufacturers having leſſened their fabricks, and many having entirely left off, which is ſuppoſed to be in great meaſure occaſioned by the immenſe quantities of Engliſh wool ſmuggled into France, and the exceſſive high price of Spaniſh wool, which is advanced ſince the late war full thirty per cent.

By letters from Cornwall we learn, that there is great diſtreſs in that county corn being not only very dear, but hardly to be got for money. Thouſands of tinners quite unemployed; moſt of the great mines left off working. Some corn has been taken by force, paying their own price for it, in Turo market.

April 14. We hear by ſome letters lately received over-land from the Eaſt-Indies that the town of St. David, which was demoliſhed by the French in laſt war, is now entirely rebuilt and enlarged, and that the fort is ſo ſtrongly fortified, as to be thought impregnable againſt any future attempts of an enemy.

According to private advices from Liſbon, it is apprehended that the French & Spaniſh Ambaſſadors were ſecretly labouring hard to prevail upon his moſt Faithful Majeſty (already but too much influenced by the pernicious council of his prime Miniſter) to throw off, all dependencies on the friendſhip of Great-Britain.

The Council General of the Malecontents of Corſica have lately delivered to the French Miniſter, a plan of accommodation between the Malecontents and the Republic of Genoa.

By the Arrival of a Number of Ships from Old France, at Martinico, with about 15,000 Barrels of Flour, &c. an Ordnance was publiſhed, forbidding the Importation into that Iſland of any Engliſh Flour or Meal, after the 15th of June, and Bread after the firſt of July; that the Inhabitants were ſo alarmed at the Prohibition, that they had purchaſed large Quantities at a very high Rate from moſt of the Iſlanders, and the Governor was obliged to quiet the Populace, to declare to them, in Caſe of Neceſſity, they ſhould be ſupplied out of the King's Stores, which had the deſired Effect.

We learn from Dominica, that they are buſy building many Houſes there, and erected a Bridge over the River by Subſcription; that the Surveyors agree that Iſland is larger than Martinico, and that there is much more Land capable of Cultivation than was at firſt expected; that they had a Proſpect of great Crops of Coffee next Year; that there was great Plenty of Sugar at Market; that many Veſſels had lately ſailed from thence with their Loads; and that three Guineymen arrived there a few Months ſince, and ſold their Slaves very well.

On Monday the firſt Inſtant, the Society for promoting Arts, &c. held a ſtated Meeting, when the Premium of 30l. for raiſing the greateſt Quantity of Flax off a Piece of Land not exceeding four Acres was adjudged to Johannis Van Zant, of New-York County, who raiſed 2045 lb. on 3 Acres, 3 Rods, and 34 Perches: The ſecond Premium of 15l. was adjudged to Thomas Hunt of Weſtcheſter County, who raiſed 1558lb. of Flax, off a Piece of Land not exceeding four Acres: Said Claimants are deſired to call on the Treaſurer, who is directed to pay the above Sums. The Petition of James Voty, Stocking-Weaver, was granted; alſo Mrs. Patterſon's who ſhewed a very fine Piece of Linen of her own Spinning. Two Certificates of Vineyards in this Province were received; both of which exceeded the Quantity of Vines ſtipulated by the London Society, for obtaining the Premiums they offered.

On Tueſday 9th died here alſo, John Kelly, Eſq; for many Years a Lawyer in this City.

We hear by Capt. PHILADELPHIA, June 11

By Capt. May, from Port Louis we learn that about the Beginning of March laſt, one of his Majeſty's Frigates touching at the Iſle of Aſh, to get Wood, a French Guarda Coaſta Snow, of 16 Guns on ſeeing her, ſent her Boat on board to know her Buſineſs; that the Captain of the Frigate detained the Boat all Night, and diſmiſſed her the next Morning; after which the Snow come up and poured in her Broadſide, which was ſmartly returned by the Frigate, till the Frenchman tho't fit to tow his Veſſel off (there being no Wind) having her Maſts ſhot through, all her upper Works carried away even with the deck, fore and aft, had a great number of men killed; and was towed into Port Louis a mere wreck; and after being refitted, ſhe went out again, and returned with two ſloops belonging to Jamaica, which we met carrying on an illicit trade. And that about the 1ſt of May, the Capt. of a French Guineaman there, getting intelligence of a New-England Schooner being in little bay to the leeward, manned his boats, went down and took her and bro't her into Port Louis, where the Capt. and crew were immediately confined in goal, and the veſſel and cargo condemned.
